Rights of the People of England concerning impositions. Lond. 1679. oct. He also gathered and published 32 Sermons of Edw. Philips a zealous and Puritannical Preacher, as I have told you under the year 1603. and other things, as 'tis probable, of the like nature, but such I have not yet seen. He gave way to fate in sixteen hundred twenty and nine, (in winter time before February,) and was buried, I suppose, where his chief Seat was, viz. at Eston-Manduit or Mander in Northamptonshire, leaving then behind him a Son named Robert; and a Brother called Sir Christopher, who was about that time one of the Justices of the Common Pleas. From this Sir Hen. Yelverton was descended Charles Yelverton who was called up to the House of Lords by the name of Charles Lord Grey of Ruthen, as being the Son and Heir of Sir Hen. Yelverton Baronet, by Susan his Wife, Daughter and sole Heir of Charles Lord Grey of Ruthen.

JOHN ELYOTT, or Elliot, a Cornish man born, 569. and an Esquires Son, became a Gent. Com. of Exeter coll. in Mich. Term, an. 1607. aged 15 years, left the University without a degree, after he had continued there about 3 years, went to one of the Inns of Court, as it seems, and was made a Barrister. In 1618. May 10. he received the honour of Knighthood from his Maj. at Whitehall, and ever after to the time of his death, was either elected a Knight of his County, or a Burgess for some Borough therein, to serve in all Parliaments. But so it was, that he shewing himself in them an active man for the publick, a generous assertor (as he pretended) of the ancient liberty of the Subject, and an enemy to the incroachments made by rising Favourites, was several times committed to custody. He hath going under his name, Several Speeches spoken in Parliament, as, (1) Speech against George Duke of Buckingham, and concerning grievances.

(b) In Merc. Rusticus cu. 7. and in the second part, nu. 1.

(†) Camden in Annal. R. Jac. 1. an. 1621. (†) Jo. Rushworth in his Historic. collections; part. 1. an. 1621. p. 32, 33.

(2) Sp. by way of Epilogue concerning the Duke of Bucks impeachment. These two were spoken in 1626. and soon after he, with Sir Dud. Digges, who spoke the Prologue to the said impeachment, were committed both prisoners to the Tower, but soon after were released: whereupon Elyott spoke. (3) A Sp. to clear himself as to the particulars charged against him. In the same year he was imprison'd in the Gatehouse at Westm. for refusing to part with money on the Loan, and thereupon in a Petition to the King he set forth the illegality of the said Loan, or of any Tax without a Parliament. Which way he took, when his Council would not assist him otherwise; alledging farther that his conscience could not submit to it, and prayed for his liberty, but could not obtain it. (4) Speech upon the Kings giving notice to both Houses, that he did intend shortly to end the Session of Parliament. an. 1628. (5) Sp. against the D. of Bucks, interrupted in it by the Speaker. (6) Sp. concerning Religion, an. 1628. This was printed in 1641. in one sh. in qu. (7) Sp. against particular persons, spoken in 1628. and therefore a little before the dissolution of the Parl. he, with other Members were committed to the Tower. All which Speeches, with Certaine Debates of the said Sir Joh. Elyott you may see in the first vol. of Historical Collections, made by John Rushworth. What more to be added, is that about the same time (1628.) was an information exhibited against Sir John in the Court of the Kings Bench, for a sower of discord, for his murmurings, seditions, &c. against the King, Nobles, Prelates, &c. in Parliament, which were pleaded against by several persons on his behalf; and that many years after his death, (which hapned, as I conceive, about sixteen hundred twenty and nine) were Votes passed in the H. of Com. that 5000. pounds should be given to his children, because he had suffered in the 3 of Car. 1. Dom. 1627. for opposing the illegalities of that time. The said Votes passed in 1646. and no doubt there is, but all, or at least some, of the money was paid.

370. WILLIAM THORNE, a most noted Linguist and Rabbie of his time, (and therefore well known to, and respected by, that noted Belgick Critick John Drusius, who dedicates to him his Opuscula Grammaticalia) received his first breath at Semeley in Wilt. his Grammatical education in Wykeham's School, and his Academical in New coll. of which he became perpetual Fellow in 1587. being then esteemed to be well grounded in humane learning. In 1593. he proceeded in Arts, and five years after was constituted Hebrew Professor of the University. Afterwards being promoted to the Deanery of Chichester (in the room, as it seems, of Dr. Martin Colepeper deceased) he proceeded in Divinity; at which time he was reputed eminent, not only for his incomparable skill in the Oriental Sacred Tongues by men (c) unmatched in them (worthily famous on this side, and beyond the Sea) but also for other learning. His writings are, Tullius sive Rhetor, in tria stromata divisus. Oxon. 1592. octavo.

A kenning Glas for a Christian King, Sermon on Joh. 19. latter part of the 15. verse. Lond. 1623. oct. and other things, as 'tis said, but such I have not yet seen. He died 13. Feb. in sixteen hundred twenty and nine, and was buried two days after in the Cath. Ch. at Chichester. In his Deanry of Chichester, succeeded Dr. Francis Dee of Cambridge, about that time Chancellour of the Ch. at Salum, and afterwards Bishop of Peterborough.

571. LEWIS OWEN, a native of Merionethshire, became either a Servitor or a Student of Ch. Ch. in Summer time, an. 1590. aged 18. but left the University without a degree, having some petty employment bestow'd on him about that time. Afterwards he travelled in the latter end of Q. Elizab. and beginning of K. James into several countries of Europe: and in Spain making a longer continuance than elsewhere, he entred himself, if I mistake not, into the Society of Jesuits at Valladolid, where he continued a curious observer among them for some time. At length being fully satisfied of their intrigues, which tended, as he said, to worldly policy, rather than true religion, he left, and became a bitter enemy against, them, as well in his discourses, as writings, as it may appear in these things following.

The running Register: recording a true relation of the State of the English Colleges, Seminaries and Cloysters in all foreign parts, together with a brief discourse of the lives, practices, &c. of Engl. Monks, Friars, Jesuits, &c. Lond. 1626. qu.

The unmasking of all Popish Monks, Friars and Jesuits. Or, a treatise of their genealogy, beginnings, proceedings and present state, &c. Lond. 1628. qu.

Speculum Jesuiticum. Or, the Jesuits looking Glas: wherein they may behold Ignatius (their Patron) his progress, their own pilgrimage, his life, their beginning, &c. Lond. 1629. qu.

A true Catalogue of all their Colleges, professed houses, houses of Approbation, Seminaries and houses of residence in all parts of the World. And lastly a true number of the Fellows of their Society, taken out of their own books and catalogues printed with the Speculum Jesuiticum, and both at the end of Europe Speculum, 1629. written by Sir Ed. Sandys before mention'd. This Lew. Owen who had a rambling head, was living in sixteen hundred twenty and nine, but what became of him afterwards, I cannot find. Besides this Lew. Owen was another of both his names, born in Anglesey, first a Student in S. Edm. Hall 1578. afterwards of Hart hall, and a Benefactor to Jesuits coll. Clar. 1629.

WILLIAM HERBERT, Son and Heir of Hen. Earl of Pembroke was born at Wilton in Wilt. 8. Apr. 1580. became a Nobleman of New coll. in Lent-term 1592. aged 13. continued there about two years, succeeded his Father in his honours 1601. made Knight of the Garter 1. Jac. 1. and Governour of Portsmouth six years after. In 1626. he was unanimously elected Chancellour of this University, being a great Patron of learning, and about that time was made Lord Chamberlain of the Kings Household. He was not only a great favourer of learned and ingenious men, but was himself learned, and endowed to admiration with a poetical genie, as by those amorous and not inelegant Aires and Poems of his composition doth evidently appear; some of which had musical Notes set to them, by Hen. Lawes and Nich. Laneare. All that he hath extant, were published with this title.

Poems written by William Earl of Pembroke, &c. many of which are answered by way of repartee, by Sir Benj. Rudyard, with other Poems written by them occasionally and apart. Lond. 1660. oct. He died suddenly in his house called Baynards Castle in London, on the tenth of Apr. in sixteen hundred and thirty, (according to the calculation of his nativity made several years before by Mr. Tho. Allen of Glouc. hall) whereupon his body was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Salisbury near to that of his Father. See more of him in the Fasti, among the Creations, an. 1605. He had a younger brother named Philip, who was also a Nobleman of New coll. at the same time with his brother, was afterwards created Earl of Montgomery, and upon the death of his brother William, succeeded in the title of Pembroke. But this Philip was quite different in temper from his brother, for he was esteemed by all that knew, or had to do with, him, a very cholerick man, a frequent Swearer, and so illiterate, that if the report be true, he could scarce write his name. He also turn'd Rebel when the Civil Wars began in 1642. was one of the Council of State by Olivers appointment after K. Ch. 1. was beheaded, and a most passionate enemy to learning, which notoriously appeared when he deeply engag'd himself in the undoing of this University (of which he was Chancellour) in 1648. I have seen several rambling and confus'd Speeches that he, with great confidence, uttered in Parliament and Committees, which were afterwards printed under his name; and others, very witty and Satyrical, that were father'd upon him. The Reader is to know that besides the former Will. Herbert, hath been others of both his names that have been writers, as one, who was a Knight, in the time of Qu. Elizab. an. 1586. and another of Pointington in 1646. who dedicates his book called Herberts belief, &c. to his Son Benjamin, and one William Herbert who published The Prophecy of Cadwalader, &c.

(c) Joh. Drusius in Epist. ad Gram. Grac. --- Abel Cuvard in vita & operibus Joh. Druf. & alii ultra mare --- Tho. Fye Anglus in Epist. ad Joh. Huxon De doctrinis --- Car. Fitz-Guipidus in 3. lib. Epigram. &c.

573. SAMUEL PAGE, a Ministers Son and a Bedfordshire man born, was admitted Schollar of C. C. coll. 10 June 1587. aged 13 or thereabouts, took one degree in Arts, but whether he was Fellow of that house, or Master of that faculty, it appears not. In his Juvenile years, he was accounted one of the chiefest among our English Poets to bewail and bemoan the perplexities of Love in his Poetical and Romantick writings; but when he became Elder, he applyed his Muse to the study of the sacred writ, in which faculty he was admitted Bachelor in 1603. being then, or about that time, Vicar of Deptford alias West Greenwich in Kent, and in 1611. he proceeded in his faculty, being then much in esteem by the Clergy of the neighbourhood, where he lived, and reverenc'd by the Laity for his orthodox principles and continual and unwearied labours in his function. His works are these.

He ended his days at Deptford before mention'd, and was buried in the Church there, on the eighth day of August, in sixteen hundred and thirty. One Dr. Page published a book intit. Ius fratrum, or the Law of Brethren. Printed in oct. 1658. but whether it was written by Dr. Samuel, or Dr. William Page, or by another, I cannot know, unless I could see the book.

574. SEBASTIAN BENEFEILD, was born at Prestbury in Gloucestershire, admitted Scholar of C. C. coll. 30. Aug. 1586. aged 17. or thereabouts, and Probationer 16. Apr. 1590. Afterwards taking the degree of M. of A. he entred into sacred Orders, and became a frequent Preacher in these parts. In 1599. he was constituted Rhetorick Reader in his coll. and the year after was admitted to the reading of the sentences. In 1608. he proceeded in Divinity, and five years after was elected Margaret professor of the University. Which office he executing with commendation for about 14 years, resign'd it, and receded to the Rectory of Meysey-Hampton near to Fairford in Gloucestershire, which he had long before obtained by his predecessors guilt of Simony, where he spent the remaining part of his days (about 4 years) in great retiredness and devotion. He was a person for piety, strictness of life, and sincere conversation incomparable. He was also so noted an Humanitarian, Disputant, and Theologist, and so well read in the Fathers and Schoolmen, that he had scarce his equal in the University. Some have blasted him (I know not upon what account) for a Schismatick, yet Dr. Ravis sometimes B. of London, and of honourable memory, approved him to be free from Schism, and much abounding in Science. The truth is he was a Sedentary man, and of great industry, and so consequently (as 'tis observed by some) morose, and of no good nature. Also, that he was accounted no mean Lover of the opinions of John Calvin, especially as to the points of predestination, which is the cause why one (a) calls him a downright and doctrinal Calvinist. His works are these.

Com. or Exposition on the third chap. of Amos, &c. Printed 1629. qu. He hath also a Latin Sermon extant, on Rev. 5. 10.—Printed in 1616. qu. which I have not yet seen. He took his last farewell of this World, in the Parsonage house at Meysey-Hampton before mention'd, about 24. Aug. in sixteen hundred and thirty, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church there, on the 29 of the same month. In the said Rectory succeeded his great admirer Hen. Jackson Bach. of Div. of C. C. coll. before mentioned, who being a writer also, must crave a place in the next volume.

SAMPSON PRICE, Son of Thom. Price, some-575. times Vicar of S. Chads Church in Shrewsbury, was born there, became a Butler of Exeter coll. in 1601. aged 16 or thereabouts, took the degrees in Arts, as a Member of Hart hall, entred into the sacred function, as a Member of that coll. became a smart Preacher in the University and near it, especially against the Papists, made one of the Lecturers of S. Martins church in Oxon, afterwards of S. Olaves in London, and took the degrees in Divinity, that of Doctor being compleated in 1617: About which time he was Chaplain in Ord. to K. Jam. 1. (as he was afterwards to K. Ch. 1.) and a most ready and frequent Preacher in the Court. At length he was made Vicar of Christ Church in London, where being much resorted to and admired, was usually stiled The Mawle of Hereticks, meaning Papists, he being a most bitter Enemy (as his brother Daniel was) in his preachings, discourses, and writings against them. So that, as 'tis presumed, that party having a hatred towards them, the English Recollect Friars at Doway, did often (b) brag that this our author, and his brother Daniel, should one day either carry faggots upon their shoulders, or be burned in Smithfield, or else recant, and be glad to have the office to sweep their (c) Church (wherein they had preached false doctrine) for an everlasting penance, and their wives to carry out the dust and filth, &c. He hath published,

Several Sermons, as (1) Londons warning by Laodicea's Lukewarmness, on Rev. 3. 15, 16. Lond. 1613. qu. (2) A heavenly proclamation to fly Romish Babylon, on Rev. 18. 4. Oxon. 1614. qu. (3) Ephesus warning before her woe, on Rev. 2. 5. Lond. 1616. qu. (4) Clearing of the Saints fight, on Rev. 7. 17. Lond. 1617. qu. (5) Beauty of Holiness, on Joh. 10. 22, 23. Lond. 1618. qu. Preached in the Chap. at the Free-School in Shrewsbury, 10. Sept. 1617. at what time the said Chappel was consecrated by the B. of Cov. and Lichfield. (6) The Twinns of birth and death, preached at the Funeral of Sir Will. Bird 5 Sept. 1624. on Ecclef. 3. 2. Lond. 1624—5. qu. (7) Londons remembrancer for the staying of the plague, on Psal. 42. 4. Lond. 1626. qu. These seven Sermons are all that

(b) Lewis Owen in his Running register, pr. 1626. p. 99. (c) The said Friars always took Ch. Church to be theirs by succession, because that House did belong to their Predicessors the Franciscan Friars, commonly called the Grey Friars, before the dissolution of Religious Houses in England.

I have

I have yet seen of his composition, and therefore I can say no more of him, but that he was buried under the Communion Table in the Chancel of Ch. Church before-mentioned in sixteen hundred and thirty, and was succeeded in his Vicarage by Mr. Edm. Finch of Cambridge, Brother to Sir Job. Finch, afterwards Lord Finch of Fordwich. The said Dr. Samp. Price had an elder Brother called Dr. Daniel Price, whom I shall mention under the year 1631.

1630. FRANCIS HICKS, or Hycker, Son of Rich. Hicks an Arras-Weaver of Barcheston, commonly called Barstou in Warwickshire, was born within the large Parish of Tredington in Worcestershire, particularly, as I conceive, in a Market Town called Shipson, matriculated as a Worcestershire man, and a Member of S. Maries hall, in the beginning of 1579. aged 13. and four years after took the degree of Bach. of Arts, as a Member of that house, having had his Tutor, and his Chamber, as it seems, in Oriel college. But before he had compleated that degree by Determination, he left the University, and was diverted by a Country retirement. Where tho, as a plain man, he spent his time in Husbandry, yet he never lost the true taste and relish that distinguishes men of his education, but rather made continual improvement of that nutriment which he had received in his younger days from the breasts of his honour'd Mother the Univ. of Oxon. His study, or rather recreation, was chiefly in the Greek tongue; and of his knowledge therein he hath left unto the World sufficient Testimonies, as his translation from Greek into Latin of (1) Certain select dialogues of Lucian, together with his true history. Oxon. 1634. qu. Published by his Son Thom. Hicks M. A. and Chaplain of Ch. Ch. (2) The history of the Wars of Peloponnesus, in 8 books, written by Thucydides the Athenian. MS. in Ch. Ch. Library in Oxon. Q. 4. Arts fol. (3) The history of Herodian, beginning from the Reign of Emperor Marcus. MS. in the Archives of the said Libr. in qu. Given thereunto, with the former MS. by Tho. Hicks before-mentioned. Our Translator Franc. Hicks having spent most of his time at Barstou before-mentioned, and at Shipson adjoining, died in a Kinsmans house at Sutton in Gloucestershire, near to Brayles in Warwickshire, on the 9. day of Jan. in sixteen hundred and thirty, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church there. As for Thom. Hicks whom I have touched upon before, he was an ingenious man, has done something about Lucan, and therefore shall be remembred elsewhere.

577. HENRY BRIGGS, (Briggius) one of the most admired Mathematicians of his time, was born in an obscure Hamlet called Warley Wood in the large Parish of Halifax in Yorkshire; whose Genie being naturally inclined to the Mathematicks, was sent from the Grammar School in the Vicinity of Warley, to the University of Cambridge, where in short time he became Fellow of S. Johns coll. After he had taken the degree of M. of A. he was preferred to be the first Geometry-Reader in Gresham coll. at London, an. 1596. where continuing about 23. years in reading to, and improving his auditors, Sir Hen. Savile desired him to accept of his Lecture of Geometry, chiefly because it was not only better as to revenues, but more honourable. Whereupon going to Oxon, 1619. and settling in Merton coll. in the condition of a Fellow-Commoner, was soon after incorporated M. of A. and kept the Lecture to the time of his death. It must be now known, that one Dr. Craig a Scotch man (perhaps the same mentioned in the Fasti, under the year 1605. among the Incorporation) coming out of Denmark into his own Country called upon Job. Neper Baron of Marcheston near Edinburgh, and told him among other discourses of a new invention in Denmark (by Longemontanus as 'tis said) to save the tedious multiplication and division in Astronomical calculations. Neper being solicitous to know farther of him concerning this matter, he could give no other account of it, than that it was by proportionable numbers. Which hint Neper taking, he desired him at his return to call upon him again. Craig, after some weeks had passed, did so, and Neper then shew'd him a rude draught of that he called, Canon mirabilis Logarithmorum. Which draught, with some alterations, he printing in 1614. it came forthwith into the hands of our author Briggs, and into those of Will. Oughtred, from whom the relation of this matter came. Both which consulting about the perfecting of it, the former took (*) a journey into Scotland to confer with Neper about it. At length having received some satisfaction from him, he perused the matter, and in few years after put forth two books of Logarithms, after a more commodious method. The first is intitled.

Arithmetica Logarithmetica. The other, Trigonometria Britannica. The former of which shews the construction of Logarithmetical Tables, the latter the conjunction of the Tables of Sines, Tangents, and Secants, and the doctrine of Triangles, to the great advantage of Astronomy and Astronomical operations. These two parts were published with this title, Arithmetica Logarithmetica, sive Logarithmorum chiliades triginta, pro numeris naturali serie crescentibus ab unitate ad 20,000. & a 90,000. ad 100,000. &c. London. 1624. fol. Besides these he hath written,

Treatise concerning the North-west passage to the South Sea through the continent of Virginia, &c. London. 1622. and, Commentaries on the Geometry of Pet. Ramus. MS. Which after Briggs's death came into the hands of Mr. Job. Greaves of Merton coll. Successor to Dr. Bainbridge in the Astronomy Lecture, and from him to his Brother Thomas, and from Tho. to Mr. Theod. Haak a Member of the Royal Society. At length after our author Briggs had spent most of his time for the benefit and advancement of Geometry, he paid his last debt to nature in his lodgings in Merton coll. 26. Jan. in sixteen hundred and thirty, 1631. aged 70. or more, and was three days after buried at the upper end of the Choir of the Church belonging to the said Coll. under the honorary monument of Sir Hen. Savile: At which time the Heads of several Colleges and Halls being present, a learned Sermon and an eloquent Oration were delivered; the former by Mr. Will. Sellar, the other by Mr. Hugh Crossy, Fellows of that College. In both which were many things said to the honour of the Defunct. Over his grave was soon after a plain stone laid, neither Marble, nor Free, with only his bare name engraven thereon; and therefore instead of an Epitaph you may take this character of him, as it stands in the publick Register of that Coll.—Vir doctrina clarus, stupor Mathematicorum, moribus ac vita integerrimus, &c.

JOHN ANDREWS, a Somersetshire man born, 578. was entred a Student in Trin. coll. 1601. aged 18. took one degree in Arts, left the University, became a painful Preacher of Gods word, and a publisher of these books following.

The converted Man's new birth, describing the direct way to go to Heaven, &c. London. 1628. oct. second edit.

Celestial Looking-glass to behold the beauty of Heaven, and the perfect way to it. London. 1621. in tw. There again 1638.

A Caveat from God, on S. Joh. 5. 14. London. 1627. 1630. Clar. with other things which I have not yet seen. When he died, or where he was buried, I know not.

WILLIAM SPARKE, Son of Tho. Sparke, whom 579. I have mentioned under the year 1616. was born at Blethley in Bucks, became a Commoner of Magd. hall in Lent-Term 1605. aged 16. Demie of Magd. coll. 5. June 1606. and soon after Fellow thereof. Afterwards, being M. of A. he was made Chaplain to the Duke of Bucks, Rector of Blethley after his Father's decease, Divinity Reader of Magd. coll. and in 1629. Bach. of Div. He hath written, Vis nature, & virtus vite explicata, ad universam doctrinam ordinem constituendum. London. 1612. oct.

The mystery of Godliness: A general discourse of the reason that is in Christian Religion, &c. Oxon. 1628. qu. These are all that I have seen that go under his name, and therefore I can say no more of him, only that he was living at Blethley in sixteen hundred and thirty. I find one of both his names of Magd. coll. who was admitted Bac. of Physick, 3. Dec. 1645. by vertue of the Letters of the Chanc. of the Univ. which say, that he hath deserved well for having been very active against his Majesty's Enemies, and contributed much of his skill to his, and our Loyal Friends, &c. This Will. Spark, who became a Student in Magd. coll. an. 1639. was Son to the former.

ANTHONY SHERLEY, second Son of Sir Tho. Sherley of Wistneſton, commonly called Wiston in Suffex, Knight, by Anne his Wife, Daughter of Sir Tho. Kempe Knight, was born there, matriculated as a Member of Hart hall in the beginning of the year 1579. aged 14. admitted Bac. of Arts in the latter end of 1581. and about the beginning of Nov. following, he was elected Probat. Fellow of Alfoſols coll. being of kin to the Founder thereof by his Mother's ſide. But before he proceeded in Arts, he left the Univerſity, and retired to one of the Inns of Court, or went to travel beyond the Seas, or both ſucceſſively. Soon after he became known to that popular Count Robert Earl of Effex, whoſe heroick ſpirit and virtues he ſo much admired, that he reſolved for the future, that he ſhould be a pattern to him in all the civil actions of his life. The firſt adventure that he made was his voyage into America, particularly to S. Jago, Dominica, Margarita, &c. an. 1596. From which voyage (wherein great valour was ſhewn againſt the Portugueſe) he returned the year following. Afterwards, having received the honour of Knighthood from the ſaid Earl of Effex in Ireland, (if I miſtake not,) he went beyond the Seas again, made long voyages, and was employed as Embaffador ſeveral times by Foreign Princes. In which voyages his Exploits were ſo great, that the K. of Spain taking an affection to, allowed, him an yearly penſion, made him Admiral of the Levant Seas, and next in place to the Viceroy of Naples. So that his greatneſs making our King jealous of, he ſent for, him to return; but he reſuſed to come, and therefore was numbred among the Engliſh Fugitives. About that time he was known by the title of Earl of the Sacred Empire, as having been created ſo, I ſuppoſe, by the Emperour of Germany, and had from his Catholick Maſteſty a Penſion of 200 Ducats yearly. Ever after, ſo long as he lived, he ſhew'd himſelf ſo zealous a Servant to that King, that he became a great plotter and projector in matters of ſtate, and undertook by Sea-ſtratagems, if you'll believe an author (a) of no great credit, to invade and ruine his native Country; the whole ſtory and paſſages of which, would make a juſt volume. He hath written, Voyage to America.— See R. Hakeluyts third and laſt vol. of Voyages, Printed at London. 1600. p. 598, 599, &c.

Account of M. Hamets riſing in the Kingdom of Morocco, Fez, &c. London. 1609. qu.

History of his travailes into Perſia. London. 1613. qu. Which voyage was began 24. May 1599. and is epitomiz'd in the ſecond vol. or part of Sam. Purchas his Pilgrims, printed 1625. fol. in the ninth book.

Voyage over the Caspian Sea, and thorough Ruſſia.— Publish'd by W. Parry, an. 1601. involv'd in the Pilgrims of Purchas before-mention'd.

History of his Embaffages.— See Purchas vol. 2. book 6. 9. and in Rich. Hakluyt before-mentioned. What other matters he wrote, or cauſed to be publiſhed of his compoſition, I know not, nor any thing elſe of him, only that he was living in the Court of Spain in ſixteen hundred and thirty, and that he had taken to Wife, long before, Francis the Sister of Rob. Vernon of Hodnet Knight. He had an elder Brother named Thomas Sherley, who was entred into Hart hall at the ſame time with his Brother, an. 1579. aged 15. where continuing about two years or more, was called home, married, and in 1589. Knighted. But this perſon being aſham'd to ſee the trophies and achievements of his two younger Brothers, Anthony before-mentioned and Robert a great Hero; worn like flowers in the breasts and boſoms of Foreign Princes, whiſt he himſelf wither'd upon the ſtalk he grew on, left his aged Father, and, as 'tis (b) ſaid, a fair inheritance in Suffex, and forthwith undertook ſeveral voyages into Foreign parts, to the great honour of his Nation, but ſmall enrichment of himſelf. A narration of which voyages he printed, or cauſed to be printed, but ſuch I have not yet ſeen. As for the youngſt Brother Rob. Sherley before-mentioned, whether he was of Hart hall I know not, for his name occurs not in the Matricula, only that of John Sherley a Suffex man, and the Son of a Gent. matriculated as a Member of that hall in 1582. aged 14. The ſaid Robert (whom alſo I find to occur by the title of Knight) was a great man of his time, and ſo highly valued by the Emperour of Perſia, that he not only ſent him Embaffador to Sigismund the 3. King of Poland, as alſo to K. Jam. 1. of England, an. 1612. (for he arrived (c) at London 26. June that year,) but was pleaſed to give him his Neice in Marriage, and to confer upon him honour and riches. As to the general performances of the aforeſaid 3 Brothers, I know the affidavit of a Poet carrieth but a ſmall credit in the Court of Hiſtory, and the Comedy made of them, intit. The travailes of three Engliſh Brothers, Sir Thomas, Sir Anthony, and Rob. Sherley, printed at London. 1607. in qu. is but a friendly ſoe to their memory, as ſuſpected more accommodated to pleaſe the preſent ſpectators, than inform poſterity. The before-mentioned Sir Thomas, the elder Brother and Traveller, had a Son named Thomas, who was a Knight alſo, and ſuffer'd much in the time of the Rebellion for adhering to the Cauſe of K. Ch. 1. of ever Bleſſed Memory. And that Sir Thomas the Sufferer had to his eldeſt Son another Thomas, commonly called Dr. Tho. Sherley, born in the Parish of S. Margaret within the City of Westmiſter, and baptized there 15. Oct. 1638. lived, when a boy, with his Father in Magd. coll. during the time that Oxon was a Garriſon for the King, and was bred up in Grammar learning in the Free-School joyning to the ſaid College. Afterwards he went into France, ſtudied Phyſick, and was graduated in that Faculty there. After his return he became noted for his practice therein, and at length was made Phyſician in Ordinary to his Maj. K. Ch. 2. and I think Doctor of his Faculty. He hath publiſhed, A Philoſophical Eſſay, declaring the probable cauſes whence ſtones are produced in the greater World: From which, occaſion is taken to ſearch into the original of all bodies; being a prodromus to a medicinal truth concerning the cauſes and cure of the ſtone in the Kidneys and Bladder of Man. London. 1672. oct. An account of which book you may ſee in the Philoſophical tranſactions, num. 81. p. 1030. He alſo tranſlated from Lat. into Engliſh, (1) Cochlearia Curioſa: or, the Curioſities of Scurvy-graſs. London. 1676. oct. written by Dr. Andr. Molimbrochini of Leipſig. An account of which book you may alſo ſee in the ſaid Phil. Tranſact. nu. 125. p. 621. (2) Medicinal Counſels, or Advices. written originally in French by Theod. Tarquet de Mayerne, put into Latin by Theoph. Bonettus M. D.— London. 1676. and tranſlated from French into Engl. A treatiſe of the Gout. London. 1676. written by the ſaid Tarquet de Mayerne. He the ſaid Dr. Tho. Sherley died of grief 5. Aug. 1678. and was buried in the S. W. Vault under part of St. Brides Church near to Fleetſtreet in London. His grief aroſe upon a juſt ſuſpicion that he ſhould be totally defeated of an Eſtate in Suffex, worth about 3000 l. per an. deſcended to him from his Great-Grandfather Sir Tho. Sherley, moſtly detained from him by Sir Joh. Fagge Baronet. Concerning which matter, the two Houſes of Parliament were engaged in a quarrel a little before Dr. Sherley's death.

SAMUEL AUSTIN, Son of Tho. Auſtin of Lyiſt. 581. withiel in the County of Cornwal, was born there, became a Batler of Exeter coll. in 1623. aged 17. took the degrees in Arts, that of Maſter being compleated in 1630. About which time being numbred among the Levites, was benefited in his own Country. He hath written, Auſtin's Urania: Or, the heavenly Muſe, in a Poem full of meditations for the comfort of all Souls at all times. London. 1629. oct. dedicated to Joh. Prideaux D. D. a fa-Clar. vourer of the ſtudies of the author, then Bach. of Arts. 1620. What other things he hath written or publiſhed, (beſides various copies of verſes printed in Lat. and Engliſh in other books,) I know not, nor any thing elſe of him, only that he had a Son of both his names, (a conceited Coxcomb;) who endeavoured to Patrizare, but through his exceeding vanity and folly he was made uſe of, as another Tho. Coryate, by certain Poets of Oxon in their reſpective copies of verſes ſet before his Naps on Parnaffus, &c. printed 1658: as I ſhall tell you in my other volume of writers.

JOHN BAYLY, Son of Dr. Low. Bayly Bith. of 821. Bangor, was born in Herefordſhire, became a Sojournour of Exeter coll. in 1611. aged 16 years, or thereabouts, made Fellow the year following, and by the help of a good Tutor (Dr. Prideaux) did advance himself much in Academical learning. After he had compleated the degree of M. of Arts, he took holy orders from his Father, by whose procurement he had one or more Benefices confer'd upon him. At length being made one of his Maj. Chaplains, and Guardian of Christ's-Hospital in Rushyn, took the degrees in Divinity and published, Clar. Several Sermons, as, (1) The Angel-Guardian, on Psal. 1630. 34. 7. Lond. 1630. qu. (2) The light enlightning, on Joh. 1. 9.— Printed at Lond. the same year. I have been informed he had published other things, but such I have not yet seen.

583. JOHN BARNES, or Barnesius, as he writes himself, was descended from those of his name in Lancashire, but whether born in that County, I know not, was educated for a time in this University, but being always in animo Catholicus, he left it and his Country, and going into Spain, was instructed in Philosophy and Divinity by the famous Doctor J. Alph. Curiel, who was wont to call Barnes by the name of John Hufs, because of a spirit of contradiction which was always observed in him. After he had finished his course of studies, he took upon him the habit of S. Benedict, with a resolution then to live and dye in it; and about that time, was sent into the Mission of England to strengthen the Brethren, but being taken and imprisoned was sent into Normandy with certain Priests and Jesuits. Soon after he was by his Superior sent into Lorraine, where he taught Divinity in the English Monastery of Benedictines called Dienward or Dienleward, and was there by the fraternity, and others too, esteemed profound in that great faculty, tho he cared not to make shew of it, much less to have any thing of his composition published. After he had left Dienleward he became a Professor either of Div. or Philosophy in Marchein college in Doway, where also he gained to himself the name of an eminent Divine and Philosopher: Thence he crossed the Seas, and settled for a time in England, where he fell out with his Superiors for refusing to submit to the Union of the Spanish and Italian Monks into one Congregation. While he continued there he wrote, Dissertatio contra Aquivocationes. Par. 1625. oct. &c. dedicated to P. Urban 8. at which time the author was the prime person of the English Mission for assisting the Spanish Congregation. In 1627. I find him in Oxon again in the condition of a Gentleman and a Sojourner, to the end that he might obtain materials from the Bodleian Library towards the composition of a work by him then in hand, and about that time published a book against the Apostolatibus Benedictinorum in Anglia, published by Clem. Reyner D. D. and Secretary to the Congregation of the Benedictines, an. 1626. fol. Which being esteemed a piece favouring of too much impudence, and contradiction, if not Heresie, it was prohibited the reading by the Brethren, and thrown aside among unlicensed and heretical books, and soon after had a reply published against it, which in some copies of the Apostolatibus is put at the end, without a name to it, or any naming of Barnes. It must be now known that this learned person, being a very moderate man in his opinion, and deeply sensible by his great reading and observation of several corruptions of the Romish Church and doctrine, which partly were expressed in his discourse, but mostly in a book which he wrote, called,

Catholico-Romanus Pacificus, became for that, (tho not printed) and his answer to Apostol. so much hated by those of his Order, that endeavours were made to seize upon, and make, him an example. Whereupon Barnes perceiving a storm approaching, he fled to Paris, and was there protected by the English Embassador. But so it was, that by the endeavours of Clem. Reyner before mentioned, and his interest made with Albert of Austria, he was (a) carried out from the midst of that City by force, was divested of his habit, and like a four-footed (b) Brute was in a barbarous manner tyed to a Horse, and violently hurried away into Flanders. Where continuing for some time, was thence soon after carried to Rome, where by command of the Pope, he was, as a contriver of new doctrine, thrust into the dungeon of the Inquisition. Soon after being distracted in mind, as a certain Jesuit

(c) faith, was removed to a place for the reception of Mad-men behind the Church of S. Paul the less, there to continue till he came to his senses. Afterwards several copies in MS. of Cath. Rom. Pacificus, flying abroad, a true copy of it was made up by comparing it with others, and printed at the Theatre in Oxon, an. 1680. oct. Several years before that, some of the sections therein were made use of by another (d) person, as that (1) Of Councils, Popes, Schism. (2) Of the privileges of the Isle of Great Britain. (3) Of the Pope's Supremacy, and the Supreme Power of Kings, both in Temporals, as also in Spirituals, &c. Our author Barnesius hath written also a Treatise of the Supremacy of Councils, which I have not yet seen, and other things; and also hath translated from the Spanish, into the Latin, tongue, Pugna Spiritualis, &c. written by Joh. Castiniza a Benedictine Monk. It was also afterwards translated into the same tongue by Jodochus Lorichius D. D. of Friburg.— Duac. 1625. in sixt. By those of the reformed party he, the said Barnes, (who was living in sixteen hundred and thirty,) is stiled, the good Irenæus, a learned, peaceable and moderate man, but by the R. Catholics, especially by those of his Order, a person of a turbulent and contradictory Spirit, occasioned by too much confidence and presumption of his own parts and wit, which was greater than his humility, and so consequently did expose him to great danger, (as they say,) of Apostacy, and disobedience to his Superiors, as also unworthy gratitude towards some who had deserved better returns from him. The time of his death, or place of burial, I cannot yet obtain, nor any thing else of him, only this, that certain fierce People at Rome, being not contented with his death, have endeavoured to extinguish his fame, boldly publishing that he died distracted.

JOHN DONNE, a person sometimes noted for his Divinity, knowledge in several languages, and other learning, was born of good and vertuous Parents in London, became a Commoner of Hart hall, with his younger Brother Henry, in the beginning of Michaelmas-Term, an. 1584. being then but eleven years of age; where continuing about three years (in which time Sir Hen. Wotton had a Chamber there) he went to Cambridge, and spending three more there, he was transplanted to Lincolns Inn to obtain knowledge in the Municipal Laws, where he had for his Chamber fellow, for some time, Mr. Christop. Brook an eminent Poet of his time. After he had continued there two years in exercising his poetical fancy, he began to survey the Body of Divinity, wherein he made very good notes and observations. Afterwards he travelled beyond the Seas, advanced himself much in the knowledge of countries, men, manners, and languages, and was at his return made by Egerton L. Chanc. of England his chief Secretary, and soon after was admitted M. of A. of this University, as I shall tell you elsewhere. But continuing not long in that beneficial employement, he did, upon the solicitations of some of his Friends, (especially upon the motion of K. James 1.) enter into the Sacred Function, and not long after was made one of the Kings Chaplains, Doctor of Div. of Cambridge, and at length in 1621. Dean of the Cath. Ch. of S. Paul in London, upon the promotion of Dr. Val. Carey to the See of Exeter. He was a person of great wit, virtue, and abilities, learned in several Faculties, and religious and exemplary in his life and conversation. In all which, being eminent, he was therefore celebrated, and his memory had in great veneration by the Wits and Virtuosi of his time, among whom were Ben. Johnson, Sir Lucius Cary afterwards L. Faulkland, Sydney Godolphin, Jasp. Mayne, Edward Hyde afterwards L. Chancellour, Endymion Porter, Arthur Wilson, &c. As for those things by him written (few of which were published in his time) are these.

Letters to several persons of honour. Lond. 1651. qu. Some of which, I think, were before printed. He had also lying by him at his death many Sermon notes, and other papers, containing an extract of near fifteen hundred authors: All which, as his last Legacy, he left to Dr. Hen. King, (afterwards B. of Chichester) but what became of them after that Bishops death in 1669. I know not. He also translated from Greek into English The ancient history of the Septuagint. Lond. 1633. in tw. written originally by Aristeus. Which translation was revised and very much corrected by another hand.—Lond. 1685. oct. He paid his last debt to nature on the last day of March, in sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the South Isle behind the Chaire of the Cath. Ch. of S. Paul, near to the Monument of Dr. Jo. Coler. Both whose Epitaphs, with the Pictures of their respective Monuments, you may see in the History of that Cathedral, written by Sir Will. Dugdale, lately Garter K. of Arms. Our Author Dr. Jo. Donne left behind him a Son of both his Names, but of none of his virtues, manners, or generous qualities, and therefore by many his memory is condemn'd to utter Oblivion, while that of his Father flourisheth in the History of his life, written by Isaac Walton; the first edition of which (printed 1653.) coming into the hands of the best critick of the last age, I mean Jo. Hales of Eaton, he affirmed to his friends, that he had not seen a life written with more advantage to the Subject, or more reputation to the writer, than it.

585- JOHN RAWLINSON, a fluent and florid Preacher of his time, was born in London, educated in Grammaticals in Merchant-Taylors School, elected Scholar of S. Johns coll. 1591. aged 15. and was afterwards Fellow, M. of A. and so great a frequenter of the Pulpits in Oxon, that his name being cried up for an excellent Theologift, became successively Rector of Taplow in Bucks, Vicar of Asheldam in Essex, Prebendary of Sarum, D. of D. Principal of S. Edmunds hall, Chaplain to Tho. Egerton Baron of Ellesmere L. Chanc. of England, and in Ordinary to K. Jam. I. Rector of Celsy in Sussex, and of Whitchurch in Shropshire. In all which places he was much followed for his frequent and edifying preaching, great charity and publick Spirit. He hath published, Divers Sermons, as, (1) The four Summons of the Shulamite, preached at Pauls Cross, on Cantic. 6. 12. Oxon. 1606. in oct. (2) Fishermen Fishers of Men, on Matth. 4. 19. Lond. 1609. qu. (10) The Bridegroom and Bride, on Cant. 4. 8. lb. 1622. &c. qu. Which four last Sermons, viz. the 7, 8, 9, and 10. were all published together under the title of Quadrige Salutis, or Four Quadragesimal Sermons, &c. These are all the Sermons of his publication that I have yet seen, and whether he be author of an Explication of the Creed, Ten Commandments, and Lords Prayer, which is published under the name of Rawlinson, in oct. I know not. He departed this mortal life in the beginning of the year sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church at Whitchurch in Shropshire before-mentioned, where his name continues precious to this day among the inhabitants of that place, and in the neighbourhood. In his Prebendship of Salisbury, (called Netherbury in Ecclesia) succeeded Thom. Fuller, 18. Jun. 1631. the same who was afterwards the author of divers historical books; and him Tho. Henchman, 17. Aug. 1661.

JOHN BUCKRIDGE, Son of Will. Buckridge 586. (a) by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of Tho. Keblewhyte of Bafelden, Son of John Keblewhyte, (Uncle to Sir Tho. Whyte the Founder of S. Johns college;) and he the Son of Henry (some say John) Keblewhyte of Fawley, was born, as I conceive, at Draycot near to Marlborough in Wiltshire, educated in Merchant-Taylors School, became Scholar of the said coll. in 1578. soon after Fellow, and, through the degrees in Arts, Doctor of Divinity in the latter end of 1596. about which time he was Chaplain to Dr. Whigift Archb. of Canterbury. After he had left the University I find him to have been first of all Rector of North-Fambridge in Essex, afterwards Chaplain to Robert E. of Essex, Rector of North Kilworth in Leicestershire, Vicar of S. Giles Church without Cripplegate, London, Archdeacon of Northampton, Canon of Windsore and Hereford, Chaplain to K. James, and at length President of S. Johns college, 1605. At which time his eminent abilities in the Pulpit had brought him into great credit with K. James, inasmuch that he was chosen to be one of the four (Dr. Andrews B. of Chichester, Dr. Barlow B. of Rochester, and Dr. Jo. King then Dean of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, were the other three) who were appointed to Preach before his Maj. at Hampton Court in the month of Sept. 1606. for the reduction of the two Melvins; and other Presbyterian Scots to a right understanding of the Church of England. In the performance of which service, he took for his Text these words of the Apostle, Let every Soul, &c. Rom. 13. 1. In canvassing whereof, he fell upon the point of the Kings Supremacy in causes Ecclesiastical; which he handled (as the most rev. Arch. Spotswood, who was present at the Sermon hath informed (b) us of him,) both soundly and learnedly, to the satisfaction of all the hearers: only it grieved the Scotch Ministers to hear the Pope and Presbytery so often equalled in their opposition to Sovereign Princes, &c. As for the Presidentship of S. Johns coll. our author Buckridge keeping but a little more than five years, became B. of Rochester, to which he was consecrated 9. June 1611. Afterwards by the endeavours of his sometimes Pupil Dr. Laud B. of Bath and Wells, he was nominated B. of Ely, upon the death of Dr. Nich. Felton, (who died 1626.) the Temporalities of which See were restored (c) to him, 18. Jul. 1628. A person he was of great gravity and learning, and one that knew as well as any other person of his time how to employ the two-edged Sword of the holy Scripture, of which he made good proof in the times succeeding, brandishing it on the one side against the Papists, and on the other against the Puritans and Non-conformists. In reference to the first, 'tis said of him in general, by a certain De potestate Papa in rebus temporalibus sive in regibus depoenendis usurpata; adversus Robertum Cardinalem Bellarminum. Lib. 2. In quibus respondetur authoribus, Scripturis, rationibus, exemplis contra Gul. Barclaium allatis. Lond. 1614. in a larg. qu. In which book he hath so shaken the Papal Monarchy, and its superiority over Kings and Princes, that none of the learned men of that party, did ever undertake a reply unto it—Johannem itaque Rossensem habemus (saith my before mentioned (e) author) quem Johanni Rossensi opponamus, Fishero Buckridgum, cujus argumentis (siquid) ego video ne a mille quidem Fisheris unquam respondebitur. With like success, but less pains unto himself, he managed the controversie concerning kneeling at the Lords Supper, against those of the Puritan Party; the piety and antiquity of which religious posture in that holy action, he asserted with such holy reasons, and such clear authorities in

A Sermon preached at Whitehall 22. Mar. 1617. touching prostration and kneeling in the Worship of God, on Psal. 95. 6. Lond. 1618. qu. and in,

A discourse concerning kneeling at the Communion—(printed with the Sermon) that he came off without the least opposition of that party also. Besides which he hath published, Serm. preached at Hampton-Court 23. Sept. 1606. on Rom. 13. 5. London 1616. qu. Another on Heb. 4. 7. printed 1618. qu. A third which is a Funeral Serm. on Heb. 13. 6. was printed 1626. qu. and a fourth, on the same chap. vers. 16. was published at the end of B. Andrew's Sermons in fol. Lond. 1661. The day and place when and where this most worthy and learned Bishop died I know not, only that he was buried in the parish Church of Bromley in Kent (the manner of which belongs to the See of Rochester) on the last day of May in sixteen hundred thirty and one. In the See of Rochester succeeded Dr. Walt. Carle, whom I shall mention elsewhere, and in Ely Dr. Francis White the Kings Almoner.

587. JOHN HOSKYNs, Junior, was born at Mounton in the parish of Lanwarne in Herefordshire, educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's School near Winchester, admitted Perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1601. took the degrees in the Civil Law, that of Doctor being compleated 1613. in which year he left the coll. being about that time Chaplain to Dr. Rob. Bennet, B. of Hereford (as he was afterwards to K. James) Prebendary of Hereford, and Parson of Ledbury in his native Country. He was an able Civilian, but better Theologist, and much followed for his frequent and edifying way of Preaching. He hath published, Eight Sermons preached at S. Maries in Oxon. Pauls Cross and elsewhere. Lond. 1615. qu. The first is on Luke 12. 41. The second on Isa. 28. 1. The 3. and 4th. on Matth. 11. 19. &c. He hath also extant a Sermon upon the parable of the King that taketh an account of his Servants, on Matth. 18. 23. Lond. 1609. oct.

1631. A short Catechisme upon the Lords Prayer, the ten Commandements, and the Creed, very profitable for Children and others. Lond. 1678.—9. oct. published by Charles Townsend M. of A. He ended and finished his course at Ledbury before mentioned, 8. August, in sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the parish Church there. Soon after was an Epitaph put over his Grave, consisting of eight verses, the two first of which are these.

Sub Pedibus Doctor jacet hic in Legibus Hoskyns,

Esse pios docuit, quodque docebat erat.

The rest you may see in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 145. 6.

588. DANIEL PRICE, elder brother to Sampson Price before mentioned, was born in the ancient Borough of Shrewsbury, and there educated in Grammar learning. In 1594. and in the sixteenth year of his age, he became a Commoner of S. Maries hall in Midsomer Term, but before he took a degree in Arts, he was transplanted to Exeter coll. where by the benefit of a diligent Tutor, he became in short time a smart disputant. After he had taken the degree of M. of A. he had holy Orders confer'd upon him, and was a frequent and remarkable preacher, especially against the Papists. About that time he was constituted one of Prince Henries Chaplains in Ordinary: whereupon taking the degrees in Divinity he was made Chaplain to K. James. (as afterwards to (K. Ch. 1.) Dean and Canon residentiary of Hereford, Rector of Worthyn near Cam's Castle in Shropshire, and of Lanteglos in Cornwall, Justice of the Peace also for the Counties of Shrewsbury, Hereford, Montgomery and Cornwall. He hath written and published,

The defence of truth against a book called The triumph of truth, sent over from Arras, 1609. by Humph. Leech. Oxon. 1610. qu. He hath also published at least,

Fifteen Sermons. Among which are these. (1) Pralium & primum. The Christians war and reward, on Rev. 2. 26. Oxon. 1608. qu. (2) Recusants Conversation, on Esay 2. 3. Ibid. 1608. qu. (3) The Merchant, on Matth. 13. 45. 46. Lond. 1608. qu. (4) Spiritual Odours to the Memory of Pr. Henry, in four of the last Sermons preached in S. James after his Highness death, the last being the Sermon before the body, the day before the burial. The first is intit. Meditations of Consolation on our Lamentations, on Psal. 90. 15. The second which hath the same title is on 2 Sam. 12. 23. The third which is intit. Sorrow for the sins of the times, preached on the third Sunday after the Prince's death, is on Ezech. 9. 4. And the fourth which is called Tears shed over Abner, is on 2 Sam. 3. 31. All which four Sermons were printed at Oxon. 1613. qu. (5) Lamentation for the death of the illustrious Pr. Henry and the dissolution of his religious family. Two Sermons on Matth. 26. 31. Lond. 1613. qu. (6) Maries memorial, on Matth. 26. 13. Lond. 1617. qu. (7) Hearty Prayer in the needful time of trouble, on Psal. 118. 25. Lond. 1625. qu. These eleven, are all that I have seen of fifteen, Sermons or thereabouts that he hath published. He yeilded up his last breath at Worthyn or Worthing before mention'd on the 23. Sept. in sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church there. Over his Grave was a brass Plate soon after fixed to the Wall, and thereon engraven a Latine and English Epitaph, made by a fantastical Pedagogue. The Latine is in four verses, containing a Chronogram of the Doctors death: the English his Dignities and Employments, which I have before mentioned. But that which I am to let the Reader now know, is an odd story that hangs at the tayl, reported (f) by a R. Catholick Priest, but whether true or no, the Reader is to judge as he please.—Dr. Price (saith he) by the worth of his parts and learning, was honoured by being particularly known, and respected by his Majesty, and then afterward was made Dean of Hereford, a place of great estimation—All his life time he enjoying his health, shewed (g) himself much averse to the Catholicks, and troubled divers of them.—In his last sickness he desired of his Doctor of Physick, that he would send to him a Romish Priest: whereupon he was accordingly brought.—The Doctor told the said Priest that he was then in judgment a Catholick, and did intend to dye a member of that Religion.—Whereupon he took the Sacrament, and so was incorporated into the mystical of Christs Cath. Church, and with a constant resolution died a member of the holy Church, &c. Dr. Hen. Butts, Vicechancellor of Cambridge hanged (h) himself in his garters in his own Chamber on Easter day, 1632. being that day to preach to the University. But Dr. Price like a worthy and Christian confessor of the true Catholick and Roman Religion, by means of a natural death, we hope now enjoys the felicity of the Saints—Dr. Butts maintaining (as is reported) the heretical doctrine of Predestination, in the end died a Reprobate, and by the help of a rope, wherewith he hanged himself, doth remain in insufferable torments with the Devils, &c.

RICHARD PILKINGTON, was descended 589. from an ancient Family of his name living at Rivington in Lancashire, but where born (unless in the County Pal. of Durham) I cannot justly say. At about 17 years of age he was sent to Cambridge, where continuing till after he was M. of A. retired to Oxon, and settling in Queens coll. was incorporated in the same degree, an. 1599. At that time being esteem'd eminent in the faculty of Theology, he was admitted in the year following to the reading of the sentences, and 7 years after was licensed to proceed in the same faculty. In 1625. he was made Archdeacon of Leicester, in the place of Robert Johnson deceased, being at that time the rich Rector of Hambleton in Bucks, which were all the preferments, I think, that he enjoyed. His works are,

1631. Paralela: Or, the grounds of the new Rom. Catholick, and of the antient Christian Religion, out of the holy Scriptures, composed together; in answer to a late popish Pamphlet intit. A Manual of Controversies, &c. by A. C. S. Lond. 1618. qu. What else he hath written I find not, nor any thing material of him besides, only that he departed this life about the middle of Sept. in sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the Chancel of his Church of Hambleton, at which time was the most dreadful storm of Wind, thunder, and lightning, as ever was known in those parts. It occasion'd so great a darkness, that the neighbours were forced to convey the Corps to the Grave by lights at four of the Clock in the afternoon. I have been also informed by the Rector of that Church Dr. Fr. G. that the storm was so violent that it moved and broke some of the stones that were to cover the Grave, and that it forced the Shovel out of the Clerks hand, shatter'd it, and made an impression on the Chancel Wall, as he had received the story from Dr. Pilkingtons servant, who then lived in the Parsonage House. This last tho very improbable, yet certain it is that that most unusual storm did occasion certain odd reports concerning the said Doctor, to be made by the R. Catholicks, to whom in general he had been a bitter enemy in his preaching and writing.

590. ROBERT BOLTON, a most religious and learned Puritan was born at Blackbourne in Lincolnshire, on Whitsunday 1572. educated in Grammar learning under one Mr. Yate in the Free-school, founded at that place, in the 9. year of Q. Elizabeth: where in short time by the benefit of excellent parts, strong memory, labour, and attention, he became the best Scholar in that schoole. At about 18. years of age, he being full ripe for the University, he was sent to Lincoln coll. about 1590. where being put under the tuition of Mr. Job. Randal a person then of considerable note in the University, he profited in Logick and Philosophy, to the admiration of all, meerly occasioned by that ground-work of learning, that he had got at School. It was then observed that tho he was well skill'd in the Greek tongue, yet that he might obtain an exactness in it, he did with intollerable pains write out with his own hand either all Homer or Hesiod, in a fair Greek character. He wrote that language better than English or Latine, and was so excellent a Disputant in it, that he did with as much facility conferre (or oppose his Antagonist) in the publick Schools, as in Latine. Nay he wrote and spoke it stilo imperatorio, as Lipsius calls it, and 'twas so familiar to him, that he could not avoid it. From the said college he removed to Brasenose purposely to get a Fellowship, because the Society thereof consists mostly of Lincolnshire and Cheshire men. In the beginning of December 1596. he, as a member of that coll. took the degree of Bach. of Arts; but having few friends, he stayed long without a Fellowship, yet because he should not be discouraged (for he was poor and had little to maintain him) Dr. Rich. Brett a very good Grecian of Lincoln coll. did contribute towards his relief. At length with much adoe he became Fellow in 1602. and in the same year proceeded Master of Arts. So that growing famous, he was successively chosen reader of the Lectures of Logick, and of Moral and Natural Philosophy in that house. In 1605. when K. James came to Oxon, the Vicechancellor appointed him to read in Natural Philosophy in the publick Schools, and to be one of the Disputants before him. Afterwards he grew well studied in the Metaphysics, Mathematicks, and in all School Divinity, especially in Thomas Aquinas; some of whose works he had read over once or twice. About that time he retired to his own Country, where he had like to have been carried over to the Church of Rome by one Anderton his country man and school-fellow, but their meeting together to confer about the matter being disappointed by Anderton it took no effect. This Anderton (by the way let it be known) was, after he had left Blackbourne Schoole, sent to Christs coll. in Cambridge, where for his eloquence he was called golden mouth'd Anderton: But his mind hanging after the R. Cath. religion, he left that coll. and his Country, and shipping himself beyond the Seas entred into R. Cath. Orders, and became one of learnedest among the Papists. Whether this person be the same with Laurence Anderton a Lincolnshire man born, and a Jesuit, who published books in 1632. and 34. I know not as yet. As for Bolton he returned soon after to Brasenose, where falling into the acquaintance of Mr. Tho. Peacock a learned and godly man of that house, he was by him settled a most sober and religious person, having been before a swearer, a Sabbath-breaker and a boon companion. In the 35 year of his age he entred into Orders, and two years after, which was in 1609. or thereabouts, he had the Parsonage of Broughton in Northamptonshire confer'd on him by Mr. (after Sir) Augustin Nicolls Serjeant at Law. The same year, in Dec. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, and then leaving the coll. for altogether in the latter end of 1610. the University thereby lost a singular ornament. He was a painful and a constant preacher, a person of great zeal towards God in his profession, charitable and bountiful, but above all a reliever of afflicted consciences, which he acquired by that manifold experience he had in himself and others; and grew so famous for it, that he was sought to far and near, and divers from beyond the Seas desired his resolution in several cases of conscience. He hath transmitted to posterity,

A discourse about the state of true happiness, delivered in certain Sermons in Oxon, and at Pauls Cross, on Psal. 1. ver. 1. 2. Lond. 1611. &c. qu. Which, for the godliness of the matter, and eloquence of the stile therein contained, was universally bought up, and the sixth edition of it was printed in 1631.

The last visitation, conflicts and death of Mr. Tho. Peacock Bach. of Div. and Fellow of Brasenose coll. Lond. 1661. Published also by the said Bagshaw. This our religious and learned author Mr. Bolton died at Broughton in Northamptonshire before mentioned, 17 Dec. in sixteen hundred thirty 1631. and one, and was buried two days after in the Chancel of the Church there: At which time Nich. Estwick Bach. of Div. sometimes Fellow of Christs coll. in Cambr. and at that time Minist. of Warkton in the said county of Northampton did preach his funeral (*) Sermon, wherein he spoke many things to the honour of the Defunct. About two years after Edw. Bagshaw before mentioned published his life (with some of his works) to which I refer the reader for more satisfaction of him. He the said Mr. Bolton left behind him a Son named Samuel, born at Broughton, educated in Linc. coll. and afterwards became an eminent preacher in London and much followed by the precise party. After the restoration of K. Ch. 2. he was made Prebendary of Westm. and actually created D. of D. of this Univer. which is all that I know of him, only that he dying on the eleventh of Feb. 1668. was buried in the Abby Church of St. Peter at Westminster, on the south side of the Chaire, near to the stairs leading up to the Pulpit. The Reader is now to observe, that whereas many things were published under the name of Sam. Bolton, he is to understand them not to have been written by this Samuel, but by another Sam. Bolton educated in Cambridge, Master of Christ's coll. there, one of the Assembly of Divines, 1643. Preacher to the Congregation of S. Saviours in Southwark, in the time of the Rebellion and interval, who dying the 15. Octob. 1654. aged 48 years, was buried in the Church of St. Martin within Ludgate in London, much lamented by the Brethren of the Presbyterian persuasion.

JOHN HOWSON received his first breath in the Parish of S. Bride in London, educated in Grammaticals in S. Pauls School, became Student of Ch. Ch. in 1577. took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and some time after was made one of the Vicars of Bampton in Oxfordshire. On the 15. May 1601. (43. Elix.) he was installed Canon of Ch. Ch. and in Dec. following he took the degrees in Divinity. In the next year (1602.) he had the office of Vicechanc. of the University confer'd upon him; in which being settled, fell out a controversie between him and certain Divines thereof called Puritans or Calvinists, who for their number were not few. For so it was, that he, a zealous man for the Church of England, as it was established in the time of K. Ed. 6. having heard and beheld with patience for several years the grand enormities committed in Preaching by many, if not the generality, of the Divines in the University, was resolved, when in authority, to reform them. But his time being short, only for an year, and his Successor not of the same mind, little or nothing could be done. However John Sprint of his own house he called into question for uttering certain points of doctrine against the ceremonies and discipline then established according to Law, (which was an usual thing for many puritanical and discontented Divines in the Univ. to bark at,) and after him Rob. Troutbeck of Qu. college, nay the most Calvinistical Provost thereof Hen. Airay, who did not only maintain in their Preachings what Sprint had said and done, but also spoke many things to the disgrace of the Vicechancellor: Among which was, that he had to no other end and purpose got the degrees of Bach. and Doct. of Divinity, without exercise done for them, only but that he might sooner obtain the Vicechancellorship, and consequently shew his authority in unjust proceedings, &c. From that time there were continual broils during his government; which being too many now to enumerate, and partly mention'd (†) elsewhere, I shall forbear to treat any farther of them. Afterwards our author Howson was made Rector of Brightwell near to Watlington in Oxfordshire, Fellow of Chelsey coll. and at length Bishop of Oxon. To which See being elected 12. Sept. 1618. was consecrated at Lambeth with Searchfield B. of Bristow, and Bridgman of Chester on the 9. of May following. In 1628. Sept. 18. he was translated to the See of Durham, (in the place of Dr. G. Mountaigne translated to Tork;) where he remained to his dying day, having always before been accounted a grave and learned man, and a true Son of the Church of England. His works are, Several Sermons, as, (1) Sermons Preached at S. Pauls Cross 4. Dec. 1597. on Matth. 21. 12, 13. wherein is discoursed, that all buying and selling spiritual promotion is unlawful. Lond. 1597. qu. (2) Second Sermon. Pr. at S. Pauls Cross 21. May 1598. on Matth. 21. 12, 13. concluding the former Sermon. Lond. 1598. qu. (3) Sermon at S. Maries in Oxon 17. Nov. 1602. in defence of the Festivities of the Church, and namely that of her Maj. Coronation, on Psal. 118. 24. Oxon. 1603. second edit. qu.

Uxore dimissa propter fornicationem, aliam non licet superinducere. Thesis tertia proposita & disputata in Vesperis Oxon. Oxon. 1602. oct. and 1606. qu. The defence of which Thesis, see in Rob. Burhill, under the year 1641.

Certain Sermons made in Oxon. an. 1616. wherein is proved that S. Peter had no Monarchical Power over the rest of the Apostles, against Bellarmino, Saunders, Stapleton, and the rest of that company. Lond. 1622. qu. They are four in number, and all on Luke 12. 41, 42. &c. commanded to be published by K. James, to clear the aspersions laid upon him of favouring Popery; which having not been yet replied upon by any of the Rom. Cath. party, have rendred their author famous to posterity. He yielded up his last breath on the sixth day of Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and one, aged 75. or thereabouts, and was buried in the Cath. Church of S. Paul within the City of London, leaving then behind him the character of a very learned man, and one plentifully endowed with all those virtues, which were most proper for a Bishop. The Reader is to know that there was one John Howson who wrote, A short exposition of the 20. and 21. verses of the third chapter of the first Epistle of St. John containing a profitable discourse of Conscience. Edinb. 1600. oct. but him I take to be a Scot, and to have no relation to John Howson before-mentioned.

DUDLEY CARLETON, Son of Anth. Carleton 592. of Baldwin Brightwell near Watlington in Oxfordshire Esq; was born there, 10. March 1573. became a Student of Ch. Ch. under the tuition of Mr. (afterwards Dr.) John King an. 1591. or thereabouts, took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being completed 1600. being then returned from his travels. Afterwards he went in the quality of a Secretary to Sir Ralph Winwood into the Low Countries, where being very active when K. James resigned the Cautionary Towns to the States, added thereby experience to his learning. In 1610. June 25. he received the honour of Knighthood from K. James at Windsore, who sent him (a) Ambassador Ordinary to the States of Venice, where he remained five years, and from thence Extraordinary to Emanuel Duke of Savoy, where he continued half an year; and after Ord. Ambassador to the States of the United Provinces, where he was resident 10 years. Towards the latter end of K. James he was made Vicechamberlain of the household, which office he holding in the Reign of K. Ch. 1. his commission was renewed by that King for the latter part of that 10 years. Afterwards, that time being terminated, he was sent Ambassador Extraordinary at two several times to the most Christian K. Lewis the 13. and likewise Ambassador Extraordinary to the aforesaid States of the United Provinces. In the 2. of K. Ch. 1. he was made Baron of Imbercourt in Surrey, and the next year being accompanied by Sir Will. Segar Knight, then Garter K. of Arms, went into Holland and there presented the Garter to Henry Pr. of Aurange, or Orange, with the Ensigns of that most noble Order thereunto appertaining. In the 4. Car. 1. he was created Viscount Dorchester in Oxfordshire, and upon the 18. Dec. the same year, he was constituted one of his Majesties Principal Secretaries of State, in which office he continued to the time of his death. He was a person that understood several Languages well, as also the Laws, conditions, and manners of most States in Europe. He was an exact Statesman, understood the intrigues of State well, yet just in his dealings, and beloved by most men, who much missed him after his death. He hath written, Various Letters to George Duke of Bucks, in Cabala, or Mysteries of State. Lond. 1654. qu. and lastly, Several French and Latin Letters to the learned Ger. Jo. Vossius, printed in Ger. Jo. Vossii & Clarorum Virorum ad eum epistola. Lond. 1690. fol. published by Paulus Colomesius. Besides these, he hath also Several Speeches in Parliament, an. 1626. &c. One or more of which you may see in the first vol. of John Rushworths Collections, p. 358.

Letters relating to State affairs written to the King and Viscount Rochester, from Venice, an. 1613. MS. He paid his last debt to nature in his house situated within the City of Westminster on the 15 day of Febr. between 10. and 11. of the clock at night in sixteen hundred thirty and one, and was buried in the Chappel of S. Paul on the north side of the Abbey Church, dedicated to S. Peter within the said City. Over his grave was soon after erected against the east Wall, a well composed plain Monument of black and white Marble, with a half canopy supported by doric Pillars, with the image of a man in his robes of estate, and Viscounts Coronet, leaning on a Pedestall, all formed of the like black and white marble. He left behind him a Nephew of both his names, who was admitted Scholar of Kings coll. in Cambridge, 1614. and had the degree of Master of Arts of that University confer'd upon him during his absence in the Low Countries, being then Secretary to his Uncle, while he was Embassador there. In 1629. March 1. he received the honour of Knighthood from his Majesty at New-Market, and in 1637. he was made one of the Clerks of the Council.

593. NICHOLAS VIGNIER, received his first being in this World at Blois in France, educated mostly in the University of Saumur, retired to Oxon to improve his studies by the hearing and doctrine of Dr. John Prideaux, an. 1623. was incorporated master of Arts in Octob. the same year, as he had stood at Saumur, being about that time entred a Sojournour of Exeter coll. (of which house Prideaux was then Rector) and numbred among the Academians. Soon after he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, as a member of the said college, being at that time reputed (b) to be a person of great erudition, singular piety, and of a most polite ingenie. After he had tarried there for some few years, he returned to the place of his nativity, where he became a zealous Minister of, and preacher to, the Protestant Church. Before he came to Oxon. he published, Theses Theologicae de satisfactione dei & domini nostri Jesu Christi. &c. Lugd. Bat. 1622. qu. Highly commended by And. Rivet, and by him annexed to his own disputations. After he had left Oxon. he published several Sermons in the French tongue, as. (1) L'Art de bien mourir, on Luke 2. 25. &c. Rochel 1625. oct. (2) La mere Ecclesiastique, on Gal. 4. 19. (3) De la priere pour les Rois & Magistrats, on 1 Tim. 2. 1, 2. (4) Le Trisagion, on Esay 6. 1, 2, 3. (5) De la chente des Auges, &c. on the 6. ver. of S. Jude. (6) Two Sermons at Blois, on Rev. 2. 12. (7) Serm. of the call, confirmation and authority of the Ministers of the Gospel, on Joh. 20. ver. 21. 22. (8) Panegyrique de la paix, on Psal. 122. All which were printed at Rochel 1625. in oct. (9) Pratique de repentance, twenty Sermons on Psal. 51. Blois 1631. oct. Besides several others which I have not yet seen. This Nich. Vignier, who was Minister of the Protestant Church at Blois before mentioned, was Son of Nich. Vignier of Bar on the river Sene, a learned Frenchman, Physitian and Historiographer to the K. of France, while our Qu. Elizabeth. reigned and after, several of whose works are in our publick Library at Oxon. Among which are. (1) Theatre de l' Antichrist, &c. printed 1610. fol. (2) Dissertatio de Venetorum excommunicatione contra Cas. Baronium. Franc. ad. m. 1607. qu. Which two books are said by a certain (*) author, but false, to have been written by N. Vignier the Son.

594. GEORGE CALVERT, Son of Leonard Calvert by Alice his Wife, Daug. of John Crossland of Crossland, was born at Kypling in the Chappetrie of Bolton in Yorks. (at which place he bestowed much mony in building in the latter end of the Reign of K. Jam. 1.) became a Commoner of Trinity coll. in Lent Term 1593, and in the year of his age 15. took one degree in Arts, and then leaving the college, travelled beyond the Seas for a time. At his return he was made Secretary to Sir Rob. Cecil, while he was one of the prime Secretaries of State, being then esteemed a forward and knowing person in matters relating to the State. All which time, and after, for several years, when Sir Robert was advanced to higher offices he retained him, and made use of his prudence and faithfulness in many weighty matters. In 1605. he was actually created Master of Arts when K. Jam. 1. was entertained by the University. Afterwards by the endeavours of the said Sir Robert Cecil, he was made one of the Clerks of the Council, and in 1617. Sept. 29. he, with Cl. Edmonds sometimes of Alls. coll. Albert Morton (whom I shall anon mention) both Clerks of the Council also, received the honour of Knighthood from his Majesty at Hampton Court. On the 15. February 1618. he was made (c) Secretary of State to his Majesty; who, as before he had used his help in many matters of moment, so he did oftner afterwards to his great benefit and advantage. At the same time also his Majesty judged it very convenient that he should assist and help Sir Robert Nanton the other Secretary, who had not then that faculty of managing and expediting matters of State as Calvert had. On the 2 May 1620. the King gave (d) him an yearly pension of a thousand pounds to be received from the Customs, and on the 16 Feb. 1624. (he being then a Parliamentary Burgess for this University) was by the name of Sir George Calvert of Danbyshire in Yorkshire Knight, &c. created Baron of Baltimore in the County of Longford in Ireland, being then a Roman Catholic, or at least very much addicted to their Religion. As for his adventures into America, where he was absolute Lord and Proprietary of Avalon in the New-found-land, and of his first venturing and taking possession of a Peninsula lying in the parts of America, between the Ocean on the East, and the Bay of Chesapeake on the West, and divided from the other part thereof by a right line drawn from the Promontory or Cape of Land called Watkins point (situate in the aforesaid Bay, near to the River Wighco) on the West, unto the main Ocean; afterwards called and named by him Mary-Land, let the Histories, and relations of Travellers tell you, while I acquaint you of his works, which are,

The answer of Tom Tell-Troth. The practice of Princes and the Lamentation of the Kirk. Lond. 1642. qu. He hath also written something concerning Mary-Land, but whether printed I cannot tell. He ended his days on the 15. Ap. in sixteen hundred thirty and two, 1632. and was buried in the Chancel of the Church of S. Dunstan in the West in Fleetstreet, near London. As for Albert Morton before mention'd, who was Nephew to Sir Henry Wotton, was elected Scholar of Kings coll. 1602. went with his Uncle in the quality of Secretary when he went on his Embassie to the States of Venice. Afterwards he was thrice Agent in Savoy, Secretary to the Lady Elizabeth in Heidelberg, and there employed as Agent (†) for the King with the Princes of the Union. Afterwards he became one the Clerks of the Council and a Knight as I have before told you, and at length one of the Secretaries of State. He ended his days in the Parish of S. Margaret within the City of Westminster in the winter time (in Nov. as it seems) an. 1625. having a little before been elected a Burgess to serve in Parliament for the Univ. of Cambridge. He then left behind him a Widdow named Elizabeth, by whom he had, if I mistake not, a Son of both his names, who was elected Scholar of Kings coll. in the said University 1638. but left that house soon after, and became a Lieutenent Colonel in the Wars in Ireland.

NATHANIEL TORPORLEY, a Shropshire 595. man born, applied his Muse to Academical learning in Ch. Church, an. 1579. aged 16. about which time he became one of the Students of that house. Afterwards he took the degree of Bach. of Arts, which being compleated by Determination, he left the University, and whether he then travelled beyond the Sea I cannot tell. For that he was in France for two or more years, and was Amanuensis to the celebrated Mathematician Fran. Vieta of Fontenay in the Province of Poitou is notoriously known, but the time when, whether before, or after, he was M. of A. we cannot tell. Sure it is that his Genie being mostly enclined to the Mathematicks and Astronomy, (in which faculties he had obtained in his absence, a sufficient knowledge) he returned to the University, and entering himself into Brasenose coll: did as a member thereof, take the degree of Master of Arts, an. 1591. being then eight years standing in that of Bachelaur. Afterwards he retired to the great City, and became so famous for his singular knowledge, that being made known to the great Earl of Northumberland, named Henry Piercy, the generous favourer of all good learning, was received into his Patronage, and had a pension paid yearly unto him, for several years from his Purse. About the same time he was made Rector of Salwarp in his native Country, in the place of Tho. Forest deceased, 1608. where residing sometimes, but mostly in Sion coll. in London, (of which he was a Student and a most eminent member) continued in the last, till the time of his death. He hath transmitted to posterity.

1631. He took his last farewell of this world in Sion coll. before mention'd, and was buried in the Church of St. Alphage near to that college, on the seventeenth day of Apr. in sixteen hundred thirty and two. By his nuncupatory (a) Will, which he spake on the 14. day of the same month, he gave to the use of those that study in the Library of the said coll. all his mathematical books and others, all his Astronomical instruments, notes, mapps and his brass clock. Among the said books, were some few MSS. of which one contained Certain definitions of the Planisphere, made by Walter Warner a most noted Mathematician of his time.

1596. LEWES BAYLY, was born in the antient Borough of Caermarthen in Wales, but in what house educated, unless in Exeter coll. or what degrees he took in Arts, I find not, only that as a member of the said coll. he was admitted to the reading of sentences, an. 1611. being about that time Minister of Evesham, in Worcestershire, Chaplain to Prince Henry, and Minister of St. Matthews Church in Friday-street, in London, and that he proceeded in Divinity two years after. Much about the same time, he being fam'd for his eminence in preaching, was made one of the Chaplains to King James I. who nominating him Bishop of Bangor in the place of Dr. H. Rowlands, was consecrated thereunto at Lambeth, with Dr. Lake to the See of B. and Wells, on the 8. of Dec. an. 1616. On the 15. July 1621. I find this (c) passage of him. Episcopus Bangoriensis examinatur, & in Le Fleet datur, sed paulo post liberatur. What his crime was, my author tells me not, nor do I list further to inquire, unless it concern'd the Princes match with the Infanta of Spain. He hath published, times in oct. and tw. the eleventh edition of which was printed at Lond. 1619. It was also printed once or more in the Welsh tongue; and once or more in the French, an. 1633. &c. And in France having been much cried up, did therefore cause John Despagne a French writer, and a Preacher in Somerset-house Chappel, an. 1656. to make some complaint of, not for any ill thing in it, because the generality of the Plebeians do look upon the authority of it, equal with that of the Scripture. It is said by an author, (f) who takes all advantages to speak against the Bishops, and Church of England, that this book called, The practice of Piety, was written by a Puritan Minister, and that a Bishop not altogether of a Chast life, did, after the Authors death bargain with his Widow for the Copy, which he received, but never paid her the money. Afterwards he interloping it in some places, did publish it as his own, &c. But let this report, which hath been common with some, as also that, which saith it was written by one Price Archdeacon of Bangor, remain with their authors, while I tell you that Dr. Bayly dying in the beginning of the year sixteen hundred thirty and two, was buried in his Church of Bangor. He left behind him four Sons, Nicholas, John, Theodore and Thomas. John was Fellow of Exeter coll. and a publisher of certain Sermons, as I have already told you. Thomas Bayly the youngest Son, was not educated in this University, but in Cambridge, and after he had taken the degrees in Arts, he was presented by his Majesty to the Sub-deanry of Wells, in the latter end of May 1638. upon the promotion of Dr. Will. Roberts to the See of Bangor. In 1644. he, among other Loyal Ministers, retired to Oxon, and in the month of Aug. was incorporated Master of Arts, and afterwards had the degree of D. of D. conferr'd upon him. In 1646. I find him with the Marquess of Worcester in Ragland Castle, which, as a Commission-Officer, he help'd to defend against the Parliamentarians. But that Castle being surrendred on the 19. Aug. the same year, upon good Articles, mostly of Bayly's framing, he travelled afterwards into France and other Countries, where spending that considerable stock of money which he had gotten from the said Marquess, he returned into England, and published a book intit. Certamen religiosum: or a conference between K. Ch. I. and Henry late Marquess of Worcester concerning Religion, in Ragland Castle, an. 1646. Lond. 1649. oct. but blamed by the true Sons of the Church of England for so doing, because the Romish cause is there set out in great pomp, he being then warping towards, if not altogether drawn over to, the Church of Rome, and it was looked upon by some as nothing else but his Prologue in order to the declaring himself a Papist, and thereupon the said conference was suspected by the Orthodox party to have nothing therein of the stile of K. Ch. I. and that the Marquess had not those abilities in him to maintain a discourse of religious matters with the said King. There was an answer with considerations on Dr. Bayly's parenthetical interlocation, printed at Lond. 1651. in tw. made unto it, by Ham. L'estrang, and also answered upon account as being fictitious by Christop. Cartwright of York. About the same time an Advertisement was put out against it, as a counterfeit thing, by Dr. Pet. Heylyn, in his Epistle to the Reader before his collection of his Majesty's works (wherein the said conference is put) intit. Bibliotheca Regia, &c. but omitted in other impressions of it, as also in the works of the said King printed in folio. The same year (1649.) Dr. Bayly published, The Royal Charter granted unto Kings by God himself, &c. To which he added, A treatise wherein is proved that Episcopacy is jure divino. Both which were afterwards reprinted at Lond. 1656. and 1680. oct. But in them the Doctor doth in many particulars egregiously (g) err, and as an unskilful builder, diruit edificat, for what he rears with one hand, he pulls down with the other: And amongst many stories of his travels, having freely rail'd at all the Commonwealths in Europe, doth at last fall desperately on the new erection of that in Eng. Which angry and displeasing history provoked strict examination; whereupon the author being found out, he was committed prisoner to Newgate, where being kindly and easily used he penned a book intit.

The practice of Piery; directing a Christian how to walk that he may please God.— Printed about 40

Herba parietis: Or, the wall Flower, as it grows out of the Stone-Chamber belonging to the metropolitan Prison, &c. being a History which is partly true, partly Romantick, morally divine. Whereby a marriage between reality and fancy is solemnized by Divinity. Lond. 1650. in a thin fol. In the Epistle before which he falls foul on P. Heylyn, whom he calls a fellow without a name, &c. for his advertisement before mentioned, which charged him with six matters; the first for wronging the late K. (Ch. 1.) very much, and another that he composed the said Conference himself, &c. Bayly also tells us there of his great sufferings in the late Civil War, that he had not only lost 1000 l. per an. for his Majesties sake, but also blood and liberty, that he was a Peers Son and his Mother a Knights Daughter, &c. As soon as this book was published, he made an escape out of Prison, went into Holland, and having rambled abroad, much more in his mind, than he had in his body, he at last declared himself a Rom. Catholick, and became a grand zealot in that interest, wherein (if he met with any occasion) he would break forth into rage and fury against the Protestant Religion, which he before had preached and professed. Thence he went into Flanders, and settling for a time at Doway, he published this book. The end to Controversie between the Rom. Catholick, and Protestant, Religions, justified by all the several manner of ways, whereby all kind of Controversies of what nature soever, are usually, or can possibly be, determined, &c. printed at Doway 1654. in qu. and dedicated to Walt. Montague Abbot of Nantenul, afterwards L. Abbot of Pontoise. There also goes under his name. The life and death of that renowned John Fisher Bishop of Rochester, &c. Lond. 1655. oct. but he was not the author of it. The true and genuine writer thereof was one Rich. Hall, D. D. sometimes of Christs coll. in Cambridge (the same, of which B. Fisher was a member) afterwards Canon, and Official of the Cathedral Church at St. Omer, who leaving it behind him in MS. at his death, an. 1604. 'twas as a choice rarity reposed in the Library of the English Benedictines at Dieuxward in Lorain. Afterwards several Copies of it going abroad, one came into the hands of a person who call'd himself West. From him it came into the possession of Franc. a Sancta Clara, an. 1623. and from him (as he himself hath told me divers times) to Sir Wingfield Bodenham, who keeping it in his hands several years, with an intention to print it in the name of the true author, did impart it for a time to Dr. Tho. Bayly. So that forthwith he taking a Copy of it, and making some alterations therein, he sold the said Copy to a Bookseller for a small sum of money, who caus'd it to be printed at London, under the name of Tho. Bayly D. D. I have seen a MS. containing the said Bishops Life, beginning thus, Est in Eboracensi comitatu, octogesimo a Londino lapide ad aquilonem Beverleia oppidum, &c. But who the author was, I cannot tell: 'Twas written before Halls time, and 'tis not unlikely, but that he had seen it. There also goes under Tho. Baylys name The golden Apothegmes of King Ch. 1. and Henry Marquess of Worcester, &c. Lond. 1660. in one sh. in qu. All which were taken from a book intit. Witty Apothegmes delivered at several times and upon several occasions by K. James, K. Ch. 1. and the Marq. of Worcester, &c. Lond. 1658. oct. published by Anonymus. After Dr. Bayly had left Flanders, he went into Italy, where, as several Rom. Catholicks have told me, he was received into the service of Cardinal Ottobon, and that he died in his family, while the said Cardinal was Embass. or Nuntio at Ferrara from the Pope, and also that Prince Cajetan had a care of his Son (whom he took with him) after his death. But an English Traveller hath told me otherwise, viz. that he was no other than a common Soldier, that he lived poor at Bononia, and saw his Grave there. Another also named Dr. Rich. Trevor Fellow of Merton coll. (younger brother to Sir John Trevor sometimes Secretary of State) who was in Italy in 1659. hath several times told me that he the said Dr. Bayly died obscurely in an Hospital, and that he saw the place where he was buried.

597. SAMUEL BROWNE, born at, or near to, the antient Borough of Shrewsbury, became a Servitour or Clerk of Alls. coll. in 1594. aged 19. took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and afterwards was made preacher at S. Maries in the said Town of Shrewsbury, where he was much resorted to by precise people for his edifying and frequent preaching. He hath published,

The sum of Christian Religion by way of Catechism. Lond. 1630. and 37. oct.

Certain Prayers—And left behind him at the time of his death, in sixteen hundred thirty two. Several Sermons 1632. to be made publick, but whether they were printed I cannot tell. One of both his names, was summer Reader of Lincolns Inn 18 Car. 1. afterwards Serjeant at Law, one of the Justices of the Common Bench, and one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal, in the time of Usurpation, but what he hath extant, I cannot tell. He died in the beginning of the year 1668. being then a Knight, and a possessor of Lands at Arlesbury in Bedfordshire.

THEODORE GOULSON, Son of Will. Goulson 598. Rector of Wymondham in Leicestershire, received his first breath in the County of Northampton, became Probationer Fellow of Merton coll. in 1596. applied his Muse to the study of medicine, after he had been adorn'd with the Majesterial degree; in the practice of which, having been initiated in these parts, lived afterwards at Wymondham; where, as in the neighbourhood, he became famous in, and much frequented for, his faculty. At length taking the degrees of Physick in this University, an. 1610. was made a Candidate of the Coll. of Physicians at London, and the year after Fellow thereof, and afterwards Censor, being at that time in great esteem for his practice in the metropolitan City. He was an excellent Latinist, and a noted Grecian, but better for Theology, as it was observed by those that knew him. He hath published, Versio Latina, & Paraphrasis in Aristotelis Rhetoricam. Lond. 1619. 1623. &c. qu.

Versio, varia Lectiones, & annotationes critica in opuscula varia Galeni. Lond. 1640. qu. published by his singular good friend Tho. Gataker Bac. of Div. of Cambridge, and Rector of Redrith in Surrey, who died 27. July 1654. and was buried in the Church at Redrith, after he had govern'd it 40. years. As for our author Goulson he ended his days in his house within the parish of S. Martin by Ludgate within the City of London, 4. May, in sixteen hundred thirty 1632. and two: whereupon his body was buried with solemnity in the Church belonging to that parish. By his will, which I have seen and perused, he bequeathed 200 l. to purchase a rent-charge for the maintenance of an Anatomy Lecture in the coll. of Physicians at London, as also several books to Merton coll. Library, besides other donations, which were mostly, if not all, performed by his virtuous and religious Widdow Ellen Goulson; of whom by the way I must let the reader know, that she being possess'd of the impropriate Parsonage of Baradwell in Suffolk, did procure from the King leave to annex the same to the Vicaridge, and to make it presentative: which being so done, she gave them both thus annexed (for she had the donation of the Vicaridge before that time) freely to S. John coll. in Oxon.

LEONARD HUTTEN, was elected from 599. Westminster School, a Student of Ch. Church, in 1574. wherein, with unwearied industry, going thro the several Classes of Logick and Philosophy, became M. of A. and a frequent preacher. In 1599. he was installed Canon of the said Church, being then Bach. of Divinity and Vicar of Flower in Northamptonshire, and in the year after he proceeded in that faculty. His younger years were beautified with all kind of polite learning, his middle, with ingenuity and judgment, and his reverend years with great wisdom in government, having been often Subdean of his house. He was also an excellent Grecian, well read in the Fathers and Schoolmen, which was sufficiently approved by the consent of the University, and not meanly vers'd in the histories of our own Nation. He hath written,

An answer to a Treatise concerning the Cross in Baptism. Oxon. 1605. qu. Which book was held in reverent respect by the best Bishops of the Church, as having the Fathers agreeing to Scripture truly urged, and understandingly interpreted therein. See in Jam. Calfhill and John Martiall. I have been informed by one (a) who knew this Dr. Hutten well, that he was author of a Trag. Com. called Bellum Grammaticale, but how that can be, I cannot discern, for tho it was written by an Oxford man, if not two, yet one edition of it came out in 1574. in oct.

(a) Dr. Rich. Gardiner Canon of Ch. Church, aged 79. an. 1670. which which was the year, when Dr. Hutten first saluted the Oxonian Muses, as I have before told you. He had also an hand in the translation of the Bible, appointed by King James, an. 1604. and left in MS. behind him, Discourse of the antiquity of the University of Oxford, by way of letter to a friend.—The copies of this Discourse, which I have seen, were written in qu. in about 8 sheets, and had this beginning, Sir, your two questions, the one concerning the antiquity of Oxford, &c. I have seen 4 copies of it, but could get little or nothing from them for my purpose, when I was writing the Hist. and Antiq. of the Univ. of Oxon. A MS. book of the like subject, I once saw in the hands of John Houghton Bac. of Div. sometimes Senior Fellow of Braunose coll. divided into three books, the beginning of which runs thus, All truth is of it self as glorious, &c. but who the author of it was, I could never learn. 'Tis a trite thing, and mostly taken from Apologia Antiq. Acad. Oxon. written by Br. Twyne, as that of Hutten was. He hath also written, Historia fundationum Ecclesie Christi Oxon. una cum Episcoporum, Decanorum & Canonicorum ejusd. Catalogo. 'Tis a MS. and hath this beginning, Monasterium sive Prioratus S. Frideswyde virginis fundata est ab eadem Frideswyda filia Didaci alias Didani, &c. A copy of this in qu. I once saw in the hands of Dr. Joh. Fell Dean of Ch. Ch. but many faults have been committed therein by an illiterate Scribe. At length Dr. Hutten having lived to the age of 75. died on the 17. of May in sixteen hundred thirty and two, and was buried in the Divinity-Chappel (the north Isle remotest from the Chaire) belonging to the Cathedral of Ch. Ch. before-mentioned. A copy of his Epitaph you may see in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 288. b. By his Wife Anne Hamden he had a Daughter named Alice, who was married to Dr. Rich. Corbet, afterwards successively B. of Oxon and Norwich.

600. ROBERT HUES, or Hufius as he writes himself, was born (b) at Little Hereford commonly called Harford near to Leonminshier in Herefordshire; who, tho well grounded in Grammar learning and of good parts, and therefore of desert, yet at his first coming to the University he was only a poor Scholar or Servitour of Braunose, and among the pauperes Scholares is he numbred in the publick Matricula under Coll. Aeneas, about 1571. In that house he continued for some time a very sober and serious Student, and was countenanced by one or more of the Seniors thereof, but being sensible of the loss of time which he sustained there by constant attendance, he translated himself to S. Maries hall, and took the degree of Bac. of Arts at about 7 years standing, being then noted for a good Grecian. Which degree he compleating by Determination, he afterwards travelled, and in fine became well skill'd in Geography and Mathematicks. The last of which being the faculty he excelled in, made him respected by that generous Count Henry Earl of Northumberland, who allowed him an yearly Pension for the encouragement of his studies, but whether he was ever Mathematick Professor of Gresham coll. as a certain learned (c) Gent. reports, I cannot tell. He hath written,

De Globis celest. & terrest. Tract. 2. Several times printed in Lat. and Engl. in oct. The first edition of this book had this title, Tractatus de Globis & eorum usu, accommodatus iis qui Londini editi sunt; an. 1593. sumptibus Gulielmi Sanderfoni Civ. Lond. Lond. 1593. oct. It was afterwards illustrated with figures and annotations by Joh. Isaac Pontanus Professor of Philosophy at Harderwicke in Gelderlandt.—Amstel. 1617. 1624. &c. Oxon. 1663. in oct. and twelve.

Breviarium totius Orbis. Printed several times at Lond. in Lat. and Engl. in oct. and tw. This Mr. Hues died in the Stone-house (then belonging to Joh. Smith M. of A. Son of Tho. Smith Cook of Ch. Ch.) opposite almost to the Inn called the Blew-Boar in S. Aldates Parish in Oxon, on the 24. of May, in sixteen hundred thirty and two, aged 79 years, and was buried near to the grave of Dr. Hutten, within the limits of the Cathedral of Ch. Ch. before-mentioned. His Epitaph is printed in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 288. b. wherein you'll find other matters relating to him, which I have not here set down. I find one Rob. Hughes who was an English Merchant in the Kingdom of India and City of Agemer, author of a Dictionary containing the English and Persian Languages; an. 1616. MS. sometimes in the Lord Hattons Library, now in that of Bodley, but what relation there was between this and the former, I know not, I think none, because their names differ. The Reader may be pleased now to take notice that the said R. Hues the Mathematician, having spent one year or two in the condition of a Tutor to Algernon Son of Hen. Earl of Northumberland, in Ch. Ch. he was therefore thrust among the writers of that house, against the consent of the author, into Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. by the publisher thereof, who endeavoured to disturb the course of that History, to satisfy his partial ends. He also thrust in of his own accord among the Bishops of the said House Joh. Piers Archb. of York, and Miles Smith B. of Glouc. The former, who had been Dean for a time, had most of his education in Magd. coll. and the other who had been Petty-Canon, was chiefly educated in that of Braunose.

ALEXANDER COOKE received his first breath 601. in Yorkshire, (at, or near to, Beeston by Leeds.) and educated in Grammar learning in those parts. In Michaelmas-Term, an. 1581. he was admitted a Member of Braunose coll. being then 17 years of age, and after he had taken one degree in Arts, he was chosen into a Percy-Fellowship of University coll. in 1587. In the year following he took the degree of M. of A. and about that time holy Orders: So that applying himself solely to the study of the sacred writ, became a frequent and noted Preacher in these parts, took the degree of Bach. of that Faculty in 1597. and had some little Cure bestowed upon him. At length upon the decease of his Brother Robert, (whom I have mentioned under the year 1614.) he became Vicar of Leeds in his own Country. He was a person most admirably well read in the controversies between the Protestants and the Papists, vers'd in the Fathers and Schoolmen, a great Calvinist, yet witty and ingenious, and a Satyrical Enemy in his writings against the Romanists, as it evidently appears in these books following, which have been much taken into the hands of ingenious men.

Pope Joan. A dialogue between a Protestant and a Papist, manifestly proving that a Woman called Joan was Pope of Rome, &c. against Rob. Bellarmine, Cæs. Baronius, Flor. Ræmundus, &c. impudently denying the same. Lond. 1610. qu. Which book being in great request among Protestants beyond Sea, was translated into French by J. de la Montagne. Printed at Sedan 1633. in oct.

The abatement of Popish Brags, pretending Scripture to be theirs. Lond. 1625. qu.

The Weather-cock of Rome's Religion, with her several changes: or, the World turned topsie turvie by Papists. Lond. 1625. qu.

More work for a Maf-Priest. Lond. 1621. qu.

Yet more work for a Maf-Priest. Lond. 1622. qu.

Work, more work, and yet a little more work for a Maf-Priest. Lond. 1628. &c. qu. 'Tis the same with the two former immediately going before, only some alterations in, and several additions put to, it, especially in that edition which came out in 1630. What other things he published I know not, nor any thing else of him, only that he was buried in Leeds Church near to the Body of his Brother Rob. Cooke, 23. June in sixteen hundred thirty and two, and that he left behind him the character of 1630. A good and learned man, a man abounding in charity, and exemplary in his life and conversation, yet hated by the R. Catholics who lived near Leeds and in Yorkshire, and indeed by all elsewhere who had read his works.

JAMES WHITLOCK, was born in London 28. 602. Nov. 1570. descended from those of his name living near to Olyngham in Berkshire, educated in Merchant Taylors School, elected Scholar of S. Johns coll. in 1588. took one degree in the Civil Law, settled in the Middle Temple, became summer Reader of that House, 17 Jac. 1. a Knight, chief Justice of Chester and at length one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, as in his Epitaph 'tis said, tho in his last Will, of the Kings Bench. He had the Latin tongue so perfect, that sitting Judge of Assize at Oxon, when some Foreigners (persons of quality) purposely came into the Court to see the manner of proceedings in matters of Justice, he briefly repeated the heads of his charge to the Grand

(b) As the said Dr. Gardiner hath informed me: (c) See in the Append. to the Sphere of Manilius, &c. by Edw. Sherburne Esq; p. 86.

Grand Jury in good and elegant Latin, and thereby informed the Strangers and Scholars there present, of the ability of the Judges, and the course of proceeding in matter of Law and Justice. He understood the Greek very well and the Hebrew, was vers'd in the Jewish Histories, and excellently knowing in the Histories of his own Country, and in the Pedigrees of most persons of honour and quality in England, and much conversant also in the study of Antiquity and Heraldry. He was not by any exceeded in the knowledge of his own profession of the Common Law of England, wherein, his knowledge of the Civil Law was a help to him, as his learned arguments both at the Bar and Bench have confirm'd it for a truth. His works are these.

Reading in the Middle Temple hall. — In which was so much solid Law and excellent learning express'd, that copies were desired, and taken of it, but whether printed I cannot tell.

Several Speeches in Parliament. — One of which is extant in a book intit. The Sovereign's Prerogative and the Subjects Privileges discussed, &c. in the 3. and 4. of K. Ch. 1. Lond. 1657. fol.

Of the antiquity, use, and ceremony of lawful Combats in England. — MS. The beginning of which is, Combats are distinguished to be lawful and unlawful, &c. This MS. which I saw and perused in the choice Library of MSS. of Ralph Sheldon of Beoly Esq; had the name of James Whitlock set and subscrib'd to it, and so consequently I took him to be the author; who dying on the 22. of June in sixteen hundred thirty and two, the King did lose as good a Subject, his Country as good a Patriot, the People as just a Judge, as ever lived, &c. as his Son Bulstrode Whitlock tells (*) us, His body was afterward buried at Falley or Fawley not far from Great Wycomb in Bucks; over which, his Son before-mentioned, not only erected a stately monument, but also a Chappel, which serves for a burial place for those descended from him.

603. ISAAC WAKE, Son of Arthur Wake Rector of Billyng in Northamptonshire, Master of the Hospital of St. John in Northampton, and Canon of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, third Son of John Wake Esq; of the ancient and honourable Family of his name living at Sawcy Forest, was born in the said County of Northampton, (at Billyng as it seems,) became a Member of this University in the beginning of the year 1593. aged 18. or thereabouts, elected Probationer-Fellow of Merton coll. 1598. Orator of the University 1604. being then Regent ad placitum, publicly known to the K. and Court at Oxon in the year following, by his Orations of a Ciceronian stile delivered before them when entertained there, travelled into France and Italy, 1609. and after his return was entertained in the quality of a Secretary to Sir Dudley Carleton one of the Secretaries of State, and from his, was advanced to the King's service, by being employed Ambassador to Venice, Savoy, and elsewhere. The time when he went to Savoy was in the (c) middle of Apr. 1619. being in few days before made a Knight; whose Escoccheon then, or soon after, which was hung up in all publick places where he came, had this inscription written under it. Sir Isaac Wake Knight Ambassador Extraordinary in Savoy and Piemont, Ordinary for Italy, Helvetia, and Rhetia, select for France. In 1623. he was elected Burgess by the Members of this University to serve in that Parliament which began the 19. Feb. the same year, in which he was much admired for his excellent elocution. I have been informed by some of the Ancients of Merton coll. that this our author Wake had his Pen more at command in the Latin, English, and French tongue, than any of his time in the University. Also that his speaking was Majestick, that he was better for Orations than disputing, and that he employed his time more in reading political and civil matters, than Philosophy or the great Faculties. Further also that he was a gentle man in behaviour, well spoken, and therefore put upon Speeches at all Receptions and Funerals. There is no doubt but that he was a man of exquisite learning, strong parts of nature, and of a most refined wit. He hath written, Rex Platonius; sive de potentiss. Principis Jacobi Regis ad Academ. Oxon. adventu, an. 1605. Oxon. 1607. qu. afterwards printed in oct.

Oratio funebris habita in templo B. Mariae Oxon. quum masti Oxonienses, piis manibus Johannis Rainoldi parentarent. Oxon.

Bodley. Oxon. 1613. qu. Wake's name is not set to it, only said in the title to be made by the publick Orator of the University, which office Wake then enjoyed. 'Tis reprinted in a book published by Will. Bates D. D. a Nonconformist-Minister, intit. Vita selectiorum aliquot virorum, qui doctrina, dignitate aut pietate inclaruerunt. Lond. 1681. in a large qu.

Discourse of the 13 Cantons of the Helvetical League. Lond. 1655. oct.

Discourse of the state of Italy as it stood about the year 1625. — Printed with the former discourse.

Discourse upon the proceedings of the King of Sweden. — Printed also with the former. These three last discourses were printed at Lond. in oct. with this title put before them, A threefold help to political observations. I find another book going under his name that bears this title, Disquisitions upon the Nativity of our Saviour Jesus Christ. — When printed I know not, for I have not yet seen it. And another called,

A relation of what hapned in the Dutchies of Mantoua and Montferat from the beginning of the year 1628. unto the end of the year 1629. — MS. among those given by the learned Selden's Executors to the publick Libr. at Oxon. The beginning of it is, In the year of our Lord 1627. was closed with the death of Vincenzo Gonzaga, &c. He hath also Several Letters of State in the book called, Cabala, or Mysteries of State, &c. Lond. 1654. qu. and Several Letters in that intit. Cabala, or Scrinia Sacra. Lond. 1663. fol. He took his last farewell of this World at Paris, during his being there in the service of his Majesty: Whereupon his body being embalmed, was brought over into England, and inter'd on the south side of the Chancel belonging to the Chappel in Dover Castle, in the month of July in sixteen hundred thirty and two. At which 1631 time Mr. John Reading Minister of S. Maries Church in Dover preached his Funeral Sermon, wherein he took occasion to speak very honourably of the person that laid dead before him, whom he knew and well remembred in the University of Oxon.

THOMAS ALLEN, or Allyn, the Father of all 604. learning and vertuous industry, an unfeigned lover and furtherer of all good Arts and Sciences, was born at Uttoxeter in Staffordshire on the day of S. Thomas the Apostle, in 1542. being a Descendant, thro six Generations, from Henry Allen, or Alan, Lord of the Mannor of Buckenhall in the said County, was admitted Scholar of Trinity coll. 4. June 1561. Fellow in 65. and two years after, Master of Arts. But being much inclined to live a retired life, and averse from taking holy Orders, he left the Coll. and his Fellowship, about 1570. and receded to Gloucester hall, where he lived a close Student many years, and at length became an eminent Antiquary, Philosopher, and Mathematician, and not only the Prince or Coryphaeus, (as one (d) saith,) but the very Soul and Sun of all the Mathematicians of his time. Being thus accomplished with various sorts of learning, he was several times invited to the families of Princes and Nobles, not only of this Nation, but of others: And when Albertus Laskie Count or Prince of Sirade in Poland was in England, he did court him to go with him into his own Country, 1583. and to live there as he pleased, and accept of such Honours and Dignities which he could get for him; but he being delighted with retiredness and an Academical life, did evade his civility, and thereby, as a true Philosopher, contemn'd riches and greatness. He was also often courted to live in the family of that most noble and generous Count Henry Earl of Northumberland, a great Patron of Mathematicians: Whereupon spending some time with him, he was infinitely beloved and admired not only by that Count, but by such Artists who then lived with, or often retired to him, as Tho. Harriot, John Dee, Walt. Warner, Nath. Torporley, &c. the Atlantes of the Mathematick World. Robert Earl of Leicester, Chancellor of this University, and the grand favourite in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, did also before that time entertain him, and would have confer'd upon him a Bishoprick; but for the sweetness of a retired life, he denied that also.

The truth is, that Earl did highly value him, and no person was more familiar with him than Mr. Allen, and Dee before-mentioned. Whence 'twas that the author of the book, called, Leicester's Commonwealth, reporteth, that they (whom he styles Atheists) used the art of figuring and conjuring for procuring the said Earls unlawful designs, and that also by their Black Art, they endeavoured a match between Q. Elizabeth and him. How true these things are, let others, who know the author of that book that reports them, judge. Certain it is, that Allen was so great with that Count, that few matters of State passed, but he had knowledge of them, and nothing of moment was done in the University, but Allen gave him it in writing. He was also very great and highly respected by other famous men of his time of this Kingdom, as with Bodley, Savile, Camden, Cotton, Spelman, Selden, &c. the last of whom (v) saith, that Allen was omni eruditionis genere summusque judicio ornatissimus, celeberrima Academia Oxon. decus insignissimum: And (f) Camden, that he was Plurimis & optimis artibus ornatiss. His sufficiencies in the Mathematick Science being generally noted, he was thereupon accounted another Rog. Bacon, which was the reason why he became terrible to the Vulgar, especially those of Oxon, who took him to be a perfect Conjurer. He was a great collector of scattered MSS. of whatsoever Faculty, especially those of History, Antiquity, Astronomy, Mathematicks, Philosophy, &c. sparing neither cost or labour to procure them: Some of which I have seen quoted in the works of learned authors, as being in Bibliotheca Alleniana. By his help, advice, and communication, several of the University became eminent in Mathematicks and Antiquities; of which number were Harriot, Twyne, Hegge, the two Jeames, Burton, Digby, &c. whom for their labours communicated to posterity, I have partly before touched, and shall hereafter mention, in their respective places. As for Allen's collections, observations, and notes of Astronomy, Mathematicks, and N. Philosophy, they are got into obscure hands, and 'tis thought that Digby, whose name is famous among many, hath made use of those of Philosophy. All that I have seen written by Allen, are these following.

Claudii Ptolomei Pelusiensis, de Astrorum judiciis, aut ut vulgo vocant, quadripartita constructionis; lib. secundus, cum expositione Thomæ Alleni Angli-Oxonienfis. The first chapter of which begins thus, Hactenus quidem precurramus ea quorum cognitione, &c.

Cl. Ptolomei de Astror. judiciis, lib. 3. cum expositione Tho. Alleni, &c. These two MSS. coming into the hands of William Lilly the sometimes famous Figure-flinger, were by him bestowed on Elias Astmole Esq; in 1652. One of the said copies was transcribed from the original, which Sir Tho. Aylesbury had of the gift of Mr. Allen, the other copy John Huniades the great Chymist had in his possession, who gave it, as it seems, to Lilly. He, the said Allen, put notes also on many of his books, and some were by him put on Joh. Bales book De Scriptoribus Maj. Britannia, which are entred by another hand in the margin of the said author, that is in the publick Library at Oxon. At length, he having lived to a great age, surrendered up his last breath in Gloucester hall, on the 30. Sept. in sixteen hundred thirty and two, and the next day an eloquent oration being delivered by Mr. Will. Burton of that house in the publick Refectory there, in praise of the Defunct, before the Vice-chancellor, Heads of Colleges and Halls, and many of the University then present, the body was accompanied by them to the chappel of Trinity coll. where, after another Speech was spoken by Mr. George Bathurst, the body was solemnly inter'd. Soon after, the chief part of his Library of incomparable MSS. coming into the hands of Sir Kenelm Digby, as the owner before had appointed, they were the next year given by him to the Bodleian or publick Library, where they yet remain. Some of them had before, and about the time of Allen's death, been got from him by Rich. James of C. C. coll. for the Cottonian Library, and others came into the hands of Sir Tho. Aylesbury Master of the Requests, but where those are now, in truth I cannot tell. Some years since I made a search in the said chappel of Trin. coll. for an Epitaph on Mr. Allens grave, but not so much as a letter appearing, you shall have part of his character instead of it, which I found written in a certain MS. in the Library of the said college, running thus, Vir fuit elegantium literarum studiosissimus, Academicæ disciplinæ tenacissimus, apud Exteros & Academicos semper in magno pretio, eorumque qui in Ecclesia Anglicana atque in Universitate Oxoniensi pro meritis suis ad Dignitates aut Præfekturas subinde proveci fuerunt. Fuit sagacissimus observator, familiariss. conviva, &c. His picture painted to the life, he gave to the President of Trinity coll. and his Successors, to be there remaining in the Dining-room of the said President for ever: Another copy he gave to the Cottonian Library, and a third to his old Friend Dr. Tho. Clayton Master of Pembroke college, whose Son Sir Thomas hath it at this day. I shall make mention of another Tho. Allen under the year 1636.

ROBERT HAYMAN, a Devonian born, was entered a Sojourner of Exeter coll. while he was very young, an. 1590, where being noted for his ingenuity and pregnant parts, became valued by several persons who were afterwards eminent; among whom were Will. Noy, Arth. Duck his kinsman, Will. and George Hakewill, Tho. Winniff, Rob. Vilvaine, Sim. Baskerville, &c. all of that Houle, Will. Vaughan of Jesus coll. Charles Fitzgeffry of Broadgates, &c. Afterwards he retired to Lincoln's Inn without the honour of a degree, studied for a time the municipal Law, but his Genie being well known to be poetical, fell into acquaintance with, and received encouragement to proceed in his studies from, Mich. Drayton, Ben. Johnson, John Owen the Epigrammatist, George Withers the puritanical Satyrist, John Vicars of Ch. Ch. Hospital, &c. and at length writing several specimens of his wit, which I think are quite lost, had, tho phantastical, the general vogue of a poet. After he had left Linc. Inn and had arrived toward the fortieth year of his age he was made Governour of the plantation of Harbor-Grace in Bristol-hope in Britaniola, anciently called New-found-land, where, after some time of residence, he did, at spare hours, write and translate, these matters following.

Quodlibets, lately come over from New Britaniola, anciently called New-found-land.

Epigrams, and other small parcels, both moral and divine.— These two, divided into four books, were printed at London 1628. in qu. the author of them being then there. He also translated from Lat. into English verse, Several sententious epigrams and witty sayings out of sundry authors both ancient and modern, (especially many of the epigrams of Joh. Owen.) Lond. 1628. qu. As also from French into English, The two railing Epistles of the witty Doctor Francis Rablais. On the 17. of Nov. in 1628. he being then bound to Guiane in America to settle a Plantation there, made his Will, a copy of which I have (a) seen, wherein he desires to be buried where he dies. On the 24. of January in sixteen hundred thirty and two, issued out a Commission from the Prerog. Court of Canterbury to a certain person, who had moneys owing to him by Hayman, to administer the goods, debts, chattels, &c. of him the said Rob. Hayman, lately deceased. So that I suppose he died beyond the Seas that year, aged 49. or thereabouts.

WILLIAM SUTTON, a Citizens Son, was born in London, sent by his Relations from Merchant-Taylor's School to Ch. Ch. in 1578. aged 15. or thereabouts, took the degrees in Arts, entred into the Sacred Function, and in the year 1592. was admitted to the reading of the Sentences; about which time he was Parson of Blandford St. Mary in Dorsetshire, and Vicar of Sturminster-Marshall in the same County. He was a very learned man, an excellent Orator, Latinist, Grecian, and Preacher. He had a well furnish'd Library, wrote much, but ordered his Son to print nothing after his death. All that was made publick in his life-time, was only this.

The falshood of the chief grounds of the Romish Religion, descried and convinced in a brief answer to certain motives sent by a Priest to a Gentleman to induce him to turn Papist.— Which book stealing into the Press, and coming out full of faults, his Son Will. Sutton Bach. of Div. of Ch. Ch. corrected and reprinted it after his Fathers death Lond. 1635. in oct. or tw. He finished his course about the latter end of Octob. in sixteen hundred thirty and two, and was buried in the Church of Blandford St. Mary before-mentioned. I have been informed that other things of our author Will. Sutton were published after his death, but such I have not yet seen.

607. JOHN RIDER received his first being in this World at Carrington in Cheshire, applied his Genie to Academical studies in Jesuis coll. an. 1576. took the degrees in Arts, as a Member thereof, and after he had remained some years in the University in the instruction of Youths in Grammar, became Minister of S. Mary Magd. at Bermondsey near to London, afterwards Rector of the rich Church of Winnick in Lancashire, Archdeacon of Meath in Ireland, Dean of St. Patrick's Church near to Dublin, and at length Bishop of Killaloe, an. 1612. where he was much respected and revered for his Religion and learning. While he remained in Oxon he composed,

A Dictionary English and Latin; and Lat. and Engl. Oxon. 1589. in a large thick qu. It was the first Dictionary that had the English before the Latin, (epitomizing the learnedst and choicest Dictionaries that were then extant,) and was beheld as the best that was then in use. But that part of it which had the Latin before the English, was swallowed up by the greater attempts of Franc. Holyoake, who saith that he designed and contrived it so, before the Vocabularies or Dictionaries of Becman, Funger, and Martin came out; notwithstanding it appears that he was beholding to them, and made use of their materials in his Dictionary that he published, an. 1606. Besides the said Dictionary our author Rider hath also written,

A Letter concerning the news out of Ireland, and of the Spaniards landing, and present state there. Lond. 1601. qu. And having had controversies with one Hen. Fitz-Simons a learned Jesuit of Ireland, published a book intitled, Claim of Antiquity in behalf of the Protestant Religion.—When this was printed I know not. The confutation of it, I am sure, with a reply to Rider's Rescript or Postscript, written by the said Fitz-Simons, were printed at Roan in Normandy, an. 1608. qu. as I shall tell you under the year 1643. He also (Rider) published other matters; which having been printed in Ireland, and therefore few or none of them come into these parts, I cannot give you the titles of them. He departed this mortal life on the twelfth day of Novemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and two, and was buried at Killaloe, in the Cathedral Church there dedicated to the memory of S. Flannan, leaving behind him the character of a learned and religious Prelate.

608. EDWARD JORDEN, a learned, candid, and sober Physician of his time, was born at High-Halden in Kent, and educated for a time, as it seems, among several of his Countrymen in Hart hall, where some of his Sirname did about that time study, but whether he took a degree here, it appears not. Afterwards, designing Physick his profession, he travelled beyond the Seas, spent some time at Padua, where he took the degree of Doctor of that Faculty, and upon his return practised in London, and became one of the Coll. of Physicians there. Afterwards he settled in the City of Bathe, where practicing with good success, had the applause of the learned, respect from the rich, prayers from the poor, and the love of all. He hath written,

A brief discourse of a disease called the suffocation of the mother, &c. Lond. 1603. qu.

Discourse of natural Bathes and mineral Waters.—Twice printed: Which being revised and corrected by Thomas Guidott Bach. of Phys. of Wadh. coll. and a Practitioner in the City of Bathe, he published it a third time at Lond. 1669. in oct. To which he added an Appendix containing, A treatise concerning the Bathe, wherein the antiquity both of the Bathes and the City is discoursed, &c.—Dr. Jorden died about the seventh day of January in sixteen hundred thirty and two, aged 63. and was buried in the south Isle joyning to the great Church within the City of Bathe, dedicated to S. Peter and S. Paul. He had a natural inclination to Mineral (b) works, and was at great charges about the ordering of Allum, which succeeding not according to expectation, he was thereby much prejudiced in his Estate, as it appears in the 7. chap. of Nat. Bathes & Mineral Waters, wherein 'tis said that Allum was the greatest Debtor he had, and he the greatest Benefactor to it, as he could make it appear, when he thought fit to publish the artifice thereof.

JOHN BARLOW, a Cheshire man born, became 609. a Student of Hart hall in the year 1600. aged 19. or more, took one degree in Arts 8 years after, being then in Orders and a Curate. Afterwards, upon an invitation, he was made Minister of Plymouth in Devonshire; where continuing to the great liking of the inhabitants, yet notwithstanding he left them, and went to Halifax in Yorkshire, where, as it seems, he was a Curate or Lecturer. He hath published, Various Sermons, as (1) The Christian's last day, is the best day, on 1 Thef. 4. 18. Lond. 1618. qu. (2) Hieron's last farewell; preached at Modbury in Devonsh. at the Funeral of Sam. Hieron, on 2 Tim. 4. 7. Lond. 1618. qu. (3) The good Man's refuge in affliction, on Psal. 40. 18. Lond. 1618. qu. (4) The true guide to glory; preached at Plymton-Mary in Devonsh. at the Funeral of the Lady Strode of Newingham, Widdow of Sir Will. Strode, on Psal. 73. 24. Lond. 1619. qu. (5) The good Mans privilege, on Rom. 8. 28. Lond. 1618. qu. (6) Joy of the upright Man, on Psal. 97. 11. lb. 1619. qu.

An Exposition on the second Epistle of S. Paul to Timothy, the first chapter, &c. Lond. 1625. qu. To which clar. was the Exposition of the second, and of other parts of Scripture, 1632. added.—Lond. 1632. fol. Among several Records in the Prerogative-office, I once saw the last Will (c) and Test. of one John Barlow Clerk, of Chiddingfold in Surrey, which was proved 26. May 1641. the Testator having some weeks before been dead, but whether this John Barlow be the same with the former John Barlow, who was the writer, I cannot justly say, nor whether he be the same with John Barlow M. of Arts, who in Sept. 1620. became Prebendary of Wivelscomb in the Church of Wells, on the resignation of Will. Barlow. The said John Barlow of Chiddingfold doth mention his Brethren, Edward, Raphe, Lawrence, William and Rob. Barlow.

FRANCIS GODWIN, a passing great lover of 610. venerable antiquity and of all good literature, Son of Thom. Godwin D. D. sometimes Bishop of B. and Wells, was born at Hannington in Northamptonshire, 4. of Q. Elizabeth, elected Student of Ch. Ch. in 1578. took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and became Rector of Samsford-Orcais in Somersetshire, Prebendary of S. Decuman in the Church of Wells, Residentiary there, and Vicar of Weston in Zoyland in the same County; which last he resigning, became Vicar of Bishops Lidiard in 1595. being then Sub-dean of Exeter, and about that time Doctor of Divinity. In the year 1601. he was nominated to the See of Landaff by Q. Elizabeth, to which being consecrated 22. Nov. the same year, fate there about 16 years, being a Bishoprick rather proportionated to his modesty than merits, because much impaired by one of his Predecessors named Anth. Kitchen alias Dunstan, whom I shall elsewhere mention; and therefore had liberty allowed to him to keep one of his Dignities in Commendam with it, and to take upon him the Rectory of Kingston-Seymour in the Dioc. of Wells. Afterwards for the respect that K. James had for him and his learning, he gave him the Bishoprick of Hereford, to which he was translated the tenth, and confirmed the 28. of Nov. an. 1617. and kept it to his dying day. He was a good Man, a grave Divine, skilful Mathematician, excellent Philosopher, pure Latinist, and incomparable Historian, being no less critical in Histories than the learned Selden. A person also he was so celebrated by many in his time, whether at home or beyond the Seas, that his memory cannot otherwise but be precious in succeeding ages, for his indefatigable pains and travel in collecting the succession of all the Bishops of England and Wales, since the first planting of the Gospel among the Christians, not pretermittin such of the British Church, or any that have been remembered by the care and diligence of preceeding writers, or had been kept in memory in any old monument or record. But as he hath in those his infinite labours endeavoured, out of a Puritanical peak, to bring a scandal on the ancient Cath. Bishops, and to advance the credit of those that were married since the Reformation (he being one of that number) for the credit of the Protest. cause; so comes one afterwards, by name W. Pryne, the most inveterate Enemy to the Bishops that ever appeared in our Horizon, who thence (from his labours) takes all (d) advantages, whether truth or not truth, to raise arguments against, or bring a scandal upon, the prelatical function. Take heed therefore of being partial, lest others light Candles from your Torch, and thereby in the end, you lend a helping hand for the cutting your own Throat. But to return: to give therefore our author Godwin a farther character (as I have received it from his (e) Son) he was esteemed a good preacher, and a strict liver, but so much employed in his studies and matters of Religion, that he was as 'twere a stranger to the world and the things thereof. His works are these.

Concio Lat. in Luc. 5. 3. Printed 1601. qu.

A Catalogue of the Bishops of England, since the first planting of Christian Religion in this Island, together with a brief History of their Lives and memorable actions, so near as can be gathered out of antiquity. Lond. 1601. qu. in an English character. For the writing of which, Q. Elizabeth immediately preferr'd him to the Bishoprick of Landaff. But this book being imperfect, for therein are omitted the Bishops of Bangor, S. Asaph, &c. the Author came out with another Edition, with many additions, an. 1615. qu. and thereunto joyned,

A Discourse concerning the first conversion of this Island of Britaine unto the Christian Religion — which is set before it, and Discourse concerning such Englishmen, as have either been, or in our histories reputed, Cardinals of the Church of Rome. — which is put at the end of it. But this Edition of 1615. with the said two additional discourses, being very full of faults, and not to be endured by any ordinary Reader, he put them forthwith into Latine, entitling them De Prasulibus Anglia commentarius, &c. Lond. 1616. qu. The Reader is now to understand, that after the first Edition of the said Catalogue of Bishops came out, in 1601. Sir John Harrington of Kelston near the City of Bath, Son of John Harrington of the said place Esquire, (who dying near to the Bishops Pallace of, and in, London, 1. Jul. 1582. was buried in the Church of S. Gregory near to Pauls Cathedral) and he the Son of Alex. Harrington, descended from a younger brother of the Harringtons of Brierley in Yorkshire, I say that the said Sir John Harrington sometimes an Eaton Scholar, and afterwards M. of Arts of Camb. being minded to obtain the favour of Prince Henry, wrote a discourse for his private use intit. A brief view of the state of the Church of England, as it stood in Qu. Elizabeths and King James's reign, to the year 1608. &c. This book is no more than a character and History of the Bishops of those times, and was written to the said Prince Henry, as an additional supply to the before mention'd Catalogue of Bishops of Dr. Fr. Godwin, upon occasion of that Proverb.

Henry the eighth pulled down Monks and their Cells.

Henry the ninth shall pull down Bishops and their Bells.

In the said book the author Harrington doth, by imitating his Godmother Qu. Elizabeth, shew himself a great enemy to married Bishops, especially to such that had been married twice, and many things therein are said of them, that were by no means fit to be published, being, as I have told you before, written only for private use. But so it was, that the book coming into the hands of one John Chetwind, (Grandson by a Daughter to the author,) a person deeply principled in presbyterian tenents, did, when the Press was open, print it at London 1653. in oct. And no sooner it was published, and came into the hands of many, but 'twas exceedingly clamour'd at by the Loyal and orthodox Clergy, condemning him much that published it. The truth is, that tho it did not give offence so much as Sir Anthony Weldons book intit. The Court and character of K. James, which was publish'd three years before, yet it was exceedingly pleasing to the Presbyterians and other Dissenters. And there is no doubt, but that if it had come into the hands of Prymme before mentioned, he would have raked out many things thence, and aggravated them to the highest, to furnish his Common Place book, when he was about to publish The Antipathy of the English Lordly Prelacy, &c. Our author Godwin wrote also,

Rerum Anglicarum Henrico VIII. Edwardo VI. & Maria regnantibus Annales. Lond. 1616. 28. 30. in qu. and fol. Translated into English by his Son Morgan Godwin Bac. of Arts of Ch. Ch. afterwards Bach. of the Civil Law of

The man in the Moon: or, a discourse of a Voyage thither. Lond. 1638. and 57. oct. written while he was a Student of Ch. Ch. under the feigned name of Domingo Gozales, and published, some years after the authors death, by E. M. (of Ch. Ch.) This book, (which hath before the title of it the picture of a man taken up from the top of a Mountain, by an Engine drawn up to the Moon by certain flying Birds) was censured to be as vain as the opinion of Copernicus, or the strange discourses of the Antipodes when first heard of. Yet since by a more inquisitive search in unravelling those intricacies, men of solid judgments have since found out a way to pick up that which may add a very considerable knowledge and advantage to posterity. Among which Dr. Wilkins, sometimes Bishop of Chester, composed by hints thence given, (as 'tis thought) a learned piece called, A discovery of a new World in the Moon.

Nuncius inanimatus. Utopiæ 1629. Lond. 1657. oct. Translated into English, by Anon. who intitles it The mysterious Messenger, unlocking the secrets of mens hearts. Printed with The man in the Moon. Lond. 1657. oct. in two sheets only. At length after our authors many labours, wherein he aimed mostly at the publick, he was taken with a long lingering disease, which bringing him to his desired haven, in the beginning of the year (in Apr. as it seems) 1633. sixteen hundred thirty and three, was buried in the Chancel of his Church of Whitborne, (which, with the mannour thereof, belongs to the Bishops of Hereford) situate and being about 14. miles distant from the said City. To the said See, after his death, was elected Dr. William Juxon, but before he was consecrated, he was translated to London, as I shall tell you elsewhere. That which I have forgot to let the Reader know, is, that whereas there goes under the name of the Bishop of Landaff, A treatise on the blessed Sacrament, printed in oct. and one or more Sermons on the sixth Psalm, they are not be attributed to Dr. Godwin, but to his predecessor, as I suppose in Landaff, called Gerv. Babbington. Sed de hoc quære.

HUGH HOLLAND, Son of Rob. Holland (by his Wife the Daughter of one Pain of Denbigh) Son of Lewys Holland, Son of Llewellyn, Son of Griffith Holland of Vaerdre, by Gwervilla his Wife, Daughter of Howell ap Madock, ap Jem, ap Einion, was born at Denbigh, bred in Westminster School, while Camden taught there, elected into Trinity coll. in Cambridge, an. 1589. of which he was afterwards Fellow. Thence he went to travel into Italy, and was at Rome, where his over free discourse betrayed his prudence. Thence he went to Jerusalem to do his devotions to the holy Sepulcher, and in his return touch'd at Constantinople, where he received a reprimand from the English Embassador, for the former freedom of his tongue. At his return into England, he retired to Oxon, spent some years there as a Sojournour for the sake of the publick Library, and, as I have been informed, had his Lodging in Ball. coll. which is partly the reason why I insert him here. He is observed by a Cambridge (a) man to have been no bad English, but an excellent Latine, Poet, and by some thought worthy to be mention'd by Spencer, Sidney and others, the chiefest of our English Poets. His works are these.

612. GEORGE ABBOT, younger brother to Rob. Abbot, whom I have mention'd under the year 1617. was born in the same Town and house where Robert was, bred also in the same School, under Mr. Franc. Taylor, entred a student in Ball. coll. 1578. aged 16. or thereabouts, elected Probationer-Fellow thereof. 29. Nov. 1583. being then Bacc. of Arts; and afterwards proceeding in that faculty, he entred into holy Orders, and became a celebrated preacher in the University. In 1597. he was licensed to proceed in Divinity, and in the same year being elected Master of University coll. gave up all right that he had to his Fellowship. In the latter end of 1599. he was made Dean of Winchester in the place of Dr. Martin Heton promoted to the See of Ely: Which Dignity he keeping till 1609. succeeded then Dr. Thom. Morton Dean of Glocester. On the third of Dec. 1609. he was consecrated Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, and had restitution (e) of the Temporalities belonging thereunto, made to him on the 29. of the same month. In Febr. following he was translated to London, and being elected soon after to the See of Canterbury, had the Kings (d) consent to it, 29. March 1610. On the 9. of Apr. 1611. he was (e) translated to the said See of Canterbury, and on the 4. of May following had restitution (f) made to him of the Temporalities belonging thereunto. On the 23. of June ensuing, he was (g) sworn a member of his Majesties Privy Council, and accordingly took his place. So that he having never been Rector or Vicar of a parish, and so consequently was in a manner ignorant of the trouble that attended the ministers of Gods word, was the cause (as some think) why he was harsh to them, and why he shew'd more respect to a Cloak, than a Calf-sock. He was a person pious and grave, and exemplary in his life and conversation. He was also a learned man, and had his erudition all of the old stamp. He was stiffly (*) principled in the doctrine of S. Augustine, which they who understand it not, call Calvinism, and therefore disliked by them who incline to the Massilian and Arminian Tenets. Those that well remember him have said, that tho he was a plausible preacher, yet his brother Robert was a greater Scholar, and tho an able Statesman, yet Robert was a deeper Divine. The things that he hath written are these, which shew him to be a man of parts, learning, vigilancy, and unwearied study, tho overwhelmed with business.

Afterwards removing to Croyden, he gave way to fate, in his Pallace there, on the fourth day of August, in sixteen hundred thirty and three, aged 71. 1633. Whereupon, according to his desire, his body was buried in the Chappel of our Lady, within Trinity Church in Guildford. Over his grave was soon after built a sumptuous Altar, or Table-monument, with his proportion in his Pontificalia lying thereon, supported by six pillars of the Dorick order, of black Marble standing on six pedestals of piled books, with a large inscription thereon, beginning thus. Sacrum memoria honoratiss. Archiepiscopus, &c. At the east end of the said Mon. is another large inscript. which begins also thus. Aeterna memoria Sacrum. Magni hic (Hospes) Hospitis monumenta vides, &c. Besides this Dr. George Abbot Archbishop of Canterbury, I find another of both his names to have been a writer also, but later in time; and author of The whole book of Job Paraphrased, &c. And of Brief notes upon the whole book of Psalms, &c. Lond. in qu. besides other things. But whether this George Abbot was ever of Oxford, I cannot as yet tell. A third George Abbot I find to have been elected Probationer Fellow of Merton coll. 1622. and admitted Bacc. of the Civil Law in 1630. but he hath written nothing, and nothing else do I know of him only that he was Son of Sir Maurice Abbot sometimes Lord Mayor of London, brother to Dr. Geo. Abbot Archb. of Canterbury.

HENRY CARY, Son of Sir Edw. Cary of Aldenham and Berchamsted in Hertfordshire Knight, Master of the Jewel house to Q. Elizabeth and K. James, by Katherine his Wife, Daughter of Sir Hen. Knevet Knight, was born in that County, and at about 16 years of age was sent to obtain Academical learning in this University, particularly, as it seems, to Exeter coll. where by the help of a good Tutor, and extraordinary parts, he became a most accomplished Gentleman. 'Tis said (b) that during his stay in the University of Oxford, his Chamber was the rendezvous of all the eminent Wits, Divines, Philosophers, Lawyers, Historians, and Politicians of that time, but how true it is, seeing Henry was then a young man and not graduated, I cannot in the least perceive. Had those things been spoken of Lucius Cary his Son, who retired several times to, and took commons in, Exeter coll. while his Brother Lorenzo studied therein 1628. and after, I should have rather believed it. But let the matter rest as 'tis: Sure I am, that after Hen. Cary had left the University where he had obtained a celebrated name, he was introduced into the Royal Court, was made Knight of the Bath at the creation of Charles Prince of Wales, Comptroller of his Majesties Household, one of his Privy Council, Lord Deputy of Ireland, an. 1622. and about the same time Viscount Falkland in Scotland, being then in much esteem by that King for his great abilities and experience in state affairs. He wrote several things, but not printed, and is supposed to be author of,

The History of the most unfortunate Prince K. Edw. 2. with choice political observations on him and his unhappy favourites, Gaveston and Spencer: containing several passages of those times not found in other Historians. Lond.

1680. oct. Which book being found among the Papers of the said Henry Visc. Falkland, was published therefore as his, when the Press was open for all such books that could make any thing against the then Government, with a Preface to the Reader patch'd up from very inconsiderable authors, by Sir J. H. as is supposed. The Reader is to know that in 1628. was published at Lond. in oct. an historical Poem intit. The deplorable life and death of Edward the Second K. of England, together with the downfall, &c. written by one Rich. Hubert: which Poem being printed without the knowledge of the author, and so consequently full of faults and not according to his mind, a true copy was printed at Lond. in the year following in oct. bearing this title, The History of Edw. 2. surnamed Carnarvon one of our English Kings: together with the fatal downfall of his two unfortunate Favourites, Gaveston and Spencer. Published by the authors own copy, with the Addition of some other observations both of use and ornament, written by his elder Brother Sir Franc. Hubert (or Hobert) Knight. As for Henry Lord Falkland he gave way to fate, occasioned by the breaking of his Leg on a stand in Theobald's Park, in Sept. or Octob. 1633. in sixteen hundred thirty and three, but where he was buried, I cannot tell. He left behind him a Son named Lucius Cary begotten on the body of his Wife Elizabeth, sole Daughter and Heir of Sir Laurence Tanfield L. Chief Baron of the Exchequer, by whom he had the Mannor of Great Tew, the Priory, with the Rectory and Demesnes, of Burford, in Oxfordshire, and other Lands. Whether this Lucius was born at Burford, (as some think he was,) the publick Register of that place, which commences about the beginning of the Reign of K. Jam. 1. takes no notice of it: However that he was mostly nursed there by a wet and dry Nurse, the Ancients of that Town, who remember their names, have some years since informed me. So that the place of his Nativity being yet doubtful to me, I must tell you that when his Father became Lord Deputy of Ireland, he carried his Son Lucius then a wild Youth with him into that Country, where he caused him to be educated in Academical learning in Trinity coll. near to Dublin, and afterwards sent him to travel under the tutelage and protection of a discreet person, who making a very great reformation in him, as to life, manners, and learning, Lucius had ever after a great respect and veneration for him. Upon his return he retired several times to Oxon to enlarge that learning, which he had acquir'd, as I shall anon tell you. His first years of reason were spent in Poetry and polite learning, into the first of which he made divers plausible fallies, which caused him therefore to be admired by the Poets of those times, particularly, first by Ben. Johnson, who hath an Epigram on him in his Underwood, in the second vol. of his works. 2. By Edm. Waller of Beconsfield, who highly (a) extols his worth and admirable parts; and, 3. By Sir John Suckling, who afterwards brought him into his Poem, called, (b) The Session of Poets, thus,

He was of late so gone with Divinity,
That he had almost forgot his Poetry,
Though to say the truth (and Apollo did know it)
He might have been both his Priest and his Poet.

Much about the time of his Fathers death, he became one of the Gent. of his Majesty's Privy Chamber, had frequent retirements to Great Tew, and sometimes to Oxon (as he had done very frequently before his Marriage) for the company of, and conversation with, learned and witty men. Among whom were Will. Chillingworth of Trinity coll. John Earle and Hugh Cressy of Merton coll. George Aglionby of Ch. Ch. Charles Gataker of Pembroke coll. (Son of Thom. Gataker of Redriff or Riddish near to London,) who, I think, was afterwards his Chaplain, Thom. Triplet a very witty man of Ch. Ch. and others. He had also intimate acquaintance with George Sandys the Poet, who usually lived at Caswell, near to Witney, in the house of Sir Franc. Wenman, who married his Sister; whose company was usually frequented, when Lucius retired to his house at Burford. In 1639. he was put in Commission for his Majesty in the expedition against the Scots, and upon his safe return thence, Abr. Cowley the Prince of Poets, and a great admirer of him, hath an excellent (c) copy of verses, wherein are several things honourably mentioned of him and his learning. In the beginning of the year 1640. he was chosen a Member of the House of Commons, for Newport in the Isle of Wight, to serve in that Parliament that began at Westminster on the 13. of Apr. the same year, and again for the same place for that Parliament that began there also 3. Nov. following: In which last he shewed himself a great reformer of divers abuses, and a stickler for the Commons against the Kings Prerogative, and Bishops. But being taken off from those proceedings by being made one of the Secretaries of State, he ever after adher'd to his Majesty, was with him at York in 1642. and had a hand in most of those Declarations published by his Majesty's special command in all places in England, to shew the reason of his intentions and proceedings. Afterwards he was a constant follower of his Majesty, was with him at Edg-hill fight, and afterwards at Oxon, where he discharged his office with a great deal of prudence. While he lived, and especially after his death, he was esteemed by many a Soci-nian, (having been, as 'tis said, strengthened in that opinion by Chillingworth,) and I know not what; but one (d) that knew him very well, doth (tho a zealous Papist) clear him from being guilty of any such matter, and tells us withal, that he was the greatest ornament to our Nation that the last age produced. Another (e) also, who had been intimate with him, saith, that he was the envy of this age, and will be the wonder of the next, that he honoured and served his Creator in the days of his youth,—that he was not a Candidate of Atheism, &c. The truth is, all that knew the said Lucius L. Falkland, were fully possessed with opinions to the contrary, and have usually said, that he was a sincere Christian, that he always led a virtuous life, and despised all worldly things in comparison of necessary divine truth, that he was a lover of veracity and sincerity, and what not, for the accomplishment of a religious man. As for his parts, which speak him better than any Elogy, they were incomparable, and needed no supplies of industry. His answers were quick and sudden, and tho he had a great deal of true worth treasured up in him, yet he had much of modesty withal. So that all these things put together, (to which more might be added,) his memory ought to be precious, especially with such, who have any esteem for virtue, heroical fidelity to their Prince, or to incomparable learning. Among several things of his that are printed, are, (1) A speech in Parliament concerning Uniformity. (2) Sp. concerning ill Counsellours; both spoken in 1640. (3) Sp. about Ship-money 5. Dec. 1640. (4) Sp. concerning John Lord Finch, lately L. Keeper, and the Judges. (5) Sp. to the Lords of the upper House, after the reading of the Articles against John L. Finch 14. Jan. 1640. (6) Sp. concerning Episcopacy 9. Feb. 1640, the beginning of which is Mr. Speaker, he is a great stranger in Israel, &c. Which Sp. is said (f) by Dr. P. Heylyn to be a bitter Speech against the Bishops, upon which account it is much used and (g) quoted by the Presbyterians. I have seen another Speech also intit. A draught of a Speech concerning Episcopacy, found among the L. Falklands papers since his death, written with his own hand. Oxon. 1644. in 1 sh. in qu. The beginning of which is Mr. Speaker, whosoever desires this total change, &c. Also another thing of his intit. A discourse concerning Episcopacy. Lond. 1660. qu. Published then I presume by one who was not a Friend to Bishops, being the same, I think, that was by Dr. Heylyn taken to be a bitter Speech against them. He hath also written, A discourse of the infallibility of the Church of Rome, several times printed in qu. Whereupon an answer to it being made, the Lord came out with a reply. All published together by Tho. Triplet sometimes Student of Ch. Ch. afterwards D. of D. and Prebendary of Westminster, printed at London 1651. qu. with a dedicatory epistle before them. See more in Dr. Hen. Hammond under the year 1660. But before Triplets edition, another was put out by Anon. to which J. P. put a Preface to it, which is omitted in that of Triplet. See more in Hugh Cressy, under the year 1674. By this Discourse of infallibility it is apparent that the L. Falkland had framed a judgment touching the R. Cath. Church out of certain Cath. writers, who represented it too disadvantageously, and not with such qualifications as the Church herself has done. He also wrote, An answer to a letter of Mr. Walt. Mountague, who justifies his change of Religion, an.

At length this learned author being with his Majesty King Ch. 1. at Newbury in Berks. when he was about to fight the Rebels, he called for a clean shirt in the morning before the encounter began; and being asked the reason for it, he answered that if he was slain in the Battle they should not find his body in foul linnen. Whereupon his friends endeavouring to dissuade him from going into the fight, as having no call to it, or that he was a military Officer, he said he was weary of the times and foresaw much misery to his own Country, and did believe he should be out of it before night. Into the Battle therefore he did go, notwithstanding all perswasions to the contrary, and was there slain, 20 Sept. 1643. much lamented as a great Parliamentarian (b) faith of all that knew him, being a Gentleman of great parts, ingenuity and honour, courteous and just to all, and a passionate promoter of all endeavours of Peace betwixt the King and Parliament. Whether the Church of England lost a friend by his death, some have doubted: Sure it is, learning it self had a loss, and one of the greatest (as many Clergymen have said) that ever hapned in that or in the age before. His body was conveyed to Oxon, and afterwards to Great Tew before mention'd, where it was buried in the Church without being carried into his house there. Over his grave, tho there be not yet any memory extant, yet Sir Franc. Wortley of Wortley in York-shire Knight and Baronet, an admirer of his virtues and learning, who styles him Musarum militumque patronus hath bestowed an Epitaph and an Elegy on him, in his book intit. Characters and Elegies, printed 1646. in qu. His person was little and of no great strength, his hair blackish and somewhat flaggy, and his eye black and quick. He left behind him a most disconsolate Widdow named Letice, the Daughter of Sir Rich. Morison of Tooley-Park in Leicester-shire Knight, the most devout, pious and virtuous woman of the time she lived in, who dying about the 35. year of her age, was buried by her husband. in Feb. 1646. Soon after was composed a book by one John Duncon a sequestred Divine intit. The returns of spiritual comfort and grief in a devout soul. Represented (by intercourse of Letters) to the right honourable the Lady Letice Viscountess Falkland, in her life-time: And exemplified in the holy life and death of the said honourable Lady, &c. Lond. 1648. &c. oct. To the said book, if it may be had, I refer the Reader, wherein he may soon perceive the unspeakable piety of the woman, and the great command of her Pen. By her husband Lucius L. Falkland, she had several children, of which the eldest named Lucius became a Nobleman of Ch. Ch. in the latter end of the year (in Lent time) 1646. being then a young man of great hopes, but died soon after, at Paris as I have heard. The next was Henry, not educated in Academical learning, but so exceeding wild and extravagant, that he sold his Fathers incomparable Library for a Horse and a Mare, as I have been informed by Sir J. H. who married his Widdow. Afterwards he took up, and prov'd a man of parts, (which might have been much advantaged if he had submitted himself to education) was elected one of the Knights for Oxfordshire, to serve in that Parliament (called Richards Parliament) that began at Westminster 27 Jan. 1658. Burgess for the City of Oxon, for that called the Healing Parliament, which began 25 Apr. 1660. and a Knight again for the said County to serve in the Parliament that began in May in the year following; and at length by his Majesties favour, he was made about that time Lord Lieutenant of Oxfordshire. He died 2 Apr. 1663. aged 29. or thereabouts, and was buried by the graves of his Father and Mother, leaving then behind him issue (by Rachel his Wife Dau. of Sir Anth. Hungerford of Black-bourton in Oxfordshire Kt.) a Son named Anthony, now L. Falkland, Treasurer, Paymaster to the Navy during the reign of K. Jam. 2. a person of great parts and worth.

614 HENRY FERRERS, Son and heir of Edw. Ferrers of Baldesley-Clynton in Warwickshire Esq; was born in that County, became a Student in this University (in Hart hall as it seems) in the beginning of the reign of Qu. Elizabeth, but whether he took a degree it doth not appear. Afterwards he retired to his Patrimony, which was considerable, and prosecuting his natural Genie to the study of Heraldry, Genealogies, and Antiquities, became highly valued for his eminent knowledge in them; whereby he did not only give a fair lustre to his ancient and noble family, (whereof he was no small ornament) but also to the County of his nativity. He was well known to, and respected by the Learned Camden, who, in his Discourse of the antiquity of the City of Coventry in Warwickshire doth make this honorable mention of him. — 'Thus much of Coventry: yet have you not all this of me, but (willingly to acknowledge by whom I have profited) of Henry Ferrers of Bal-desley, a man both for parentage, and for knowledge of antiquity very commendable, and my special friend: who, both in this place, and also elsewhere, hath at all times courteously shewed me the right way when I was out, and from his Candle, as it were hath lightened mine. What this Mr. Ferrers hath published, I know not, sure I am that he made several volums of choice collections (one of which in fol. containing Pedegrees, I have seen in the Sheldonian Library, now in that of the college of Arms) from which, but chiefly from those of Sir Sim. Archer of Umberlade in the parish of Tamworth in Warwickshire, a person naturally qualified with a great affection to Antiquities, Will. Dugdale Gent. (afterwards a Knight) laid a large foundation of that elaborate work (which is his Master-piece) intit. The Antiquities of Warwickshire illustrated, &c. Lond. 1656. fol. After Sir Will. Dugdales death several of Mr. Ferrers collections that had come into his hands were repositied in the Ashmolean Museum: see the book marked with Z. He had also in his younger days a good faculty in Poetry, some of which I have seen scattered in divers books printed in the reign of Qu. Elizabeth. At length dying on the tenth day of Oct. in sixteen hundred thirty and three, aged 84. was 1633 (*) buried in the middle of the Chancel belonging to the Church of Baldesley-Clynton before mentioned, leaving behind him the character of a well bred Gent. a good neighbour and an honest man.

WILLIAM FOSTER, a Londoner born, became 615 a Student in S. Johns coll. in Mich. Term 1609. aged 18. afterwards M. of A. Chaplain to Rob. L. Dormer E. of Carnarvan, and Parson of a little Town called Hedgley near to Beconsfield in Bucks. He hath published, Sermon on Rom. 6. 12.—printed 1629. qu.

Hoplocrisma-Spongia: Or a Sponge to wipe away the weapon salve. Wherein is proved that the cure taken up among us, by applying the Salve to the weapon, is magical and unlawful. Lond. 1631. qu. In the compofure of which book he had some light from Johannes Robertia Jesuit, and D. of D. who, because some Protestants practice this and characterical cures (which notwithstanding are more frequent among Roman Catholics) he therefore calls them Magi-Galvinists, Characterists, &c. He makes that generally in them all, doctrinal, which is but in some few personally practiced. But our author Foster, tho he hath written rationally, and in his book hath shew'd great reading, yet he hath been answered, not without some scorn, by Rob. Fludd Doctor of Physick, as I shall tell you elsewhere. This Will. Foster lived some years after the publication of his Sponge, but when he died, or what other things he hath extant, I cannot yet tell.

EDWARD WESTON, Son of Will. Weston 616 sometimes of Linc. coll. (afterwards one of the Society of Lincolns Inn) by his Wife, Daughter of John Story LL. D. (of whom I have made mention under the year 1571.) was born in London and at about 12 or 13 years of age, an. 1578. was sent to the said coll. of Lincoln, where he had a Tutor that taught him Grammar and Logick for a time. Afterwards being taken thence by his Parents, he was put under the tuition of Dr. Joh. Case, who, with licence from the University, read to Scholars Logick and Philosophy in his house in S. Mar. Magdalens parish. Under him he profited in several sorts of learning to a miracle, became a good Disputant, and very well read in Philosophical authors. But his Parents, who were R. Catholics, taking him away from his conversation with the Muses, after he had spent at least 5 years in Oxon. without the taking any degrees, was sent into France, where for a short time he settled in the English coll. at Rheims. Thence he went to the English coll. at Rome, where, partly in Philosophy, and partly in Divinity, he spent six years; and at length took the degree of Doctor of Div. in the University of Monreale in Italy. Soon after, he returned to Rhemes, where remaining for some time, he went to Doway, and in the English coll. there taught and professed Divinity for about 10. years. Afterwards he went into England to preach the word of God, to administer to the distressed Catholics, and to gain Souls to his Religion, where he was living in 1611. But his fame for the exquisite writings that he published gaining him a great name, was called thence and made Canon of the collegiat Church of S. Mary at Bruges in Flanders, which he kept till the time of his death. He hath written, Justificationes de triplici hominis officio, ex notione ipsius naturalis, morali, ac Theologica, in 3. libris. Antw. 1602. qu. In the Preface to which, the author having utter'd several matters against the learned Dr. Joh. Rainolds, which were by the Protestants taken for great reproaches, were animadverted upon by Wake (a) the Orator of Oxon in these words—Eat autem Westonus, &c. 'Let yet Weston that lewd and shameless Rabshake, belch out what reproaches he pleaseth against him, (Rainolds) and charge him not only with stupid dulness, but also that he counterfeited sickness, and pretended only to a disease, to preserve his credit, &c. Notwithstanding which, this Weston himself (so like his (b) Uncle in his ill conditions and ignominious flight) when he challenged all the Heads of the University and branded them for impure, only for that some of them had entred into the state of Matrimony, could not find any one act out of Dr. Joh. Rainolds in all his life to blemish him withal, &c.

Juris pontificii sanctuarium. printed 1613. in oct. This I have not yet seen.

Theatrum vite civilis ac sacra: sive de moribus reipub. christiana commentaria in quinque libros distributa. Brugis Flandr. 1626. fol.

Jesu Christi D. nostri concuscationes, simulque eorum vi. dictorum, factorumque quarundam personarum, eodem Christo presente, in Evangelicâ historia recensitorum enarrationes, &c. Antw. 1631. fol. What other things he hath published I know not, nor any thing else of him, only that he was living in sixteen hundred thirty and three, as I have been informed by Franc. à S. Clara, who told me also that he died and was buried at Bruges in Flanders. Besides this Edw. Weston, I find one Will. Weston born at Maidstone in Kent, who was contemporary with Edm. Campian the Jesuit in the University of Oxon. which place he leaving, he went beyond the Seas, entred (c) into the Society of Jesus 1571. aged 25. and after Jasp. Heywoods departure out of England, he was sent thither by Father Parsons from Paris to be his substitute in the place of Provincial, and how he behaved himself in that Office, let another (d) tell you. In 1587. he was taken, and imprisoned in Witch Castle, with others, where I find (e) him to be the prime promoter and carrier on of the faction between the Seculars and Jesuits: see more in Christop. Bagshaw under the year 1625. This Will. Weston is much noted in English Story by the name of Father Edmonds alias Weston, especially upon the publication of a book written by Sam. Harsnet afterwards Archb. of York, intit. A declaration of egregious popish impostures, to withdraw the hearts of her Majesties Subjects from their allegiance, &c. under the pretence of casting out devils, practised by Edmonds alias Weston a Jesuit, &c. Lond. 1603. qu. He died 9 Apr. 1615. leaving then behind him a precious name among the Brethren of his Order. This person tho' evilly treated and disgracefully mentioned by the Secular Priests and certain Protestant writers, yet Father Parsons in his Brief Apology (f) or defence of the Catholick Ecclesiastical Hierarchie, &c. speaks very honourably of him as to his pious and mortified way of living.

WILLIAM NOY, Son of Will. Noy of S. Burian in Cornwall Gent. by Philippa his Wife, was born there, became a sojourner of Exeter coll. in 1593. aged 16. where continuing a severe Student about 3 years, left the University without a degree, went to Linc. Inn, studied the Common Law, and by his unwearied industry and mowing day and night he became eminent in his profession. In the latter end of the reign of K. Jam. 1. he was chose a Burgess for Helston in his own Country to sit in that Parliament that began at Westminster 30. Jan. 1620. and for that which began there 19. Feb. 1623. In both which he shewed himself a professed enemy to the Kings prerogative. In 1625. he was elected a Burgess for S. Ives to sit in that Parliament, which began at Westminster 6. Feb. wherein, as in another following, shewing himself an enemy as before, he was at length diverted from his proceedings by being made Attorney General, an. 1631. He was as famous a Lawyer as ever this Kingdom bred, as a certain author (g) informs us, who adds that 'formerly he was a great Patriot, and the only searcher of Precedents for the Parliaments: By which he grew so cunning, as he understood all the shifts which former kings had used to get moneys with. This man the K. sent for, told him, he would make him his Attorney. Noy, like a true cynick as he was, did, for that time go away, not returning to the King so much as the civility of thanks, nor indeed, was it worth his thanks, 'I am sure he was not worthy of ours. For, after the Court solicitings had bewitched him, to become the Kings, he grew the most hateful man that ever lived, &c. he having been as great a deluge to this Realm, as the flood was to the whole world: For he swept away all our privileges, and in truth hath been the cause of all these miseries this Kingdom hath since been ingulphed; whether you consider our Religion (he being a great Papist, if not an Atheist, and the protector of all Papists, and the raiser of them up unto that boldness they were now grown unto) or if you consider our Estates and Liberties, which were impoverished and enthralled by multitudes of Papists and illegal ways, which this Monster was the sole author of, &c. He was a man passing (a) humorous, of cynical rusticity, a most indefatigable plodder, and searcher of ancient Records, whereby he became an eminent instrument of good and ill to the Kings Prerogative. His apprehension (as 'tis said) was quick and clear, his judgment methodical and solid, his memory strong, his curiosity deep and searching, his temper patient and cautious, all tempered with an honest bluntness, far from Court insinuation. He left behind him several things fit for the Press, and under his name were these books afterwards published.

A Treatise of the principal grounds and maxims of the Laws of England, Lond. 1641. qu. Afterwards printed in oct. and tw.

Perfect conveyancer: or several select and choice Precedents. Lond. 1655. qu. 2d edit. collected partly by Will. Noy, and partly by Sir Rob. Hendon Knight, sometimes one of the Barons of the Exchequer, Rob. Mason sometimes Recorder of London, and Henry Fleetwood, formerly Reader of Greys Inn.

Reports and cases in the time of Qu. Elizabeth, K. James and King Charles 1. containing the most excellent exceptions for all manner of Declarations, Pleadings, and Demurs, exactly examined and laid down. London. 1656. fol.

The compleat Lawyer: or a Treatise concerning Tenures and Estates in Lands of inheritance for life and other hereditaments, and chattels real and personal, &c. Lond. 1661. and 74. in oct. with his picture before it.

Arguments of Law and Speeches—He also left behind him several choice collections that he had made from the Records in the Tower of London, reduced into two large paper books of his own hand-writing. One contained collections concerning the Kings maintaining his Naval power according to the practice of his Ancestors; and the other about the privileges and jurisdiction of ecclesiastical Courts. Dr. Tho. James of Oxon. when he compiled his Manuduction or Introduction unto Divinity, printed 1625. he afterwards acknowledged himself (b) beholding to the Extracts out of the Tower, fairly and largely transcribed (as he saith) by the said Mr. Noy a great Antiquary of Law. Which extracts, I presume, are the same with those before mention'd. At length his body being much out of Order by continual toying and drudging, he retired to Tunbridge-wells to gain health in the month of July, but the waters effecting nothing; he died there, on Saturday the 9. of Aug. following, in sixteen hundred thirty and four, whereupon his body being conveyed to New Brentford in Middlesex, was privately buried on the Munday following under the communion table of the Chancel of the Church there. Over his grave was a stone soon after laid, with a brasse plate fastned thereunto, and an inscription thereon, but soon after defaced. The next day after his departure, the news of it came to Dr. Land Archb. of Canterbury then at Croydon, who thereupon made (c) this observation of him in his Diary. I have lost a dear friend of him, and the Church the greatest she had of his condition since she needed any such. His body being opened after his decease, his heart was found shrivel'd like a leather penny Purse, nor were his Lungs right, which caused several conjectures by the Puritans. But that which was most observable after his death, was his Will, (d) dated 3 June 1634. at which all the world wondred, because the maker thereof was accounted a great Clerk in the Law; for therein, after he had bequeathed to his Son Humphrey an hundred marks per an. to be paid out of his tenements in the hundred of Pyder in Cornwall, he concludes, & reliqua omnia, &c. and the rest of all my Lands, Goods, &c. I leave to my Son Edward Noy, whom I make my Executor, to be consumed and scattered about, nec de eo melius speravi, &c. But Edward lived not long to enjoy the estate, for within two years after, he was slain in a Duel in France, by one Captain Byron, who escaped scot-free and had his pardon, as Will. Prynn an inveterate enemy to Will. Noy his Father (e) reports. As his Majesty was somewhat troubled at his loss, and the Clergy more, so the generality of the Commons rejoiced. The Vintners drank carousies, in hopes to drefs meat again and sell Tobacco, Beer, &c. which by a sudden capricio, Noy restrained them from. The Players also for whom he had done no kindness, did, the next Term after his decease, make him the subject of a merry Comedy, stiled A projector lately dead, &c. He had his humours as well as other men, but certainly he was a solid rational man, and tho no great Orator, yet he was a profound Lawyer, and none more better vers'd in Records than he. In his place of Attorney General succeeded Sir Joh. Banks, and the next year Sir Rob. Heath being removed from the Ch. Justice of the Kings Bench for bribery, Sir John Finch came into play, whereupon these verses were made.

Noyes Flood is gone
The Banks appear,
Heath is shorn down
And Finch sings there.

THOMAS HICKS, or Hyckes, Son of Francis Hicks, mention'd under the year 1630, was born at Shipson in the parish of Tredington in Worcester-shire, became a Student in Balliol coll. in Mich-Term, an. 1616. aged 17. or thereabouts, took the degrees in Arts, and at length by the favour of Doctor Duppa Dean of Christs Church became one of the Chaplains or Petticanons of that House, about 1628. He hath written,

The life of Lucian, gathered out of his own writings Oxon. 1634. qu. Which life is set before his Fathers translation of certain dialogues of that author.

Notes and illustrations upon each dialogue, and book of Lucian, &c.—Besides his great skill in the Greek tongue, he was esteemed among the Academians a good Poet, and an excellent Limner: And without doubt had not death cut him off in the prime of his years on the sixteenth day of December, in sixteen hundred thirty and four, he might have benefited the Commonwealth of learning with other matters. He died in Christ Church and was buried in the Cathedral there; which is all I yet know of him, only that Dr. J. F. the publisher of Hist. & Antiq. Oxon. committed a grand mistake of him in that book lib. 2. p. 283. b. Another of both his names was author of Seager, Qu. 84. (e) See at the end, in an append. to a book intit. A Divine Tragedy lately acted, or a collection of sundry memorable examples, &c. Printed beyond Sea, an. 1636. qu.

ARTHUR PITS, or Pitsus as he writes himself, ⁶¹⁹ a younger Son of Arthur Pitts Bach. of Law, sometimes Fellow of Alls. coll. afterwards Registry of the Diocess and Achdeaconry of Oxford, and Impropiator of Eisleigh near to, and in the County of Oxon. was born at Eisleigh, educated for a time either in Alls. or Brasnose coll. or in both successively, having been a Chorister of the first as it seems, but before he took a degree he left the University, Country, and Relations, went to Doway, spent some time in the English coll. there, return'd into his Country, was taken and imprison'd: but at length being releas'd and ship'd with other Priests and Jesuits at Tower-Wharf, at the Queens charge in Febr. 1584. was set on shoar in Normandy. Whereupon retiring to Doway passed a course in Divinity, became Doctor of that faculty, and at length was made Chancellour to the Cardinal of Loraine, being then a person much in esteem for his great knowledge in the supream faculty. He hath written,

In quatuor Jesu Christi Evangelia & Acta Apostolorum commentarius. Duac. 1636. in a thick quarto. Which being all that he hath written, as I suppose, was published after his death by the English Benedictines at Doway, as one of them hath told me. At length Doctor Pitts coming into England for health sake, left his preferment beyond the Seas, and settled in the house of a R. Catholick, named Stoner of Blommts Court near to Henley in Oxfordshire, a younger family of those of Stoner near to Wallington: where dying about sixteen hundred thirty and four, was buried in the Church of Rotherfield Pipard, commonly called Pepper near to Henley before mention'd, as I have been informed by an antient Catholick Gentlewoman, who was born within a mile of, and well acquainted with, him: yet in the register of that Church his own name appears not. His Father Art. Pitts died at Eisleigh in 1579. and was buried on the north side of the Chancel there, leaving a fair estate behind him to be enjoyed by four Sons then living, viz. Robert, Thomas, Arthur and Philip.

ROBERT JOHNSON, a Londoner born, became ⁶²⁰ a Student in Magd. coll. an. 1595. and in the year after Demy, aged 18. took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being compleated in 1601. Afterwards he entred into the sacred function, became one of his Majesties Chaplains in Ordinary, and Bach. of Divinity; which is all I know of him, only that he published,

The way to glory, or the preaching of the Gospel is the ordinary means of our Salvation, Sermon in St. Pauls Cathedral 10. Decemb. 1620. on 2 Thef. 2. 14. London 1621. qu.

(3) Serm. on 1 Cor. 9. 14. London 1633. and a fourth, if I mistake not, intit. Dauids Teacher, on Psal. 19. 30.—Printed 1609. Besides this Robert Johnson, hath been several of both his names that have been writers, as (1) Robert Johnson Gent. author of Essaies. Lond. 1607. (oct.) (dedicated to Will. Earl of Pembroke) whom I cannot say to be the same with Rob. Johnson of Qu. coll. born in the County of Durham, and Bach. of Arts 1599. (2) Rob. Johnson of York one of the Assembly of Divines, an. 1643. author of several Sermons preached before the members of the Long Parliament, as one intit. Lux & Lex, or the light of the Law of Jacobs house, Fast Sermon. before the H. of Com. 31. 621. JOHN DAVIES, the fourth person of both his names, whom I have mentioned among these writers, was a Denbighshire man born, bred up at the feet of Will. Morgan, (afterwards B. of S. Asaph) became a Student in Jesus coll. in 1589, took one degree in Arts four years after, left the University without completing it by Determination, studied Divinity in the Country, and in the year 1608. was admitted to the reading of the Sentences as a member of Linc. coll. having been fourteen years a Minister of Gods Word, and dispensed with for not ruling in Arts. But before that time he was Rector of Mallory, or Maynillory in Merionethshire, (which occasioned, as I presume, Sir Leoline Jenkins to tell me that he was that Countryman born) and afterwards a Canon of S. Asaph by the gift of Doctor Parry B. thereof, (to whom he was Chaplain) and a Dignitary, if I mistake not, in some other Church. In 1616. he proceeded in his faculty, as a member of the said coll. of Lincoln, being then esteemed by the Academicians well vers'd in the History and Antiquities of his own Nation, and in the Greek and Hebrew Languages, a most exact Critick, an indefatigable searcher into antient Scripts, and well acquainted with curious and rare authors. His works are,

I have been informed that in the Library of MSS. sometimes belonging to Rob. Vaughan of Hengwrt in Merionethshire, is a Welsh Dictionary that contains about two thousand words more than in the former.

(1620.) and also translated into the same language (which he had studied at vacant hours for thirty years) the book of Resolution, written by Rob. Persons a Jesuit. On the first of Feb. 1626. was one John Davies a Doctors Son admitted Bac. of Arts, as a member of Glouc. hall, which I take to be Son of Doctor John Davies before mention'd, at which time Sir John Davies the Mathematician had a Son of both his names, who was Gent. Com. of that house.

622. ROBERT GOMERSALL, the eldest Son of an Esquire, was born in London, applied his muse to Academical Literature in Ch. Ch. 1614. aged 14 of which house he was afterwards made a Student, and at about seven years standing taking the degree of M. of A. he entered into holy Orders, and became a very florid preacher in the University. In 1628. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, at which time he was esteemed excellent for Dramatick Poësie, especially upon his publishing of,

The Tragedy of Ludov. Sforza Duke of Millan. Lond. 1628. oct. Dedic. to Mr. Fr. Hyde of Ch. Ch. Proctor of the University. He wrote also Sermons on 1 Pet. 2. 13, 14, 15, 16. London 1634. Dedicated to Sir John Strangways of Melbury in Dorsetshire, who seemed to be a favourer of the authors studies.

Clar. 1634. Poems—Lond. 1638. oct. They were before published, and had then (1638.) a new title put to them. One Rob. Gomersall, who seems to be a Devonian born, died 1646. leaving then by his Will (*) 1000 l. to his Son Robert, which Son perhaps may be the writer before mentioned.

THOMAS INGMETHORP, a Worcestershire man born, was matriculated as a member of Braunose coll. in the latter end of May 1581. aged 19. went away without any Degree confer'd upon him, and was afterwards made Rector of Great Stainton, or Stainton in that Street in the Bishoprick of Durham, being then accounted eminent for the Hebrew tongue, and for his admirable methods in Pedagogy; which employment he practised not only before he came to Stainton, but also afterwards in his private house there among 12 or 14 boys, till almost to the time of his death. He hath published, Several Sermons, as (1) Serm. on 1 Joh. chap. 2. ver. 3, 4, 5, 6. Oxon. 1598. oct. (2) Sermon upon the words of Saint Paul, Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, Rom. 13. 1. wherein the Popes Sovereignty over Princes is briefly, but sufficiently refuted, &c. London 1619. quarto; and others which I have not yet seen.

A short Catechism for young children to learn, by Law authorized, &c. Lond. 1633. oct.

Catechism in English and Hebrew—printed in octavo. This I have not seen, nor any thing else, besides what is before set down. He died and was buried at Stainton before mention'd, but when, I know not. Clar. 1634.

MILES SANDYS, a Knights Son, was born in Worcestershire, became a Gent. Com. of Hart hall in the beginning of the year 1615. aged 15, but put under the tuition of Dr. Rich. Aspley, Fellow (afterwards Warden) of Allsouls college, by whose endeavours this our author became afterwards a compleat Gentleman. He departed without a degree, tho much deserving of one, and afterwards had the degree of Knighthood confer'd upon him by his Majesty some years after. He hath written, Prudence, the first of the four Cardinal virtues. Lond. 1634. in tw. 'Tis the first part of a small work written by him, chiefly concerning the Four Cardinal virtues, especially Prudence; wherein is much reading shew'd. What other parts followed I know not, nor any thing else of the author. One Sir Miles Sandys of Wilberion in Cambridgeshire Knight and Baronet, third Son of Edwyn Archbishop of York, died in the latter end of 1644. leaving then behind him a Son called Sir Miles Sandys Knight and Baronet: Whether this last be the same with the writer before mention'd I know not. Clar. 1634.

LEONARD DIGGES, Son of Tho. Digges mentioned under the year 1574. by Anne his Wife, Daughter of Sir Warham St. Leodgar Knight, was born in London, became a Commoner of Univ. coll. in the beginning of the year 1603. aged 15. took the degree of Bac. of Arts, retired to the great City for the present, afterwards travelled into several Countries, and became an accomplished person. Some years after his return he retired to his coll. again, and upon his supplication made to the venerable Convocation, he was, in consideration that he had spent (*) many years in good letters in transmarine Universities, actually created M. of A. in 1626. He was esteemed by those that knew him in Univ. coll. a great Master of the English language, a perfect understander of the French and Spanish, a good Poet and no mean Orator. He hath translated out of Spanish into English a Romance called Gerardo the unfortunate Spaniard, in two parts. Lond. 1622. qu. written by Don Goncalo de Cespedes: And from Lat. into English verse, The rape of Proserpine, in 3 books. Lond. 1617. and 28. qu. written by Claudian; besides other things which I have not yet seen. He died on the 7. Apr. in sixteen hundred thirty and five, and was buried in that little old Chappel of Univ. coll. (sometimes standing about the middle of the present Quadrangle) which was pulled down in 1668. Several verses of his composition I have seen printed in the beginning of various authors, particularly those before Shakespeares works, which shew him to have been an eminent Poet of his time.

626. THOMAS BROAD, or Brodans as he writes himself, Son of Will. Broad of Rendcombe in Gloucestershire Clerk, made his first entry into S. Maries hall in Mich. Term 1594. aged 17. and soon after translating himself to that of S. Alban, took the degrees in Arts as a Member thereof. In 1611. in which year his Father died, he became Rector of Rendcomb, the place of his nativity, where, as before in Oxon, he was held in great esteem for his learning and Religion. He hath written, Touch-stone for a Christian, wherein is shewed how a man may know whether he be the Temple of the Holy Ghost, &c. Lond. 1613. &c. in tw.

Three questions answer'd. The first question, What should our meaning be, when after the reading of the fourth Commandment, we pray, Lord incline our hearts to keep this Law. The second question, How the fourth Commandment, being delivered in such form of words, bind us to sanctifie any day, but only the seventh, &c. And the third question, How shall it appear to be the Law of Nature to sanctifie one day every week. Oxon. 1621. qu.

The other concerning the Lords day, or first of the week.— These two that were written in English and not printed, came in MS. into the hands of one George Abbot, not he that was Archbishop of Canterbury, but another, who making an answer to them, published it under the title of Vindicia Sabbathi, or an answer to two treatises of Mr. Broad, &c. Lond. 1641. qu. He the said Tho. Broad departed this mortal life about the middle, or latter end of 1635. June, in sixteen hundred thirty and five, and was buried by the bodies of his Father, and of his Brother Samuel, in the Chancel of the Church at Rendcombe before-mentioned, leaving then behind him four Sons (besides Daughters) which he had by Margaret his Wife, viz. William, Thomas, Sam. and John. Thomas succeeded him (if I mistake not) in the Rectory of Rendcombe, and afterwards became Rector of Rifington Magna in Gloucestershire, where he died in the beginning of 1679.

627. RICHARD CORBET, was born of a gentle Family at Ewel in Surrey, Son (a) of

Vincent (b) Corbet; farther known

By Poynters name, than by his own.

And after he had spent some years in Westminster School, was sent to Broadgates hall in Lent-Term 1592. aged 15. and in the year after was made Student of Ch. Ch. In 1605. he proceeded M. of A. being then esteemed one of the most celebrated Wits in the University, as his Poems, Jest, Romantick fancies and exploits, which he made and perform'd extempore, shew'd. Afterwards entring into holy Orders, he became a most quaint Preacher and therefore much followed by ingenious men. At length being made one of the Chaplains to his Maj. K. Jam. 1. (who highly valued him for his fine fancy and preaching) he was by his favour promoted to the Deanery of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, an. 1620. being then D. of D. Senior Student of that house, Vicar of Cassington near to Woodstock in Oxfordshire, and Prebendary of Beminsfer Secunda in the Church of Sarum. At length upon the translation of Dr. Howson to the See of Durham; he, by vertue of the Kings Letters, was elected Bishop of Oxon, 30. July 1629. and afterwards consecrated at Lambeth 19. Octob. and installed in his Chair 3. Nov. following. Upon the translation of Dr. White to Ely, he was elected Bishop of Normich 7. Apr. 1632. and had restitution of the Temporalities belonging thereunto, made (c) to him on the 12. of May the same year. His writings that are published are only,

1635. Poetica Stromata: or, a collection of sundry pieces of Poetry: Lond. 1647. 48. &c. oct. made in] his younger years, and never intended to be published by their author. He was buried at the upper end of the Chaire belonging to the Cath. Church of Normich, in sixteen hundred thirty and five, and soon after, was a large Free stone of a sandy colour, laid over his body, with this engraven on a brasse plate fastned thereunto. Richardus Corbet Theologia Doctor, Ecclesia Cathedralis Christi Oxoniensis primum Alumnus, inde

Or, a Raven passant fab. This person was hospitably disposed and ever ready to express himself generous towards publick designs. Upon the repair of S. Pauls Cathedral, an. 1634. he used his utmost endeavour both by his excellent speech and exemplary gifts to advance that pious work, not only contributing largely himself; but also giving monies to some Ministers, that had not to give, to encourage others to contribute, that might better give.

JOHN COLLETON, or Collington, Son of Ed. 628. mund Colleton of Mitverton in Somersetshire Gent. was born there, and at 17 years of age, an. 1565. was sent to the University of Oxon, particularly, as 'tis thought, to Lincoln coll. but leaving the place without a degree, and his Country, he crossed the Seas and went to Doway, where applying himself to the study of Divinity in the English coll. was made a Priest, and returned into England with Father Campion, an. 1580. But being taken and sent Prisoner to the Tower of London, was afterwards, upon his trial for conspiring the death of the Queen at Rome or Rheimes, set at liberty, and charged to depart the Land within few days after. In obedience therefore to that command, he, with others of his profession, went (or rather were sent) accordingly, in 1584. but tarrying there not long, returned, and spent many years in administering to the Brethren, and gaining Profelytes. In which time, as Father Persons reports, he was a principal author of the Libels against the Archpriestship: See more in Christop. Bagshaw, under the year 1625. In the Reign of K. Jam. 1. he was made Archdeacon of London, (only titular) Vicar General of the East parts of England, and at length Dean of Chalcedon, but when age grew upon him, Greg. Fisher alias Musket, Archdeacon of Surrey and Middlesex, was added as a Coadjutor in the Office of Vicar-General, 10. Feb. 1626. to assist in the East parts of England, namely in Essex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridgeshire, Isle of Ely, Bedfordshire, Bucks, Middlesex, and Hertford. He hath written and published,

A just defence of the slandered Priests, wherein are contained reasons against their receiving Mr. George Blackwel to be their Superior, &c. — Printed 1602. qu. concerning which book and Father Persons his character therein, you may see in The Anatomy of Popish Tyranny, &c. written by Tho. Bell, lib. 4. cap. 5. sect. 4.

Epistle to P. Paul 5. — with other things which I have not yet seen. He ended his days in the house of a Rom. Catholick at Eltham in Kent, on the fourteenth of the Calends of Novemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and five, aged 87. and was buried in the Church there, dedicated to S. John Bapt. Over his grave was soon after a monumental stone laid, with an inscription round the verge, a copy of which was sent to me by his Sisters Son, named Job. Kynn O. S. B. living at Beoly in Worcestershire. Much about the time that this Job. Colleton studied according to report in Linc. college, one Job. Filby an Oxfordshire man born, studied there also, who leaving that coll. before he was Bac. of Arts, went to Rheimes, where he studied Divinity in the English coll. and was made a Priest. Afterwards being sent into the Mission of England, he was taken, imprisoned, and at length being condemned to die, was executed at Tyburn 30. May 1582.

ALEXANDER GILL, born in Lincolnshire on 629. the 27. Feb. 1564. was admitted Scholar of Corp. Ch. coll. in Sept. 1583. took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being compleated in 1590. left the coll. and became an instructor of Youth, but where, unless in the City of Normich, (where he lived 1597. and then wrote his treatise of the Trinity.) I know not. Sure I am, that in 1608. he became the chief Master of S. Pauls School within the City of London, in the place of Rich. Mulcaster, was esteemed by most persons to be a learned man, a noted Latinist, Critick, and Divine, and also to have such an excellent way of training up youth, that none in his time went beyond him. Whence 'twas that many noted persons in Church and State, did esteem it the greatest of their happiness, that they had been educated under him. His works are, Treatise concerning the Trinity in unity of the Deity. Lond. 1601. oct. written to Tho. Manering an Anabaptist, who denied that Iesus is very God of very God.

Logonomia Anglica. Qua gentis sermo facilius addiscitur. Lond. 1621. qu.

At the end of which is printed also his Treatise of the Trinity before mention'd: He died in his house in St. Pauls Ch. Yard, on the 17. Novemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and five, and was buried on the twentieth day of the same month in Mercers Chappel in London, in a vault near to the Monument of Mr. Brown and Mr. Fishbourne. He left behind him a Son of both his names, whom I shall hereafter mention.

630. EDMUND DEANE, Brother to Richard Deane Bishop of Ossory, and both the Sons of Gilb. Deane of Saltensfall in Yorkshire, was born there, or in that County, entred a Student in Merton coll. in Lent-Term 1591. aged 19. took one degree in Arts, and then retired to St. Albans hall, where prosecuting his Genie which he had to the faculty of Physick, took both the degrees therein, as a member of the said hall, and about that time retired to the City of York, and practised there, till about the beginning of the Civil Wars. He hath written, Spadacrene Anglica: or, the English Spaw Fountaine, being a brief Treatise of the acid or tart Fountain in the Forest of Knaresborough in Yorkshire. Lond. 1626. in oct.

631. HUMPHREY LYND, a most learned Knight of his time, a zealous Puritan and a grand enemy to such who were called Arminians, was born in London, but descended from those of his name, if I mistake not, in Dorsetshire, educated in Westminster School, elected Student of Ch. Church in 1596. aged 17. and four years after took a degree in Arts. About that time he was called away to be heir to a fair estate, and being looked upon as a knowing person, was made a Justice of the Peace, a Knight by the favour of K. Jam. 1. 29. Oct. 1613. and was elected several times a Burgess to serve in Parliaments. He was a person of great knowledge and integrity, and a severe enemy to the Pontificians as well in his common discourse, as in his writings, which are,

A case for a pair of Spectacles, &c.—Refused to be Licensed by Bishop Lauds Chaplain, upon no other pretence (as one (a) faith) but that Sir Humphrey was a Lay-man; but in verity, because he (the Chaplain) was unwilling to have him vindicate himself and the truth against a rayling Jesuit, &c. However this book was afterwards published by Dr. Dan. Featly, with a Supplement thereunto added by the Dr. in defence of Sir Humphrey—Lond. 1638. qu. Sir Humphrey also hath written an Account of Bertram the Priest, with observations concerning the censures upon his Traet De Corpore & Sanguine Christi, set by way of preface to it—Lond. 1623. oct. and by him dedicated to Sir Walt. Pse Knight, the Kings Majesties Attorney of the Court of Wards and Liveries. Which account, with observations, as also the dedic. Epistle of Sir Humphrey, (all set before the translation of that book) were published again by Mathew Brian. LL. D. sometimes a Student in Magd. hall, Oxon.—Lond. 1686. oct. before which is set the picture of Charles the Great King of France and Emperour of Rome. See more in Will. Hugh, under the year 1549. Farther also, our Author Sir Humphrey, who was esteemed a deserving defender of the Cause of Religion, and to whom in other respects the Church and common cause did owe much, did, in the year 1623, upon the motion of certain eminent Divines, (of whom Dr. Featly was one) undertake the charge of printing the particular passages of many late writers, castrated by the Romish knife. The collections were (b) made by Dr. Tho. James and were then (in 1623,) sent to Dr. Featly and others to prepare them for the Press. They began with Pol. Virgil, Stella, Mariana, Fenus, &c. Sir Hump. Lynd died on the eighth day of June in sixteen hundred thirty and six, and was buried 1636. above the steps in the Chancel of the parish Church of Cobham in Surrey (and not in Kent) on the fourteenth day of the same month; at which time Dr. D. Featly before mentioned preached the funeral Sermon, shewing then to the Auditory the great virtues, piety, and learning that were once in the person that lay dead before them. He left behind him three Sons, Robert Alex. and Humphrey, besides six Daughters.

THOMAS ALLEN, an exact proficient in the 632. Greek and Latine tongues, was sent from the Kings School at Worcester to this University in Mich. Term, 1589. aged 16, where making great advances in Philosophy, was elected Probationer-Fellow of Merton coll. in 1593, and by the severe discipline then used, he became a most noted Disputant. After he had compleated his Regency, he entred into the sacred function, but instead of frequent preaching, he exercised himself much in crabbed and critical learning. Whereupon being well esteemed by his Governour Sir Hen. Savile, he procured for him a Fellowship of Eaton coll. where he found him very serviceable for his designs. He hath written, Observationes in libellum Chrysostomi in Esaiam. Printed in Sir H. Saviles edition of S. Chrysostome, in the eighth vol. p. 139, &c. He also was one that helped the said Knight in making and framing his Annotations on Chrysostomes Homelies, on Matthew and the other Evangelists, as he doth acknowledge in his Preface to the said Annotations, where in he styles this our author, Vir doctissimus, Graciarum literarum non minus quam Theologia peritissimus, &c. He surrendered up his soul to him that gave it, in sixteen hundred thirty and six, and was buried in Eaton coll. Chappel near to Windfore. Over his grave is a flat stone remaining, having this inscription carved on a brass plate fixed thereunto. Thomas Allenus Wigorniensis, vir pietate insignis, Theologus prestantissimus, multarum optimarum linguarum, varique eruditionis callentissimus, in collegium hoc (in quo diu socius vixit) in collegia insuper alia, locaque in quibus aliquam vite suam partem posuit pie munificus, hic jacet. Obiit die decimo Mensis Octobris, an. 1636. He gave books to Mert. coll. library, and some to that of Brasenose, in which last he had been a Student before he was elected into Merton. Another of both his names, but later in time, was sometimes Pastor of a Church in Norwich, and author of The Glory of Christ, set forth in several Sermons from John 3. 34, 35, 36. &c. published after the authors death in 1683. oct.

JOHN JONES, the ornament of the English Be- 633. nedictines in his time, was born in London, but descended from a family of his name living at Llan-Urinach in Brecknockshire, elected Scholar of S. Johns coll. from Merchant Taylors School in 1591, aged 16, and soon after became Chamberfellow there, with Will. Land, who was afterwards Archb. of Canterbury. This person being entred and settled in a Jurists place, he applied himself to the study of the Civil Law, and made a considerable progress therein; but his mind being much inclined to the Rom. Religion, he left the coll. (tho then Fellow and Bach. of Lawes standing) his friends, relations, and Country, went into Spain, and being made a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict at Compostella, changed his name to Leander de Sancto Martino, and at length became D. of D. Thence he went to Doway, where he executed the office of publick professor of his faculty, and of the Hebrew tongue, in the coll. or cenobie of S. Vedastus for several years. He was Prior of the Benedictine coll. of S. Gregory there, and the design'd Abbat of Cismar in Germany, Vicar General also to the English Benedictines of the Spanish congregation, living out of Spain, twice President, or chief Superior of the Benedictines in England, and titular Prior of the Catholick Ch. of Canterbury. He was a person of extraordinary eloquence, generally knowing in all arts and sciences, beloved of all that knew him and his worth, and hated by none but by the Puritans and Jesuits. Towards his latter end he was invited into England by Doctor Laud Archb. of Canterbury, to consult with him about certain important points of Controversie in Religion, as those of our authors profession say, but W. Prymme who was always an inveterate enemy to Laud, tells (c) us, that he sent for him into England, to reconcile us to Rome, or to make a reconciliation between the Church of Rome and England. But how true those matters were, let such that have read that Archbishops trial judge, while I tell you that our author hath written,

Sacra ars memoria ad Scripturas divinas in promptu habendas, memoriterque ediscendas, accommodata. Duac. 1623. oct. At the end of which is this book following.

Conciliatio Locorum communium totius Scripturae. Besides the said two, he hath other, things which I have not yet seen. He also set forth the Bible with glosses in six large volumes, the works also (as 'tis said) of Ludov. Blosius and had a hand in that elaborate work intit. Apostolatus Benedictinorum in Anglia, &c. published by Clem. Reyner 1626. But a greater hand, I have heard had Aug. Baker, of whom more hereafter. As for our author Leander, he paid his last debt to nature on the seventeenth day of Decemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and six, (having been much vexed in his time by the Jesuits) and was buried in the Chapel of the Capuchins situate and being in Somerset-house in the Strand near to London. He had been Ordinary of the Dames or Nunns of our Lady of Comfort, of Cambridge, of the Order of S. Benedict, and spiritual father to them for many years:

CHRISTOPHER WHITE, a Worcestershire man born, as it seems, was elected a Student of Ch. Ch. about 1606, took one degree in Arts and became a preacher. In 1620. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, about which time he was Rector of Letley in Hampshire. He hath published, Several Sermons, as (1) Serm. at Ch. Ch. on Rom. 13.1. Lond. 1622. qu. (2) Of Oathes, their Object, form and bond, &c. in three Sermons in Oxon. on Joshua 9. 19. Lond. 1627. qu. and others, which I have not yet seen. He concluded his last day in winter time, before the month of Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and six, and was buried in the Chancel of his Church at Letley before-mentioned, leaving behind him the character of a good and edifying preacher, a charitable man, and a loving neighbour.

JAMES PERROT, natural son of Sir John Perrot sometimes L. Deputy of the Kingdom of Ireland, was born in Pembroke-shire, became a Gent. Com. of Jesus coll. in 1586, aged 15, left it without a degree, retired to the Inns of Court for a time, and afterwards travelling, return'd an accomplish'd Gentleman, lived on his estate at Haroldston in Pembroke-shire, was dub'd a Knight, and elected a Burgess for several Parliaments in the reign of King James 1. in which shewing himself a frequent and bold, if not a passionate speaker, especially in that dissolved 6. January 19. Jac. 1. Dom. 1621. and therefore numbred among the ill temper'd spirits therein (as the King usually call'd them) he was not imprison'd in London or Southwark as some of them were, but was sent with Sir Dudley Digges and others into Ireland for their punishment, joyned in commission with certain persons under the Great Seal of England for the inquiry after certain matters concerning his Majesties service, as well in the government Ecclesiastical and Civil, as in point of revenue and otherwise, within that Kingdom. He hath written,

The first part of the consideration of humane conditions, wherein is contained the moral consideration of a mans self: as what, who, and what manner of man he is. Oxon. 1600. qu. Dedic. to Tho. Lord Buckhurst Chancellour of the Univer. of Oxon. Whether any other parts followed, I know not.

He ended his days at Haroldston before mention'd on the fourth day of Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and six, and was buried in the parish Church of S. Mary in the Town and County of Harverford-west, to which place Haroldstone adjoyns. This Sir James Perrot intermarried with Mary Daughter of Rob. Ashfield of the parish of Chesham in Bucks Esq; but died without issue by her.

CHARLES FITZ-GEFFRY, or Fitz-Geoffry⁶³⁶ Son of Alex. Fitz-Geoffry was born of a gentile family in the County of Cornwall, became a Commoner of Broadgates hall in 1592. aged 17, took the degrees in Arts, entred into the Theological function, and at length became Rector of S. Dominick in his own Country, where he was esteemed a grave and learned Divine, as before he was, while resident in the University, an excellent Latine Poet. His works are,

The life and death of Sir Francis Drake. — Which being written in lofty verse, when he was Bachelaur of Arts, he was by those of his time called The high towering Falcon.

He hath also made A collection of choice Flowers and Descriptions, as well out of his, as the works of several others, the most renowned Poets of our Nation: collected about the beginning of the reign of K. James 1. but this, tho I have been many years in seeking after, yet, I cannot get a sight of, it. He died in the Parsonage house at S. Dominick before mention'd, and was buried under the common table in the Chancel of the Church at that place, on the 22 Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and six. In which Church, tho there be no memory by writing remaining of him, yet others have celebrated it in their respective works. Rob. Chamberlaine his sometimes acquaintance hath bestowed an Epitaph upon him in his (a) Epigrams and Epitaphs, printed with his Nocturnal Lucubrations. John Dunbar also a Scot, who was known to, hath an Epigram (b) on, him, his worth and learning. And among others also must not be forgotten his familiar friend Robert Hayman, who in his Quodlibets and Epigrams doth stile (c) him learned and witty, and a most excellent Poet, but whereas he stiles him Bach. of Div. I cannot find it so mentioned in the publick registers, and therefore, I presume, if he was so, that degree was confer'd upon him elsewhere.

THOMAS RISDON, a painful and industrious⁶³⁷ Antiquary, was born of, and descended from, an ancient and gentile Family of his name living at Winscot in Devon-shire, received his Academical education either in Exeter coll. or Broadgates hall about the latter end of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, but leaving the University without a degree he retired to his Patrimony, where prosecuting his natural Genie to the study of History and Antiquities, especially in those of his own Country, did at length with great labour and travel draw up, thereof, many years since deceased, hath written another survey, or at least had a hand in that composed by Tho. Risdon, who died in sixteen hundred thirty and six, or in the year after. Besides this Tho. Risdon, I find another of both his names, who was double Reader of the Inner Temple, 20. Elizab. and had long after his death published by a certain person, His reading on the Statute of 8. Hen. 6. cap. 9. of forcible entry. Lond. 1648. qu. With which were then published a certain Reading of Sir Jam. Dyer, as I have told you under the year 1581. and the Reading upon the Stat. of 27. Hen. 8. cap. 10. concerning Jointures, by Sir Joh. Brograve of Greys Inn, sometimes his Majestys Attorney of the Duchy of Lancaster.

A Survey, or a chronographical discription of Devon-shire — 'Tis not yet printed, only contained in a folio Manuscript in more than two quire of paper. I have been informed that several copies of it are dispersed among the Gentry of that County, and also that one Westcote a Gent.

638. ANTHONY FAWKNER, a Rutlandshire man born, was sent from the Free School at Uppingham, or Okeham, in that County (both founded by Rob. Johnson Archd. of Leic.) to Wadham coll. in 1616. aged 16. whence, after he had taken a degree, he was translated to that of Jesus, and then had the Magisterial degree confer'd upon him. Afterwards I find him Chaplain to Sir Lew. Watson of Northamptonshire Knight and Baronet, Parson of Saltry Allsaints alias Moyne in Huntingdonshire, and author of, Several Sermons, as, (1) Comfort to the afflicted, preached at Pauls Cross, on Job 19. 21. Lond. 1626. qu. (2) Nicodemus for Christ, or the religious Moot of an honest Lawyer, &c. an Assize Sermon on John 7. 51. Lond. 1630. qu. (3) The Pedigree of Peace, &c. an Assize Sermon on Levit. 24. 11. Lond. 1630. qu. (4) The Widdows petition, &c. an Assize Sermon at Northampton, on Luke 18. 3. Oxon. 1635. qu. Another of his Sermons was also printed in 1634. but that I have not yet seen, nor do I know any thing material of him besides.

639. RICHARD BRETT, Son of Rob. Brett of Whitstanton in Somersetshire, was born of gentle Parents at London, as the Publick Matricula (d) of the University saith, entred a Commoner of Hart hall in Lent-Term, an. 1582. took one degree in Arts, and then was elected Fellow of Lincoln coll. where, by the benefit of a good Tutor, and by unwearied industry, he became eminent in the tongues, divinity and other learning. In 1595. or thereabouts, he was, made Rector of Quainton near to Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire, was admitted Bac. of Div. in 1597, appointed one of the Translators of the Bible into English by King Jam. 1. in 1604, proceeded in Divinity the year after, and at length was made one of the first Fellows of Chelsey college, founded by Dr. Math. Sutliff, about 1616. He was a person famous in his time for learning as well as piety, skill'd and vers'd to a criticism in the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Chaldaick, Arabick, and Ethiopick tongues. He was a most vigilant Pastor, a diligent Preacher of Gods word, a liberal Benefactor to the poor, a faithful Friend, and a good Neighbour. What his writings are I know not, his translations I am sure from Greek into Latin are these. (1) Vita Sanctorum Evangelist. Johannis & Luca a Symeone Metaphrasie concinnata. Oxon. 1597. oct. (2) Agatharchidis & Memnonis Historicorum qua supersunt omnia. Oxon. 1597. oct. He also published, Iconum Sacrarum decas, in qua è subiectis Typis compluscula sanæ doctrinæ capita eruntur. Oxon. 1603. qu. He yielded to nature 1637, on the 15. of Apr. in sixteen hundred thirty and seven, aged 70. and was buried in the Chancel of his Church at Quainton before-mentioned. Over his grave was soon after a fair monument set up in the wall by his Widdow, with the Effigies of the Doctor, his said Widdow, and four Children, all kneeling, with a Lat. and English epitaph underneath. The Latin epitaph is too large to obtain a place here, and the English (contained in four verses) being trite and bald, I shall now pass by. This learned Doctor left behind him four Daughters, begotten on the body of his Wife Alice, Daughter of Rich. Brown sometimes Mayor of the City of Oxon, viz. (1) Elizab. who was married to Will. Sparke Rector of Bletchley, whom I have remembred among these writers, under the year 1630. (2) Anne the Wife of Hump. Chambers another Divine. (3) Margaret the Wife of Dr. Calibute Downing: which two last, (Chambers and Downing) shall be remembred in their respective places as writers, and the fourth named Mary, to Tho. Goodwin of Epwell in Oxfordsh.

BENJAMIN JOHNSON, a Poet as soon as he⁶⁴⁰ was born, afterwards the Father of our Poetry, and most admirably well vers'd in classical authors, and therefore belov'd of Camden, Selden, Hoskins, Martin, &c. made his first entry on the stage of this vain World within the City of Westminster, (being the Son of a grave Minister,) educated in the College School there, while Camden was Master, which was the reason why Ben did afterwards (e) acknowledge, that all that he had in Arts and all that he knew he own'd to him. Thence his silly Mother, who had married to her second Husband a Bricklayer, took him home, and made him, as 'tis said, work at her Husbonds trade. At length being pitied by some generous Gentlemen, Camden got him a better employment, which was to attend or accompany a Son of Sir Walt. Ralegh in his adventures, whereby gaining experience, made his company acceptable among many. After their return they parted, I think not in cold blood, and thereupon Ben went to Cambridge, and was, as 'tis said, statutably elected into St. Johns coll. but what continuance he made there, I find not. Sure 'tis, that his Genie being mostly Poetical, he did afterwards reced to a Nursery or obscure Play-house called The Green Curtain, about Shoreditch or Clerkenwell, but his first action and writing there, were both ill. At length improving his fancy much by keeping Scholastical company, he betook himself again to write plays, which he did so admirably well, that he was esteemed paramount in the dramatick part of Poetry, and to teach the stage an exact conformity to the Laws of Comedians. Whereupon Sir Jo. Suckling bringing (f) him into the Session of Poets, Ben broke silence, spoke to the Poets, and

*Bid them remember how he had purg'd the Stage
Of Errors that had lasted many an age.*

His own proper industry and addition to books, especially to ancient Poets and Classical authors, made him a person of curious learning and judgment, and of singular excellence in the art of Poetry. Which, with his accurate judgment and performance, known only to those few, who are truly able to judge of his works, have gain'd from the most eminent Scholars of his time (particularly from the learned Selden) an increasing admiration. Dr. Rich. Corbet of Ch. Ch. and other Poets of this University, did in reverence to his parts, invite him to Oxon, where continuing for some time in Ch. Ch. in writing and composing Plays, he was, as a Member thereof, actually created M. of A. in 1619: and therefore upon that account I put him among the Oxford writers, for at Cambridge his stay was but short, and whether he took a degree in that University, I cannot yet learn of any. His works are these.

Chapman, &c. and did with Dr. Haeket (afterwards B. of Lichfield) translate into Latin the Lord Bacon's Essays or Counsels Civil and Moral. At length B. Johnson after he had arrived to the sixty third year of his age, marched off from the stage of this vain World on the 16. of August in sixteen hundred thirty and seven, and was buried three days after in S. Peters Church within the City of Westminster, commonly called the Abbey Church, not among the Poets, but at the west end near to the belfry, under the Escoccheon of Rob. de Ros, or Ross, with this engraven on a common pavement stone laying over his grave, at eighteen pence charge, given by Jack Young of Great Milton in Oxfordshire, (afterwards a Knight by the favour of K. Ch. 2.) O rare Ben. Johnson. There was a considerable sum of money gathered from among the Wits and Vertyosi of his time for the erection of a monument and a Statua for him, but before they could be done, the Rebellion broke forth and hindred the design; whereupon the money was refunded. I have been informed by a worthy Prelate (*) several years since deceased, that this Poet Ben had a pension of an 100 l. per an. from the King, a pension also from the City of London, and the like from several of the Nobility, and from some of the Gentry, particularly from Sutton, Founder of the Hospital that now bears his name, which were commonly well paid either out of pure love to him, or out of fear of his railing in verse or prose, or both. When he was in his last sickness, the said Prelate, who was then M. of A. did, among other of his acquaintance, often visit him, and as often heard him repent of his prophaning the Scripture in his Plays, and that with horror, &c. Many years after his death did appear to the World another Poet of both his names, who writes himself in his Poems, published 1672. Ben. Johnson Junior, but what relation there was between him and the former I know not.

ROBERT FLUDD, or de Fluctibus, second, afterwards eldest, Son of Sir Tho. Fludd Knight, sometimes Treasurer of War to Q. Elizabeth in France and the Low Countries, Grandson of Dav. Fludd of Shropshire, was born at Milgate in the Parish of Bearsted in Kent, became Con- victor of S. Johns coll. in 1591. aged 17. took the degrees in Arts, studied Physick, travelled into France, Spain, Italy and Germany for almost six years. In most of which Countries he became acquainted with several of the Nobility of them, some of whom he taught, and for their use made the first ruder draughts of several of his pieces now extant. After his return, he, as a Member of Ch. Ch. proceeded in the Faculty of Physick, an. 1605. About which time he practiced in London, and became Fellow of the Coll. of Physicians there. He was esteemed by many Scholars a most noted Philosopher, an eminent Physician and one strangely profound in obscure matters. He was a zealous Brother of the Order of Rosa-Crucians, and did so much dote upon the wonders of Chymistry, that he would refer all Mysteries and Miracles, even of Religion, unto it, and to that end fetch the pedigree of it from God himself in his holy word. Nay he did so much prophane and abuse the word by his ridiculous and senseless applications and interpretations, in which none hath exceeded more (even to the height of blasphemy) than he, that the learned Gassendus could not otherwise but chastise him for it, as others since have done. His books which are mostly in Latin are many and mystical: and as he wrote by clouding his high matter with dark language, which is accounted by some no better than canting, or the phrase of a Mountebank; so he spoke to his Patients, amusing them with I know not what, till by his elevated expressions he operated into them a faith-natural, which consequently contributed to the well working of Physick. They are looked upon as slight things among the English, notwithstanding by some valued, particularly by Selden, who had the author of them in high esteem. The Foreigners prize and behold them as rarities, not that they are more judicious than the English, but more inquisitive in such difficulties, which hath been the reason why some of them have been printed more than once, the titles of which, and the rest, are as follow.

shew it to be of our authors composition (Fludd) but also Franc. Lanovius shews (b) others to the same purpose, and Marsennus himself, against whom it is directed, was of the like opinion. Gassendus, upon Marsennus his desiring him to give his judgment of Fludd's two books wrote against him, drew up an answer divided into three parts, (contained in the Opuscula Philosophica above-named.) The first of which sifts the principles of the whole System of his whimsical Philosophy, as they lie scattered throughout his works. The second is against Sophia cum moria certamen, and the third answers this Summum bonum as his. Our author indeed sullied these two treatises by mixing a great deal of ill language in them, but Gassendus complains (c) that Marsennus himself had given him a too broad example in this kind, for some of those epithites which he thought fit to bestow on him, are no better than Caco-magus, Heretico-magus, fatida & horrida magia Doctor & Propagator. And among other exasperating expressions he threatened him with no less than damnation it self, which would in a short time seize him.

This book was printed at London in qu. in 1631. with this title; The squeezing of Parson Foster's sponge, ordained by him for the wiping away of the Weapon-salve. See more in Will. Foster, an. 1633. Our author R. Fludd departed this mortal life in his house situate and being in the Parish of S. Katherine in Colman-street within the City of London, on the eighth day of Sept. in sixteen hundred thirty and seven; whereupon his body being afterwards attended by an Officer, or Herald of Arms, to Bearsted before-mentioned, was buried in the Chancel of the Church there, under a stone which he before had laid for himself. On which, or else on a monument, which he designed by his last Will to be made after the fashion of that of William Camden in the Abby Church of S. Peter at Westminster, and to be set in the wall near to his grave, was an Epitaph put; a copy of which being printed elsewhere (d), shall now for brevity sake be omitted.

^{642.} HENRY GELLIBRAND, received his first breath in the Parish of S. Botolph near to Aldersgate in London, 17. Nov. 1597. became a Commoner of Trin. coll. in 1615. took one degree in Arts about four years after, being then esteemed to have no great matter in him. At length upon the hearing of one of Sir Hen. Savile's Mathematick Lectures by accident, or rather to save the scone of a Groat, if he had been absent, he was so extreemly taken with it, that he immediately fell to the study of that noble Science, and conquered it before the time he proceeded in Arts. Soon after, his name being up for his wonderful sufficiencies in Geometry and Astronomy, he was elected Astronomy-Professor of Gresham coll. in the place of Gunter deceased; where, tho he wrote and published many useful things, yet he suffer'd Conventicles (being himself a Puritan) to be kept in his lodgings. His works are,

Treatise of building of Ships.—MS. Which, after its authors death, came into the hands of Edward Lord Conway.

Almanack for the year 1631.—This was published under the name of his Servant Will. Beale: But the author thrusting into it the Martyrs mentioned by John Fox, and omitting divers Saints, allowed by the Church of England, as the Epiphany, Annunciation of our Lady, &c. he and his man were called into question for it in the High Commission Court, and brought into trouble: The particulars of which you may see in a book intit. Canterbury's () Doom*. But the author of that book (Will. Prynn) endeavouring all the ways imaginable to bring envy on Dr. Laud then B. of London, who did discountenance that Almanack very much, the Reader therefore is not to believe every matter, which that implacable person doth there set down. Our author Gellibrand also wrote a Preface to, and published Sciographia, or the Art of Shadows, &c. Lond. 1635. in a large thick oct. written by John Wells of Hampshire Esq; a Rom. Catholick. He also intended other matters, but was untimely snatch'd away to the great loss of the Mathematical Faculty, in the month of Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and seven. His body was buried in the Church of S. Peter in Broad-street within the City of London; at which time Dr. Hannibal Potter his sometimes Tutor in Trinity college, preached his Funeral Sermon, shewing therein to the auditory the piety and worth that was sometimes in the body that lay dead before them. His memory is preserved in the said coll. by a Dial set up by him when he was there a Student, on the east side of that Quadrangle, which is now called the Old Quadrangle.

HENRY RAMSDEN, a Yorkshire man born, ⁶⁴³ was admitted a Commoner of Magd. hall, in 1610. took the degrees in Arts, was elected Fellow of Linc. coll. in 1621. and five years after leaving that place, wherein he had advanced himself much in the Theological Faculty, he became a Preacher in London, was much resorted to for his edifying and puritanical Sermons, and at length upon the death of Mr. Hugh Ramsden his Brother, he was made Vicar of Halifax in his own Country. After his death were published under his name, Several Sermons, as, (1) The gate to happiness, on Rom. 6. 8. (2) The wounded Saviour, on Esay 53. 5. (3) Epicures caution, on Luke 21. 34. (4) Generation of Seekers, on Col. 3. 1. which four Sermons are intit. A Gleaning of God's Harvest. Lond. 1639. qu. Published by Jeh. Goodwin with his Epist. before them. He ended his days on the seventh of the Cal. of March in sixteen hundred thirty and seven, ¹⁶³⁷ and was buried in the Chancel of the Church at Halifax. Over his grave is an inscription to his memory, which being large, I shall for brevity sake pass by. In his Vicarage of Halifax succeeded Rich. Marsh D. D. afterwards Archdeacon and Dean of York.

both the Sons of Joh. Hoskyns, by Margery his Wife, Daughter of Tho. Jones of Lanwarne was born at Mown-ton in the Parish of Lanwarne in Herefordshire, formerly belonging to the Priory of Lantony near Gloucester, to the Prior of which place, his Ancestor bore the office of Pocillator. While this Joh. Hoskyns was a Child, and intended by his Father for a Trade, he was very importunate with him to make him a Scholar, wherefore at 10 years of age he began his A, B, C, and in an years-time he was got into his Greek Grammar, for he was one of a prodigious memory, and of wonderful strength of body. After he had spent one year at Westminster School, he was sped a Child in Wykeham's coll. near Winchester, where making very great proficiency in the School there, he was elected Prob. Fellow of New coll. an. 1584. and two years after was admitted Vernus Socius. In Feb. 1591. he had the degree of M. of A. confer'd upon him, and being Terra filius in the Act following, he was so bitterly satirical, that he was not only denied the completion of that degree by being admitted ad regendum, but was expel'd the University. Afterwards being put to his shifts, he went into Somersetshire, where he taught a School for about an year or more at Ilchester, and compiled a Greek Lexicon as far as the Letter M. About that time having married a rich Fortune in those parts, named Benedicta, the Widdow of one Bourne, but Daughter of Rob. Moyle of Buckwell in Kent, he entred himself a Student in the Middle Temple, where, after he had spent some years, and performed certain exercise, he was called to the Bar. In 1614. he sat as a Burgess in Parliament then in being, wherein, in speaking his mind, he made a desperate allusion to the Scicilian Vesper, for which being committed Prisoner to the Tower of London 7. June, was examined whether he well understood the consequence of that Vesper to which he alluded. Whereupon making answer that he had a hint thereof, and afterwards a general information, from Dr. Lionel Sharp of Cambridge, that Doctor therefore, with Sir Charles Cornwallis, (Son of Sir Tho. Cornwallis of Brome in Suffolk.) were imprison'd (a) in the Tower, on the 13. of the same month. At the same time that our author Hoskyns was committed to custody, were others also imprison'd with him for behaving themselves turbulent in the H. of Commons, as Walt. Chute a Kentish man, who had lately been put out of his place of Carver to the King, one Wentworth (Tho. Wentworth mentioned under the year 1627.) esteemed (b) by some then living, a silly and simple creature, and a third named Christopher Nevil, second Son to the Lord Abergavenny, who was newly come from School and made the House sport with his boyish speeches, wherein were these words reiterated O tempora! O mores! After our author Hoskyns had continued a Prisoner for a full year, he, with Sharp and Cornwallis were (c) released, and ever after were held in great value by the Commons. In the 17. of Jac. 1. he was elected Lent-Reader of the Middle Temple, and in the 21. of the said King, made a Serjeant at Law, and soon after a Judge or Justice itinerant for Wales, and one of the Council of the Marches thereof. He was the most ingenious and admired Poet of his time, and therefore much courted by the ingenious men then living. There were few, or none, that published books of Poetry, but did celebrate his memory in them, especially his contemporary in New coll. named Joh. Owen the Epigrammatist, and fewer but did lay them at his feet for approbation before they went to the Press. 'Twas he that polish'd Bon. Johnson the Poet and made him speak clean, whereupon he ever after called our author Father Hoskyns, and 'twas he that view'd and review'd the History of the World, written by Sir W. Raleigh, before it went to the Press; with which person he had several years before (especially during their time of imprisonment in the Tower) been intimate. He was also much respected and beloved by Camden, Selden, Sam. Daniel, Dr. Joh. Donne Dean of Pauls, Rich. Martin Recorder of London, Sir H. Wotton, and Sir Benj. Rudyerd: with the last of whom it was once his fortune, upon a quarrel that fell out, to fight a duel, and to hurt him in the knee, but were afterwards soon reconcil'd. He was a person always pleasant and facete in company, which made him much desired by ingenious men. He was an excellent Master of the Latin and Greek tongue, well read in Divinity, but in the Common Law, which was his profession, not so well. He hath written, Lexicon Græcum. MS. imperfect.

Epigrams in Engl. and Lat.—Some of which are printed in several books, and among them I suppose are his verses on a F—t let in the Parliament house, which are printed in some of the books of Drollery. He had a book of Poems neatly written, bigger than those of Dr. Donne, which were lent by his Son Benedict to a certain person in 1653. but could never retrieve it.

Epitaphs in Lat. and English.

The Art of Memory.—He was so excellent in it, whether artificial or natural, that no man ever went beyond him in his time. When he was a School-boy at Winchester, and had an exercise of verses to make, he neglected, through idleness, the making of them. So that fearing a whipping, he read the exercise of one of his School-fellows over his shoulder, just as he had finish'd it. Whereupon the Master entring, and the exercise call'd upon him first, he drew up to, and told, him he had lost it, yet nevertheless he would repeat it without book if that would serve his turn; so that the Master being contented, he repeated 16 or 20 verses that he had before read of the other boys making, and so was excused. At length the other boy being called, and he shewing the verses that Hoskyns had repeated, he was esteemed the thief that had stole them away from Hoskyns, and thereupon was sorely whip'd for so doing.

Method of the Law reduced under the heads of Rights, Wrongs, Remedies. All which books, with others of various subjects, are in MS. and for the most part kept in the hands of his Grandson Sir Joh. Hoskyns Knight and Baronet. He departed this life in his house at Morehampton in Herefordshire, 27. Aug. in sixteen hundred thirty and eight, aged 72. and was buried on the south side of the Choir of Dowr Abbey in the said County. Over his grave was erected soon after an Altar-monument with 24 verses ingraven thereon, made by Thomas Bonham of Essex Esq;. The four first run thus.

Hoskynus humani prodigium ingenii.

Usque adeo excoluit duo pugnacissima rerum

Et qua non subeant nomina pectus idem.

Pieridumque legumque potens, &c.

RICHARD JAMES, was born at Newport in the 645; Isle of Wight, admitted Scholar of C. C. coll. from that of Exeter, 23. Sept. 1608. aged 16. or thereabouts, and on the 30. of Sept. 1615. Probationer-Fellow. About that time, he being involved in the studies of Theology, he entred into Orders, preached often and at length was Bac. of that Faculty. This person, tho humorous, was of a far better judgment than his Uncle Thom. James mentioned under the year 1629. and had he lived to his age, would have surpassed him in published books. He was a great traveller also, was in Russia in 1619. and esteemed to be a person well vers'd in most parts of learning. He was noted by all those that knew him to be a very good Grecian, Poet, an excellent Critick, Antiquary, Divine, and admirably well skill'd in the Saxon and Gothick languages. But as for his Preaching, it was not, except by the graver sort, approved by any in the University. For of three Sermons delivered to the Academians, one of which, concerning the Observation of Lent, was without a Text according to the most ancient manner; another against the Text, and a third beside it, shewing himself thereby a humorous person. The famous Selden was much beholding to him for the drudgery he did for him, when he compos'd his Marmora Arundeliana, acknowledging him in his Preface to that book, to be Vir multijuga studique indefatigabilis. Sir Rob. Coston also his great Patron, and his Son Sir Thomas, could not but acknowledge his like drudgery in the ordering, disposing, and setting their incomparable Library; with the first of whom (no great friend to the Prerogative) being intimate and familiar, was confin'd to close keeping by the Lords, when Sir Robert was imprisoned for certain matters uttered in Parliament, an. 1629. Nothing was wanting to our author, and his studies, but a Sinecure or a Prebendship; either of which, if confer'd upon him, Hercules his labours would have seem'd a trifle. His works are these.

More's Epistle, written from Abendon in Berks, an. 1519. to the Univ. of Oxon, for the embracing of the Greek tongue, which had been for many years neglected among the Members thereof. He also translated into English, Octavius. Ox. 1636. in tw. written by Minutius Felix. All the afore-mentioned works (except the translation) bound in one vol. the author gave to Bodley's Library, with a copy of verses of his composition written in a spare leaf before the first of them, beginning thus,

Dear God by whom in dark Womb's shade
I am to fear and wonder made, &c.

The said copy of verses was made by him when he was confin'd to close custody by the Lords. He died of a Quartan Fever in the house of Sir Tho. Cotton Bt. near to Westminster hall, by too much studying, (as 'twas supposed,) and wracking his body with hardship, in the beginning of Decemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and eight, and was buried on the seventh day of the same month in S. Margaret's Church within the said City. He left behind him several MSS. of his own composition, and others collected by him from various authors, to the number of 45. or thereabouts, all written with his own hand, which coming after his death into the hands of his intire Friend and Colleague Mr. Tho. Greaves, came after his death to the Bodleian Library, where they now are. The MSS. of his composition are these. (1) Decanonizatio Thoma Cantuariensis & suorum. fol. This book, containing 760. pages, hath this beginning, Viam regiam mihi patefacit ad decanonizationem filii & fucati Martyris, &c. and the beginning of the Epist. to the Reader is this, Amice lector rogatus sum sapius, &c. 'Tis only a specimen or a foundation for a greater work to build on. (5) Epistola ad amicos suos doctos. The beginning of the first Ep. which was written to Dr. Seb. Benefield of C. C. coll. is this, Sancte Deus, &c. 'Tis a thick quarto, and containeth Epistles mostly written to C. C. coll. men, Epitaphs and some English copies of verses. (6) Epigrams in Lat. and Engl. with other Poems. (7) Reasons concerning the attempts on the lives of great personages, &c. This Itinerary, which was written in English verse 1636. hath this beginning, High Holt of Wood, and 'tis contained in two sheets and an half. (10) Glossarium Saxonum-Anglicum. (14) Observations made on the Country, with the manners and customs, of Russia, or Rusland, an. 1619. in oct. 'Twas intended to be transcrib'd, and to have other matters added to it, but what hindred the design I cannot tell. Besides these 14 books I have another of Epigrams written mostly in Latin, and partly in Greek, in oct. dedicated to his Tutor Dr. Sebast. Benefield. As for his collections, which are in four and twenty quartoes, and in about 7 thin folios (all under his own hand) are contained in them for the most part notes from ancient MSS. (sometimes from printed authors) relating to Hist. and Antiq. and any thing that could be found against S. Thomas of Canterbury, the greatness and corruption of Popes, Cardinals, Bishops, Abbats, Priors, Monks, Friars, and the Clergy before the time of Reformation. And when he thought that the matter it self from the authors, whence he made his collections, was not enough sufficient to make them bad, his notes in the margin pointing to those matters, would do it to the purpose, arguing thereby an inveterate hatred he had to the said persons, as indeed he had, being a severe Calvinist, if not worse.

JOHN KING, second Son of Dr. Joh. King B. of London, whom I have mentioned under the year 1621. was a Yorkshire man born, and at 14 years of age became a Student of Ch. Ch. under the tuition of a good Tutor, an. 1608. Afterwards he proceeded M. of A. was public Orator of the University, Prebendary of the said Church of Christ, in 1624. and the next year D. of D. and Canon of Windsor, and about that time Prebendary of S. Pauls Cath. and Rector of Remenham in Berks. He hath published, Dauids Strait: The afternoons Sermon on Aet Sunday, on 2 Sam. 24. 14. Oxon 1625. qu. His elder Brother Hen. King preached the mornings Sermon called Dauids Enlargement, as I shall tell you when I come to him. The very same title of Dauids Strait, was put to a Sermon on the same subject by one Sam. Buggs Bac. of Div. sometimes Fellow of Sydney coll. in Cambridge, afterwards a Minister in Coventry: Which Sermon was preached at Pauls Cross 8. July 1621. Dr. King surrendred up his last breath on the second day of January in sixteen hundred thirty and eight, aged 43. and was buried near to the monument of Rob. King the first Bishop of Oxon, in the Isle joyning on the south side of the Choir belonging to the Cathedral of Ch. Ch. You may be pleased to read his Epitaph in Hist. & Antiq. Univers. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 290. b.

CHRISTOPH. ANGELUS, was born in Peloponnesus in Greece, thrust out of his Country for Religion sake by the Turks, after they had inflicted on him many torments; came towards England for relief, and arriving at Yarmouth was exhibited to by the B. of Norwich, and some of the Clergy there. Afterwards by the said Bishops recommendation, he went to Cambridge, where he found relief, and studied in Trin. coll. for near 3 years. About Whitsonide in 1610. he journied to Oxon, was exhibited to there also, studied in Balliol college, did very good service among the young Scholars in the University that were raw in the Gr. tongue, and continued among them till the time of his death. He hath transmitted to posterity,

Of the many stripes and torments inflicted on him by the Turks for the Faith which he had in Jesus Christ. Oxon. 1617. in Greek and English.

Enchiridion de institutis Græcorum. Cambr. 1619. qu. in Greek and Latin. The Greek copy of which, coming into the hands of George Phelavins a Minister of Dantzic, was by him rendred into Latin, and learnedly noted. — Francof. 1655. oct. The Latin copy of the said Phelavins is thus intit. Status & ritus Ecclesiae Græcæ.

An Encomion of the famous Kingdom of Gr. Britain, and the two flourishing Sister-Universities Cambridge and Oxford. Cambr. 1619. qu.

De Apostasia Ecclesiae & de homine peccati, Scil. Antichristo, &c. Lond. 1624. Gr. & Lat. qu. and other things, as 'tis probable, which I have not yet seen. He ended his days on the first of February in sixteen hundred thirty and eight, and was buried the next day with- in the Precincts of St. Ebbes Church in Oxford, (I think in the Church it self,) leaving behind him the Character of a pure Grecian and an honest and harmless man.

64. DUDLEY DIGGES, elder Brother to Leonard Digges mention'd under the year 1635. was born in Kent, particularly, if I mistake not, in the parish of Berham, wherein Digges Court is situated; was entred a Gentleman Commoner of University coll. in 1598. aged 15, where making great improvement in Academical learning under the tuition of the Master thereof, Dr. George Abbot, (afterwards Archb. of Canterbury) took the degree of Bach. of Arts; which being compleated by Determination, he went to the Inns of Court, and afterwards to travel, and about that time received the honour of Knighthood. As for the rest of his actions for some years after, I cannot justly relate. However the chief story of his life, which was honourable and good, may be the rule of ours. His understanding few could equal, his virtues, fewer would. He was a pious man, a careful Father, a loving husband, a fatherly brother, a courteous neighbour, a merciful landlord, a liberal master, a noble friend. After much experience gained by travel, and an exact survey of the Laws and people of foreign Kingdoms, he did enable himself thereby for the service of his Country, but observing too many to juggle for place, and cross the publick interest, (if not joyned with their publick gain) hindring the motion of the great body of the Commonwealth, desisted, and was satisfied with the conscience of merit, knowing good men only can deserve honours, tho the worse might attain them. His noble soul could not stoop to ambition, or be beholding to that (tho the most generous) vice, for an occasion to exercise his virtues. So that out of such apprehensions, his moderate desires confin'd his thoughts to the innocence of a retired life. But the most knowing of Princes K. James 1. who ever made choice of the most able ministers, judging none more equal to employments, than those that would not unworthily court them, sent him Embassadour to the Emperour of Russia, and in the year 1620. (whether before, or after his Embassy, I know not) he with Sir Maurice Abbot were (a) sent into Holland in the month of Nov. to obtain the intercepted Goods of some English men, taken in their coming back from East India. After his return from the said employments, and some years conscionably spent in the service of the State, being unbiassed by popular applause, or Court-hopes, he was made Master of the Rolls in the place of Sir Julius Caesar, who dying 12 Apr. Sir Dudley was sworn to that office on the 20. of the said month, an. 1636. This did crown his former actions, and tho it would not increase his integrity, yet it made him more perspicuous, and whom his acquaintance before, now the Kingdom, honoured. If the example of his justice had powerful influence on all magistrates, the people who are governed, would be happy on earth, and the Rulers in heaven with him, who counted it an unworthy thing to be tempted to vice, by the reward of vertue. The things that he wror and collected were many, but whether he left them perfect at his death, I know not. Those books that go under his name, are these following, all, except the first, published after his death.

A defence of trade: in a letter to Sir Tho. Smith Knight, Governour of the East India Company. London 1615. qu.

Discourse concerning the rights and privileges of the Subject, in a conference desired by the Lords, and had by a Committee of both houses, 3 Apr. 1628. London 1642. qu.

The compleat Embassador; or, two treatises of the intended marriage of Q. Elizabeth, comprised in Letters of negotiation, &c. London 1655. fol. Which book, tho it had nothing forged or suppositious therein, yet it was never intended for the Press by the collector thereof.

Several speeches and discourses in Parliament.—See in Jo. Rushworths Collections, part 1. where you'll find much of him, and his imprisonment, in the year 1626. His death, which the wisest men did reckon among the publick calamities of those times, hapned on the 18. March, in sixteen hundred thirty and eight. Soon after his body (which had for some days laid in State) was remitted to the peaceful shades below, in Chilham Church in Kent, in which Town he enjoyed fair inheritances by his marriage with Mary the youngest Daughter and Coheire of Sir Tho. Kemp Knight. There is a fair Monument over his Grave, the inscription of which, is partly remitted into the foregoing discourse, and therefore not necessary of repeating it here, neither of a large inscription in Latin, containing his genealogy from K. Hen. the third, to his time, which he, some years before his death, set up in the said Church.

JOHN LEYCESTER, was born in Cheshire 649: of Plebeian parents, but originally descended from a gentle family in that County, became a Student in Brazenose coll. 1618. aged 20, took one degree in Arts, and afterwards followed the employment of teaching a School; which, I think, he exercised to his dying day. He hath written, Enchiridion, seu fasciculus Adagiorum selectissimorum. Or, a manual of the choicest Adagies, &c. London 1623. oct. in Lat. and Engl. besides other things which I have not seen. He also translated from Lat. into Engl. An excellent Clar. oration of Dr. Joh. Rainolds, &c. London 1638. oct. very 1638. useful for all such as affect the studies of Logick and Philosophy, and admire prophane learning. See more in John Rainolds under the year 1607.

JASPER FISHER, a Gentlemans Son, was born 650 in Bedfordshire, entred a Com. of S. M. Magd. hall. in Mich. Term 1607, took the degrees in Arts, became afterwards Divinity or Philosophy reader of Magd. coll. Rector of Widen in his own Country, about 1631, and at length D. of D. He hath written and published, Primus Troes Aeneid. 2. The true Trojanes, being a story of the Britains valour at the Romans first invasion. London 1633. qu. Before which time, it had been once, or more, publickly represented by the Gentlemen-Students of Magd. coll. in Oxon.

Several Sermons, as (1) Serm. on Malac. 2. 7. Printed 1636. in oct. &c. This person who was always esteemed an ingenious man while he lived in Magd. coll. as those that knew him, have divers times informed me, lived several years after this, (1633.) but when he died, or what other things he hath published, I cannot learn.

JAMES ROWLANDSON, a Westmorland man 651. born, became a Student in Queens coll. in the beginning of the year 1596, aged 19. years, afterwards a poor serving child, then a Tarbard, and in 1605. Master of Arts and Fellow. In 1614. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, being then noted to be a subtile Disputant and an edifying preacher. About which time being made Chaplain to Dr. Bilson Bishop of Winchester, he became Rector of East-Tyfield in Hampshire, Master of the Hospital of S. Mary Magd. near Winchester, Chaplain to K. Ch. 1. and in the year 1636. Doctor of Divinity. In 1638. he was made Canon of Windsore, in the place of Dr. Charles Sunnibank deceased, and would have risen higher in the Church, had he not been soon after cut off by death. He hath published, Several Sermons, as (1) Gods blessing in blasting, and his mercy in mildew, two Sermons suitable to these times of dearth, on Haggai 2. 17. London 1623. qu. (2) Sermon at Bishop Andrews his Consecration of Jesus Chappel near to Southampton. Printed 1627. in qu. This I have not yet seen, nor others which he, as I conceive, hath publish'd. He paid his last debt to nature on the ninth of May, in sixteen hundred thirty nine, and was buried in the Chappel of S. George at Windsore. In his Canonry John Hales of Eaton, the Walking Library, succeeded. But soon after ejected by the restless Presbyterians, without any regard had to his great Piety and learning.

WILLIAM WHATELY, Son of Tho. Whately 652. by Joyce his Wife, was born at a market Town called Banbury in Oxfordshire, in the month of May 1583, baptized there 26. of the said month, instructed in Grammar in those parts, sent to Christs coll. in Cambridge at 14. years of age, where continuing under the tuition of Mr. Tho. Posman, till he was Bach. of Arts, an. 1601, was taken home for a time by his Father. But his pregnant parts being soon after discovered by understanding men who frequented Banbury, the Father was resolved to make him a Minister, wherefore sending him to S. Edmunds hall in Oxon, in the year following, was incorporated Bach. of Arts, and with the foundation of Logick, Philosophy, and Oratory that he had brought with him from Cambridge, he became a noted Disputant, and a ready Orator. In the year 1604. he took the degree of Master of Arts, as a Member of the said hall, being then esteemed a good Philosopher and a tolerable Mathematician.

tician, and soon after entering into holy Orders, he became Lecturer of Banbury; which place he keeping 4 years, he was made Vicar thereof. He was an excellent Preacher, a person of good parts, well vers'd in the original Text both Hebrew and Greek; but being a Calvinist and much frequented by precise and busie People there, and in the Neighbourhood, for his too frequent Preaching, laid such a foundation of Faction in that place, that it will never be easily removed. His works are these.

Divers Sermons, as, (1) The new birth: or, a treatise of regeneration, delivered in several Sermons, Lond. 1618. qu. &c. (2) The Bride-bush, or Wedding Sermon, on Ephes. 5. 23. Lond. 1617. 19. qu. In which Sermon were noted by curious readers, two propositions, as, First, That committing the Sin of Adultery, by either of the married persons, doth dissolve, annihilate, and untie the bond and knot of marriage. Secondly, That the malicious and wilful desertion of either of the married persons doth in like manner dissolve, &c. These, I say, being noted and complained of to the Archb. he was coven'd before the High Commission to make satisfaction for what he had said and written. But he ingeniously confessing that he could not make any satisfactory answer, he recanted the 4. May 1621. and was forthwith dismissed. (3) Sin no more, on Joh. 5. 14. Lond. 1628. qu. (4) The Oyl of Gladness, in several Sermons. Lond. 1637. oct. (5) Poor Man's advocate, in certain Sermons. Lond. 1637. oct. (6) Redemption of time, on Ephes. 5. 16. Lond. 1606. oct. Besides other Sermons printed in 1614. 16. 19. 1623. 24. 28. 1630. &c.

A pithy, short, and methodical way of opening of the Ten Commandments. Lond. 1622. oct.

Treatise of the cumpers and troubles of Marriage. Lond. 1624. qu.

Prototypes, or Examples out of the book of Genesis, applied to our information and reformation. Lond. 1640. fol. Published by the authors great admirers Edward Liegh Esq; and Hen. Scudder Minister of Colingbourne Ducis in Wiltshire. Before which book is his character, written by the said Scudder a Presbyterian. This Will. Whately surrendred up his pious Soul to God on the tenth day of May in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, and was buried in the yard belonging to the Church at Banbury. Over his grave is a large rais'd monument of stone, and thereon a Lat. and Engl. Epitaph in verse, a Lat. and Engl. Anagram, and a double Chronogram. All which shall be now for brevity sake omitted, except part of the Engl. Epitaph, running thus,

*Whatsoever thoult say who passest by,
Why? here's enshrind Celestiall dust,
His bones, whose name and fame can't dye
These Stones as Feoffees weep in trust.
It's William Wheatly that here lies,
Who swam to's Tomb in's Peoples eyes,

653. EDWARD CHETWYND, the fourth Son of Jo. Chetwynd Esq; was born of an ancient and gentile Family living at Ingestrie near to, and in the County of, Stafford, about the year 1577. admitted Sojournour of Exeter coll. in 1592. took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and became a frequent Preacher in, and near to, Oxon. In 1606. he was elected by the Mayor and Corporation of Abendon in Berks their Lecturer, being then Bac. of Divinity, and in the year following upon the desire of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of Bristow, he was sent by Dr. Hen. Airay Vicechancellour of the University, and Dr. Jo. Rainolds of C. C. C. to that City; where being kindly receiv'd, he was established their Publick Lecturer on the 2. June the same year, to preach one Sermon every Sunday in the afternoon in any Church of that City that the Mayor for the time being should appoint, and one Sermon every Holyday, as he should think fit. In 1613. he was sworn Chaplain to Q. Anne, in 1616. he was admitted D. of D. and in the year after, upon the death of Dr. Sim. Robson, he was promoted by K. James 1. to the Deanery of Bristow, to that Cities great satisfaction, being elected thereunto 16. June the same year. So that whereas he was a little before presented to the rich Rectory of Sutton Colfield in Warwickshire, (twice the value of his Deanry,) he thereupon gave it up, purposely because he would live among, and so consequently please, the inhabitants of Bristow. In that Rectory succeeded an eminent Scholar named Job. Furgefs M. of A. and Doct. of Physick, whose memory is fresh in those parts among the Godly. What other preferments Chetwynd had besides the Vicaridge of Banwell in Somersetsh. and the Vicaridge of Barclay in Glouc. (on the houses belonging to which Vicaridges he bestowed above 300 l.) I know not. He hath published, Concio ad clerum pro gradu habita Oxonia, 19. Dec. 1607. in Act. 20. 24. Oxon. 1608. in oct.

Several English Sermons, as (1) The straight and narrow way to life, in certain Sermons on Luke 13. 23. 24. Lond. 1612. oct. (2) Vow of tears for the loss of Prince Henry. Sermon at Bristow on Sam. 5. 15, 16. Lond. 1613. oct. (3) Serm. on Psal. 51. 10. Lond. 1610. besides others, as 'tis probable, which I have not yet seen. He departed this life on the 13. May in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, 1639. and was buried in the Choire of the Cath. Ch. of Bristow, near the Communion Table, and the grave of Helena his sometimes Wife, Daughter of Sir Job. Harrington the eminent Poet of Kelston in Somersetsh. Kt; which Helena died in Childbed 9. Nov. 1628. aged 39. The Reader may be pleased now to take notice that this Dr. Edward Chetwynd, with John (+) Whetcombe, Job. Standard, &c. Divines and Doctors of Divinity; Sir Sim. Baskerville Knight, and Rob. Vituaine Doctors of Physick, were the learned persons of Exeter college, which Dr. Job. Prideaux in an Epistle before a Sermon preached at the consecration of the Chappel in that Coll. an. 1624. did enumerate, as being then living, and ornaments of the said house. See more in Thom. Holland under the year 1611.

WILLIAM LEIGH, a Lancashire man born, was entred a Student in Brasnose coll. an. 1571. and in 73. he was elected Fellow thereof. Afterwards he took the degrees in Arts, entred into the Sacred Function, and became a painful Preacher in the University and parts adjacent. In 1586. or thereabouts, he being promoted to the Rectory of Standish in his own Country, took the degree of Bac. of Div. and on the 24. of Nov. 1587. he resigned his Fellowship, settled at Standish for altogether, was made Justice of the Peace there, and held in great esteem for his learning and godliness. He hath published,

Several Sermons, as, (1) Fun. Sermon. Job. 14. 14. printed 1602. in oct. And the third on 2 Kings 18. 5, 6. Lond. 1612. oct. (4) The damp of death, beaten back with the glorious light and life of Jesus Christ, preached at Lancaster Assize, on Coloss. 3. 3, 4. Lond. 1613. oct. (5) The Soul's solace against Sorrow, Fun. Sermon preached in Childwal Church in Lancashire at the burial of Mrs. Katharine Brettergh, 3. June 1601. on Isay 57. 1. He gave way to fate in a good old age in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, and was buried in the Chancel of his Church at Standish 28. Nov. Over his grave is a brasse plate fastned to the wall at the east end of the said Chancel, whereon is this engraven. *Conditum est hic corpus Gulielmi Leigh S. T. bac. vera religionis professoris sinceri, haresum propulsatoris acerrimi, concionatoris suavissimi, hujus Ecclesie quinquaginta tres annos pastoris vigilantiss. cujus nonnulla extant, pluraque desiderantur opera, evocati ex hac vita 26. HENRY WOTTON, a person singularly accomplished, Son of Tho. Wotton Esq; by his second Wife Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir Will. Finch of the Mote in St. Martins Parish in the County of Kent, but the Widdow of one Morton of the same County Esq; was born at Bolton hall in Kent 30. March 1568. educated in Grammar learning in *Wykeham*s School near to Winchester, and thence in the beginning of 1584. he was transplanted to New coll. where living in the condition of a Gent. Com. had his (+) Dr. Job. Whetcombe Maidennutensum Pastor. He died suddenly in the house of Angel Grey Esq; of Kington near Dorchester in Dorsetshire, before the year 1648. aged 60.

Chamber

Chamber in Hart hall adjoining, and to his Chamber-Fellow there Rich. Baker his Countryman, afterwards a Knight and a noted writer. But continuing there not long, he went to Queens coll. where, by the benefit of a good Tutor and severe discipline there practised, he became well vers'd in Logick and Philosophy; and for a diversion now and then, he wrote a Tragedy for the private use of that house called Tancredo. On the 8. June 1588. he, as a Member of Q. coll. did supplicate the venerable Congregation of Regents that he might be admitted to the reading of any of the books of the Logick of Aristotle, that is to be admitted to the degree of Bach. of Arts: which desire of his was granted conditionally that he should determine in the Lent following; but whether he was admitted, or did determine, or took any other degree, it doth not appear in any of the University Registers, which I have exactly searched, and the more for this reason, because the (a) author of his life saith, that at 19 years of age he proceeded Master of Arts, and at that time did read three Lat. Lectures De Oculo; which being learned, caused a friendship between him and Alberic. Gentilis, who thereupon ever after called him Henrice mi Oculo. The said author also saith, that the University Treasury was rob'd by Townsmen and poor Scholars, of which such light was given by a Letter written to Hen. Wotton from his Father in Kent, occasioned by a dream relating to that matter, that the Felons were thereupon discovered and apprehended, &c. But upon my search into the University Registers, Records, Accompts, &c. from 1584. to 1589. in which time our author Wotton was resident in Oxon, I find no such robbery committed. To pass by other mistakes in the said life, especially as to time, which are not proper to set down in this place, I shall go forward. After our author had left Oxon, he betook himself to travel into France, Germany, and Italy; and having spent about 9 years in those places, he returned into England, and became Secretary to Robert Earl of Essex, with whom continuing till towards his fall, he left England once more, and retiring to Florence, became so noted to the Great Duke of Tuscany, that he was by him privately dispatched away with letters to James 6. K. of Scots, under the name of Octavio Baldi to advise him of a design to take away his life. Which message being welcome to that K. he was by him (when made K. of England) honoured with the degree of Knighthood, sent thrice Ambassador to the Reipub. of Venice, once to the States of the United Provinces, twice to Charles Emanuel Duke of Savoy, once to the united Princes of Upper Germany in the Convention at Heylbrunn, also to the Archduke Leopold, to the Duke of Wittenbergh, to the Imperial Cities of Strasburgh and Ulme, as also to the Emperor Ferdinando the second. On the 15. July 1619. he returned from his Embassie at Venice with a vain (b) hope of obtaining the office of Secretary of State, but missing his design, I cannot yet tell to the contrary but that he was sent to Venice again. Sure 'tis, that about 1623. he had the Provostship of Eaton coll. confer'd upon him, which he kept to his dying day, being all the reward he had for the great services he had done the Crown of England. He hath written these things following.

Epistola de Casparo Scioppio. Amberg. 1613. oct. This Scioppius was a man of a restless spirit, and a malicious pen; who, in books against K. Jam. 1. took occasion from a sentence written by Sir Hen. Wotton in a German Album (viz. Legatus est vir bonus, peregrè missus ad mentiendum Reipublice causâ) to twit him in the teeth what principles in Religion were professed by him and his Ambassador Wotton, then at Venice, where the said sentence was also written in several glass windows.

Three propositions to the Count d'Angosciola in matter of duel, comprehending (as it seems) the latitude of that subject. — MS. sometimes in the Library of my most worthy Friend Ralph Sheldon Esq; now among the books in the Coll. of Arms. The first proposition is, Quale sia stato, &c. The said Count was a Gentleman of Parma, from whence he was banished, and afterwards lived in the Court of Savoy, where he was esteemed a very punctual Duellist, and there managed many differences between Gentlemen. Other MSS. also of his composition do go from hand to hand, which I have not yet seen. At length after Sir H. Wotton had spent 72 years in this vain and transitory World, did conclude his last day in Eaton coll. near to Windsore, in the month of Decemb. in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, and was buried in the Chappel belonging to the said College. When he made his Will he appointed this Epitaph to be put over his grave. Hic jacet hujus sententia primus author Disputandi pruritus, Ecclesiarum scabies. Nomen aliàs quare. In his Provostship of Eaton coll. succeeded Rich. Stuart Doctor of the Civil Laws, and Clerk of the Closet to King Ch. 1. of whom I shall make farther mention under the year 1651.

THOMAS HUTTON, a Londoner born, was elected Scholar of St. Johns coll. from Merchant-Taylor's School in 1584. aged 19. of which coll. he was afterwards made Fellow. In 1591. he proceeded in Arts, and about that time entering into the Sacred Function, he became a frequent Preacher, Bac. of Divinity, afterwards Rector of North-Lewe in Devonshire, Vicar of S. Kew in Cornwall and Prebendary of Exeter. His works are,

An answer to several reasons for refusal to subscribe to the book of Common-Prayer, &c. Oxon. 1605. qu. Answer'd by Anonymous in a book intit. The removal of certain imputations laid upon the Ministers of Devon and Cornwall, by one Mr. T. H. &c. — Printed 1606. qu. He also published,

After the publication of which, came out The second part of the defence of the Ministers reasons for refusal of subscription and conformity to the book of Common Prayer against the several answers of Tho. Hutton Bac. of Div. in his two books against the Ministers of Dev. and Cornw. &c. printed 1608. qu. Whether written by the before mention'd Anon. I cannot tell. Another answer also was published against it by a nameless author, intit. A dispute upon the question of kneeling in the act of receiving the Sacramental Bread and Wine—Printed 1608. qu. This also answer'd the book of Will. Covel D. D. which he wrote against Mr. Jo. Burges, called An Apology to the B. of Linc. &c. Tho. Spark's book intit. Brotherly perswasion to Unity, &c. and Fr. Mason's Authority of the Church in making Canons, &c. At length our author Hutton having lived to the age of 74. years died in his Vicaridge house at St. Kewe in Cornwall before mentioned, in the month of Decemb. (about Christmas day) in six-1639. teen hundred thirty and nine, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church there. Some years after was a Monument set up in the wall over his grave, with a large inscription thereon, part of which runs thus. Vir optima fide & moribus, 40 annos Ecclesiastes, nulli opere evangelico secundus, ecclesia & musæi captivus, sacris lectione precibus assiduus, Septuagenarius illaso visu, memoria acumina: literarum sanctæ Græc. Lat. Gall. Ital. callentissimus. Ad sacetias Rhetoricæ & poeticæ præsentis impetu Theologus omni literaturâ instructiss. apparatiss. Demum Prædicator nunquam satis prædicandus. This Epitaph being set up several years after Mr. Tho. Hutton died, the time of his death was by the Executor forgotten, for instead of the time of his burial, which was according to the Register of St. Kewe, on the 27. Dec. 1639. he caused in his Epitaph to be put, that he died 20. of Dec. 1640.

657. THOMAS LYTE, a Gentleman studious of all good knowledge, as the learned Camden his acquaintance (a) tells us, was the Son of Hen. Lyte mentioned under the year 1607. by his second Wife Frances Daughter of John Tiptoft of London, and after he had been partly educated in Grammar learning in his native Country of Somersetshire, did spend several years in Academics in this University: But his Genie being mostly inclined to Genealogies and Histories, he left it without a degree, and retiring to his Patrimony and ancient Seat called Lytes-cary in the said County, did draw up, with very great curiosity, the Genealogy of James 1. from Brute, written by him on Vellum with his own hand fairer than any print, it was also illuminated with admirable flourishes and painting, and had the pictures of the Kings and Queens mentioned therein, most neatly performed by the hands of an exact Limner. This Genealogy the author did dedicate to his Majesty, who, after a long and serious perusal of it, gave the said author his picture in Gold, set with diamonds, with gracious thanks. Charles Prince of Wales (afterwards K. Ch. 1.) was so exceedingly taken with it, that he gave the author his picture in Gold also. Camden before mentioned had the perusal of it, and underneath wrote with his own hand about 6 verses in commendation of it and the author. About which time it being hang'd up in publick in one of the rooms at Whitehall, became by the carelessness of pages and idle people a little spoiled: wherefore upon the authors desire made to his Majesty, it was engraven on copper and printed, with this title,

The most royally ennobled Genealogy of the high and mighty Prince, and renowned Monarch, James, by the Grace of God K. of Great Brittain, &c. extracted from Brute the most noble Founder of the Brittain, as also from the first original of the Scots, from them ascending to the Imperial Romans, the warlike Picts, the Saxons, Danes, and conquering Normans: with his lineal descent from Charlemaine, and other the modern Kings of France, their several regiments, titles, honors, matches, surnames, and descents, when they began their Reign, how long each Prince ruled and governed, the Estate Royal, the manner of their death and place of burial. Whereunto is added their Regal Ensigns, Arms, achievements of Honour, Emblems and memorable Epitaphs, &c. reduced into a Genealogical Table, &c.—Printed at Lond. in forma patentis.— This Mr. Tho. Lyte died in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, or thereabouts, and was buried in, or near to, the grave of his Father, in the north Isle of the Church of Charlton-Makerel in Somersetshire (which Isle belongs to the Lytes of Lytes-cary) leaving then behind him other matters fit to be printed, and the character of an ingenious and learned Gentleman.

THOMAS COVENTRIE, Son of Tho. Co-⁶⁵⁸ventrie, sometimes fellow of Ball. coll. was born at, or near to, Crome D'abitos in Worcestershire, became a Gent. Commoner of the said coll. in Michaelm.-Term, an. 1592. aged 14, whence, after he had continued under a strict Discipline for about 3 years, he went to the Inner Temple, and pursuing his fathers steps in the laudable studies of the Municipal Laws, was made choice of for the Autumn Reader of that House, 14. Jac. 1. Dom. 1616. and on the 17. Nov. the same year was (b) elected Recorder of London. In 1617, about the 17. of March, he was made (c) the Kings Solicitor General, upon the promotion of Hen. Yelverton to be Attorney General, and afterwards Knighted and made Attorney Gen. On the 30. of Oct. 1 Car. 1. he was advanced to that eminent Office of Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, tho' of no transcendent parts or fame, as the Puritans said, and upon the 10. Apr. 4 Car. 1. was (d) dignified with the degree of a Baron of England by the title of Lord Coventry of Ailesborough in his native Country. He hath extant, Several speeches, as (1) Speech at the opening of the Parliament, 6. Feb. 1625. (2) Sp. in Parl. 29. Feb. 1626. chiefly concerning the Duke of Bucks. (3) Sp. at the opening of the Parl. 17. Mar. 1627. (4) Sp. to both Houses of Parl. 28. Apr. 1628. (5) Sp. at a Conference, 26. May 1628. (6) Sp. in Parl. 2. June 1628. (7) Sp. at the delivery of a Message from the K. to the H. of C. 6. Jun. 1628. (8) Reply to Sir Jo. Finch Speaker. (9) Second Reply, &c. (10) Answer to the Petition against Recusants, &c. Besides these Speeches and several discourses, goes under his name, Perfect and exact directions to all those, that desire to know the true and just fees of all the Offices belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, Chancery, &c. Lond. in oct. He ended his days in Durham House in the Strand near London, (in a seasonable time, said the Puritan and discontented Party) on the 14. Jan. in sixteen hundred ¹⁶³⁹thirty and nine, and was buried in the Church of Crome D'abitos beforemention'd, on the first of March following, after he had enjoyed the Dignity of Lord Keeper about 15 years, if it be not more proper to say, that Dignity had enjoyed him so long. His front and presence did bespeak a venerable regard, not inferior to any of his Antecessors. His train and suit of followers were disposed agreeably to shun both envy and contempt; not like that of Bacon Visc. S. Albans, or of Williams B. of Lincoln, whom he succeeded, ambitious and vain; his port was state, theirs ostentation, &c. See more of his character in The Reign of K. Ch. 1. under the year 1639. written by Ham. L'Estrange. Lond. 1656. fol. which being just, I wonder he did not animadvert upon a certain (e) Libel, which tells us, that had the Lord Coventries actions been scanned by a Parliament, he had been found as foul a man as ever lived.

ROBERT BURTON, known otherwise to ⁶⁵⁹Scholars by the name of Democritus Junior, younger Brother to Will. Burton, whom I shall mention under the year 1645, was born of an ancient and gentle family at Lindley in Leicestershire, 8. Feb. 1576, and therefore in the titles of several of his choice books which he gave to the publick Library, he added to his Surname Lindliacus Leicestrensis. He was educated in Grammar learning in the Free-School of Sutton-Colfield in Warwickshire, whence he was sent to Brasnose coll. in the long vacation, an. 1593. where he made a considerable progress in Logic and Philosophy in the condition of a Commoner. In 1599. he was elected Student of Ch. Ch. and for form sake, tho he wanted not a Tutor, he was put under the tuition of Dr. John Bancroft, afterwards Bishop of Oxon. In 1614. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, and on the 29. Nov. 1616. he had the Vicaridge of St. Thomas Parish in the West Suburb of Oxon confer'd on him by the Dean and Canons of Ch. Church, (to the parishioners whereof, he always gave the Sacrament in Wafers) which, with the Rectory of Segrave in Leicester-shire, given to him some years after by George Lord Berkley, he kept with much ado to his dying day. He was an exact Mathematician, a curious calculator of Nativities, a general read Scholar, a thro-pac'd Philologist, and one that understood the surveying of Lands well. As he was by many accounted a severe student, a devourer of authors, a melancholy and humerous person; so by others, who knew him well, a person of great honesty, plain dealing and charity. I have heard some of the Antients of Ch. Ch. often say that his company was very merry, facete and juvenile, and no man in his time did surpass him for his ready and dextrous interlarding his common discourses among them with verses from the Poets or sentences from classical authors. Which being then all the fashion in the University, made his company more acceptable. He hath written,

The Anatomy of Melancholy— First printed in qu. and afterwards several times in fol. an. 1624. 1632, 38, and 1652. &c. to the great profit of the Bookseller, who got an estate by it. 'Tis a book so full of variety of reading, that Gentlemen who have lost their time and put to a push for invention, may furnish themselves with matter for common or scholastical discourse and writing. Several authors have unmercifully stolen matter from the said book without any acknowledgment, particularly one Will. Greenwood, in his book intit. A description of the passion of Love, &c. Lond. 1657. oct. Who, as others of the like humour do, sometimes take his quotations without the least mention of Democritus Junior. He the said R. Burton paid his last debt to nature, in his Chamber in Ch. Ch. at, or very near that time, which he had some years before foretold from the calculation of his own nativity, which being exact, several of the Students did not forbear to whisper among themselves, that rather than there should be a mistake in the calculation, he sent up his soul to heaven thro a slip about his neck. His body was afterwards with due solemnity buried near that of Dr. Rob. Weston, in the north isle which joyns next to the choir of the Cath. of Ch. Church, on the 27. of January in sixteen hundred thirty and nine. Over his grave was soon after erected a comely Monument on the upper pillar of the said isle, with his bust painted to the life: On the right hand of which is the calculation of his nativity, and under the bust this inscription made by himself; all put up by the care of William Burton his brother. Paucis notus, paucioribus ignotus, hic jacet Democritus junior, cui vitam dedit, & mortem melancholia. Obiit viii. Id. Jan. A.C. M. DCXXXIX. He left behind him a very choice library of books, many of which he bequeathed to that of Bodley, and a hundred pounds to buy five pounds yearly for the supplying of Ch. Ch. Library with books.

40. ROBERT MOOR, was born at Holyard in Hampshire, educated in Wykeham's School, admitted perpetual Fellow of New coll. 1589, took the degrees in Arts, and at length, was numbred among the best of Preachers in that house. In 1597 he left the coll. being then benefited at Westmean in his own Country, was afterwards made Prebendary of Winchester, and in the year 1614. took the degrees in Divinity. His younger years were adorned with variety of learning, and his elder with solid and substantial Divinity: which last made him as much respected in his native country towards his latter end, as he was before in the University for this book following, of his writing and publication when he was a young man.

Lib. 12. Oxon. 1595. qu.* What other things he hath published I know not as yet, nor any thing else of him, only that he died on the 20. of Febr. in sixteen hundred thirty and nine, (having had, for some years before, divers contests with Neile his Diocesan for his introducing certain ceremonies into the Cath. at Winchester) and was buried in the Chancel of the Church at Westmean before mention'd. Over his grave was soon after a Monument put, with six verses thereon: the two first of which run thus.

PHILIPP MASSINGER, Son of Phil. Massinger 661.
ger a servant belonging to the Pembrochian family, made his first entry on the stage of this vain world, within the City of Salisbury, was entred a Commoner in St. Albans hall, in the seventeenth year of his age 1601. where, tho encouraged in his studies by the Earl of Pembroke, yet, he applied his mind more to Poetry and Romances for about four years or more, than to Logick and Philosophy, which he ought to have done, and for that end was patronized. Afterwards leaving the University without the honour of a degree, he retired to the great City to improve his fancy and studies by conversation. At length being sufficiently fam'd for several specimens of wit, wrote divers Comedies and Tragedies for the English Stage, (besides other things) much applauded and cryed up in their time, when acted and published. Their names are these.

City Madam, Com. Lond. 1659. qu. published by one, who calls himself Andr. Penniewicke. He was also one of the three (Thom. Middleton and Will. Rowley being the other two) who had a hand in The old Law, Com. Lond. 1656. qu. and was sole author, if a cat. of Plays at the end of The old Law, may be believed, of Virtuous Octavia, Trag. and of Ram Alley, Com. As to this last, there is without doubt a mistake, for all readers of Plays cannot but know that Ram Alley, or merry Tricks, was pen'd by the Lord Barry an Irish man, and that it was acted by the Children of the Kings revels, before 1611. As for our author Ph. Massinger, he made his last exit very suddenly, in his house on the Bank-side in Southwerk, near to then Play-house, for he went to bed well and was dead before morning. Whereupon his body, being accompanied by Comedians, was buried about the middle of that Ch. yard belonging to S. Saviours Church there, commonly called the Bull-head Church yard, that is, in that, which joyns to the Bull-head Tavern (for there are in all four yards belonging to that Church) on the 18. day of March in sixteen hundred thirty and nine. Sir Aston Cockaine Baronet 1639 in his Choice Poems of several sorts, &c. Lond. 1658. oct. hath in pag. 186. an Epitaph on Mr. Joh. Fletcher and Mr. Philip Massinger, who, as he saith, lye buried both in one grave in St. Mary Overies Church (alias S. Saviours) in Southwerk. See more in Sir John Beaumont under the year 1628. where you'll find more of those two persons. One Walt. Messenger or Massinger was a student in S. Alb. hall in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, whom I take to be either Father or Uncle to Philip the Poet.

JOHN VICCARS, was originally of the University of Cambridge, where taking one degree in Arts, retired to Oxon, settled in Lincolne coll. in the condition of a Commoner, an. 1624, and the next year proceeded in Arts as a member of that house. Afterwards he travelled beyond the Seas, visited divers Academies and Receptacles of learning, and gained from them and their respective Libraries great experience and knowledge. He hath written, Decapla in psalmos. Sive commentarius ex decem Linguis, antiquis patribus, Rab. Historicis & Poetis, &c. Lond. 1639.

Decapla

 1639: fol. which book doth plainly demonstrate, that he was a most admirable Linguist, and the best for the Oriental tongues in his time. I shall make large mention of John Vicars the Poet among the writers under the year 1652.

663: JOHN SPEED, Son of Jo. Sp. the Chronologer, was born in London, elected Scholar of S. John's coll. from Merchant Taylors School in 1612. aged 17. Afterwards he was made Fellow thereof, M. of A. Bach. and Doctor of Physick of this Univ. In which last faculty he became eminent (especially for the practick part) among the Academians; and had, if death had not snatched him too soon away, published several matter of it. He hath written,

Σκελετοὶ utriusque sexus τοικυεύς—MS. written in Latine, dedicated to Dr. Land Archb. of Cantab. and reserved in S. John's coll. Library as a rarity. The said MS. points at, and hath relation to, the two Skeletons (one of a man, another of a woman) standing at the north end of the Mathematick Library of the said college; which Skeletons were made, and given to the said Library, by our author Dr. Speed, who hath also written, Stonehenge, a pastoral—Acted before Dr. Rich. Baylie the President, and Fellows, of the said coll. in their common refectory, at what time the said Doctor was returned from Salisbury, after he had been installed Dean thereof, an. 1635. The said Pastoral is not printed, but goes about in MS. from hand to hand. Dr. Speed who was, by all persons that knew him, accounted an ingenious man, died in the month of May, in sixteen hundred and forty, and was buried in the Chappel of S. John's coll. leaving then behind him a Son named Samuel, who was afterwards a Student of Ch. Ch. and M. of A. (installed Canon of the said Church on the death of Dr. Seb. Smith, on the sixth day of May 1674.) and another named John, afterwards Fellow of St. John's coll. and Doctor of Physick, living now at Southampton.

664: THOMAS FITZHERBERT, Son of Will. Fitzherbert (by Isabell his Wife, Daughter and one of the heirs of Humph. Swinnerton of Swinnerton in Staffordshire) fourth Son of Sir Anth. Fitzherbert Knight (the famous Lawyer) Son of Ralph Fitzherbert of Norbury in Derbyshire, was born in the said County of Stafford, an. 1552. in which County being initiated in Grammer learning, was sent either to Exeter, or Lincoln coll. in 1568: But having been mostly before trained up in the Cath. Religion, the college seemed uneasy to him, for tho he would now and then hear a Sermon, which he was permitted to do by an old Roman Priest that then lived abscondedly in Oxon, (for to him he often retired to receive instructions as to matters of Religion) yet he would seldom or never go to prayers, for which he was often admonished by the Sub-Rector of his house. At length he seeming to be wearied with the heresie (as he stil'd it) of those times, he receded without a degree to his Patrimony, where also refusing to go to his parish Church, was imprison'd about 1572. But being soon after set at liberty, he became more zealous in his Religion, defended it against the Protestant Ministers, and not only confirm'd and strengthened many wavering Catholics therein, but wrote also several valid reasons for the not going of Catholics to Protestant Churches; for which being like to suffer, he withdrew and lived abscondedly. In 1580. when Campion and Persons the Jesuits came into the mission of England, he retired to London, found them out, shew'd himself exceeding civil, and exhibited to them liberally. Whereupon bringing himself into a premunire, and foreseeing great danger to come on him and all Catholics, he went as a voluntary exile into France, an. 1582. where he continued a zealous solicitor in the cause of Mary Queen of Scots with the K. of France and Duke of Guise for her relief, tho in vain. After her decollation, and all hopes of the Catholics frustrated for the present, he left that Country, and the rather because that he, about that time, had buried his Wife, and forthwith went into Spain. For some years there he became a zealous agitator in the Royal Court for the relief of Catholics and their Religion in England, but his actions and the labours of many more of that nature being frustrated by the Spaniards repulse in 1588. he, under pretence of being weary with the troubles and toyles of this life, receded to Mil-

laine with the Duke of Feria. Whence, after some continuance there, he went to Rome, where he was initiated in sacred Orders, took a lodging near to the English college, and observed all hours and times of Religion, as they in the college did, by the sound of their bell, and there composed certain books, of which that against Machiavel was one. A certain author of little or no note named James Wadsworth, tells (*) us that the said Tho. Fitzherbert had been before a Pensioner, and Spye to the King of Spain in France, and his service being past, and his pension failing him, out of pure necessity, he, and his man, were constrained to turn Jesuits, or else starve. And he being a worthy Scholar and a great Politician, was very welcome to that Order. But let this report remain with the author, who is characteriz'd by a Protestant (†) writer to be a Renegado profelyte-Turncote, of any Religion, and every trade, now living 1655. a common hackney to the basest Catch-pole Bayliffs, &c. while I proceed. In 1614 he took upon him the habit of the Society of Jesuit, on the feast of the Purification, initiated therein on the vigil of the Annuntiation following, and on the next day he sung his first Mass. Afterwards he presided the mission at Bruxells for two years, and at length, much against his will, he was made Rector of the English coll. or seminary at Rome, which he governed with great praise about 22. years. He was a person of excellent parts, had a great command of his tongue and pen, was a noted Politician, a singular lover of his Country men, especially those who were Catholics, and of so graceful behaviour and generous spirit, that great endeavours were used to have him created a Cardinal some years after Allens death, and it might have been easily effected, had he not stood in his own way. He hath written,

A defence of the Catholick cause, containing a Treatise in confutation of sundry untruths and slanders published by the Hereticks, &c. S. Omers 1602.

Apology or defence of his innocence in a fained conspiracy against her Majesties person, for the which one Edw. Squire was wrongfully condemned and executed; in Nov. 1598.—Printed with the Defence before mention'd. This is the book which the learned Camden tells (a) us was written by Walpole a Jesuit, or one under his name.

Treatise concerning policy and religion. Down 1606. qu. Wherein are confuted several principles of Machiavel. The second part of the said Treatise, was printed also at Down 1610. and both together in 1615. qu. A third part was printed at Lond. 1652. qu. being then cried up for a good book, as the other parts had been.

An sit utilitas in scelere, vel de infelicitate Principis Machiavellani. Rome 1610. oct.

Suppliment to the discussion of Mr. Dr. Burlows answer to the judgment of a Cath. Engl. Man, &c. interrupted by the death of the author F. Rob. Persons Jesuit. S. Omer 1613. qu. published under the two letters of F. T.

Censure of Dr. Joh. Donne's book intit. Pleudo-Martyr. Additions to the Suppliment.—These two last are printed at the end of the Suppliment to the discussion, &c. against Dr. Will. Barlow B. of Line. before-mentioned.

Confutation of certain absurdities in Lancelot Andrews's answer to Bellarmin.—Printed 1603. qu. and published under the two letters of F. T. instead of T. F. This was written in vindication of Card. Bellarmine's Apology for his answer made to K. James's book De jure fidel. Whereupon came out a book intit. Epiphata, to F. T. or a defence of the Bishop of Ely (Lanc. Andrews) concerning his answer to Card. Bellarmine's Apology, against the calumnies of a scandalous Pamphlet. Cambr. 1617. qu. written by Sam. Collins D. D. a Buckinghamsh. man born, Provost of Kings coll. in Cambridge, elected the Kings Prof. of Div. of that University, 22. Oct. 1617. afterwards made Prebendary of Ely, and Parson of Somersham. Who, in succeeding times, proving a high Royallist, was removed from his Provostship by order of Parliament 1645. Afterwards he lived retiredly in Cambridge, till the time of his death 1651. leaving then behind him the character of a Great Scholar. Our author Fitzherbert afterwards wrote and published,

Of the Oath of Fidelity or Allegiance, against the Theological disputations of Rog. Widdrington. S. Omer. 1614. qu.

The Obmutesce of F. T. to the Epiphata of Dr. Collins, &c.—Printed 1621. oct. with other things which I have not yet seen. He surrendered up his Soul to that God that inspired it, on the 17. of Aug. according to the accompt followed at Rome, in sixteen hundred and forty, and in that of his age eighty and eight, and was buried in the chappel belonging to the English college at Rome. He had a Son named Edward, living, I suppose, at the time of his death, to whom he dedicated the first part of the Treatise concerning Policy and Religion, an. 1606. which Edward was a most zealous man for the Rom. Catholick Religion, and whether he was a Priest or a Gentleman, I know not.

THOMAS JACKSON, the ornament of the University in his time, was born at Witton on the River Weer in the Bishoprick of Durham on the day of S. Thomas the Apostle, an. 1579. became a Student in Queens coll. under the tuition of Crakanthorpe, in Midsummer Term 1595. was admitted Scholar of C.C. coll. 24. of March 1596. and Prob. Fellow 10. May 1606. being then M. of A. and had laid the grounds carefully in Arithmetick, Grammar, Philology, Geometry, Rhetorick, Logick, Philosophy, Oriental Languages, Histories, &c. with an insight in Heraldry and Hieroglyphicks. All which he made use of to serve either as rubbish under the foundation, or as Drudges and Day labourers to Theology. In 1622. he proceeded D. D. and two years after left his coll. for a Benefice in his own Country, which the President and Society thereof had then lately confer'd on him. But he keeping the said living not long, was made Vicar of S. Nicholas Church in Newcastle upon Tyne, where he was much followed and admired for his excellent way of Preaching, which was then Puritanical. At length being elected President of C.C. coll. partly with the helps of Neile Bishop of Durham, (who before had taken him off from his precise way, and made him his Chaplain,) but more by the endeavours of Dr. Laud, and also made Chaplain in Ordinary to his Majesty, he left the said Vicaridge, and was made Prebendary of Winchester, Vicar of Witney in Oxfordshire, and Dean of Peterborough in the place of Dr. Joh. Towers promoted to the Episcopal See thereof, by the favour of the said Laud, an. 1638. He was a person furnished with all learned languages, Arts and Sciences, especially in Metaphysicks, which he looked upon as a necessary hand-maid to Divinity. He was also profoundly read in the Fathers, and was of a wonderful and deep judgment, as it appears by his works that are much admired by all persons. None wrote more highly concerning the attributes of God, and more vigorous in some of his works, against the Church of Rome, than he.— I speak it in the presence of God, (saith (a) one) I have not read so hearty, vigorous a Champion against Rome, (amongst our writers of his rank) so convincing and demonstrative, as Dr. Jackson is. I bless God for the confirmation which he hath given me in the Christian Religion against the A. theist, Jew, and Socinian; and in the Protestant against Rome, &c. In a word he was a man of a blameless life, studious, humble, courteous and very charitable, devout towards God and exemplary in private and publick, beloved of Laud Archb. of Cant. and blamed by none in any respect, but by the restless Presbyterians; the chief of whom, Will. Prynne, who busily concerned himself in all affairs, doth give him this (b) character in the name of the Brethren.— Dr. Jackson of Oxon is a Man of great abilities, and of a plausible, affable, courteous deportment, till of late he hath been transported beyond himself, with Metaphysical contemplations to his own infamy and his renowned Mothers shame, I mean the University of Oxon, who grieves for his defection; from whose duggs he never sucked his poisonous doctrines.— Also that he is (as in another (c) place he tells us) of civil conversation and learning, which made his errors and preferments more dangerous and pernicious, and that it was his Arminian errors, not his learning or honesty, that were the ground of his advancement to his Dignity, &c. He tells us also in another (d) place, that he was convented in the last Parliament, yea openly accused in the last Convocation for his heretical Arminian books, which have been censured by Mr. Hen. Burton in his Seven Viols, and particularly answered by acute and learned Dr. Twisse, &c. The Parliament that Prynne means, was that which sate in 1628. wherein he had like to have been shent for certain Tenets, I cannot say, so far driven by him, as by some men since, and now, they have, and are, with great applause. His works are these.

The eternal truth of Scriptures, and Christian belief, thereon wholly depending, manifested by its own light. Lond. 1613. qu. This is the first book of his Comments on the Creed.

How far the ministry of men is necessary for planting true Christian Faith, and retaining the unity of it planted. Lond. 1614. qu. This is the second book of his Com. on the Creed.

The first part was dedicated to Will. Earl of Pembroke, with a plausible Epistle, wherein, as one (*) saith, 'The author professeth himself an Arminian, and Patron of their Tenets. And from chap. 8. to the 20. he professedly maintains a mutability in Gods eternal Decrees of Election and Reprobation, depending upon the actions and wills of Men, Universal Grace and Redemption; with other Arminian errors. This book, though publickly complained of, was never called in by the Bishop, (Laud) but the second part thereof was printed with License, an. 1629. and the author of it advanced to the Presidentship of C.C. coll. in Oxon, by this Bishop, yea by him designed to be Doctor of the Chaire (though he missed that preferment) to poison the University of Oxford with his Arminian druggs.

The knowledge of Jesus Christ. Or the seventh book of the Commentary of the Apostles Creed.— A larger title of this runs thus, Christ exercising his everlasting Priesthood, &c. A. of Cambridge, who had before published the second edit. of the three first book.— Lond. 1653. fol. with a large Preface likewise of his composition, but the life which followed was written by Edm. Vaughan, as I shall anon tell you. This Barnabas Oley was installed Prebendary of Worcester 4. of Septemb. 1660. and was afterwards Bach. of Divinity, and Archdeacon of Ely. He died 20. Febr. 1685. whereupon Joh. Hough B. D. of Magd. coll. in Oxon, succeeded him in his Prebendship and Will. Saywell D. D. Master of Jesus coll. in Cambridge, in his Archdeaconry.

Twenty Sermons, or thereabouts.

Most of which Books, Sermons, and Treatises, having been published at several times, were collected together, (with others added to them,) and printed at Lond. 1672. 73. in three volumes in fol. with the authors life prefixed, (as it was before the three first books of Comments on the Creed. Lond. 1653. fol.) written by Edm. Vaughan, sometimes Fellow of C. C. coll. whom I shall mention elsewhere. Our author Dr. Jackson also wrote,

An historical narration.— This I have not yet seen, nor do I know farther of its title. It was licensed by Dr. Edw. Martin Domestick Chaplain to Bishop Laud, without his privity, for which he turn'd him out of his service (as he (e) himself saith) and the book called in and suppressed. But Prynne an implacable enemy to that Bishop saith, (f) that the said Historical narration, which was the vilest imposture that ever was thrust upon our Church, was licensed by the said Martin with Lauds privity, and that the calling of it in, was the act of Archb. Abbot upon Prynnes complaint and the publick scandal it gave, much against Lauds will, who ever since connived at the sale of them. At length after our author Dr. Th. Jackson had spent 60 years or more, in this life, mostly in studies and devotion, surrendered up his devout Soul to him that gave it on the 21. of Sept. 1640. in sixteen hundred and forty, and was buried in the Inner Chappel of Corp. Ch. coll. but hath no memory at all over his grave. In his Presidentship of the said coll. succeeded Dr. Rob. Neulin, D. D. and in his Deanry of Peterborough succeeded Dr. John Cofin born in the City of Norwich and educated in Cajes coll. who was first Prebendary of Durham, then Archdeacon of the East-riding of Yorksh. next Rector of the Church of Branspeth in the Bishoprick of Durham, afterwards Master of St. Peters coll. commonly called Peter-house, in Cambridge, and Vice-chancellor of that University, then Dean of Peterborough as is before mentioned, Chaplain in Ord. to K. Ch. 1. and 2. and lastly, after the sequestration and plunder of all he had, and 17 years exile for his Loyalty, was consecrated Bishop of Durham 2. Dec. 1660. He died in his lodging in the street called the Palmer in the Suburbs of Westminster (after he had bestowed much wealth on pious and publick uses) on the fifteenth day of Januar. 1671. aged 77. whereupon his body was conveyed with great solemnity to Bishops Auckland in his Diocess, and there buried on the 29. of Apr. 1672. The Reader is now to know that there was another Tho. Jackson who was a writer also, born in Lancashire, educated, as it seems, in Cambridge, afterwards Minister of Wye in Kent, and at length Prebendary of Canterbury and D. of Div. This person who mostly seemed to be a true Son of the Church of England, a hater of Papists, Arminians and Sectaries, published, (1) Seven Sermons, on the 23. Psal. of David. Lond. 1603. oct. (2) The Converts happiness, Sermon on Rev. 3. 20. Lond. 1609. qu. (3) The raging tempest still'd. The history of Christs passage with his Disciples over the Sea of Galilee, &c. Lond. 1623. qu. (4) Help to the best bargain, &c. Sermon in the Cath. of Canterb. 26. Oct. 1623. Lond. 1624. in oct. and other things which I have not yet seen. He was living in Septemb. 1644. being then the Senior Prebendary of Christ-Church in Canterbury, and died shortly after, having before cast a stone against Archbishop Laud when he was to be tried for his life.

JOHN BALL, Son of Will. Ball and Agnes Mabet 666: his Wife, was born of a plebeian family at Cassington alias Cherfington near to Woodstock in Oxfordshire, in the beginning of Octob. 1585. and baptized the 14. of the same month, educated in Grammar learning in a private School taught by the Vicar of Tarnton, a mile distant from Cassington, admitted a Student of Brafnose coll. in 1602, where continuing under a severe discipline and Tutor about five years, in the condition, as it seems, of a Servitour, removed to S. Maries hall, and as a Member thereof took the degree of Bac. of Arts in 1608. Soon after he was invited into Cheshire to teach the Children of the Lady Cholmondeley, where continuing for some time, fell into the acquaintance of several severe Puritans, who working on his affections, they brought him over to them. About that time, having gained a sum of money, he went to London with some of them, and made shift to be ordained a Minister there, without subscription, by an Irish Bishop. Soon after he removed into Staffordshire, and became Curate of Whitmore, a Chappel of ease to Stoke, where he lived (and died) a Nonconformist in a poor house, a poor habit, with poor maintenance of about 20 l. per an. and in an obscure Village, teaching School also all the week for a farther supply, deserving as high esteem and honour (as a noted Presbyterian (g) observes) as the best Bishop in England, yet looking after no higher things, but living comfortably and prosperously with these, &c. The Brethren report him to have been an excellent Schoolmaster and Schoolman, (qualities seldom meeting in the same person) a painful Preacher and a profitable Writer: And tho somewhat disaffected to Ceremonies and Church discipline, yet he confuted such as conceived the corruption therein, ground enough for a Separation. He hath written,

A short treatise containing all the principal grounds of Christian Religion, &c.— Fourteen times printed before the year 1632. and translated into the Turkish Language by Will. Scaman an English Traveller.

Treatise of Faith; in two parts. The first shewing the nature, the second the life of Faith, &c. Lond. 1631. qu. 1637. qu. the third edition. It hath a Preface to it in commendation of the work, written by Rich. Sibber.

Friendly trial of the grounds tending to Separation, in a plain and modest dispute touching the unlawfulness of Printed Liturgy and set form of Common Prayer, Communion in mixed Assemblies and the primitive subject and first receptacle of the power of the Keys, &c. Cambr. 1640. qu. The rude and imperfect draught of this book was first made for satisfaction of Mr. Rich. Knightley, which, by importunity of Ministers and others, was afterwards enlarged into this treatise. The answer returned to the first conceptions thereof, is briefly examined in some marginal notes annexed, p. 13. 15. 24. 33.

An answer to two Treatises of Mr. Joh. Can, the Leader of the English Brownists in Amsterdam. The former is called A necessity of separation from the Church of England, proved by the Nonconformists principles. And the other, A stay against straying: Wherein in opposition to Mr. John Robinson, he undertakes to prove the unlawfulness of bearing the Ministers of the Church of England. Lond. 1642. qu. Published by Simeon Ash. The Epistle to the Reader is subscribed by Tho. Langley, Will. Rathband, Simeon Ash, Franc. Woodcock, and Geo. Croft, Presbyterians. After our author Ball had finished this last book, he undertook a large treatise of the Church, wherein he intended to discover the nature of Schism, and to deal in the main controversies touching the essence and Government of the Visible Church, of which also 50 sheets of paper he left finished. Notwithstanding all this, yet by what our author hath written in his answer to Jo. Can, and in his Friendly trial, &c. some dividing Spirits of his own party censured him, as in some degree declining from his former profest inconformity, in deserting the Nonconformists cause and grounds, being too much inclined (especially in the last of these two) to favour the times in Ceremonies and the Service-book. Yet if you'll give credit to what these men deliver, they'll tell you that he lived and died a strict forbearer, and constant opposer of all those pretended corruptions, which the Nonconformists had commonly in their publick writings disallowed in the Church of England. So that they of his own perswasion would willingly have it believed, that altho he was in these his pieces against aggravating and multiplying conceived corruptions, and that these were not of so great weight, as to enforce the unlawfulness of our set forms, or warrant a separation from our Churches, and publick worship in regard thereof, yet he acknowledged some things blame-worthy in the English Liturgy, which he designed to have evidenced (as these men tell us) in some publick treatise, had he lived but a little longer. For all this he died abundantly satisfied in the justness of that cause, which he so well defended against separation.

Trial of the new Church-way in New-England and Old, &c. Lond. 1644. qu.

Treatise of the Covenant of Grace. Lond. 1645. &c. qu. Published by his great admirer Simeon Ash.

Of the power of godliness, both doctrinally and practically handled, &c. — To which are annexed several Treatises, as, (1) Of the affections. (2) Of the spiritual combats. (3) Of the government of the tongue. (4) Of prayer, with an exposition on the Lords Prayer, &c. Lond. 1657. fol. Published by the afore said Simeon Ash, sometimes of the University of Cambridge, Chaplain to the Lord Brook, afterwards to the Earl of Manchester an. 1644. Minister of St. Michael Bassishaw, and at length of St. Austins, in London; who dying 20. of Aug. 1662. being a little before the fatal day of St. Barthelmew, was buried 23. of the same month in the Church of St. Austins before-mentioned.

Treatise of divine meditation. Lond. 1660. in twelv. published also by the said Ash. These, I think, are all that have been written by our author Ball, who dying 1640. 20. of Octob. in sixteen hundred and forty, aged fifty and five, or thereabouts, was buried in the Chappel or Church of Whitmore afore said, leaving then behind the character of a learned and pious man, and of one, who, by his daily labours, had done eminent service to the private and publick.

667. WILLIAM JONES, the eldest Son and Heir of Will. Jones Esq; was born at Castellmarch in Carnarvonshire, the ancient Seat of his Family, educated in the Free-School at Beaumaris in Anglesey, whence, at 14 years of age, he was transplanted to S. Edmunds hall, an. 1570. and continued there 5 years. But taking no degree, he went to Lincolns Inn and was there admitted a Student, yet before he resided in that Society he spent two years in Furnivals Inn, according to the course of those times. After he had been a Counsellor of repute for some years, he became Lent-Reader of the said Inn 13. Jac. 1. Serjeant at Law the year following, and a Knight, in order to the chief Justiceship in Ireland, in which place he continued three years, and then left it upon his own request. In 19. Jac. 1. he was made one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, in the room of Sir Augustin Nicolls, and in the 22 year he was removed to the Kings-Bench. He hath written and collected, Reports of divers special cases, as well in the Court of Kings Bench, as of the Common Pleas in England, as well in the latter time of the Reign of K. James, as in the years of K. Ch. 1. &c. Lond. 1675. fol. They contain the cases of greatest remark which hapned either in the Common Pleas or Kings Bench, during the time our author was Judge in the said Courts, which was from the 18. Jac. 1. to 16. Car. 1. In the said book also is reported three Iters, together with the great case in Parliament between the Earl of Oxford, and the Lord Wiltoughby of Eresby. This book also coming into the hands, after the authors death, of Sir Jo. Glynn Serjeant at Law, he made very good notes on it, as it appears in the original copy, sometimes in the hands of Dorothy Faulconberg and Lucy Jones Daughters and Executors of Sir Will. Jones.

Several Speeches in Parliament. — He concluded his last day in his house in Holbourne near London on the ninth of Decemb. in sixteen hundred and forty, and was buried under the Chappel (standing on pillars) of Lincolns-Inn, on the fourteenth day of the same month. Over whose grave, tho no writing or Epitaph appears, yet his eminence in the knowledge of the Municipal Laws, will make his name live to posterity, more especially in these parts, where he had, his education, and when Justice, did constantly keep Oxford circuit.

WILLIAM CHIBALD, or Chiball, a Surrey 668. man born, was entred a Student into Magd. coll. 1589. aged 14. but whether in the condition of a Servitour or Clerk, I know not. Afterwards he took the degrees in Arts, entred into the Sacred Function, became a Preacher in London, and at length Rector of St. Nicholas cold Abbey in Old Fishstreet there, where continuing many years was much frequented and admired for his edifying way of Preaching. He hath written and published,

A cordial of comfort to preserve the Heart from fainting with grief or fear, for our friends, or own visitation, by the Plague. Lond. 1625. oct.

An humble thanksgiving to Almighty God for his staying of the Plague in the City of London and Suburbs thereof. — Printed with the former.

Sum of all (namely) Gods Service, and Mans Salvation, and Mans duty to God concerning both, by way of dialogue. Lond. 1630. oct.

Several sermons, as, (1) The trial of Faith by the touchstone of the Gospel, on 2 Cor. 13. 5. Lond. 1622. oct. with others which I have not yet seen.

Apology for the trial of Faith. Lond. in oct. when printed I know not, for I have not yet seen it. He deceased in Febr. (about the 25. day) in sixteen hundred and forty, and was buried in his Church of St. Nicholas before-mentioned, leaving then behind him a Son named James, who became a Student in Magd. coll. 1623. afterwards a Minister in London, and, if I mistake not, a sufferer there for the Royal Cause, when the Grand Rebellion broke out in 1642. by the sedulous industry of such who were then called Presbyterians.

MARTIN WESTCOMBE, sometimes a Monk 669. at Toulouse in France, and Bac. of Arts there, left the Rom. Cath. Church and returned to his native Country of England. At length being reconciled to the Reformed Church there, was sent to Exeter coll. among his Countrymen of Devonshire, was incorporated Bach. of Arts in January 1637. and, by the favour of the Chancellor of the University, proceeded in Arts the next year, as a Member of the said college. He hath written, Fabula pontificia Evangelica veritatis radiis dissipata. Ox. 1639. oct. Soon after, the author of it went beyond the Seas; returned to his former Religion (as some of the Ancients of Ex. coll. have told me) and wrote certain matters there, in vindication of himself, but what, they could not tell me.

ROBERT CHAMBERLAINE, Son of Rich. Chamb. of Standish in Lancash. Gent. was born there, or at least in that County, and from being Clerk to Pet. Ball Esq; Solicitor General to the Queen, had his Poetical Genie so far encouraged by that generous person, that he sent him to Exeter coll. to compleat it with Academical learning, in the beginning of the year 1637. aged 30 years. What stay he made there, or whether he was honoured with a degree, it appears not. Sure it is, that he having about that time composed several poetical, and other, things, had them viewed by the ingenious men of that house, and published under these titles.

Nocturnal Lucubrations; or meditations divine and moral. Lond. 1638. in tw. To which are added, Epigrams and Epitaphs.— The former he dedicated to his honoured Master Peter Ball before-mentioned, and the other to Will. Ball his Son and Heir. He hath also written,

The swagging Damsel, a Comedy. Lond. 1640. qu. Sicelides, a Pastoral.— When printed, I cannot tell, clar. for I do not remember I ever saw it. In 1631. was 1640. published in qu. a book intit. Sicelides, a piscatory, several times acted in Kings coll. in Cambr. and therefore, I presume, 'twas made by one of that house. This Rob. Chamberlaine lived many years after, but when he died, I cannot justly tell. One Rob. Chamberlaine proceeded Master of Arts, as a Member of Pemb. coll. but he being the Son of Dr. Pet. Chamberlaine a Physician, must not be taken (as some of this University have done) to be the same with the Poet before-mentioned. Will. Chamberlaine of Shaftsbury in Dorsetshire hath written Love's Victory, Trag. Com. Lond. 1658. qu. and Pharonida, an heroick Poem. Lond. 1659. oct. but whether he was ever an Oxford Student, I am hitherto ignorant.

ATHENÆ OXONIENSES.

The History of the Archbishops and Bishops of the University of Oxford, from the year of our Lord 1500. to the end of the year 1640.

THOMAS JANE

or Janne was born in a Market Town in Dorsetsh. called Middleton, educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's School near Winchester, became Fellow of New coll. after he had served two years of Probation, in 1456, was afterwards Doctor of Decrees, and Commissary (the same now with Vicechancellor) of the University an. 1468. About that time he was made Canon of S. Paul's Cathedral within the City of London, Archdeacon of Essex, Canon of Windfore 1497, Dean of the Kings Chappel, and at length upon the refusal of Christoph. Urswyke Dean of Windfore, he became Bishop of Normich in the room of James Goldwell deceased: The temporalities of which See (after his election thereunto) were (a) restored to him 21. Jul. 14. Hen. 7. dom. 1499. where sitting little more than an year, he concluded his last day in the month of Aug. or thereabouts, in the year fifteen hundred. By his Will (b) dated 20. Jul. the same year, he bequeathed his body to be buried in his own Cathedral Church, if it should happen that he dye in Normich, or within 16 miles of that place. He had before his death been a benefactor to New coll. as I have told you (c) elsewhere, and as it should seem, to the building of S. Maries Church in this Univ. of Oxon, if his answer was equivalent to an Epistle (d) written in its name, to desire his benefaction thereunto.

In the time of this worthy Bishop Tho. Jane, or rather before, studied in this University Tho. Scot alias Rotheram, Son of Sir Tho. Rotheram Knight, by Alice his Wife; but going soon after to Cambridge, we can hardly lay claim to him. In an old book of Epistles, written by the University of Ox. to great personages, is an Epistle (*) written to the Bishop of Lincoln, and he that then sat there, must according to time be the said Rotheram. In which Epistle are certain circumstances that shew that he had sometimes studied in the said University, and besides the members thereof did seldom or never write Epistles to any, except such who had originally been Students among them. He died Archb. of Tork, in 1500, and was succeeded in that See by Tho. Savage. See in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 1. p. 243. a. b.

JOHN MORETON, Son (a) of Rich. Moreton of S. Andrews Milbourn in Dorsetshire, Son of Will. Moreton of the said place, and he the second Son of Charles Moreton (the first being Rob. Moreton of Moreton in Nottinghamsh. from whence sprang the Moretons of Bantrey in Yorkshire) was born saith (b) Camden at St. Andr. Milb. before mention'd, others, particularly one (c) of Camdens contemporaries, at a little Market Town call'd Bere in the said County of Dorset, which seems to be most true by those things that I shall anon mention from his last Will and Testament. When he was a boy he was educated among the Religious in Cerne Abbey, and at ripe years was sent to Balliol coll. where making great progress in Academical learning, he took the degrees in the Laws, without any regard had to those in Arts. In 1446. he being then in his Regency, he became one of the Commissaries of the University, about which time one Will. Moreton of the same coll. was the northern Proctor, but whether related to him, I cannot tell. Afterwards Jo. Moreton was Principal or moderator of the Civil Law School, situated in the Great Jewry in Oxon, and about 1453. became Principal of Peckwaters Inn: at which time he being also an Advocate in the Court of Arches, his parts and great learning were so remarkable, that Tho. Bouchier Archb. of Canterbury taking cognisance of him, sought means to prefer him. In 1458. Nov. 8. he became Prebendary of Fordinton and Writlington in the Church of Salisbury, void by the death of one Will. Walesby, being also about that time Rector of S. Dunstons Church (in the West) in the Suburbs of London. Afterwards having other spiritualities conferr'd upon him, he was for his great wisdom and prudence made Master of the Rolls an. 1473, and in the year following Archdeacon of Winchester: which Dignity was then void by the death of one Vinc. Clement sometimes a Doctor of Oxon: In Feb. 1475, he being then Preb. of Dynre in the Church of Wells (which he resign'd in that month, and was succeeded therein by Mr. Will. Dudley) he was collated to the Prebendship of S. Duchman in the said Church on the death of one John Pope: which Dignity he keeping till Jan. 1478. he then gave it up and Tho. Langton Doctor of Decrees succeeded him, as I shall anon tell you. In 1476. Nov. 6. he was made Archdeacon of Berkshire upon the resignation of John Russell Doctor of the Canon Law, (not of Div. as one (d) saith) who was afterwards Bishop of Lincoln. In 1478. Aug. 9. he was elected Bishop of Ely, on the death of Will. Grey, and about that time was made Privy Counsellor to the King. In 1484. (2. Rich. 3.) he was committed prisoner to the Tower of London, for some jealousies that that King had of him, as being totally inclined to the Lancastrian family; and 'tis probable that there he would have continued during all that Kings reign, but the reverence of the man, or undeservedness of his wrongs, moved to the affection of the members of this University, that they directed to the King (who professed much seeming love to the University, as 'tis elsewhere (e) told you) a petitionary (f) Epistle in Latine, no less eloquent and pithy, than circumspect and wary, wherein they much pleaded for his liberty. Whereupon the King being well pleased with it, was content to release him from the Tower, and commit him to the custody of Henry Duke of Buckingham, to his Castle at Brecknock in Wales. Thence, after he had spent some time, he found liberty to steal to the Isle of Ely, and for a round sum of money found a safe passage into France, purposely to joyn with the Earl of Richmond to pluck down the said Rich. 3. Soon after the said Earl obtaining the Crown by the name of Hen. 7. called unto his Privy Council the said Moreton Bishop of Ely, with Rich. Fox, (about that time B. of Exeter) both vigilant men and discreet, and such as kept watch with the King almost upon all men else. They were both vers'd in his affairs before he came to the Crown, and were partakers of his adverse fortune, and therefore the King was resolv'd to promote them in the Church as high as he could. In the beginning of the year 1486. Archbishop Bouchier before mentioned died; whereupon the K. making means that the Monks of Canterbury should elect Dr. Moreton for his Successor, the Pope did forthwith confirm it. So that being translated to the said See, he had restitution (g) made to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto, on the sixth of Decemb. the same year. In 1487. he was made Lord Chancellor of England, in which high office he acted very beneficial for the King, and in 1493. he was declared a Cardinal by Pope Alexand. 6. under the title of S. Anastasius. The year after he was elected Chanc. of the Univ. of Oxon, and became a considerable benefactor thereunto, particularly to the reparation of Canon Law School in S. Edwards parish, to the finishing of the re-edification of S. Maries Church, and of the edification of the Divinity School. In all which places were his Arms set up in colours, in the Windows, or else engraven in Stone. But such is the vicissitude of time, that nothing of Arms, or any thing like them, doth at this time remain. Those that belonged to him were Quarterly gules and ermine, a Goats head erased in the first and fourth quarter argent: given, or else taken, in allusion to the Arms of the Corporation of Shomakers, of which Corporation the Father of this Archb. was, as 'tis said, a member. They were curiously engraven on Stone, at the bottom of the Stone-pulpit in St. Maries Church; as also the rebus of his name, an M. upon a Tun. Which Pulpit was pulled down when the inside of that Church was alter'd, while Dr. Ralph Bathurst was Vicechancellor an. 1676. They were also engraven on the Respondents Pew or Seat of Stone in the Divinity School, which also were taken away when the inside of that School was altered an. 1669. to what it now is. But tho these monuments are decayed, yet the memory of the person is fresh among some men, who have said that he was a wise and eloquent man, but in his nature harsh and haughty, that he was much accepted by the King, but envied by the Nobility, and hated by the people. He won the Kings mind with secrecy and diligence, chiefly because he was his old servant in his less fortunes, and for that also he was in his affections not without an inveterate malice against the House of York, under which he had been in trouble. Whatsoever else was in the man, he deserveth a most happy memory, in that he was the principal means of joyning the two Roses. At length dying of great years, (about 90.) but of strong health and powers, about the latter end of Septemb. in fifteen hundred, was buried in the Cath. Church of Canterbury before the image of the Virgin Mary, commonly called Our Lady of Undercroft. Over his Stone-coffin or Sepulcher, which was but just deposited in the ground, was a marble-stone laid even with the surface of the pavement: which stone being afterwards crack'd and broken, several parts of his body wrap'd up in divers Cear-clothes were taken away by certain rude and barbarous people. At length the head being only in a manner remaining in the said Stone-coffin, 'twas beg'd out of a pious mind (purposely to save it) of Dr. Sheldon Archb. of Canterbury, in 1670. by that truly noble and generous Raphe Sheldon of Beoley in Worcestershire Esquire, who esteeming it as a choice relique, provided a leaden box to preserve it with its Cear-clothes about it, and with great devotion kept it to his dying day, an. 1684. Afterwards that choice relique, with very many rarities which he in his life time had gathered together, came by vertue of his last Will into the hands of his Uncles Daughter, named Frances Sheldon, sometimes one of the maids of honour to Catherine the Royal Consort of King Charles 2. The said Cardinal Moreton did by his last (h) Will and Testament leave maintenance for a Priest to celebrate Mass for 20. years space in the Church of Bere in Dorsetshire, for the Soul of him the said Archbishop, and for the Souls of his relations and parents buried there. He also left maintenance during that time for 20 poor Scholars in Oxon, and ten in Cambridge. I find one John Moreton to be made Prebend of Whitchurch in the Church of Wells, on the resignation of Robert Stillington (afterwards B. of Bath and Wells) in July 1447. and Minister of Axbridge and Charlton Mesgrove in the Dioc. of B. and Wells; but this John Moreton, who died about the month of Dec. 1463. is, in the registers belonging to the Bish. of B. and Wells, written Sacra Theologiae Professor. I find also another Joh. Moreton who translated into English Speculum Vita Christi, written by S. Bonaventure. Which John was living in 1438, in which year, he, with his Wife Juliana, were admitted among the Suffrages and Prayers of the Dominicans or Black Fryers at York.

THOMAS LANGTON, was born in a Market Town called Appleby in Westmorland, where being educated in Religion and Grammar learning among the Carmes, or White Friars, was at ripe years sent to Oxon, particularly, as it seems, to Queens coll. but a pest breaking out in the University soon after, he went to Cambridge and became a member of Clare hall, (one (*) faith of Pembroke hall) took the degrees in the Canon Law (in which afterwards he was incorporated at Oxon) and had considerable Dignities in the Church bestowed him, among which was the Prebendship of S. Duncuman in the Church of Wells, an. 1478. In 1483, he being about that time Provost of Qu. coll. in Oxon, and Master of S. Julians Hospital in Southampton, was consecrated Bishop of S. Davids, whence being translated to the See of Salisbury, on the death of Leonel Woodvill, had restitution made (k) to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto, 4. May, 1 Rich. 3. dom. 1484. In a certain writing in Queens coll. treasury dat. 19. Aug. 4. Hen. 7. dom. 1489. he occurs by the titles of Doctor of the Laws, Bishop of Salisbury, and Provost of Qu. coll. Whence we may conclude that he kept the said Provostship in Commendam with Salisbury, as probably he had done with S. Davids. In 1493. he was translated to the See of Winchester, and had restitution made (l) to him of the temporalities thereof 27. June the same year. Where being settled, he put in practice his good deeds, which he had done at Sarum, viz. by shewing himself a Mecenas of learning, for which, I find, he had so great respect, that he took (m) care to have youths trained up at his own charge in Grammar and Musick, (the last of which he was infinitely delighted in) in a School which he set apart within the precincts of his house. It was usual with him, and he took a great pleasure in it, to make his scholars or exhibitioners repeat at night before him such discourses that they in the day time had learned from their Master: and such that could give a laudable account, he either encouraged with good words, or small rewards, saying to those about him, that the way to increase vertue was to praise it, &c. In his episcopal office he behaved himself so well, that he was in great authority with three Kings, especially for his learning, religion, and experience in civil affairs; and had not death snatch'd him untimely away, would have succeeded Moreton in the See of Canterbury. He died in the beginning of the year fifteen hundred and one, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Winchester, near to the tomb and shrine of S. Swithune. By his last will (n) and test. which I have seen, he gave to the priests of Clare hall in Cambridge, considerable sums of money, and forty pounds to the chest of that house. To every fellow of Qu. coll. in Oxon six shillings and eight pence, and forty marks to the elemosinary chest thereof, besides a sute of vestments for a Priest, Deacon, and Subdeacon, and four copes. He gave maintenance also to a Chaplain that should celebrate service for him, his Parents, and all faithful deceased, for the space of an hundred years in the Church of Appleby before-mentioned: Which Chaplain was to receive for his labour eight marks yearly. To the Friars (the Carmes) in Appleby 20 marks to pray for him, besides several sums to the Friars of Oxon and Cambridge, and to Rowland Machel and Elizabeth his wife (sister to the said Bishop) he gave several lands in Westmorland, besides 200 marks. He built also the little room, (which is now a large Bay-window to the Provosts dining-room in Qu. coll.) with curious vaulting under it. Which vault is now no other than a portico to the coll. chappel. Over the said Bay-window is carv'd in stone a musical note called a Long on a Tun, which is the rebus for his surname: and out of the Bung-hole of the Tun springs a Vine tree, which, without doubt was put for Vinton or Vinchestre, he being then Bishop of that place. He left behind him a Nephew named Rob. Langton, born also in Appleby, and educated in Queens coll. of which he was LL.D. He died at London, in the month of June 1524. and was buried before the image of S. Michael in the body of the Church belonging to the Charter-house (now Suttons hospital) near London. By his last Will (o) and Test. he bequeathed to Qu. coll. before mention'd, two hundred pounds to purchase Lands, and make a School-house in Appleby: and what his benefaction was besides, as also of that of Bishop Langton, you may see in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. Lib. 2. p. 123. 124. 125.

4. WILLIAM SHJOY, commonly called Joy partly educated here, but more in the Univ. of Paris, was by provision from the Pope made Archbishop of Tuam in Ireland, 16. Cal. of June 1485, where sitting about 16 years, gave way at length to fate (p) 28. Dec. in fifteen hundred and one, and was, as I suppose, buried in his Cathedral Church. In his Archbishoprick succeeded Philip Pinson a Minorite, as I shall anon tell you.

5. RICHARD, who writes himself Episcopus Olevon: (being Suffragan to the Bishop of Worcester, as it seems) was a Dominican or Black Friar in Warwick, (to whose fraternity there, he gave 6l. at the time of his death) and educated among the Black Friars in Oxon, to whom also he gave 6l. to pray for him. He yielded up his last breath in Sept. in fifteen hundred and two, and was, I suppose according to his last (q) Will which I have seen, buried in the choir of the Church belonging to the Black Friars in the City of Worcester on the south side of the Tomb of John Lichfield, and opposite to that of Rich. Wolsey, who, as he saith in the said Will, was nuper Conoren: & Duneren: Episcopus.

6. HENRY DEANE, was educated in this University, where he took the degrees in Arts and Divinity, but in what coll. or Hall it appears not. However some are pleased to say that he was educated in New coll. yet whether he was perpetual Fellow thereof, the registers of that house tells us not. After he had left the University, he was made Prior of Lanthony near to Gloucester (in the neighbourhood of which place, I presume, he was born) and on the 13 of Sept. or 20. Nov. 11. Hen. 7. he was by Letters (a) Pat. constituted Chancellor of Ireland, to execute that office by himself or a Deputy. On the first of Janu. following he was constituted (b) Deputy and Justice of the said Realm, where being settled, he performed good service against that grand impostor Perkin Warbeck, and being elected Bishop of Bangor, after the death of Richard lately Bishop of that place, had restitution (c) of the temporalities belonging thereunto made by the King 6. Octob. 12. Hen. 7. Dom. 1496. In 1500. he was translated to Salisbury on the death of John Blyth lately Bishop thereof, (Son of Will. Blyth of Norton in Yorkshire, Son of another William of Leedes in the said County) and had restitution (d) of the temporalities thereof made to him (as the manner is) on the 12. March the same year: About which time he was made Chanc. of the Order of the Garter. In 1501. he was elected Archb. of Canterbury upon the death of Cardinal Moreton: whereupon being translated thither, had (e) restitution made of his temporalities, on the second of Aug. the same year. About that time the members of the University of Oxon received an Epistle (f) of favour from him; wherein, among other things, he styles the said University his benignissima mater. He died at Lambeth on the 15. of Febr. saith a certain (g) author, tho a register (h) of that time tells us, 'twas on the 16. of that month, in fifteen hundred and two: Whereupon his body was carried to Canterbury, and buried in the middle of the Martyrdom, within the precincts of the Cathedral there, leaving then behind him the character of a person altogether fit for those places that he successively enjoyed.

7. DAVID CREAGH, was born in the County of Limerick in Ireland, studied several years among his Country men the Civil and Canon Law, of which faculties he became at length Bachelaur. Afterwards retiring to his native Country, became, thro several preferments, Archb. of Cashill, an. 1483, where sitting about 20. 1503 years died 5. Sept. in fifteen hundred and three. Of the great injuries done to him by Gerald Fitz Gerald Earl of Kildare, L. Deputy of Ireland (of which Creagh complained to K. Hen. 7. by the advice of Sir Jam. de Ormond Knight) the Histories (k) of that Country will tell you.

PHILIP PINSON, an English man, studied among the Minorites or Grey Friars for a time, in their house in Oxon. of which order he was a learned brother, but whether he took the Degree of D. D. in this University, we have no register that shews it. Afterwards he became Suffragan Bishop to Hadrian de Castello Bishop of Hereford and afterwards of B. and Wells; by whose endeavours, but chiefly of those of K. Hen. 7. he was advanced at Rome to the Archbishoprick of Tuam in Ireland 1503. on the 2. of Decemb. in fifteen hundred and three, and three days after died (l) of the Plague. Afterwards that See laid void two years, and then 'twas confer'd on Maurice O Fihely, whom I have before, among the writers, mentioned.

JOHN ARUNDELL, Son of Rainfred, or Rainford Arundell Knight, (by Jane his Wife, Sister and heir of Joh. Coleshull) third Son of Sir John Arundell of Talvern in Cornwall, (who died 13. Hen. 6.) was born in that County, received his Academical education in Exeter college, became Canon of Windsore in 1479. and about that time Rector of Sutton Courtney near Abendon in Berkshire. In 1489. he was made Prebendary of Bolton in the Cath. Church of York, on the death of Dr. Tho. Chandler, and in the same year in Nov. he was made Preb. of Beamister secunda in the Cath. Church of Salum, upon the promotion of Rich. Hyll to the See of London, being then also dignified in the Cath. Ch. at Exeter. On the 6. of Nov. 1496. he was consecrated Bishop of Lichf. and Coventry, and on the 28. of the same month had the temporalities of that See restored (m) to him. The author (n) of the Comment. of the English Bishops, tells that he was translated from that See to Exeter, 1501, tho elsewhere (o) I find that the translation was made on the last day, saving one, of June, 1502. and that the temporalities thereof were not given (p) to him till 26. Sept. 19. Hen. 7. Dom. 1503. He surrendered up his last breath in the house belonging to the Bishops of Exeter within the parish of St. Clements Danes without Temple Barr, near to London, 15. March in fifteen hundred and three; and was buried on the south side of the high altar, in the Church of St. Clement before mention'd. This John Arundell did, upon the desire of the chief members of this University, promise to them 20l. towards the finishing of S. Maries Church, but he dying before 'twas given, they recovered (a) that sum of his Executors. I find another John Arundell of Exeter coll. who was one of the Proctors of the University 1426. afterwards Doctor of Physick, Physician to K. Hen. 6. and Dean of the Cath. Ch. at Exeter. I take him to be the same John Arundell M. D. who was collated to the Archdeaconry of Richmond in the latter end of Octob. 1457. in the place of Laur. Bothe promoted to the See of Durham, and had for his successor in that Dignity John Bothe, collated to it in May 1459, and afterwards became Bishop of Exeter.

JOHN MORGAN, alias Yong a Welsh man, and Doctor of the Laws of Oxon, was installed Dean of Windsore in the place of Will. Benley an. 1484. (2. Rich. 3.) and being elected Bish. of S. Davids on the death of Hugh Pary (sometimes B. thereof, an Oxford Scholar, and a benefactor to the (*) building of S. Maries Church) had restitution (†) made to him of temporalities belonging to that See, 23. Nov. 12. Hen. 7. Dom. 1496. He gave way to fate in the latter end of Apr. or beginning of May, in fifteen hundred and four: whereupon his body was buried between the pillars on the south side of the body of the Cath. Church of S. David. By his Will, which I have (*) seen, dated 25. Apr. 1504. and proved the 19. of May following, it appears that his desire was to have a Chapel made over his grave, in the best manner that might be, according to the disposition of his Executors, but whether ever performed, I know not.

117 THOMAS PYGOT, a Denbighshire man born, as it seems, was consecrated Bishop of Bangor, in the year of our Lord 1500, and paying his last debt to nature on the fifteenth day of Aug. in fifteen hundred and four, was, as I suppose, buried in his own Church. This Tho. Pygot, I take to be the same who supplicated (b) the venerable congregation of Regents of this University, in order to to the taking of the degree of Bachelor of the Civil Law, an. 1458. One of both his names was confirmed Abbat of the Monastery of the Virgin Mary at York, on the death of Thom. Stayngrave, 24. May 1398. and died in 1405. but what relation the former had to this I cannot tell.

122 WILLIAM BARONS, Doctor (as it (c) seems) of the Law, Commissary of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, and afterwards Master of the Rolls in the room of Dr. Will. Warham 1502, and one of the Kings Council, was, upon the translation of the said Dr. Warham to Canterbury, elected to the See of London: which being consented to by the King, the temporalities thereof were (d) restored to him 13. Nov. 20. Hen. 7. Dom. 1504. He died in Oct. or Nov. in fifteen hundred and five, and was buried in his own Church of S. Paul. He had studied the Laws in Oxon. and had presided the Chair, but in what hall or School it doth not appear. In his Bishoprick succeeded Richard Fitz James, as I shall hereafter tell you.

13 WILLIAM SEVER or Siveyer, was born at Shinkley in the County Pal. of Durham, educated in this University, but whether in Merton coll. I am as yet uncertain. However as to that, which the (a) author of the Commentary of the English Bishops saith, that he was Warden of Merton coll. and Provost of that of Eaton near Windfore, is false, for 'twas not William, but Henry Sever, who lived before this mans time, that enjoyed those places. After Will. Sever had left Oxon, wherein, I presume, he had studied either in Glouc. or Durham, college (nurseries for those of the Order of St. Benedict, he himself being a Benedictine) he retired to his Monastery of S. Mary at York, succeeded Thom. Bothe in the Abbathship of that place, and in 1495. being elected B. of Carlisle on the death of Rich. Bell (who had been formerly Prior of Durham) had the temporalities thereof delivered (b) to him, on the eleventh of Decemb. the same year, and liberty then given to him to keep his Abbathship in Commendam. In 1502. he being elected to the See of Durham, had the temporalities thereof surrendered (c) into his hands by the King, on the 15. of Octob. the same year: where setting but three years, payed his last debt to nature in fifteen hundred and five, and was buried in the Cath. Church there. In his Abbathship succeeded Rob. Wanhop in Dec. 1502. (Sever being then Bish. of Durham.) and in his Chaire at Durham, Christop. Bainbridge, whom I shall hereafter mention. The book (d) or Hist. of the Ch. of Durham calls this Bish. Will. Sinewes or Sennuse, and Leland (e) Senose; which book tells us that he was translated from Carlisle to Durham, by virtue of a Bull sent from the Pope, and so by the Breve of K. Hen. 7. dat. 15. Oct. in the 18. year of his reign, he was consecrated Bishop of Durham 1502. and stood three years, &c. so that according to time this Sinews must be the same with Sever.

14 THOMAS CLERKE, and English man, became Archdeacon of the Isle of Man after he had left the University, and and at length by provision from the Pope became Bishop of Killala in Ireland 1498. which office he keeping till fifteen hundred and five, then resigned (f) it. I take this Thomas Clerke to be the same with Thomas, written and stiled Thomas Aladensis Episcopus that is Tho. Bish. of Killala, who by that name and title was admitted (g) Rector of Chedsey in Somersetshire on the death of Mr. Joh. Fynne, 12. Janu. 1505. and dying in the year 1508. Rob. Fisher was admitted to the said rectory on the 18. Dec. the same year.

JOHN PAYNE, a Dominican or Black Frier, spent several years in the study of Divinity (of which he was afterwards Doctor) in the coll. of Dominicans in the south suburb of Oxon. Afterwards retiring to Ireland, was, thro several preferments, made Bishop of Meath by the Popes provision, and installed in the Chaire there on the feast of St. Dominick (Aug. 4.) in 1483. In the year 1493. he was made Master of the Rolls in Ireland, being then much celebrated for his great charity and hospitality, and dying on the sixth day of March in fifteen hundred and six, (21. Hen. 7.) was buried in the Monastery of his Order at Dublin, or rather, as the (a) Historian of Ireland tells us, in the Church of S. Patrick there, where his monument, near the west door of that Church, was remaining in his time, with an inscription thereon.

MATTHEW MACRAIH, an Irish Man, and a Civilian, as it seems from some of our Records, wherein I find his surname sometimes to occur, became Bishop of Clonfort in his own Country, in 1482. and dying in fifteen hundred and seven, was buried (b) at Kicomaing, leaving behind him the character of a person celebrated for the many virtues of his mind.

THOMAS O-CONGALAU, another Irish man and contemporay with the former, who (c) succeeded in the See of Ardagh one Will. O-Ferall, and dying in fifteen hundred and eight left the character behind him him of a person of great prudence, and liberality towards the poor.

WALTER BLAKE, was born in the County of Galloway in Ireland, and for some time educated in this University: Afterwards he retired to his native Country, became Canon of Enaghune alias Enaghcoin, and at length by the favour of P. Innocent 8. Bishop of (d) Clogmacnois, or Clonmacnois, in the beginning of 1487. where sitting about 21 years, submitted to fate in the month of May in fifteen hundred and eight. One Thomas succeeded him in that See; but his surname is yet unknown.

EDMUND COMERFORD, was also educated for a time in this University, and afterwards being made Dean of Kilkenny, was consecrated there Bishop of Fernes in 1505. In which See sitting but four years, died in fifteen hundred (e) and nine, and was succeeded by one Nicholas Comyn.

THOMAS VIVIAN, a Cornish man born, or at least descended from those of his name living in Cornwall and Devon, was from his youth bred a Black Cannon, or Cannon Regular, and among those in Oxon, did he spend some time. Afterwards retiring into his own Country, he became Prior of the Black Cannons at Bodmin in Cornwal, and at length Suffragan Bishop to the Bishop of Exeter, under the title of Episc. Majorensis or Megarensis, that is, as I suppose, Megara. Joh. Leland (f) tells us, that the Priory at Bodmin stood at the east south-east part of the Parish Ch. yard there. There lay buried before the high Altar in an high Tomb of very darkish gray marble one Thom. Vivian Prior Clar. of Bodmin, and Suffragan Magarensis Episcopatus. He died not long since, &c. One Tho. Vivian of Exeter coll. proceeded Master of A. in an Act celebrated 10. March 7. Hen. 8. Dom. 1515. and was afterwards Rector of the said coll. for a time, but him I take not to be the same with the Bishop; yet Quere.

CHRISTOPHER FISHER, an Oxford man by Academical education, was afterwards Bishop of Elphine in Ireland, and Prebendary of Hustway in the Church of York; which Dignity he obtained after he was made Bishop. In fifteen hundred and eleven, or thereabouts, he departed this mortal life, and that year one Thom. Wallashe succeeded him in the said Prebendship, but who in the See of Elphine, except one John, who became Prebendary of Ampleford in the Ch. of York 3. Nov. 1530. and died on the Feast of the Assump. of the B. Virgin, 1536. (being then Prior of Welbeck in Nottinghamshire.) I know not.

22. NICHOLAS MAGWIRE, an Irish man, was promoted to the See of Laighlin in Ireland, in 1490. and died in fifteen hundred and twelve, under which year you may see more of him among the writers.

23. DAVID ap OWEN, a Welsh man, sometimes a Student in the Civ. and Can. Law in Oxon, afterwards Abbat of Stratmarkell and of Conway in his own Country, was consecrated Bishop (*) of S. Asaph in the year 1503. and dying on the 11. or 12. of Febr. in fifteen hundred and twelve, was buried in the Cathedral Ch. of S. Asaph, near the high Altar on the south side. There is a monument of a Bishop near to the Throne in the said Chancel, which, as the tradition goes there, was put for the said Dav. ap Owen.

24. MAURIT. de PORTU, or O-Fihely an Irish man, became by provision from P. Jul. 2. Archbishop of Tuam in his own Country, 26. June 1506. and died in fifteen hundred and thirteen. See more of him among the writers under that year.

25. THOMAS CORNISH, a Somersetshire man born as it seems, was educated in Oriel coll. of which he was afterwards Fellow; and being Master of Arts, was made Vicar of Banwell in the Diocese of Wells. In Aug. 1483. he became Master of St. Johns house or hospital in the City of Wells, and soon after Chanter and Residentiary in the Cath. Ch. there. In 1491-2. he was made Suffragan Bishop to Rich. Fox B. of Bath and Wells, under the title of Episcopus Tynensis, by which, I suppose, is meant Tyne, the last Island belonging to the Republick of Venice in the Archipelago. In 1493. he, by the name of Tho. Cornish Bishop of Tyne, was made Provost of Oriel coll. and in 1497. Jul. 29. he was collated to the Vicaridge of S. Cuthberts Ch. in Wells. In Oct. 1505. he became Vicar of Chew in Somersetshire, (on the death of Rob. Wydom.) in which County he had other Churches successively conferred upon him to keep up the state of a Bishop; and in 1507. resigning his Provostship of Oriel coll. retired to Wells, being then also Suffragan to Hugh Oldham Bishop of Exeter; and dying on the third day of July, in fifteen hundred and thirteen, was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Wells, in the north Isle, near to the door that leads up to the Chapter-house. Over his grave was a fair monument erected, which continues to this day, with so much of the inscription thereon left, that shews the day and year of his death. One Thom. Woulf or Wulff titular Bishop of Lacedemon had a Commission granted to him 30. Sept. 1513. to be Suffragan Bishop in the place of the said Cornish, but whether he was ever of Oxon, I have not yet seen any record to prove it.

26. WILLIAM SMYTH, Son of Rob. Smyth, was born at Farnworth in the Parish of Prescote in Lancashire, educated partly in Grammar learning in his own Country, partly in Academical in this University, either in Oriel, or Lincoln, college, or successively in both. In the former I have reason to suppose so, because several of his name and kindred were members thereof soon after, if not in his own time; and in the other, because in the Bursars accounts (a) thereof, I find one Mr. Will. Smyth to have been a Commoner of that house, before, and in the year 1478. being the same without all doubt with this person of whom we now speak. Howsoever it is, (tho I am not ignorant that he was a benefactor to both the said colleges, especially the last, and that in an (b) Epistle to him concerning his election to the Chancellourship of the Univ. of Oxon, the Members thereof do say that he was sometimes Alumnus Academia Oxon.) sure I am that he, as others, being fearful of divers pests hapning in Oxon in their time, did recede to Cambridge, where this Will. Smyth became Fellow, and afterwards Master, of Pembroke hall. About that time he was made Archdeacon of Surrey, D. D. of Cambridge, (in which degree he was incorporated at Oxon.) and afterward Clerk of the Hamper, if I mistake not, (for we have an (c) Epistle written to one Mr. Will. Smyth Cler. Hamperii for the expedition of the consummation of the privileges of the University) and at length being elected Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, had restitution (d) made of the temporalities of that See 29. Jan. 8. H. 7. dom. 1492. After he had fate there about three years, he was elected Bishop of Lincoln; so that having restitution (e) made of the temporalities thereof on the 6. Feb. 1495. fate there till the time of his death, became a great man in the Kings favour, Councillour to Prince Arthur, President of Wales, (being the first of all that bore that office,) Chancellour of the University of Oxford, and the prime founder of Brasnose coll. there. He gave way to fate on the second day of January in fifteen hundred and thirteen, and was buried in the great middle Isle near to the Sepulchre of Will. Alnwyke sometimes B. of Linc. towards the west end of the Cath. Church at Lincoln. Over his grave was a very large marble Tomb-stone soon after laid even with the pavement, having thereon engraven, on a large brass plate, the portraicture of a Bishop mitted and vested for the Altar, with a Crozier in his left hand; and on the verge of the said stone was this inscription engraven on several narrow plates of brass. Sub marmore isto tenet hic tumulus ossa venerabilis in Christo Patris ac Domini, Domini Willielmi Smyth, quondam Conventriensis & Lychfeldensis, ac deinde Lincolnensis Presulis; qui obiit secundo die mensis Januarii, anno Domini Millesimo quingentesimo tertio decimo: cujus anime propitiatur deus, qui pium & misericors & in die tribulationis misericors peccata remittit. Ecclesiasticis.

At the foot of the portraicture are these verses following, engraven on a brass plate, fastned to the said stone.

Cestrensis Presul, post Lyncolniensis, Amator

Cleri nam multos cis mare transque aluit.

Quique utrinque fuit Prefectus Principis aule,

Fundavitque duas perpetuando Scholas.

Aulaque sumptu hujus renovatus est Enea Criste

Hic situs est, anime parce benigne sue.

You may see more of this worthy Bishop in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 104. b. 161. b. 212. 415. b. He the said Dr. Smyth gave three hundred pounds to John the Prior, and Convent of Laund in Leycestershire to have the Parsonage and Parish Church of Roysthorpe in Cheshire bought and appropriated to their house: Which accordingly being done, the said Prior and Convent, did, in consideration thereof, give and confirm under their Common Seal to the Mayor and Citizens of Chester an annuity of ten pounds to be paid from the Monastery of S. Werburgh within the said City, to the end that they pay that annuity to a Master or Bachelor of Arts, or at least to a Master of Grammar, that should teach Grammar freely at Farnworth in Lancashire. This was done 22. Hen. 7. and soon after was a School settled there. He also gave many ornaments, and other stuff to Brasnose coll. to be used in their Chappel and elsewhere.

27. CHRISTOPHER BAINBRIDGE, Bainbridge, or Baynbrigg, was born at Hilton near Appleby in Westmoreland, educated in Queens coll. of which he became Provost before the year 1495. (being about that time LL. D.) and afterwards a liberal benefactor thereunto. In Feb. 1485. he being then Prebendary of South-Grantham in the Cath. Church of Salisbury, (which he resigned) became Prebendary of Chardstock in the said Church, and in Apr. 1486. was made Preb. of Horton in that Church on the resignation of R. Morton. In 1503. Sept. 28. he was admitted Preb. of Srenshall in the Cath. Ch. of Tork, then void by the consecration of Jeffr. Blyth to the See of Lich. and Coventry, and on the 21. Dec. following he was installed Dean of the said Church of Tork, in the place of the said Jeffr. Blyth, who had been installed in that Dignity (in the place of Dr. Will. Sheffield deceased,) 24. Mar. 1496. In 1505. he was not only made Dean of Windfore but Master of the Rolls, and one of the Kings Councillours, in which year he resigned his Rectory of the Ch. of Aller in the Dioc. of B. and Wells. In 1507. he being elected Bishop of Durham, had restitution (f) made to him of the temporalities of that See 17. Nov. the same year; and in the next, being elected Archbishop of York on the death of Thom. Savage, had the temporalities also of that See restored (g) to him 12. Dec. 24. Hen. 7. In March 1511. he was made Cardinal of S. Praxedis for the service he did in perswading K. Hen. 8. to take part with the Pope in the Wars between him and Lewis 12. King of France, and in 1514. being then in Rome, was poisoned by one Rinaldo de Modena an Italian Priest, (who was his Steward,) upon malice and displeasure conceived, for a blow his Master gave him, as the said Rinaldo, when he was executed for it, confessed at his death. He ended his days on the 14. July in fifteen hundred and fourteen, and was, as certain authors say, buried in the English hospital (now called the English college) in Rome. The author of Cardinal Wolsey's life (h) saith, that the said Cardinal Bainbridge died at Rohan in France, being then, and there the Kings Ambassador. Onuph. Panvinus, and Joh. Baleus with his authors, tells us that Christopher Urswyke, who was Predecessor to the said Cardinal Bainbridge in the Deanry of Windore, was made Cardinal of S. Praxedis, but false, for it must be understood of Bainbridge. As for Christoph. Urswyke, he had been Recorder of London in part of the Reign of Edw. 4. in the time of Ric. 3. and in part of Hen. 7. To which last King being Chaplain, and afterwards Almoner, was by him employed in several Embassies, especially to Charles 8. K. of France, choosing him then the rather for that employment, because he was a Church-man, as best sorting with an Embassie of pacification, as that, and others were, to the said King. In 1488. May 22. he being then LL. D. he was confirmed Dean of York by his Proctor, in the place of Rob. Boshe, who died 25. Jan. going before. Which dignity Urswyke resigning, was succeeded therein by Will. Sheffield LL. D. in the month of June 1494. In 1490. he was made Canon of Windore, and about that time Archdeacon of Wilts. (in the place, if I mistake not, of one Hugh (*) Pavy, who had succeeded in that dignity Pet. Courtney upon his promotion to the See of Exeter, in the beginning of Febr. 1478.) and in 1493. Mar. 21. was not only made Preb. of Botewant in the Church of York on the resignation of Edward Cheyney, but also Archdeacon of Richmond on the promotion of John Blyth to the See of Sarum. In 1495. Nov. 20. he was installed Dean of Windore in the place of Dr. Jo. Morgan made Bishop of St. Davids, and about the same time became Registrary of the most Noble Order of the Garter. Afterwards he was offered the Bishoprick of Norwich, upon the death of James Goldwel, but refused it, and in the beginning of Febr. an. 1504. became Archdeacon of Oxford, on the promotion of Dr. Rich. Mayhew to the See of Hereford. At length after he (in the chief part of his life-time) had refused great honours, and so consequently riches, he retired to Hackney near London, where, in a contented condition, he spent several years in a religious and close retirement even to his death, which hapning in a good old age on the 24. Octob. in 1521. was buried on the north side of the Chancel of the Ch. there; where was lately, if not still, a monument of white free-stone remaining over his grave.

23. JAMES STANLEY, Son of Thomas Earl of Derby, was born in Lancashire, and educated in this University, but in what house, I cannot yet tell. On the 3. March 1491. he became Preb. of Taiminster prima in the Cath. Church of Sarum, and in the year following Preb. of Beminster prima in the said Church. In 1500. Dec. 3. he became Archdeacon of Richmond on the resignation of Christoph. Urswyke, and in 1505. in Sept. Chantor of the Cath. Ch. of Sarum, being then Warden of the coll. at Manchester in his own Country. On the 18. June 1506. he, by the name of Jacobus Stanley nuper hujus Universitatis Scholasticus, (did (a) supplicate the venerable congregation of Regents, that he might be licensed to proceed in the Civil Law, which was granted with some conditions; and being soon after elected Bishop of Ely, after the death of Rich. Redman, the temporalities thereof were (b) restored to him 5. Nov. following. On the 19. Jan. 1507. the said Regents, with the Non-Regents, did grant (c) that he the said James Stanley Bishop of Ely might be created Doctor of decrees by a cap put on his head by Will. Archb. of Canterbury and Richard B. of London. Which grant being accordingly performed with solemnity, a Letter of thanks was sent to the University for the honour they had done unto him. He left behind him at his death a natural Son called John de Yarsford a Knight; whom probably he had begotten on a Concubine, which (as Dr. Fr. Godwin tells (d) us) he kept at Somersham in his Diocess. In his last (e) Will and Test. dated 10. March 1514. and proved 23. May 1515. I find that it was his desire to be buried in a new Chappel to be made within the precincts of the Cath. Ch. of Ely, or else in his new Chappel then in building at Manchester. His will farther was, That the Chappel to be made for him to be buried and rest his bones in, should be made at the east end of the Cathedral Church of Ely, for which he would that 100 marks be bestowed on a Tomb for him to be erected therein. Also that another Chappel be built at Manchester, on the north side of the Church, between St. James Chappel and the east end of the Church, wherein he would have a Tomb made for him. On which Chappel and Tomb he would have an hundred pounds bestowed for the building of them, &c. — In this last Chappel dedicated to S. Joh. Bapt. which joyns on the north side of the collegiate Church at Manchester (wherein I presume he was buried, because there is neither Tomb or inscription for him at Ely) I find this inscription following. Of your charity pray for the Soule of James Stanley sometymes Bishop of Elye and Wardeyn of Manchester, who decessed this transitory Wourld the xxii. of March 1514. in the yere of owre Lord God m.c.xv. upon whose Soule and all Christen Soules Jesu have mercy, &c.

Vive deo gratus, toto mundo tumulatus.

Crimine mundatus, semper transire paratus.

Filii hominum, &c.

In a catalogue, or rather history of the Wardens of Manchester coll. which I have (f) seen, I find these matters of James Stanley, — At Manchester he built a most sumptuous Chappel on the north side of the Church, being 28 yards long and 9 yards broad, and a square Chappel on the north side of that again he built. He built the south side of the wood-work in the Quire, the seats for the Warden, Fellows, and Church-men, being thirty seats on both sides, and Mr. Rich. Bexwick that builded Jesus Chappel, builded the other side. — He lyeth buried on the north side of this Chappel, in a fair Tomb, with his picture in brass, in his pontifical robes, and the Arms of Derby and his Bishoprick impaled, &c. In the See of Ely succeed James Stanley one Nicholas West Doctor of both the Laws of Cambridge, who had restitution (g) made of the temporalities of that See 6. Sept. 7. Hen. 8. dom. 1515. He was born at Putney in Surrey, educated in Grammar learning in Eaton School near Windore, chose Scholar of Kings coll. in 1477. Where (h) proving a factious and turbulent person set the whole College together by the Ears about the Proctorship of the University. And when he could not obtain his desires, he set fire on the Provosts lodgings, stole away silver spoons, and ran away from the Colledge. But within short space after, he became a new Man, repaired to the University, and with general approbation for his excellent learning he was made Doctor (i) of Divinity. He was well experienced in the Civil and Canon Laws, and had such an art and faculty in opening dark places and sentences of the Scripture that none of his time could exceed him, &c. In 1510. he became Dean of Windore, in the place of Dr. Thom. Hobbes Warden of All. coll. deceased, and Registrary of the most Noble Order of the Garter. Afterwards King Hen. 8. sent him often Ambassador to Foreign Princes, and Q. Katherine chose him and Bishop Fisher her Advocates in the cause of divorce from K. Hen. 8. for which he incur'd that Kings displeasure. He paid his last debt to nature on the sixth day of Apr. 1533. Whereupon his body was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Ely, in the middle of a Chappel by him a little before erected on the south side of the same Church. Soon after was a large marble laid over his grave, with this inscription thereon. Of your charity pray for the Soule of Nicholas West sometymes Bishop of this See, and for all Christian Soules. For the which prayer, he hath graunted to every person so doying fortye days of pardon for every tyme that they shall so pray, &c. In the said See of Ely succeeded Thom. Goodrick D. of Div. Son of Edward Goodrick of Kirbye in Lincolnshire, Son of John Goodricke of Bullingbrook in the said County, which Thomas was educated in Kings colledge in the University of Cambridge.

30. JOHN THORNDEN, sometimes written Thorn-ton, was Doctor of Div. and several times Commissary or Vicechancellor of this University, while Dr. Warham Archb. of Canterbury was Chancellor, viz. between the years 1506. and 1514. in which time he is often stiled Episcopus Syryensis and Syryensis (perhaps the same with Sirmium in Hungary) as being a Suffragan to the same Archbishop, which is all I know of him.

31. MENELAUS Mac-CARMACAN, sometimes written among our imperfect Records Carmgan Hibernicus spent some time among his Countrymen in this University, but whether he took a degree, we have no Register to shew it. Afterwards retiring to his Country he became Dean of Raphoe, and at length Bishop of that place in 1484. He died (*) in the habit of a Grey-Frier on the seventh of the Ides of May in fifteen hundred and fifteen, and was buried in the Monastery of the Franciscans, commonly called the Grey-Friers, at Dunagall. Whereupon one Cornelius O-Cahan succeeded him in his Bishoprick.

32. RICHARD MAYHEW, or Mayo, received his first breath in Berkshire, in a Market Town, if I mistake not, called Hungerford, was educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's School near to Winchester, admitted true and perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1459. and on the 28. March 1467. took holy Orders from the hands of George Archb. of York. Soon after he was elected one of the Proctors of this University, and in 1480. was made President of Magd. coll. by the Founder thereof W. Waynflete, and about that time D. of Div. In the beginning of May 1501. he was made Archdeacon of the East-riding of Yorkshire in the place of Joh. Hole Bach. of Decrees, deceased, (who on the first of May 1497. was, from being Archdeacon of Clieuland admitted to that Dignity on the resignation of Cornbull) and being installed Archdeacon of Oxon, on the 10. of the same month and in the same year, was sent into Spain to conduct the Infanta Katherine to England to be wedded to Prince Arthur. In 1503. he was elected Chancellor of this University, and in the year after, he being one of the Kings Council, his Almoner, and elected to the See of Hereford, had restitution (a) made to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto, on the first of Nov. 1504. He paid his last debt to nature on the 18. of Apr. 1516. in fifteen hundred and sixteen, and was buried on the south side of the high Altar within his own Cathedral, near to the foot of the Image of the Glorious King and Martyr Ethelbert. By his (b) Will he gave to 50 Priests studying in the University of Oxon, six shillings and eight pence a-piece to pray for him, as also several books to New coll. Library. One Rich. Mayow Doctor of Decrees of this University, and Canon resid. of the Cath. Ch. of Exeter, died in the year 1500. whose Executor then was Thom. Harrys Archdeacon of Cornwall, but what relation there was between this Rich. Mayow (who was a Western man) and the Bishop before-mentioned, I know not. In the said See of Hereford succeeded Charles Bothe LL. D. of Cambridge; who, after election, received (c) the temporalities thereof 9. Feb. 1516. By his last Will and (d) Testam. proved 8. May 1535. he desired to be buried in the Cath. Ch. of Hereford juxta hostium ex parte boreali Ecclesie, ubi construxi (as he saith) sepulchrum meum. After him succeeded in the said See Edm. Fox another Cantabrigian, who had the temporalities thereof restored (e) to him 4. Oct. 1535. This person who was an eminent Scholar of his time, was born at Duresley in Gloucestershire, educated in Eaton School near Windfore, admitted Scholar of Kings coll. in Cambridge, 27. March 1512. became Provost of it 27. Decemb. 1528. and afterwards the Kings Almoner, one of his Privy Council, and a great promoter of the Kings divorce from Q. Katharine, particularly in the University of Cambridge, where he, and Dr. Steph. Gardiner procured, with much difficulty and earnest engaging of themselves, the testimony of the Members of the said University for the Kings divorce before-mentioned, an. 1530. In Sept. 1531. he was installed Archdeacon of Leycester upon the resignation of Dr. Steph. Gardiner, and in Nov. 1533. he was made Archdeacon of Dorset on the death of Will. Bennet. About which time, or rather before, he had been Embassador divers times into France and Germany, and afterwards was secretly a favourer of the reformed religion, insomuch that Martin Bucer dedicated his Commentary on the Evangelists to him. He, the said Fox, wrote a book, De vera differentia regia potestatis & Ecclesiasticae, & quæ sit ipsa veritas, ac virtus utriusque. Lond. 1534. 38. for which and other learned labours, as his Annotations on Mantuan, he is celebrated, and numbred among the learned men, by (f) Joh. Leland. There is also extant a short oration of his in the story of the Lord Thomas Cromwell, which you may see in the Acts and Mon. of the Church, and other matters elsewhere. By his last (g) Will and Test. made the 8. May 1538. and proved 20. March following, it appears that he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Church of S. Mary Hault in London, now called S. Mary Mounthaw, (de monte alto) the Patronage of which belongs to the Bishop of Hereford. After him succeeded John Skyppe D. D. sometimes of Gonvill coll. in Cambridge, who, after his election to the See of Hereford, had the Kings (h) consent to it, 7. Nov. 1539. He died in his house at Mount-hault in London in the latter end of the year (after or on the 18. March) 1551. Whereupon his body was buried near to that of his Predecessor Edward Fox before-mentioned.

33. JOHN HATTON, a Yorkshire man born, as it seems, and among the Oxonians for a time educated, became well beneficed in that County, and at length Suffragan Bishop to the Archbishop of York under the title of Nigrepont; which is, as I suppose, near to the Archipelago. In the year 1503. he was made Prebendary of Gevendale in the Church of York, and in the year following Preb. of Ulleskelf in the same Church. But the said promotions being not sufficient to keep up the Port of a Bishop, he was made Archdeacon of Nottingham in the place of Tho. Crofley deceased, in the beginning of Sept. 1506. He departed this mortal life on the 25. Apr. in fifteen hundred and sixteen, and was buried in the north Isle joyning to the Choir of the Cathedral Church at York. In his Archdeaconry succeeded William Fell D. D. and in his Prebendary of Ulleskelf Brian Hygden LL. D.

34. MILES SALLEY, or Sawley, a Benedictine Monk of Abendon Abbey, Almoner (i) thereof, and in 1498. Abbat of the Monastery of Einsam near to, and in the County of, Oxford, was promoted to the rich Bishoprick of Landaff in Nov. 1504. and in the year following did (k) bestow considerable exhibitions on certain poor Scholars of Oxford, in which University, (in Gloucester coll. I think) he had received his Academical education. He departed this mortal life in the month of Septemb. in fifteen hundred and sixteen, (at which time he bequeathed many good things to Einsam Abbey) whereupon his heart and bowels were buried before the Image of S. Theodorick at the high Altar in the Church of Mathern in Monmouthshire, (at which place the B. of Landaff hath a Pallace) and his body carried to Bristow, where it was with great solemnity buried on the north side of our Ladies Chappel before the Image of S. Andrew, situate and being within the college of Gauntes, (which Leland in his Itinerary stiles the Gauntes alias the Bonhones.) founded originally by Hen. de Gaunt a Priest. After him succeeded in the See of Landaff George Athequa a Black-Frier of Spain, who by the name of Georgius de Aitien, had the (l) temporalities thereof given to him 23. Apr. 9. Hen. 8. dom. 1517. and after him followed a Cambridge Doctor named Rob. Halgate or Holgate of Helmeworth in Yorkshire, Master of the Order of Sempryngham, and Prior of Watton, who, after election to that See, had (a) the Kings consent 29. March 28. Hen. 8. The next was Anthony Dunstan, whom I shall hereafter mention.

JAMES Mac-MAHON, who studied for some time Arts and the Civil Law, retired to his native Country of Ireland, became thro certain petite preferments Bishop of Derry 1507. and died a little before the nativity of our Saviour in fifteen hundred and seventeen. He held the (b) Priorship of S. Pet. and S. Paul of Knock in the Province of Louth in Commendam with his Bishoprick.

35. THOMAS PURSELL, whose place of Nativity is as much unknown to me as the House in Oxon wherein educated, became Bishop of Waterford and Lismore in Ireland about 1486. and soon after took care that all (c) the ancient charters of Lismore should be transcribed into a Register or Leiger-book; which book remaining with his successors till 1617. was by accident then burnt. He gave way to fate in fifteen hundred and seventeen, but where buried, I know not. In my searches (d) it appears that one John, Bishop of Waterford, was Rector of Bawdrob or Bandripp, in the Diocese of Bath and Wells, in January 1482. (22. Ed. 4.) whom I take to be predecessor to Thom. Purcell, tho not mention'd by the Author of the Com. of the Irish Bishops.

36. EDMUND COURCY, was descended from the noble family of the Courcyes of the Province of Mounster in Ireland, and when young became a Brother of the Franciscan Order, in his own Country. Afterwards going into England, studied the Theological faculty (of which he was in few years after Doctor) among those of his Order in Oxon. At length being made Bishop of Clogher in his own Country, in 1484. was translated thence to Ross, on the sixth of the Cal. of Octob. 1494. He gave way to fate in a good old age, in the Monastery of his Order at Temolage, in the County of Cork, on the 14. of March, in fifteen hundred and eighteen, and was buried there. He is said by a certain (*) Author to be much valued for his Fidelity by K. Hen. 7. and that he was the first of the English Nation that obtained the Episcopal See of Clogher.

37. RICHARD WYLSON, a Northern man born, who, after he had spent some time in the Theological faculty, among those of his Order in Oxon, became Prior of the Manastery of Drax in Yorkshire, on the death of one Thomas Hancocke an. 1507. and about the year 1515. was made Suffragan Bishop to the Archb. of York, under the title of Nigrepont. In 1518. he built the Chaire belonging to the Church of Bingley in Yorkshire, in which Town, as 'tis probable, he was born, but when he died, it appears not. One Rich. Wilson an English man, became, by provision from the Pope, Bishop of Meath in Ireland, 1523. and fate there about six years: whether the same with the former I cannot tell.

38. HUGH OLDHAM, or Owldham, descended from those of his name living at Oldham in Lancashire, was, as it seems, born at Manchester in that County, and being partly fitted for Academical learning, was sent to Oxon, where continuing for a while, went to Cambridge, took a degree there, and in Sept. 1495. was made Preb. of South Aulton in the Church of Sarum, on the death of John Coryndon, he the said Oldham being about that time Chaplain to Margaret Countess of Richmond, and Canon of the Cath. Ch. at Lincoln. In 1499. he, by the name of Hugh Oldham L.L. Bac. was admitted Preb. of South Cave in the ch. of York, in the place of Dr. Will. Worsley deceased, and on the 12. of Jan. the same year, he was installed in his proper person in that dignity. In 1504. he being by the endeavours of the said Countess elected Bishop of Exeter, by the name of Mr. Hugh Oldham, without the addition of Doctor or Bach. was (*) restored to the temporalities of that See, 6 Jan. 1504. He fate there several years, not without some disturbance from the Abbot of Tavistock, occasion'd by a contention between them about the liberties of the Church of Exeter; and dying on the 25. of June, in fifteen hundred and nineteen, was buried in the Cath. Ch. of S. Peter at Exeter, in a Chappel of his own erection, hallowed in honour of our Lord God S. Saviour, joyning to the South side of the Church, a little above the high Altar. In which Chappel he appointed some of the Vicars Choral of Exeter to say Mass daily for his Soul. He was a benefactor to the said Vicars, by giving them the Lands which belonged to the Brethren of the Holy Trinity at Totness in Devonshire (whose Cell there had been founded by one De la Bont, Lord of Little Totness, but (a) suppressed by the said Oldham) to the end that they might be reduced together every day at one Table to take Commons. He was also an especial Benefactor to C.C.

coll. in Oxon, as you may elsewhere (a) see: and at Manchester in Lancashire (where his Obit was solemnised several years after his death in the collegiat Church) he built an house to be employed for a School, joyning to the coll. there on the West part. Of this School he appointed a Master and an Usher, who were to teach Children Grammar after the use, manner, and form, of the School at Banbury in Oxfordshire, where Tho. Stanbridge taught the Grammar composed by John Stanbridge. He appointed the President of C. C. coll. in Oxon, for the time being to elect a Schoolmaster and an Usher, the former to have 10*l.* and the other 5*l.* per an. The Master was to teach freely without reward or taking of Cock-pennies, Victor-pennies, Potation-pennies, &c. Whether this School did go to ruine in the time of K. Ed. 6. or was like to be dissolved I know not. Sure I am that Hugh Bexwyck clerk, and Joan Bexwyck widdow settled the said School 10 Elizabeth.

THOMAS HALSAY, or Halsey, an English man, 39. was conversant with the Muses in this Universitie for a time, but in what house or hostle for Civilians or Canonists I cannot yet tell. Afterwards travelling beyond the Seas, where, I presume, he had the degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon him, he was made Penitentiary of the English Nation in the Church of S. Peter in Rome, and the Popes Prothonotary of Ireland. At length by the endeavours of Christop. Bainbridge Archb. of York and Cardinal, he was by the provision of P. Jul. 2. made Bishop (b) of Laighlin in Ireland, about the year 1513, but never lived, as it seems, to visit his See or abide there. In 1515 and 16. he was present at the council of Lateran, while in the mean time his Vicar general (Charles Cavenagh) managed his diocese. After his return into England in order to go into Ireland, he died in Westminster about fifteen hundred and nineteen; whereupon his body was buried in the Church belonging to the Savoy hospital in the Strand. Near his tomb-stone on the left side was Gavin Douglas Bishop of Dunkeld in Scotland buried (c) an. 1522. having been suddenly deprived of his life by the Pest. In the same year (1519) died also Job. Imurily Bishop of Ross in Ireland, sometimes a Cistercian monk of Maur in the county of Cork, but whether he was ever of Oxon. I cannot tell. Sure I am, that several of the surname of Immerley studied there in the time or age wherein Jo. Imurily lived.

JOHN PENNY whose native place is as yet to me unknown, was educated (†) in Lincoln coll. but whether in the condition of a Fellow, I cannot tell. Afterwards he being Doctor of the Laws, and noted for an eminent Canonist, was made Bishop of Bangor in 1504, (having before been Abbat of Leycester as John Leland (||) saith) where sitting till 1508. was by the Popes Bull dated at Rome 10. cal. Oct. in the same year translated to Carlisle, and on the 23 of January following paid his obedience to the Archb. of York. He gave way to fate about fifteen hundred and twenty, but where buried, unless in his church of Carlisle I know. His predecessor in that See was Dr. Rog. Laybourne of Cambridge, who by his (*) will dated 17. Jul. 1507. desired to be buried in the parish church of S. James near to Charing Crofs by London, but whether he died in that, or in the year following, I cannot tell because there was no probat made of his Will. Walter Redman D. D. and Master of the coll. at Greystock in Cumberland was one of his Executors.

WILLIAM ATWATER, a Somersetshire man 41. born, as it seems, was first Demie, and afterwards Fellow of Magd. coll. where, while he continued in the state of Bachelaur, he was esteemed a good Disputant in Philosophy, as afterwards, when Master, in Divinity. In 1489. Dec. 19. he was collated to the Church of Hawkebridge in the Dioc. of Wells, and in 1492. (in Feb. as it seems,) he proceeded D. of D. In 1497. and several years after, he did undergo the office of Commissary of the University, being then Rector of Pedythinton in the Dioc. of Sarum and Vicar of Commnore near Abendon in Berks, and in Jul. 1498. he was made Rector of Dycheat commonly called Dichet in Somersetshire, by the death of John Gunthorp.

Which Rectory he holding till Oct. 1513. was in the next month succeeded therein by Andr. Ammonius an Italian, then Preb. of Compton-Dunden in the Church of Wells. In 1499. the said Doctor Atwater became Canon of Windsore, and about the same time Fellow of Eaton coll. and Registry of the most Noble Order of the Garter. In 1502. I find him to be Dean of the Kings Chappel, and on the 5. of July 1506. I find him installed Chanc. of the Church of Lincoln. Which dignity he holding six years Nich. Bradbridge was installed therein 16. Nov. 1512. In the beginning of Sept. 1509. he was made Dean of Salisbury upon the promotion of Thom. Ruthall or Ropthall to the See of Durham; in which year Thom. Writthiously Garter K. of Arms granted to him, the said Atwater, a Coat of Arms, by the name of Will. Atwater Professor of Divinity, of Davington in Somersetshire, and Dean of the Kings Chappel, &c. by which, it may appear that he was originally of Davington, if such a Town or Village or Hamlet be in that County. On the 3. June 1514. he was installed by proxy Archdeacon of Huntingdon in the place of Joh. Constable Doctor of Decrees, and being made Bishop the same year, Rich. Rawlins D.D. was installed in that Dignity on the 18. of Novemb. He was a person much esteemed and valued by Cardinal Wolsey, who finding him a man of parts did use his advice and council in all or most of his publick concerns. At length by his endeavours he was made his Successor in the Episcopal See of Lincoln, to which being consecrated on the (d) twelfth day of Nov. 1514. late there to the time of his death, which hapned in fifteen hundred and twenty. He was buried in the great middle Isle of the Cath. Ch. at Lincoln, at the foot of the Tomb of Bishop Almwyke, and had soon after a large tomb-stone laid over his grave, with the portraiture of a Bishop engraven on a large brasse plate fastned thereunto, with this inscription following engraven also on plates of brasse. Hic requiescit reverendus in Christo Pater Willielmus Atwater sacre Theologie professor, & regum Henrici septimi & octavi sacelle prius Decanus, mox eorundem a consiliis, postea hujus percelebris Ecclesie Episcopus. Presedit annos sex, menses tres. Obiit anno etatis sue octogesimo primo, consecrationis septimo, à Christo nato millesimo quingentesimo vicesimo, die mensis Februarii quarto.

42. WILLIAM ROKEBY, Brother to Sir Rich. Rokeby Treasurer of Ireland, was born in Yorkshire, educated partly in an ancient hostle for the reception of Canonists in S. Aldates Parish, he himself being afterwards Doctor of the Can. Law, and about the same time Rector of Sandall near Doncaster, and Vicar of Halifax, in his own Country. In 1507. he was by the favour of P. Jul. 2. made Bishop of Meath in Ireland, and the same year one of the Kings Privy Council there. In the latter end of 1511. he was translated by the authority of the same Pope to the Archiepiscopal See of Dublin, and in 1515. was made Chancellour of Ireland by K. Hen. 8. in which great office, as 'tis supposed, he continued to the time of his death. He yielded to the stroke of death 29. Nov. in fifteen hundred twenty and one, and was buried, as a certain (b) author saith, in the Church of S. Patrick near Dublin. In his Will (i) dated 22. Nov. and proved 4. February, an. 1521. wherein he styles himself Archb. of Dublin and perpetual Vicar of Halifax, I find these things following, — Item, I will that after my death my body be embowelled and my bowels and heart to be buried in the Church of Halifax within the Quire, and my body to be buried in the new Chappel at Sandall, and thereon a Tomb of stone to be made, and about the same to be written, Ego Willielmus Dublin Archiepiscopus, quondam Rector istius Ecclesie, credo quod redemptor meus vivit — qui obiit — cujus anime propitiatur deus amen. Item, I will that a Chappel be made in all convenient haste at Halifax on the south side of the Church, after the direction of mine Executors and Church-Masters, and there a Tomb to be made with my Image, and thereupon written, Hic jacet Willielmi Rokeby nuper Dublin Archiepiscopi & Vicarii perpetui istius Ecclesie, qui credo, &c. Item, where I did obtain a Pardon for the Parish of Halifax, and the Parishings thereunto adjoining, pro laeticiis in quadragesima edendis, I will that mine Executors at their discretion obtain sub plumbo the said license to be renewed, and the profit thereof to be employed for a Priest to sing at Halifax in my said new Chappel as long as may be, by the advice and discretion of my Executors and the Church-Wardens. Item, I will that a Doctor of Div. have 10 l. to be occupied in Preaching, &c. Thus far part of his Will; according to the tenour of which his heart was buried in the Chancel of the Ch. at Halifax, and thereon was laid a stone, with the figure only of an heart engraven thereon. On the north side of the said Church was also founded a Chappel, wherein was a monument built for him, with an inscription put thereon. Which being since partly defaced, you shall have that part which lately remained thereon. Ora pro anima Willielmi Rokeby jur. Can. profess. ac etiam Episcopi Medensis, & denique Archiepisc. Dublin. capelle fundatoris istius. Qui obiit . . . Novembris an. Dom. mccccxxi. What was performed at Sandall for the accomplishment of the other part of his Will, I know not. One Will. Rokeby LL. Bac. who was well beneficed in Yorkshire, succeeded Joh. Dakyn LL. D. in the Archdeaconry of the East-riding of the said County, in Dec. 1558. who dying in 1568. Martin Parkinson B. D. had that Dignity conferred upon him in Dec. the same year, but before he had kept it an year, he gave way to fate: Whereupon the said Dignity was conferred on John Mey D. D. who was settled therein in the beginning of Aug. 1569. and soon after became Bishop of Carlisle. I find also one John Rokeby LL. D. to be Chanter, Canon resid. and Preb. of Duffield, of, and in the Church of York, who died in the latter end of 1574. Which John with William before-mentioned were of the same Family with Will. Archb. of Dublin.

RICHARD FITZ-JAMES, son of John Fitz-james (by Alice his Wife daugh. of Joh. Newburgh) son of James Fitz-james by Eleanor his Wife daugh. and heir of Sim. Draycot, was born in Somersetshire, became a Student in the University of Oxon about 1459. elected probationer-Fellow of Merton coll. in 1465. took holy orders when he was Master, and in 1473 was elected one of the Proctors of the University. In the beginning of March 1474 he became Preb. of Taunton in the church of Wells upon the resignation of John Wansford, and afterwards being constituted chaplain to K. Edw. 4. he proceeded in Divinity. On the 12 of March 1482 he was elected Warden of Merton coll. upon the resignation of John Gybur, being then and after esteemed a frequent Preacher. Which place he keeping about 25 years, he shewed himself most worthy of it by his admirable way of government which he exercised, by his continual benefaction thereunto, and by his endeavours, when in power, to promote his Fellows. In March 1487. he was made Vicar of Mynhead, and about that time Rector of Aller, in Somersetshire; in which last he was succeeded by Mr. Christopher Baynbrigg in the latter end of May 1497. On the 2. of June 1495. he was admitted Almoner to K. Hen. 7. and on the 2. of January 1496. being then elected by the Monks of Rochester to be Bishop of that See, was consecrated thereunto at Lambeth 21. May following by Cardinal Moreton Archb. of Canterbury, and his Assistants Landaff and Bangor. In January 1503. he was translated to the See of Chichester in the place of Dr. Edw. Story a Cantabrigian, (who dying in the latter end of the year 1502. was buried on the north side of the high Altar in the Cath. Ch. at Chichester, under a fair Tomb which he a little before had built for himself,) and on the 14. March. 1505. he was nominated by the King to succeed Dr. Baxons in the See of London. On the 1. Aug. 1506. the temporalities of that See were (*) restored to him: So that soon after being settled there, he resigned his Wardenship of Merton coll. which he had kept in Commendam with Rochester and Chichester, and all that time had administered the Government thereof with great commendation. But this the Reader is to note, that tho he was a Bishop several years while Warden, yet did he, according to statute and custom, submit himself yearly in the month of January to the scrutiny of the Fellows of the said coll. in the Chappel of S. Cross of Halwell near to Oxon, de mora & moribus Custodis. Which statute continuing in use till the time of Hen. 8. was then dis-used by Dr. Joh. Chamber Warden thereof, under pretence of absence in serving his Majesty as Physician. He the said Dr. Fitz-james bestowed much money in adorning the Cathedral of S. Paul, as he had done before the collegiate Parish Church belonging to Merton coll. in which house he built (I cannot say all at his own charge) the hall, with a fair dining-room over it; and a lodging room, with a large vault under it, both joyning on the west side to the said hall and dining-room, for the use of him while Warden, and his Successor in that office for ever. Which hall, dining-room, and lodging Chamber were made as additions to the old lodgings belonging to the Wardens of the said college, and were built on the south side of those lodgings which were erected by Hen. Sever sometimes Warden. He the said Dr. Fitz-James also bestowed much money in the building and finishing of S. Maries Church in Oxon. In memory of which benefaction were his Arms, quartering those of Draycot, engraven on stone over the north door leading from the Schoolstreet to the lower end (on the north side) of the body of that church. His Arms also with those of Card. Joh. Moreton Archb. of Cant. and Edm. Audley Bish. of Sarum were at the bottom of the Stone-pulpit in the said Ch. of S. Mary, most curiously engraven, and also on the roof of the old Library, (afterwards a Congregation-house) on the north side of S. Maries Chancel. To the reparation of which Church, as also to the building of the Pulpit, which consisted all of Ashler-stone, there is no doubt but that he was a benefactor. He also, with his brother Sir Joh. Fitz-James L.Ch. Justice of England, were the chief Founders of the School-house in Brewton in Somersetshire, near which Town (at Redlinch, as 'tis said) they were both born. Will. Gilbert Abbat of Brewton was a benefactor to it, and so was Joh. Edmonds D. D. Abbat of Glastenbury. At length, after good deeds had trod upon his heels even to Heaven gates, he gave way to fate in a good old age in the beginning of fifteen hundred twenty and two: Whereupon his body was buried in the nave of his own Cathedral of S. Paul, under the Altar of S. Paul, near to the foundation or foot of the Campanile, under a marble Tomb prepared and erected by him in his life time. Afterwards was a little Chappel erected over the said Tomb, wherein, I presume, were Masses said for his Soul. But when the said Campanile was consumed with fire 1561. the Chappel then was consumed also.

41 THOMAS RUTHALL, or Rothall, was born in a Market Town in Gloucestershire called Cirencester, in the Church of which place I saw some years since a monument for one Joh. Avenyng and his Wife: Which Joh. Avenyng dying 1401. might probably be (according to time) Grandfather to Avenyng, (whom some call Avelyng) Mother to Tho. Ruthall before-mentioned. He was educated for some years in this University, as it evidently appears in one (a) or more of our Registers, but in what coll. or hall I know not. Thence, as 'tis said, he went to Cambridge for a time, but when, it doth not appear. Sure it is that one Rothall took the degree of D. of D. in this University, and in the year 1500. was (b) incorporated at Cambridge, with Dr. Rich. Mayhew President of Magd. coll. In 1503. he was elected Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, (being then Archdeacon of Gloucester.) and in the beginning of Sept. 1505. he was made Dean of Salisbury, in the place, as it seems, of one Edw. Cheyney, who occurs Dean of that Church in Aug. 1499. About that time, he being esteemed a person of great virtue and prudence, he was made Secretary to K. Hen. 7. who a little before his death nominated him to the See of Durham upon the translation of Bainbridge to York. Soon after K. Hen. 8. succeeding in the Throne, he made him his Secretary for a time, and one of his Privy Council. And being then elected to the said See of Durham, the temporalities thereof were (c) restored to him, 3. July 1. Hen. 8. dom. 1509. Afterwards he was made (d) L. Privy Seal, was esteemed a famous Clerk, and admirably well read in both the Laws, being, as 'tis said, Doctor or Professor of them. Towards his latter end he founded a Free School at the place of his nativity, and gave an house and seven pounds per an. for the maintenance of a Master: Which School having for the most part flourished in good sort, hath educated many that have been eminent in Church and State. He paid his last debt to nature at Durham place near London, on Wednesday the fourth of Feb. in fifteen hundred twenty and two, and was buried in the Chappel of S. John Baptist joyning to the Abbey-Church of S. Peter in Westminster, at which time Dr. Rowl. Phillips Vicar of Croydon a great Divine and a renowned Clerk preached an excellent Sermon. Some years after was a fair raised Tomb built over his grave with his Statua thereon mitred and vested, and a small inscription on it, but false as to the year of his death.

MAURICE FITZ-GERALD, called by some 45. Mauritius Johannis, was of ancient extract in Ireland, and for a time educated in Oxon under the name of Fitz-Gerard, but whether he took a degree we have no Register of that time that shews it. Afterwards by provision from P. Julius 2. he was made Archb. of Cashills in Ireland, and died, as 'tis (d) reported, in fifteen hundred twenty 1523. and three. 'Tis said that certain statutes, made in a Synod by him held at Limerick 1511. were inserted in the Register of Thom. Purcell B. of Lismore and Waterford; which with the Reg. it self were afterwards consumed in the flames, as I have before told you.

JOHN TYNMOUTH, sometimes a Grey-Frier 46. at Lynne in Norfolk, was educated in Theological learning among those of his Fraternity at Cambridge, and afterwards among those at Oxon, and at length made a Suffragan Bishop under the tit. of the Bish. of Argos, then in partibus infidelium. He gave way to fate in fifteen hundred twenty 1524. and four, and was buried in the Ch. yard of Boston in Lincolnshire, (of which place he was Vicar) right against the midst of the high Altar, to the end that his loving Parishioners, when they should happen to see his Grave and Tomb, might be sooner moved to pray for his Soul. He gave at the time of his death to the houses of Grey Friars at Lynne, Cambridge, and Oxon, 5 l. a piece.

EDMUND AUDLEY Son of Jam. Tuchet or 47. Touchet Lord Audley by Alianore his wife, was educated in Academical learning in Lincoln coll. as it seems, to which afterwards he was an especial benefactor, took the (*) degree of Bach. of Arts in 1463, but whether that of Master, it doth not appear in the reg. of that time, which is imperfect. In Janu. 1471 he became Preb. of Farendon in the Church of Lincoln, upon the resignation of one Rob. Skyllington, (or rather Stillington) and in the month of Oct. 1475 Preb. of Codeworth in the Church of Wells, on the death of Mr. Will. Fulford. On the 25. Dec. the same year, he, under the title of M. A. became Archdeacon of the East-Riding of Yorkshire on the death of Joh. Walker LL. B. and had other preferments in other Churches conferred upon him. At length being promoted to the See of Rocheſter, his Archdeaconry was bestowed on a certain noble man named Edm. Pole, installed therein 15. Oct. 1480. who being made Archdeacon of Richmond, (upon the consecration of Joh. Skirwood B. of Durham) was installed therein 6. Jan. 1484. So that thereupon resigning his Archdeaconry of the East-riding of Yorksh. Will. Poteman (sometimes Warden of Alf. coll. as I guess) was installed on the 16. of the same month in the same year, who dying 25. March 1493. Hen. Cornbull succeeded him. Afterwards Edm. Audley was translated to the See of Hereford upon the death of Thom. Myllyng, (sometimes a Student among the Benedictines of Gloucester coll. in the Suburbs of Oxon.) the temporalities of which were (e) given to him 26. Dec. 1492. and from thence to Salisbury, the temporalities of which See also were put (f) into his hands on the 2. of April 1502. and about that time was made Chancellor of the most Noble Order of of the Garter. In 1518. he (g) gave 400 l. to Linc. coll. to purchase lands for the use thereof, and about that time bestowed upon the said house the Patronage of a Chantry which he had lately founded in a Chappel built by him in the north part of the Choir of the Cath. Ch. at Salisbury. He also was a Benefactor to the reparation of the Congregation-house (sometimes a Library) on the north side of S. Maries Chancel in Oxford, to the erection of that curious piece of workmanship, the stone Pulpit, in the said Ch. finished 1508. (at the bottom of which were his Arms, a Fret impaled by the See of Sarum) and gave 200 marks for the supply of Chicheley's chest (belonging to the University) which had before been robb'd of its treasure. But whether he built the choir or chancel of S. Maries church, or gave the old Organs (as a certain (b) author is pleased to tell us) I find it no where to appear. At length departing this mortal life, in a good old age, at 1524. Ramsbury in Wilt., on the 23 of Aug. in fifteen hundred twenty and four, was buried in the chappel before-mention'd, built by him in honour of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary, within the cath. ch. of Sarum: to the reparation of which cathedral he bequeathed threescore pounds. After his death Laur. Campegius Cardinal of S. Anastasius was made Bishop of Salisbury, but whither he, (being almost continually absent) or any of his Successors till the time of Dr. Seth Ward, an. 1671. were ever chancellours of the order of the Garter, it doth not appear.

45. THEODORICK O'BRIEN, sometimes written Terence and Terlach O-brien, was descended from an ancient and noble family of his name in Ireland, and after he had spent some time in good letters here in Oxon, became Bishop of Killaloe in the said Country, and a person of great name there for his liberality and hospitality, yet addicted to warfare more than became his coat. He paid his last debt to nature (†) in fifteen hundred twenty and five. Several years before his time was another of both his names Bishop of that place, and another after him; whereupon, by writers, this Bishop was commonly written and called Terence O-Brien the second.

49. JOHN YOUNG received his first breath in this world at Newton-Longvill in Bucks., was educated in Wykeham's School near Winchester, became perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1482. and left it in 1502. being then, or about that time, Doct. of Div. and Rector of S. Martins Church in Oxon. Afterwards he became well known to Cardinal Tho. Wolsey, by whose endeavours he was made Dean of Chichester, Bishop titular of Gallipolis or Galipoli, a City in Thrace, about 1517. Judge, as 'tis said, of the Prerogative of Canterbury, and Warden of New coll. in 1521. He died 28. March, in fifteen hundred twenty and six, and was buried, as I suppose, in the Chappel of the said College, under a Marble-stone that he had lain there some time before his death, with an inscription thereon, and a blank for the time of his death to be filled up by his Executor, or Overseer of his last Will and Testament, but was never performed. The reader is to know that there was another John Young, who, from being Prebendary of Apethorpe in the cath. ch. of York, was admitted Dean of that Church by the name and title of Jo. Young LL.D. on the 17. of May 1514. being at that time Master of the Rolls. But he dying 25. Apr. 1516. and buried in the chappel of the Rolls in Chancery-lane near London, must not be taken to be the same with the former. Besides the said two, I find others of both their Names, as (1) John Young a Monk of Ramsay, who being well skill'd in the Hebrew tongue, saved many books of that Language that were in the Library of that Monastery when 'twas dissolved, in 1535. or thereabouts. (2) John Young (Giovannus) a native of Yorkshire, educated in Trin. coll. in Cambridge, afterwards Master of Pemb. hall and Vice-chancellor of that University, of whom and his writings Baleus (a) and Pissem (b) will inform you. (3) Jo. Young one of the Bonhoms or Good men, of the Monastery of Albrugg in Bucks. Who being turn'd out thence at the dissolution by K. Hen. 8. entred himself a Sojourner in Exeter coll. about 1539. He was of kin to Jo. Young B. of Galipoli, but what name or eminence there was in him, I find not. (4) Jo. Young born at Newton Longvill before mention'd, Fellow of New coll. 1512. Rector of his native place in 1525. and died there in 1545. which Jo. was nearly related to the Bishop.

WILLIAM HOW a Buckinghamshire man born as it seems, or at least descended from those of his name, living at, or near the Wycombs, was educated in all kind of Learning in this University, and by the title of Master of Arts thereof and the Kings chaplain, did supplicate the Ven. congregation of Regents in 1512. that he might be admitted to the reading of the Sentences, but whether he was really admitted, it appears not. Afterwards he travelled, was admitted Doct. of Div. in an University beyond the Seas, and at his return retir'd to the University in the beginning of the year 1526. where by the name of Will. How Episcopus Aurenfis, supplicated the said congregation that whereas he had been created Doct. of Divinity beyond the Seas, and had been a student in this University many years, he might be incorporated in the same faculty; which being granted simpliciter, he was forthwith incorporated. This Bishoprick in the same I presume, with Auriensis or Orensis, commonly called Orense, under the Archbishoprick of Compostella in Spain; to which country, as 'tis probable, this W. How was sent about business by Catherine of Spain Queen of England, the Royal consort Clara to K. Hen. 8. I find one Will. How M. of A. presented by 1526. the King to the Church of Shipton-Mallet in Somersetshire, on the death of Mr. Reynold West, in the beginning of Aug. 1516. and about that time became Rector of Alre (or Alley) in the same county; but this Will. How dying in 1521. or 22. must not be understood to be the same with the former. To this last, was Job. How prior of Plympton in Devonshire related, who living to see his Monastery dissolved, went afterwards to Oxon, and settled in Exeter coll. in January 1545. in the condition of a Sojourner.

WILLIAM GILBERT a Canon Regular and 1521. Prior of Brewton or Bruton in Somersetshire (in which county he was born) became Doct. of Div. of this University in 1506. and in the year after was made Vicar of Mynhead in his own country, on the death of Tho. Beaumont sometimes Fellow of Merton coll. Afterwards, being esteemed a man of note, reverence and great Religion, he was made Suffragan Bishop to Hadrian de Castello Bishop of Bathe and Wells, under the title of Episc. Majorensis, which is, (*) in partibus Infidelium, and by that title he was admitted Vicar of Southpetherton in the Dioc. of Wells 16. Dec. 1525. by the presentation thereunto of Jo. Herte Abbot of Athelney, as also to other benefices, and one or more dignities to keep up his port. Afterwards, or about that time, he went to Rome, and there procured (†) of the Pope that the 1527. Priory of Brewton might be changed into an Abbey. After his return, he was always called Abbat Gilbert, and with its name, did so change the buildings of his Abbey, that it was but little better than re-edified by him. Whether he was the last Abbat I know not.

RICHARD FOX, the worthy Founder of Corp. 152. Ch. coll. in this University, of whom having made mention at large elsewhere, (d) I shall only say that he was born at Ropesley near to Grantham in Lincolnshire, educated in Grammar learning at Boston in the said county, in Academical for a time in Magd. coll. in Oxon, whence being transplanted to Cambridge, became at length Master of Pembroke hall there, Prebendary of Bishopston in the Church of Sarum, and in Feb. 1485. Preb. of South Grantham in the same Church, upon the resignation of Dr. Christop. Bainbridge. This person having been a constant Adherent to Henry Earl of Richmond, against King Rich. 3. was by him, when made King of England by the name of Hen. 7. made in the beginning of his reign one of his Privy Council, (he being then LL.D.) and nominated to be Bishop of Exeter in Feb. 1486. On the 24. of the same month, he had the custody of the Privy Seal conferr'd on him, and being elected to the said See, the K. restored (e) to him the Temporalities belonging thereunto, 2. Apr. 1487. On the 5. Jul. following, he had by the Kings (f) command twenty Shillings per diem allowed to him, to commence from the 24. Feb. before-mention'd; which was allowed to him, as I suppose, as Keeper of the said Seal: And being elected afterwards to the See of B. and Wells, had restitution of its temporalities made (g) to him by the King 4. May, 1492. In 1494. he was translated to Durham, and afterwards was elected Chancellour of the University of Cambridge, and being settled at Durham, he forthwith, out of a great vast Hall in the Castle there, did take as much away as made a fair Buttery and a Pantry, even to the Pulpits or Galleries on each side of the Hall, wherein the Trumpeters or Wind-musick used to stand to play while the meat was usher'd in: And on the Wall, which parted the said buttery from the Hall, was a great Pellican set up, to shew that it was done by him, because he gave the Pellican to his Arms. When Dr. Richard Neile became B. of Durham, he took away part of the said hall at the other end, to enlarge the great Parlour, and yet the hall continued fair and large still. At length upon the death of Dr. Tho. Langton, he was elected B. of Winchester; the temporalities of which being restored (b) to him by the King 17. Octob. 1500. was soon after installed with great solemnity. After he was settled there, he performed many acts of piety and charity, among which was the foundation and establishment of C. C. coll. before-mention'd, and dying in fifteen hundred twenty and eight, was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Winchester, on the South side of the high Altar. After him followed in that See Card. Tho. Wolsey, of whom I shall make mention anon.

53. HUGH INGE or Inge, was born at Shipton-Mallet in Somersetshire, educated in Wykeham's School, made perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1484. took the degrees in Arts, and left the coll. in 1496. Afterwards he travelled beyond the Seas, where he was made Doct. of Divinity, was successively made Preb. of East Harptrey in, and Succentor of, the Church of Wells, Guardian of Wapulham in the Dioc. of Lincoln, Preb. of Auste in the Church of Westbury in the Dioc. of Worcester, (to which the Vicaridge of Wellow in the Dioc. of B. and Wells was annexed by the Pope) Vicar of Oldeston in the Dioc. of Lincoln, of Duttyng in Somersetshire by the presentation of Richard the Abbat, and Conv. of Glastenbury, on the death of Mr. Will. Speckington, and of Weston alias Sowey, by the presentation of the said Ab. and Conv. on the death of Mr. Rob. Stafford. In the beginning of Apr. 1511. he was incorporated D. of D. in this University, and in the latter end of that year was made Bishop of Meath in Ireland. Thence he was translated to the Archiepiscopal See of Dublin in the place of Dr. Will. Rokeby, an. 1521. and about that time was made Chancellour of Ireland, where he was accounted a person of great probity and justice. He gave way to fate at Dublin 3 Aug. in fifteen hundred twenty and eight: whereupon his body was buried in the Church of S. Patrick there. In the said See of Dublin, succeeded Dr. John Allen, whom I shall mention in his proper place.

54. THOMAS BELE, Beel or Beyll, was bred a Canon regular of the Order of S. Austen, and educated in Acad. learning among those of his Order, studying in S. Maries coll. in Oxon, of which he became Prior about 1508. Afterwards taking the degrees in divinity, he became Lord Prior of S. Mary Spytell without Bishopsgate in London, and at length Suffragan Bishop to Rich. Fitz-James B. of London, under the title of Episcop. Lydensis, which is under the Patriarch of Jerusalem. In that titular See succeeded one Joh. Holt, but whether educated in this University I cannot tell. He lived mostly in the Town of Bury S. Edmund in Suffolk, where dying about the 12. of Aug. 1540. was buried in the Church of our blessed Lady S. Mary there, in our Ladies lile near to the head of John Holt Gent.

55. THOMAS WOLSEY, the great and mighty Cardinal of the time he lived in, whose life having been written several years after his death by Thom. Cavendish his Gentleman Usher, we are informed therein that he was born at Ipswich in Suffolk, but not that he was a Butchers Son, as others have publicly reported, as well in the Cardinals life time, as since: the first of which was he, who wrote a Libel in English Verse against him, a little before his fall, called A dialogue between two Priests servants named Watkin and Jeffry, published in octavo (perhaps written also) by a canting and severe Lutheran, who writes himself N. O. But so it was, that he the said T. Wolsey being very apt to learn when he was a Child, his Parents and other good Friends made shift to maintain him in Oxon, particularly in Magd. coll. where making a most wonderful progress in Logick and Philosophy, he became Bach. of Arts at 15. years of age an. 1485. Soon after he was elected fellow, and when he had taken the degree of M. of A. was made Master of the Grammar School joining to the said College. In the 14. Hen. 7. Dom. 1498. he was Burfar of that House, in which year the stately Tower was finisht. In the beginning of Oct. 1500. he became Rector of Lymington in Somersetshire (on the death of Joh.

Borde) by the presentation thereunto of Thomas Grey Marquess of Dorset: which Rectory he conferr'd upon him for the great care he had of his Sons under his Tuition, in the Grammar School before-mention'd. But that great man dying in Sept. 1501. and his hopes of being introduced into the court, frustrated, he struck into acquaintance with one Sir Joh. Naphant Treasurer of Calais, a Gent. of the said county, who forthwith made him his chaplain: And finding him to be a man of parts, committed his employment to him, he himself being grown old, and consequently unfit for business. At length he being mindful of his chaplains good service, he never left him until he had found means to make him the Kings chaplain. Which matter being according to his mind effected, he became known to one of the Kings grave Counsellors and Favourites named Rich. Fox Bishop of Winchester, who finding Wolsey to be not only an active, but a witty man, did with one Sir Tho. Lovel another grave Counsellor, commend him to the service of the King; who also upon discourse with him, finding him to be a man of Eloquence, and to understand State affairs, sent him in the quality of an Ambassador to Maximilian the Emperour, then abiding in Flanders not far from Calais. Which Embassage he performed with so great dexterity and quickness, that the K. taking especial notice of it, did soon after confer upon him the Deanery of Lincoln, void by the death of Jeffrey Simeon sometimes Fellow of New college, Proctor of this University of Oxon, and Dean of the chappel Royal to K. Hen. 7. (which Jeffrey died 20. Aug. 1508.) Of which Church, I say, being made Dean 2. Feb. 1508. was installed by proxy 25. March 1509. and in person 21. of Aug. 1511. After the death of K. Hen. 7. he quickly got into the favour so much of his successor Hen. 8. that he was by him (a) presented to the Rectory of Turrington in the dioc. of Exeter 28. Nov. 1510. (being then Bach. of Div.) and on the 17. Feb. following, was made Canon of the collegiate church of Windsore, and about that time Registrary. of the most noble Order of the Garter. In 1512. Jan. 31. he, by the name of the Kings Almoner, was made Prebendary of Bagthorpe in the church of Tork by the favour of Cardinal Bainbridge Archb. thereof, (in the place of James Harrington Dean of that church, who died in Dec. 1512.) and on the 21. Febr. following, he was admitted Dean in the said Harringtons place, who had been installed in that dignity in the room of the said Bainbridge 31. Januar. 1507. In 1513. he being then with the King at the taking of Tournay in France, his Majesty not only gave him the revenues of the Bishoprick of that City, but also made him actual Bishop thereof, as some are pleased to say. In 1514. March 26. he was consecrated B. of Linc. in the place of Will. Smyth deceased, and in Nov. the same year, he was made Archb. of Tork. In 1515. Sept. 7. he was created cardinal of S. Cecilia, and in the year following Dec. 7. he was constituted L. Chanc. of England, and about the same time Legate a latere for the Kingdom of England. In 1518. Aug. 28. he had the temporalities of the See of Bathe and Wells conferr'd (b) upon him, with liberty of holding the same See (being perpetual Commendatarie thereof) with the Abbattship of S. Albans and other Ecclesiastical Livings in commendam with Tork. About the same time he laid in by his Factors at Rome for the Papacy, especially upon the death of Leo 10. and Adrian 6. but the reasons why he was not elected, were (1) That he would never to go to Rome in Person. (2) That he was nimis potens. (3) That he was not old enough, as by the Letters of Dr. Tho. Hannibal and Jo. Clerk the Kings Orators, and the Card. Agents at Rome, appears. In 1523. he had the Bishoprick of Durham given to him, and thereupon resign'd B. and Wells, and soon after began the Foundations of his two most noble and splendid colleges at Oxon and Ipswich, as I have largely elsewhere (c) told you. In 1529. he had the See of Winchester conferr'd upon him: whereupon renouncing Durham, the profits and revenues of the said See were given to the Lady Anna Boleyn, for the space of one year. But before he was quite warm in Winchester, he fell into the Kings displeasure, and thereupon being soon after commanded to live in his dioc. of Tork, about the beginning of 1530. retired to the Archbishops Palace at Canwood, where spending the Summer following in great Hospitality, was about the latter end of Octob. ensuing, arrested for High Treason. Whereupon being to be conveyed to London to answer for it, he died 1530. at Leicester in the way thither, on the 29. Nov. following, and was buried in S. Maries Chappel within the precincts of the Abbey-church there. Of all the Clergy-men of his time, and before, and after him, Wolsey was indisputably the greatest. He managed a most inflexible King with so great dexterity, that of one who always threw his Riders, none held the reins, either so long, or so successfully. He had a vast mind, and a great sense of regulation, and glory, (which by some is construed Pride.) He lived always with great splendour; and yet left the most lasting and most noble monuments of his bounty. No Prelate indeed, especially in this Nation, had ever so many and large, but withal none ever employed them more generously; so that his vast revenues were hardly proportionable to his great and extraordinary designs. His parts were prodigious, and it must be owned, that he wanted not a sense of his own sufficiency; and therefore his demeanor and management of himself was such, as was more fitted with the greatness of his mind, and his fortune, than to the meanness of his birth. Many Historians of that time, whether out of envy of his order, or contempt of his birth, or hatred of his Religion, have not been very favourable to his fame; and the traditionary reporters since, who have pretended to an exact account of his actions, have, upon too slight enquiries, and with too great confidence, transcribed the former narratives. So that we yet want an exact and faithful History of the greatest, most noble, and most disinterested Clergy-man of that age. His publick employments gave him little leisure for the publication of any works of learning; and, if any were published, they are dead with him, except perhaps those which I have seen, which are the Epistle and directions for teaching the eight Classes in Ipswich School, set before the Grammar, of W. Lihye, and printed in 1528.

56. THOMAS DILLON, was born in the County of Meath in Ireland, studied here in Oxon several years, but whether he took a degree it appears not. At length retiring to his own Country, became thro several preferments Bishop of Kildare, where sitting about eight years, gave way (a) to fate in fifteen hundred thirty and one. In the said See succeeded one Walter Wellesley, as I shall anon tell you.

57. WILLIAM WARHAM, Son of Rob. Warham, was born of a gentile Family at Okely in Hampshire, educated in Grammaticals in Wykehams School, admitted true and perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1475. took the degrees in the Laws, left the coll. 1488. and about that time became an Advocate in the Court of Arches, and soon after Principal or chief Moderator of Civil Law School, then situated in S. Edwards Parish in Oxon. On the 2. Nov. 1493. he was collated to the Chantorship of Wells upon the death of Tho. Overey, (sometimes Fellow of Allf. coll.) and on the 13. of Feb. following, he was constituted Master of the Rolls. Afterwards being elected to the See of London, he had the Great Seal of England delivered unto him on the 11. of Aug. 1502: So that in few days after being consecrated Bishop of that See, had restitution (b) made to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto, on the first of Octob. following. In the beginning of January in the same year he was constituted L. Chanc. of England, and in Nov. (as one (c) saith) in 1504. he was translated to the See of Canterbury; whose inthronization there, appointed to be on the 9. March following, was performed then with great and wonderful solemnity and magnificence, as it may be partly elsewhere (d) seen. In 1506. May 28. he was unanimously elected Chancellour of the University of Oxon, being then, and ever after, an especial friend to it, and its members, as may be discerned in several Epistles (e) that passed between them. In some the said members stile him Sanctissimus in Christo Pater, and in others, they proclaim in an high manner his prudence, profound understanding, &c. All which, I presume, was done because he had been a benefactor to the finishing of S. Maries Church and the Divinity School. It must be now known that there was a young Knight called William Warham, Godson and Nephew to the Archbishop, (as being Son to his Brother Hugh Warham,) that waited upon him in his chamber: With him the Archb. being always ready to discourse, did more than once seriously tell him, that if ever after his death any should succeed him in the See of Canterbury called Thomas, he should in no wise serve him, or seek his favour and acquaintance, for there shall (saith he) one of that name shortly enjoy this See, that shall as much by his vicious living and wicked heresies dishonour, waste, and destroy the same, and the whole Church of England, as ever the blessed Bishop and Martyr St. Thomas did before benefit, bless, adorn and honour the same, &c. This is reported by Nich. Harpesfield (f) from the mouth of the said Sir Will. Warham, being prophetically spoken by the said Archb. concerning the Thomas that succeeded him, meaning Thom. Cranmer. After Dr. Warham had sate in Canterbury in great prosperity about 28 years, he concluded this life at S. Stephens near to the said City, on the 22. of Aug. between the hours of 3 and 4 in the morning, in fifteen hundred thirty and two: Whereupon his body was laid in a little Chappel built by himself for the place of his burial, on the north side of the Martyrdom of S. Thomas of Canterbury, and had there a reasonable fair Tomb erected over his body, but defaced in the beginning of the grand Rebellion began and carried on by the Presbyterians. Erasmus of Rotterdam having been a great acquaintance of the said Archbishop, had the honour to have his picture sent to him by the owner: Which being with great devotion received, Erasmus sent him his, and between them passed several Epistles. In one of which, or else in another place, Erasmus (who had the Parsonage of Aldington in Kent bestowed on him) so commends him for humanity, learning, integrity, and piety, that in the conclusion he saith, nullam absoluti Prasulis dotem in eo desideres. The said Archb. left all his Theological books to Allf. coll. Library, his Civil and Can. Law books, with the prick-song books belonging to his Chappel, to New coll. and his Ledgers, Grayles, and Antiphonals to Wykehams coll. near to Winchester. See more of him in a book intit. De antiquitate Britannica Ecclesia, &c. Lond. 1572-3. p. 348. 349. &c.

THOMAS SKEVYNGTON, was descended 58. from a right ancient Family of his name living in Leicestershire, but whether born in that County I cannot justly tell; became, when young, professed in the Monastery of Cistercians at Merevale or Myrdvale in Warwickshire, instructed in Theological and other learning in S. Bernards coll. originally built for Cistercians in the north Suburb of Oxon, (being now S. Johns coll.) to which place he bequeathed on his death-bed twenty pounds towards its reparation. Afterwards he was made Abbat of Waverley, a house of the said Order in Surrey, and on the 17. of June 1509. was consecrated (*) Bishop of Bangor. Where, after he had sate several years much commended for the austere course of his life and great charity, he submitted to the stroke of death in the month of June or thereabouts, in fifteen hundred thirty and there. Whereupon his heart 1533. was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Bangor before the picture of S. Daniel, (whereon a stone was soon after laid with an inscription thereon shewing that it was the heart of Thomas late Bishop of Bangor) and his body in the Choir of Monastery of Beaulieu under a Tomb which he had erected nigh unto the place where the Gospel used to be read. In the See of Bangor succeeded John Salcot alias Capon Doct. of divinity of Cambridge, translated thence to Salisbury in 1529; where dying in the summer time (in August as it seems) an. 1557. was buried in the Cath. Church there, under a Tomb which he in his lifetime had provided and erected on the south side of the Choir.

JOHN ALLEN, Doctor of the Laws of this 59. University was consecrated Archbishop of Dublin in the place of Dr. Hugh Inge deceased, in the year of our Lord 1528. and died on the 25. of July, saith (a) one, and another (b) the 28. of the same month, in fifteen hundred thirty and four; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. His death which was no more than a down-right murder, is attributed by some precise writers, as a judgment on him, for his unworthy and base dealing in the dissolution of Dauentry Priory in Northamptonshire, being one of those many which were dissolved for the erection of the Cardinals coll. in Oxon. On the 25. of July early in the morning Tho. Fitz-Gerald eldest Son of the Earl of Kildare caused him the said rev. Prelate to be brought before him at Tartaine, being then feeble by a late sickness; who kneeling at his feet in his shirt and mantle, bequeathing his Soul to God, and his body to the Traytors mercy, the wretched young man, Tho. Fitz-Gerald before-mentioned, commanded him there to be brain'd like an Ox. The place where this fact was done, was afterwards hedged in, overgrown, and unfrequented, in detestation of the fact. The people have observed that all the accessaries thereof, being after pardon'd for Rebellion, ended their lives miserably.

60. HENRY STANDISH, Doctor of Div. an eminent and learned man and a Grey Friar of the Order of S. Francis, was consecrated Bishop of S. Asaph in July 1519. You may see more of him among the writers under the year fifteen hundred thirty and five, in which year he died. In the said See succeeded William Barlow in the latter end of the year 1535. who a little before (in the same year) was sent into Scotland with one Holcroft about points of Religion against the Pope, at which time he the said Barlow was stiled Prior of Bisham. He was also sent soon after with William Lord Howard into the same Country, at which time he went by the title of the Bishop of St. Asaph. Their business then was about the interview with the Scotch King, induced thereunto by his Council, especially those of the Clergy. See G. Buchanan in Rerum Scotie. hist.

61. RICHARD RAWLINS, was admitted Fellow of Merton coll. in the year 1480. and afterwards proceeding in Arts, he entred into the sacred Function. On the 19. Feb. 1491. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, left the coll. soon after, being then beneficed, and in 1495. proceeded in Divinity. In 1504. Oct. 1. he was admitted Subdean of York on the death of Edw. Cressacre, (in which Dignity he was succeeded by Dr. James Harryngton in Jul. 1507.) and in 1505. he became Archdeacon of Huntingdon in the place of Rob. Sherebourne promoted to the See of S. David. In 1506. he was made Canon of Windfore, and in the middle of June 1507. he was admitted Archdeacon of Cleveland on the death of Job. Reynolds LL. B. who died on the vigil of the Nativity going before. In Dec. 1508. he was admitted Warden of Mert. coll. being then also Canon of S. Pauls Cathedral, and in great repute for his learning. In 1512. he went with the King into France, and was present at the Siege of Turwin and Toumay, and in 1514. he was made Almoner to the said King in the place of Tho. Wolsey, and Archd. of Huntingdon. In 1521. he was deprived (†) of his Wardenship of Mert. coll. by the Archb. of Canterbury for many unworthy misdemeaners, the particulars of which are too large to be here set down; and soon after, because he should not be a looser, had the Bishoprick of S. David confer'd upon him, about the beginning of the year 1523. To which See being consecrated on the 26. Apr. the same (*) year, fate there to the time of his death, which hapned about the beginning of fifteen hundred thirty and six. His immediate Predecessor in the said See was Edw. Vaughan of the University of Cambridge, who dying in Nov. or Dec. in 1522. was buried in the Chappel of the holy Trinity within the Cath. Ch. of S. David. Which Chappel he, a little before his death, had built at his own charge.

62. RICHARD NIKKE, or Nix, a Somersetshire man born, as it seems, but in what house in Oxon (where he had spent some years in study) he was educated, it appears not. In the beginning of the year 1473. he, by the name of Rich. Nikke Clerk, was collated to the Church of Ashbury in the Dioc. of Salum, and in Sept. 1489. he, by the title of Doctor of the Laws became Rector of Chedsey in Somersetshire, being then Preb. of Totton in the Church of Wells. In 1492. he was constituted Vicar General to Rich. Fox Bishop of B. and Wells, and in Jul. 1494. he was made Archdeacon of Wells, with the Prebend. of Huish annexed, on the resignation of Will. Nikke LL. D. In 1496. he was made Canon of Windsore; and about the same time Registry of the most Noble Order of the Garter. Afterwards he had one or more benefices confer'd on him in the Diocess of Wells and in that of Durham, (besides the Archdeaconry of Exeter;) and at length on the death of Dr. Tho. Jane being elected to the Episcopal See of Norwich, had restitution made (‡) to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto by the name of Rich. Nikke Clerk, Dean of the Kings Chappel, on the 24. of Apr. 1501. where sitting about 35 years, died blind in fifteen hundred thirty and six. He was buried between two pillars on the south side of the body of the Cath. Ch. of Norwich, next to those two pillars, between which Miles Spencer Dr. of Law and Chanc. of Norwich was buried. Over the said Nikke's grave was a low Tomb erected, whereon were the Arms of the See of Norwich impaling a Chevron between 3 Leopards heads, being the same that are on the roof of the north cross Isle. Which roof is supposed to have been either repaired or built by him, as also part of, if not all, the said Isle. In the See of Norwich succeeded one Will. Rugg alias Reppi a Doctor of Div. of Cambridge, and Abbat of the Monastery of S. Benedict in Hulmo, (Son of Will. Rugg of North-Repps in Norfolk;) who resigning the said Bishoprick in January 1549. died 21. of Sept. 1550. and was buried in the middle of the Choir of the Cath. Ch. at Norwich. As for Will. Nikke before-mentioned, he was, as I conceive, brother to the Bishop, and being Preb. of Ilton in the Church of Wells, became Archd. of Wells on the resignation of Tho. Bridlington in the month of Apr. 1473.

ROBERT SHEREBOURNE, a Hampshire man 63. born, was educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's School near to Winchester, became true and perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1474. afterwards M. of A. and in Orders, Canon of Lincoln, Preb. of Whitechurch and Bewdger in the Church of Wells, (which he resigned in Octob. 1493.) Archdeacon of Tannton, with the Preb. of Milverton annex'd, upon the resignation of Will. Worsley LL. D. in the month of Dec. 1496. Archdeacon of Huntingdon about the same time, and in 1499. Dean of S. Pauls Cathedral within the City of London, on the decease of the said W. Worsley, who had held with it other dignities, among which was the Archdeaconry of Nottingham, in which he was succeeded by Thom. Crosley in Aug. 1499. In 1505. he the said Rob. Sherebourne being elected Bishop of S. Davids under the title of Consiliarius regius, had restitution of the temporalities of that See made (a) to him on the 12. of Apr. the same year; done in requital of the many services and embassies which he had performed for his Master K. Hen. 7. In 1508. he was translated to the See of Chichester, and had the temporalities belonging thereunto delivered (b) to him on the 13. Dec. that year. He was a person much given to hospitality, was very charitable to the poor, munificent to the coll. that had given him Acad. education, as may (c) elsewhere be seen, and bestowed much money in beautifying and adorning his Cath. Ch. at Chichester. At length after he had resigned his Bishoprick, he gave way to fate (d) on the 21. Aug. in fifteen hundred thirty and six, aged 86 years, or thereabouts, and was buried in the said Cath. Ch. in a poor remembrance (e) that he had made there on the south side of the same Church. A certain note which Sir Will. Dugdale Garter K. of Arms, collected by himself, and afterwards communicated to me, informs, that the said R. Sherebourne founded a Free School in the time of Hen. 8. at Rowlston in Staffordshire, at which place he was born of mean parentage. But this note, which he could not then tell whence he had, I reject, because the register of New coll. tells us that he was born in Hampshire, where is a Town called Sherbourne, in which he, or at least his Father or Grandfather, was, as 'tis probable, born. After he had resigned his Bishoprick Mr. Rich. Sampson Dean of the Kings Chappel, being elected thereunto, had the temporalities thereof given (f) to him 4. July 28. Hen. 8. Dom. 1536.

64. JOHN KYTE, was born, as 'tis said, within the City of London, and for a time educated in this University, but in what house, or what degrees he took, it appears not. Afterwards he had several dignities confer'd upon him, was made Subdean (h) of the King's Chappel, and by K. Hen. 7. was sent Embassador into Spain. In the latter end of 1513. he was made Archb. of Armagh, by provision from P. Leo 10. the temporalities of which were given (i) to him on the 20. May in the year following. But he resigning the said Archbishoprick on the third of Aug. 1521. (being newly made Bishop of Carlisle in England on the death of Joh. Penny) was made Archbishop of Thebes in Greece. All these things were done by the endeavours made to the Pope by Card. Wolsey, whose creature Kyte was: And because the Bulls of translation, and of Carlisle, with the retention of his other benefices should be expedited and done to the desire of Wolsey and Kyte, the fees came to 1790. duckets; but whether all was paid, I think not, because it partly appears by the letters of Joh. Clerk the Kings Orator at Rome, (afterwards B. of B. of Wells,) that for the sake of the said Card. 275 duckets were released to Kyte, tho the World was then very hard at Rome. He the said Kyte took his last farewell of this World (after he had bestowed much money on Rose-castle the Seat of the Bishop of Carlisle) on the nineteenth (k) day of June in fifteen hundred thirty and seven, and was buried, as 'tis said, in the middle almost of the Chancel belonging to the Church of Stepney near London. Over his grave is a marble-stone yet remaining, with an English Epitaph thereon, contained in barbarous verses, shewing that he was a person of great hospitality. The five first run (l) thus.

*Under this ston cloysde and marmorate
Ljeth John Kytte Londoner natyff,
Encreasyng in vertues rose to high estate
In the fourth Edwards chappel by his yong lyffe

Proceeding still, &c.*

How it came to pass, that he was buried at Stepney, I cannot tell. Sure I am that by his (m) Will and Test. made the 18. June 29. Hen. 8: dom. 1537. and proved 21. of the same month (wherein he writes himself John Kyte Archb. of Thebes and Commendatory perpetual of Carlisle,) he bequeaths his body to be buried by the body of his Father in St. Margarets Church in Westminster.

65. JOHN HILSEY, a Dominican or Black Friar, was consecrated Bishop of Rochester in 1535. and died in 1538. sixteen hundred thirty and eight. Under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Rochester, succeeded Nich. Heath, whom I shall mention at large in his proper place.

66. JOHN STOKESLIE, was educated in S. Mary Magd. coll. of which he was Fellow, and much noted for his excellent faculty in disputing, whether in Philosophy or Divinity. In 1502. he being then M. of A. of some years standing, was admitted Principal of S. Mary Magd. hall, and in the year following was elected the northern Proctor of the University, because he had been born in the north parts of England. Afterwards he became Vicar of Willoughby in Warwickshire for a time, and Rector of Slimbridge in Gloucestershire, (both by the gift of the said college,) Prebendary of the Kings Chappel dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary and S. Stephen, within the Pallace of Westminster, Archdeacon of Dorset in the place of Rich. Paice, Doct. of Divinity, and Chaplain to Rich. Fox B. of Winchester, who gave him, as I think, the Archdeaconry of Surrey. At length upon the translation of Tonstall to Durham, he was made Bishop of London in 1530. In which See being installed, 19. Jul. in the same year, (and about that time made the Kings Almoner,) sate there to the time of his death, which hapning on the eighth of Sept. in fifteen hundred thirty and nine, was buried on the 14. of the said month in the Chappel of S. George within the Precinct of S. Pauls Cathedral. Soon after was a memorial put over his grave running thus, Huius in obscuri tumuli, &c. Which in English is this, as P. F. tells me.

*Th' obscure recesses of this key-cold Tomb,
Do Stokellies ashes, and remains inhume.
Whose general name, good life, dexterity
Of Pen, Tongue, Brain, were known both far and nigh,
Who studied still to serve God and the King,
And benefit the publick in each thing.
What good he did in Forreign parts retrieve,
He brought it home, like honey to his hive.
He knew the intregues of Italy and Spain,
And of the Grecian Wyles did make much gain.
To many Kingdoms of the world being known,
And honour'd more, returning to his own,
Who on our Blessed Ladies day being born,
Did on the self same day to dust return.*

In 1529. he was sent to the Emperour and Pope, and to several Universities, concerning the marriage of King Hen. 8. with his brother's Wife, &c. and was with Tho. Grammar at the citation of Katherine the Q. Dowager to appear at Dunstable, six miles distant from Amptill, when she was divorced, and the marriage declared to be void and of no effect. He also burnt W. Tyndales translation of the Bible, was a disputer with Joh. Lambert alias Nicholls, and boasted, as R. Holinshed tells us, that he had burned fifty Hereticks, meaning Protestants, and as Dr. Humphrey (*) faith, that he had sacrificed to the god of hell above three hundred.

WALTER WELLESLEY, commonly called 67. Wesley, was bred up a Canon Regular of the Order of S. Austin, and among them in Oxon was he educated for a time. Afterwards he became Prior of those Canons of his Order living at Conal in the County of Kildare in Ireland, and Master of the Rolls in that Kingdom. At length upon the desire of K. Hen. 8. made to P. Clem. 7. he became Bishop of Kildare in 1531. and dying in fifteen 1539. (*) hundred thirty and nine, was buried in the said Monastery of Conal, the Priorship of which he kept in Commendam with his Bishoprick.

WILLIAM MORE, had part of his education 68. among the Oxonians, but more in another University, was afterwards Vicar of Walden in Essex, and Suffragan Bishop of Colchester. In 1537. he was made Prebendary of Gevendale in the Church of York, but resigned it the year after, and on 14. Sept. 1539. he was installed Archdeacon of Leicester in the room of Edm. Bonner promoted to the See of Hereford. He died in the Summer-time in fifteen hundred and forty, and was succeeded in his Arch- 1540. deaconry in the beginning of March following by Tho. Robertson. One Will. More was Lord Prior of Worcester, which honourable place he resigned in 1535. but was not the same with him who was Bishop.

THOMAS SPARKE, a Benedictine Monk of 69. Durham, spent some time in study in Durham coll. in this University, took the degree of Bac. of Div. in 1528. being about that time Prior of a certain Cell. In 1536. he was nominated and made Suffragan to the Bishop of Durham Clav. under the title of the Suffragan Seat of Barnick, which is 1540. the utmost Town in England towards Scotland. See more of him in the Fasti, an. 1528.

THOMAS CHARD, or Cherd, a Devonian born 70. as it seems, was bred a Benedictine Monk, and among those was he educated for a time in Oxon, but what degrees he took, it appears not. Afterwards retiring into his own Country, he was made Suffragan to Oldham Bishop of Exeter, under the title of Bishop of Salubrie, and by that title do I find him collated to the Vicaridge of Wellington in Somersetshire on the resignation of Rich. Gilbert Doct. of Decrees, in the month of June 1512. Three years after, or thereabouts, he had the Priorship of Mountacute (of the Benedictine alias Cluniack Order in the said County) confer'd upon him, on the death, as it seems, of Joh. Water, and in Aug. 1521. he was admitted to the Church of Tyntenbull in the Dioc. of Wells, all little enough god-wor to support his honourable dignity. By his last (a) Will 1541. and Test. made 1. Oct. 1541. and proved 4. Nov. 1544.

he became a benefactor to the Church of S. Mary Overy in Devon, to the Churches of S. Mary Magd. in Tannock, at Wellington, Holberton, &c. in Somersetshire. See another Thom. Chard in the Fasti, under the year 1507.

71. EDWARD LEE, sometimes of S. Mary Magd. coll. was installed Arch. of York on the eleventh of Dec. 1531. and died in fifteen hundred forty and four; under which year you may see more of him among the Writers. In the said See of York succeeded a very worldly person named Rob. Halgate or Holgate D. D. ejected thence when Q. Mary came to the Crown for being, as 'tis said, a married man. By his last Will (*) and Test. dated 27. Apr. 1555. and proved 4. Dec. 1556. he bequeathed his body to be buried in that Parish wherein he should happen to die, but what Parish that is, I cannot yet tell.

72. ANDREW WHITMAYE a Gloucestershire man born as it seems, but whether he was of any Order appears not, was made Bishop of Crispopolitan and Suffragan to the Bishop of Worcester in the time of K. Hen. 8. but the particular year I cannot yet find. He gave way to fate in the Dioc. of Gloucester in fifteen hundred forty and six or thereabouts, leaving then behind him a brother named John Whitmaye Vicar of Minsterworth in Gloucestershire.

73. JOHN LONGLAND, sometimes Fellow of Magdalen college, afterwards Principal of the hall joyning thereunto, was consecrated Bishop of Lincoln in May 1521. and died in May in fifteen hundred forty and seven; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Linc. succeeded one Dr. Hen. Holbech alias Rands, written sometimes Hen. Randes of Holbech in Lincolnshire, educated in Cambridge, made the last Lord Prior of Worcester on the resignation of Will. More, an. 1535. consecrated Suffragan Bishop of Bristow (for Latimer B. of Worcester) 24. March 1537. constituted the first Dean of Worcester 33. Hen. 8. Dom. 1541. translated from Bristow to Rochester in June 1544. and thence to Lincoln before-mentioned in 1547. He concluded his last day after the 2. Aug. in 1551. and was buried, as I suppose, in his own Church at Linc. leaving then behind him a Son named Thomas.

74. WILLIAM KNIGHT, was a Londoner born, educated in Wykeham's School near Winchester, became perpetual Fellow of New coll. after he had served two years of Probation, in 1493. but leaving that place two years after, he went to the Royal Court, where his parts and industry being soon known, was made Secretary to King Hen. 7. and 8. The last of which sending him on an Embassie to Maximilian the Emperour, found so much favour from him, that besides the great gifts received from his Treasury, he had by Letters Pat. dated 14. Jul. 1514. a Coat of Arms granted to him as a farther token of reward for his many services done for the English King in exposing his life to danger, wearing it out in continual labours for him, and ready for the future to do the like, if occasion should require, &c. The Arms granted to him by the name and title of Will. Knight Protbonatary of the Apostolical Seat and Ambassador from K. Hen. 8. to Maximilian the Emp. are these. Parted per fess or and gules, an Eagle with two heads displayed sable, having on its breast a demi-rose and a demi-sun conjoynd into one, counterchanged of the Feild. Which Arms are at this day remaining in one of the south windows of the common Refectory of New coll. In the beginning of the year 1523. he became Archdeacon of Huntingdon on the resignation of Rich Rawlins promoted to the See of S. David, and in the beginning of Dec. 1529. he being then, or about that time, Prebendary of the fifth Prebendship of the Kings Chappel of S. Stephen within the Pallace of Westminster, (and newly returned from Rome,) was made Archdeacon of Richmond on the resignation of Tho. Winter. In 1531. he was incorporated Doctor of the Laws, as he had stood in an University beyond the Seas, and was afterwards made Archdeacon of Chester. In 1541. May 29. he was consecrated (†) Bishop of Bath and Wells, and had restitution of the temporalities of that See made (‡) to him the day following. He gave way to fate on the 29. Sept. in 1547.

teen hundred forty and seven, and was buried in the nave of the Cath. Ch. at Wells. By his last Will (*) and Test. dated 12. Aug. and proved on the eleventh of November, an. 1547. he bequeathed an hundred pounds for the conveying his body from London to Wells, for the interring it in the Cath. Ch. there, and for a Tomb to be laid, or set over it. To New coll. he gave 40 l. and to Wykeham's coll. near Winchester 20 l. The next person, immediately going before, who was B. of B. and Wells, was one Joh. Clerk of the Univ. of Cambridge, Chapl. to Card. Wolsey, Doctor of the Laws of Bononia, afterwards Master of the Rolls, and Dean of Windfore, who, after he had undergone several Messages and Embassies for, and from, Card. Wolsey and the King, was at length sent Ambassador to the Duke of Cleve to give a reason why K. Hen. 8. did divorce from him his Sister Anne. Which being done he fell extremely sick at Dunkirk in Flanders in his return thence, in the month of Sept. 1540. occasioned, as some say, by poyson given to him. Whereupon making his last (a) Will at that place, on the 23. of the same month, and in the same year, (within few days after which he died,) he bequeathed his body to be buried in the principal or chief Church of the Town of Calais, and wishal that there be a stone laid over his grave with this inscription to be put thereon. Hic jacet Johannes Episcopus Bathoniensis & Wellens. Anglus, qui cum obisset plures insignes legationes, tandem obiit diem suum in legatione Clevensi, anno dom. Millefimo quingentesimo quadragesimo. Which Will was proved 17. January the same year. So that how it comes to pass that there should be almost the same inscription on a grave-stone sometimes in S. Botolphs Church near Algate, London, wherein most authors (b) hitherto have reported that he was buried, I know not. In the Pallace-Treasury at Westminster, I have seen a bundle of books, written, as is supposed, by Dr. Cranmer Archb. of Canterbury, and this Dr. Clerk B. of Bath and Wells. Which books contain a defence of the Kings title of Supreme Head, and of the divorce from his first Wife Queen Katherine, and several matters against Cardinal Pole. He the said Clerk is numbered by Leland (c) among the learned and famous men of his time, having written and published several things; among which is his Oratio pro Henr. 8. Anglia Reg. & Defens. apud Leonem x. in Exhibitione operis regii. 'Tis against Luther, but where, or when, printed, it appears not, only that it was published in qu. I have seen many of his letters which he wrote, while he continued in Rome 1524. &c. to Card. Wolsey, giving him an account of the affairs of that place, he being then one of that Cardinals Agents to obtain the Papacy for him.

WILLIAM MIAGH, or Meagh. — Upon the death of Walb. Wellesey before-mentioned, one Donald O-Beachan a Minorite was by the Popes provision declared Bishop of Kildare, in July 1540. but within few days after he died. In Nov. following one Thaddens Reynold LL. D. was elected upon the like provision, but the election being rejected by the King, Will. Miagh before-mentioned, an Irish-man born, as I conceive, who had spent some time among the Civilians in Oxon, was (d) promoted to the said See of Kildare, and afterwards became one of the Privy Council to K. H. 8. in Ireland. He yielded up his last breath on the 15. Decemb. in fifteen hundred forty and eight, and was succeeded, after the See had laid void one year and seven months, by Thomas Lancaster, who about that time obtained liberty of keeping the Deanry of Kilkenny in Commendam with it.

ROBERT WAKEMAN, a Worcestershire man born, and a Benedictine Monk, was educated for a time among those of his Order in Gloucester coll. and afterwards became the last Abbat of Tewkesbury in Gloucestershire, and the Kings Chaplain. In the year 1541. Sept. 20. (he being then, as 'tis (†) said, Bach. of Div.) was consecrated the first Bishop of Gloucester, where sitting about 8 years, gave way to fate about the beginning of Decemb. in fifteen hundred forty and nine. In his life-time he erected a Qu.

77. MILES BARON alias Fitz-Gerald an Irish man born, or at least of Irish extract, was bred a Canon regular of the order of S. Austin, and among those of his order in Oxon, (where they had three Monasteries) was for a time educated in Theological learning. Afterwards returning into Ireland, became Prior of Inistiack in the county of Kilkenny, and in 1527. was consecrated Bishop of Offory, with liberty then given to him to keep his Priorship in commendam. Before his consecration he built a new Campanile in his Monastery, as also a cloyster adjoining, and after his consecration, he repaired the house at Kilkenny belonging to his See, and was a benefactor to his Church. He died in a good old age, in fifteen hundred and fifty, or as (*) others say in fifty one, and was buried in the Monastery of Inistiack before-mentioned, among his predecessors.

78. EDMUND BUTLER an Irish man born, natural Son of Peter Earl of Ormond, was bred a Canon regular of the Order of S. Austin, and for some time studied, as is supposed, among those of his Order in Oxon, but what degree he took in divinity in this University, it doth not appear. Afterwards he became Prior of the Canon regulars of S. Edmund of Athassell in the county of Tipperary, and at length Archbishop of Cashills; to which See being consecrated in 1527. became one of the privy council to K. Hen. 8. in the Kingdom of Ireland, and had then liberty allowed him to keep his Priorship in Commendam. He died on the 5. of March, in fifteen hundred and fifty, and was buried in his Cath. Church at Cashills near the Archbishops Throne. See more of him in Sir Jam. Wares book entit. Comment. de Praesulibus Hiberniae, p. 172. In the said See succeeded one Rowland Baron alias Fitz-Gerald, descended from the ancient Family of his name living in Ireland.

79. ROBERT SYLVESTER was a northern man born, but whether a secular, or of any religious Order, I cannot tell, nor whether justly he took a degree in this University. Certain it is, that being made Suffragan Bishop of Hull under the Archbishop of York, was made Prebendary of Langloft and Vviflow in the Church of York, 1541. and in 1549. January 31. was installed Archdeacon of Nottingham, on the death of Cuthbert Marshall D.D. who had succeeded Will. Fell D.D. in that dignity, in Jan. 1527. He either died in the beginning of Q. Maries reign (1553.) or was deprived, because then, or soon after, I find one Rob. Pursglove to occur by the title of Bishop of Hull, as I shall at large tell you under the year 1579.

80. JOHN STANYWELL or Stonywell was born in the Parish of Longdon in Staffordshire, within which Parish is a small Hamlet called Stonywell, from a Well wherein is at the bottom a large stone, which seems to be no more than a little Rock, whence springs the water that supplies that Well. This person being much addicted to learning and religion when a Youth, was taken into a certain Monastery (that at Pershore in Worcestershire, as it seems) and was bred a Benedictine Monk. Thence he was sent to Glocester College in Oxon, where the Monks of Pershore had an apartment for their Novices to be trained up in Academical learning: of which College he was, when in his elder years, Prior for a time, and was then noted among those of his profession for his learning and strict course of life. Afterwards being Doctor of divinity, he became Lord Abbat of the said Monastery of Pershore, and at length a Bishop (suffragan only as it seems) under the title of Episcopus Poletensis. He paid his last debt to nature, after he had arrived to a great age, in the beginning of fifteen hundred fifty and three, and was buried according to his (¶) Will in a new chappel built by him within the Parish Church of S. James in Longdon, he bequeathed all his books, his two Chalices, his Crewetts, holy water stock, Vestments, Albes, Altar-clothes, with other things belonging to his private chappel in Longdon.

JOHN HOPER or Hooper sometimes either of Mer-ton coll. or S. Albans hall, or of both successively, was consecrated Bishop of Glocester in the latter end of the year 1550. and about two years after had the Bishoprick of Worcester given to him to keep in Commendam with the former. He yielded up his last breath in the flames, in the latter end of fifteen hundred fifty and four; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In Glocester succeeded him James Brokes, and in Worcester Rich. Pate. Of the former you may read more among the writers under the year 1559. and of the other among the Bishops following, an. 1560.

GEORGE BROWNE an Austin Frier of the convent of that order in London, was educated in Academicals among those of his order in Oxon. Afterwards growing eminent among them, was made Provincial of the said order in England, and about the same time supplicated the Regents of this University that he might be admitted to the reading of the sentences, in 1523; but whether he was really admitted, it appears not. Afterwards taking the degree of Doctor of divinity, in an University beyond the Seas, as it seems, was incorporated in the same degree at Oxon 1534. and soon after at Cambridge. On the 19. of March 1535. he was consecrated in England Archbishop of Dublin in Ireland, and in 1551. he obtained leave from K. Ed. 6. that he and his successors for ever in that See may be Primates of all Ireland, but recalled (†) soon after by Queen Mary, who in 1554. caused him to be deprived of his Archbishoprick for being married. What became of him afterwards I know not, nor when he died.

EDWARD STAPLE received his first breath in this World in Lincolnshire, studied Logic and Philosophy for a time in this University, and went afterwards to Cambridge, where he took the degree of Master of Arts. Thence returning to Oxon was incorporated in that degree, and in the latter end of 1525. supplicated the venerable congregation of Regents that he might be admitted to the reading of the sentences, being then one of the canons of Card. Wolfes college; but whether he was really admitted, it doth not appear. In 1530. he, by provision from P. Clem. 7. became (*) Bishop of Meath in Ireland, being at that time Warden or Master of S. Bartholomews Hospital in London; which, for some time he kept in commendam with his Bishoprick. At length Qu. Mary coming to the Crown, he was deprived of the said Bishoprick, (for being married as I suppose) in the year 1554. and soon after died. In the said See succeeded one Will. Walsh D.D. of whom I shall speak more under the year 1576.

ROBERT FERRAR was born within the Vicarage of Halifax in Yorkshire (within four miles of which place he gave Lands to his near relations) and when a young man was made a Canon regular of the order of S. Austin, but in what Priory or Abbey I know not. Sure I am, that he having partly received his Academical education in Cambridge, did, when he had entred into the same order, retire to a nursery for the Canons thereof in Oxon, named S. Maries college, situated in the Parish of S. Michael and S. Peter in the Bayly, where I find him in 1526. in which year Tho. Garret Curate of Honey lane in London, and a forward and busie Lutheran did supply him with prohibited books, or books which were written against the R. Cath. Ch. and the members thereof, he being then esteemed one of that party that then opposed the established Church and Doctrine. In 1533. he, as a member of the said coll. of S. Mary, was admitted to the reading of the sentences, having a little before opposed in divinity, and about that time became chaplain to Dr. Cranmer Archb. of Canterbury, by whose example (as one (a) faith) he learned to get himself a woman also under the name of a wife, and by his endeavour had some preferment in the Church. In 1547. he being then in great favour with Edward Duke of Somerset, he was by him (b) appointed Bishop of

S. Davids upon the removal of W. Barlow to the See of B. and Wells, and accordingly was consecrated thereunto the same year. But upon the fall of the said Duke in 1549. who was an upholder of him and his unworthy doings, were 56. Articles drawn up against him by some of his neighbours, viz. Hugh Rawlins Clerk, and one Tho. Lee, accusing him as an abuser of his authority, a maintainer of superstition, to be covetous, wilfully negligent, foolish, &c. All which he being not able to answer, was committed to safe custody in London, during the remaining part of the reign of K. Ed. 6. After Qu. Mary came to the Crown, it being fully understood that he was a Lutheran Heretick, as the men of those times stiled him, he was called before the Bishop of Winchester, and other commissioners for Ecclesiastical affairs; and after he had been divers times examined by them, he was condemned for certain propositions which he maintained, viz. (1) That any Priest or Religious man, after his vow, may lawfully marry. (2) That in the blessed Sacrament there remaineth the substance of bread and wine, together with the body and blood of Christ. (3) That it is no sacrifice propitiatory. (4) That only faith justifieth, &c. Afterwards he was silenced and degraded, sent into Wales, and being committed to the secular power, was burn'd on the S. side of the Market-cross in the Town of Caermershen, 30. March, in fifteen hundred fifty and five. The whole story of him you may read in the book of Aets and Monuments of the Church, &c. under the year 1555. where you'll find his answer, (tho insufficient) to the said 56 articles, his articles also against a surmised information exhibited by Thomas Lee to the K. and Privy Council, with many of his Letters written during his imprisonment. From all which, and the story of him in the said Aets and Monuments, a man may easily perceive (as the Rom. Catholicks say) that the having a Woman to his Wife, was the chief motive that drew him to those opinions which he held.

87. JOHN HARMAN, commonly called Vesey and Vesey, because he was educated in his infancy (as 'tis said) by one of that name, Son of Will. Harman by Joan his Wife, daughter of Henr. Squire of Handsworth in Staffordshire, was born at Sutton-Colfield in Warwickshire, became a student in this University in 1482. Probationer-fellow of Magd. coll. 28. July 86. and the year following true and perpetual Fellow, by the name of Joh. Harman only. In few years after he proceeded Doctor of the civil Law, and became Vicar of S. Michaels Church in Coventry, being then noted more for his faculty than divinity. In the beginning of June 1505. he was made Prebendary of North-Aulton in the Church of Salisbury, by the ceasing of one James Straybarret, and was admitted thereunto by the name of Joh. Vesey; which Preb. he afterwards resigning, was succeeded by Dr. John Longland of Magd. coll. in the beginning of Decemb. 1514. But Longland being promoted in few days after to the Deanery of Sarum, Joh. Vesey was admitted to it again in the same month, and kept it till after he was Bishop. This person being esteemed well qualified, and of great abilities, was employed on sundry Embassies, was made Tutor to the Lady Mary then the Kings only daughter, and President of Wales. In 1515. he was made Dean of Windfore, being about that time Registrary of the most noble order of the Garther, Archdeacon of Chester, and Dean of the Kings domestick chappel; and soon after became Dean of the Free chappel of S. Peter and S. Paul at Wolverhampton in Staffordshire. In 1519. he was elected Bishop of Exeter, being then Dean of the Church there, had the temporalities of the said See (c) restored to him 4 Nov. and was consecrated thereunto on the 6. Dec. the same year. Of all the Bishops in England he was accounted the best Courtier, having been well bred from his youth; and altho he had a good report for his learning, yet he was better esteemed by some for his Court-like behaviour, which in the end turned not so much to his credit, as to the utter ruin and spoil of his Church. For of 22 Mannors and Lordships, which his predecessors had left unto him of a goodly yearly revenue, he left (d) but seven or eight, and them also leased out. And where he found fourteen houses well furnished, he left only one house bare and without furniture, and yet charged with sundry fees and annuities. By which means the said Bishoprick of Exeter, which was accounted one of the best, is now become in temporal Lands one of the meanest. Now if any person is desirous to understand what became of all the money which he got by the alienation of the said Mannors and Lordships, let him know that it was most expended (fearing perhaps that the said Lands might be taken away in the mutable times he lived in) on his native place of Sutton-Colfield, by making it a corporation, and procuring a Market there, building most of the Town, and endeavouring to set up the making there of Kerfies, as in Devon. and Cornwall; which in the end, as 'tis said, proved to little purpose. Also by building and endowing a Free-school there, building two bridges of stone, erecting a Mannour-house called More-place near to Sutton before-mentioned, besides other housing near it, Parks, Ponds, and I know not what, as you may see (e) elsewhere. In the reign of K. Ed. 6. when religion was alter'd, he the said Dr. Harman resign'd his Bishoprick, and on the 14. of Aug. 5. Ed. 6. Dom. 1551. Miles Coverdale D. of D. of Cambridge, was (f) Propter ejus singularem sacrarum literarum doctrinam, moreq; probatissimos, made Bishop in his place. In 1553. when Qu. Mary came to the Crown, Dr. Coverdale was put out, and the said Harman who was forced, as 'tis (g) said, to give up his Bishoprick pro corporis metu, on the 14. of Aug. 5. Ed. 6. was restored (h) thereunto 28. Sept. in the year before-mentioned. So that living there for a time till he saw the R. Cath. Religion settled, retired to his native place again, where dying full of years (aged at least an hundred) in the summer time in fifteen hundred fifty and five, was buried on the north side of the chancel belonging to the Church at Sutton-Colfield before-mention'd, where is at this day a fair Monument remaining over his Grave, with his statua from head to foot cut out from stone adorn'd with the Pontificalia belonging to a Bishop.

NICHOLAS RYDLEY sometimes fellow⁸⁶ of University coll. was consecrated Bishop of Rocheſter 5. Sept. 1547. translated to London on the deprivation of Bonner, in 1549. and died in the flames at Oxon in fifteen hundred fifty and five; under which year you may see¹⁵⁵⁵ more among the writers.

GEORGE COOTES, Cotes or Cotys, so many⁸⁷ ways I find him written, (whom some call John, but false) was elected Probationer Fellow of Balliol coll. in 1522. being then Bach. of Arts. Afterwards he was made Fellow of Magd. coll. but when, it appears not, because the register of that time belonging to the said house, noted with the letter B. hath been time out of mind lost. In 1526. he proceeded in Arts, was afterwards one of the Proctors of the University, Doctor of Divinity, and in 1539. was elected Master of Balliol coll. In the beginning of 1554. being then elected to the Episcopal See of Chester, (of which Church he had been several years Prebendary) by the name of Mr. George Cotes S. Th. Prof. had restitution made (i) to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto by Qu. Mary on the 18. of Apr. in the same year, he keeping then with that See the moiety of the Church of Coſgrave. He gave way to fate about the beginning of Dec. (as it seems) in fifteen hundred fifty and five: whereupon one Thomas Milner was instituted in the said moiety on the 18. of Dec. the same year, and Cuthb. Scot D. of D. of Cambridge was much about that time nominated to succeed him in the See of Chester: the temporalities of which, were (k) given to him 25. of Sept. 1556.

ARTHUR BOKELY or Bulkley, was descend-⁸⁸ ed from an ancient Family of his name, living in the Isle of Angleſie, but in what coll. or hall he was educated, unless in New Inn, I cannot justly tell. About the time that he took the degrees in the Canon Law he was beneficed and dignified in Wales, where he was held in esteem for a good Canonist. At length being promoted to the See of Bangor, and consecrated thereunto, had the temporalities of that See given (l) to him on the eleventh of Febr. 1541. After his death, which happened in fifteen hundred fifty and five, succeeded in the said See Dr. Will. Glouc. Qu. coll. in Cambridge, an excellent Scholar, and a very good disputant of his time; who dying about the latter end of May 1558. was buried in the Choir of the Cath. Ch. at Bangor, under that very place where the Sepulcher on Goodfriday and in Easter time use to stand. Not long after his death Qu. Mary nominated to succeed in that See one Maurice Clenock a Welsh man, Bach. of Law of this University, Preb. of York, and an Officer in the Prerogative Court under Card. Pole Archb. of Canterbury, but the said Queen dying before he was consecrated thereunto, he (with Goldwell Bish. of S. Asaph) fled beyond the Seas, and going to Rome, Clenock some years after became the first Rector of the English Hospital there, after it was converted into a college for English students, where he was mostly called by the name of Dr. Maurice, and much noted by the said students for his great partiality used towards his own Country-men of Wales, which always caused during his time, a great faction between the Welsh and English students abiding in that college.

99. ROBERT ALDRICH Doctor of divinity of this University, an eminent Orator and Poet of his time, became Bishop of Carlisle in 1537. and died in the latter end of the year fifteen hundred fifty and five, under which year you may see more among the writers. In the See of Carlisle succeeded Dr. Owen Ogilthorpe, of whom I shall make large mention among these Bishops under the year 1560.

100. JOHN HARLEY was born, as it seems, in Herefordshire, or at least extracted from those of his name there, admitted Fellow of Magd. coll. about 1537. being then Bachelour of Arts and Master of the Free-school joyning to that college. Afterwards proceeding in that faculty, he took holy orders, became Preacher to the Earl of Warwick, and Tutor to his children, a zealous Preacher in Oxon against the R. Catholics upon the coming to the crown of K. Ed. 6. (as I have elsewhere told (*) you) and at length chaplain to that Prince, who, for the zeal Harley had in Preaching up the reformed religion, gave him a Prebendship in the Church of Worcester, on the decease of Humph. Webley Bach. of Div. an. 1551. Wherebeing settled, he had the rectory of Upton upon Severne, and the Vicaridge of Kederminster in Worcester-sh. bestowed on him, he being then Bach. of Div. Afterwards the See of Hereford being void by the death of Joh. Skipp, he was elected Bishop of that place: So that being consecrated thereunto on the 26. May 1553. was within few months after deprived of it by Qu. Mary for his wilful avoiding the hearing of Mass and for being married. Joh. Leland the famous Antiquary, who knew the said Harley well, doth in an high manner (g) praise him for his great vertue, and learning, especially in the classical Authors and Poets, for his fine vein in Poetry, &c. but what he hath published, that author tells us not, nor Baleus, or his follower Pitsens. Afterwards Harley absconding for a time, did at length go from place to place in an obscure condition, to console the poor remnant of Protestants, and confirm them in their belief, but died soon after in his wandering to and fro in England. In the See of Hereford succeeded one Rob. Persey, sometimes called Warbington and Varton, formerly Abbat of the exempt Monastery of S. Saviour of Bermondsey, educated in the University of Cambridge, (of which he was Bach. of Divinity) who dying in the time of winter 1557. was buried in his own Church at Hereford. Afterwards Tho. Reynolds D. D. Dean of Exeter and Warden of Mert. coll. was design'd to succeed him by Qu. Mary, but she dying before he was consecrated, he was laid aside: whereupon Joh. Scory a Norfolkian born, Doct. of Div. and Chaplain to the Queen, succeeded in 1559, having been a sufferer upon account of religion during Qu. Maries reign, in which time he wrote An Epistle unto all the faithful that be in prison in England, or in any other trouble for the defence of Gods word, &c. printed at Waterford in Ireland 1555. oct. Wherein he doth, by the example of divers holy Martyrs, comfort, encourage and strengthen them, particularly to suffer for Christs sake persecution. In the same year also he published his translation of S. Augustin's two books, the one of Predestination of Saints, the other of Perseverance unto the end, with the determination of two general Councils concerning that matter.—Printed in oct. And in the year following, he published his translation of S. Ciprian's Sermon of Mortality, or the willing forsaking of this life; Also his Exhortation to Martyrdom, and his Exhortation to keep and endure the faith of Christ, &c. Printed in oct. This Joh. Scory dyed in his house or palace at VVhisbourne in the county of Hereford 26. June 1585. and was, as I suppose, buried there. He left behind him a Son named Silvanus Scory, a very handson and witty man, and of the best education both at home and beyond the Seas, that that age could afford. His Father lov'd him so dearly, that he fleec'd the Church of Hereford to leave him an estate, but Silvanus allowing himself the liberty of enjoying all the pleasures of this world, reduced it to nothing, so that his Son Edm. lived by hanging on Gentlemen, and by his shifts. Silvanus was also esteemed a learned man, and upon that account did Ben. Johnson dedicate to him a piece of his Poetry, but whether he published any thing, I cannot yet tell, nor any thing else of him, only that he giving way to fate in the Parish of S. Peter near Pauls Wharff in London, in Sept. or Oct. 1617. was buried in the chancel of S. Leonards Church by Shore-ditch, near to the grave of his Mother Elizabeth, who dyed 8. March 1592.

JOHN BELL a Worcestershire man born as it seems, had most of his education in Balliol coll. to which he was partly in his life time, but more at his death, a special benefactor. Afterwards he became Chancellor of the diocess of Worcester, in the place of Dr. Thomas Hanybal, an. 1518. and about that time Archdeacon of Gloucester, and Warden of the collegiate Church of Stratford upon Avon in Warwickshire. At length his abilities being made known to K. Hen. 8. he was by him employed beyond the Seas concerning state affairs, was made Doctor of the Laws there, one of the Kings Counsellors at his return, a chief agitator for the King in defence of his divorce from his first Wife Qu. Catherine, especially in the University of Oxon, by endeavouring to gain the opinion of the members thereof concerning that matter, (as I have told (h) you elsewhere) and in 1531. was incorporated Doctor of his faculty, as he had stood beyond the Seas. In 1539. he was elected Bishop of Worcester, the temporalities of which being restored (i) to him on the fourth of Aug. the same year, he was soon after consecrated. In 1543. he abdicated or rather resigned his See, but for what cause is yet uncertain: Whereupon retiring to Clerkenwell near London, lived there for some years, and dying on the eleventh day of August, in fifteen hundred fifty and six, was buried on the north side of the Chancel belonging to the Church of Illyngton near London. By his last will (k) and test. dated 10. of Aug. 1556. he bequeathed very liberally to the poor people of Stratford upon Avon before-mention'd, to the poor of Bromesgrave in Worcestershire, Tadcaster, Wymberley, &c. at which places 'tis probable he had been beneficed. He also gave 100 marks to certain poor Scholars of Oxon and Cambridge, in which last University he seems to have received a part of his education. One Joh. Bell D. D. was Dean of Ely, and dying 31. of Octob. 1591. was buried in the Cath. Ch. there, but what relation there was between him and the Bishop, I cannot tell.

HENRY MAN was bred a Carthusian Monk, and of the Carthusians at Shene in Surrey became Prior: which Monastery he with his brethren surrendering into the Kings hands, at the dissolution of Religious houses, had a Pension allowed to him for some years. In 1539. he took the degrees in Divinity in this University of Oxon, and in the latter end of Hen. 8. was made the second Dean of Chester in the place of one Tho. Clerk, and about that time (tho the year when, appear not) was promoted to the Episcopal See of the Isle of Man. He departed this mortal life at London on the 19. of Oct. in fifteen hundred fifty and six, and was buried in the chancel of the Church of S. Andrew Undershaft within that City. In his Deanery succeeded W. Will. Clive or Chyffe LL. D. (who had been Chantor and afterwards Treasurer of the Cath. Ch. at York) but the year when, I cannot justly say (or whether the said Dr. Man kept the said Deanery in commendam with his Bishoprick) and in the See of Man succeeded Thom. Stanley, as I shall hereafter tell you.

93. JOHN BYRDE was made Bishop of Bangor in 1539. and translated thence to Chester in 1541. but deprived of that See by Qu. Mary for being married, in the year 1553. He paid his last debt to nature in fifteen hundred fifty and six; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See succeeded George Cootes, of whom I have made mention before, but died about an year before Byrde.

94. JOHN CHAMBERS a Benedictine Monk was partly educated in Oxon, but more in Cambridge, in which University he was, as it seems, admitted to the reading of the sentences. In 1528. he was made Abbat of Peterborough, (in which Town he was born) upon the decease of one Rob. Kirton, and living to see his Monastery dissolved, was by the favour of K. Hen. 8. nominated the first Bishop of that place, when the said King by his charter dated 4. Sept. 1541 erected an Episcopal See there. On the said day the temporalities of it were (a) delivered to him, and on the 23. of Oct. following was consecrated thereunto; which is all I know of him, only that he was a worldly man, and that dying in the winter time, before the month of Decemb. in fifteen hundred fifty and six, was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Peterborough. The reader is now to know that Dr. Fr. Godwin doth in his Commentary (b) of English Bishops, tell us that the said Joh. Chambers was Doctor of Physick, bred up in Merton college, and afterwards Dean of S. Stephens coll. in Westminster, but very much mistaken, for that John Chambers Bach. of Div. and Bishop died in 1556. as 'tis before told you, and the other who was Dr. of Physick and Dean, died 1549. Pray be pleased to see more in the Fasti, under the year 1531. among the incorporations.

95. ROBERT KYNGE was descended from the ancient Kings of Devonshire, as the posterity of his brother Thomas say, but where he was born, unless in Oxfordshire, I cannot justly tell. While he was young, being much addicted to religion and learning, was made a Cistercian Monk, and among those of that order did he for some years live in Rewley Abby in the West suburb of Oxon, and partly, as I conceive, for the sake of learning among the Bernardins in their coll. in the North suburb of the said City. In 1506. he, as a Cistercian Monk, was admitted to the reading of the sentences, and in 1510. 13. and 15. he supplicated to be licensed to proceed in Divinity by the title of a Monk of the order of S. Benedict; in the last of which years he occurs Abbat of Bruerne near to Burford in Oxfordshire, anciently founded for Monks of Cisteraux, which is a branch of the Benedictine order, as the Bernardins are. In 1518. he proceeded in Divinity in an Ait celebrated on the last of Febr. and afterwards was made Abbat of Thame in Oxfordshire, the Monks of which were also Cistercians. About the time that the Abbey of Osney near Oxon was to be dissolved, he was made Abbat commendatary thereof, being then a Suffragan, or titular Bishop under the title of Rovent (Rovenensis) in the province of Athens, by which name or title I find him to occur in 1539. In 1542. when Oxford was made an Episcopal See by K. Hen. 8. and the Abbey of Osney appointed to be the place of habitation of the Dean and Canons of the Cathedral to be there, he the said Rob. Kyng was made and constituted the first Bishop in the beginning of Sept. the same year, at which time Gloucester coll. was appointed his Palace or place of residence, the Abbats lodgings at Osney for the Dean, and the other lodgings in that Abbey for the Canons, and Officers belonging to the Cathedral. In 1546. when the said Cath. Ch. at Osney was translated to Cardinal coll. alias Kings coll. or the coll. of K. Hen. 8. in Oxon, which was formerly the Priory of S. Frideswyde, but then called Christ-church, he the said Kyng notwithstanding continued in his office of Bishop, and his chair was thence translated also, but not his Palace. Yet when K. Ed. 6. came soon after to the Crown, and made a recital of his fathers erection of the aforesaid Episcopal See, he left out Gloc. coll. with intentions that it should remain with the Crown for another use in future time. So that what house or lodgings the said Bishop Kyng had for his use during the remaining part of his life, in truth I cannot tell. All that I know more of him is, that he being an aged man in Qu. Maries reign, (being then by Joh. Fox called (a) the Bishop of Thame) he did not care to have any thing to do with such that were then called Hereticks, and therefore he is commended by Posterity for his mildness: Also that he paying his last debt to nature on the fourth day of Decemb. in fifteen hundred fifty and seven, was buried on the North side of the East end of the Choire of Ch. Church. Over his grave was a Tomb of course Marble almost breast-high erected, with a Canopy over it supported by Pillars of the same, but no Arms put on it, as never having any, or any at least that he knew of. But the said Tomb being afterwards looked upon as cumbersome to the place, when the Choire was to be new wainscoted, and paved with black and white marble. (Dr. Duppa being then Dean of Ch. Church) it was taken away by Henry and John King Canons of the said Church, Sons of Dr. Joh. King sometimes Bishop of London, great Nephew to Dr. Rob. Kyng before-mentioned, and by them it was placed under the lower South Window of the Isle joyning on the South side of the said Choire. In which Window they caused to be painted soon after the Picture of the said Rob. Kyng in his Episcopal Robes, with his Miter on his head, and Crosier in his hand, and the ruins of Osney Abbey behind him, as also the Arms which the said Hen. and John then pretended to. The said window was pulled down when the Presbyterians and Independents governed, an. 1651. by one of the Family of the Kings then living, who preserving it safe till the Restauration, an. 1660. was soon after set up again, where it yet continues. A certain author named Will. Harrison tells (†) us, that in the time of Q. Mary (who died 1558.) one Goldwell was Bishop of Oxford, who was a Jesuit dwelling in Rome, and more conversant (as the constant same went) in the Black Art, than skilful in the Scriptures, and yet he was of great countenance among the Roman Monarchs. It is said also, that observing the Canons of his Order, he regarded not the temporality of that See. But it seems since that, he wist well enough what became of those commodities, for by one mean or another he found the sweetness of 354 l.—16 s.—06 d. yearly growing to him, &c. Thus the said author Harrison: By which Goldwell, he means, I suppose, Thom. Goldwell Bishop of S. Asaph, as if he had been translated thence to Oxon on the death of Rob. Kyng before-mentioned, for what Goldwell it should be else, unless another Thomas, whom I shall mention in the Fasti, I know not, forasmuch as the generality of authors say, that the said Tho. Goldwell left the Bishoprick of S. Asaph when Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, and that thereupon he went to Rome, where he lived in great repute for many years. See more among these Bishops under the year 1580.

RICHARD THORNDEN, sometimes written Thornton, a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict of Ch. Church in Canterbury, received his Academical education in Canterbury coll. in this University, of which he became Warden or Guardian about 1528. Afterwards he proceeded in divinity, run with the unsatiable humour of K. Hen. 8. and in the Reign of K. Edw. 6. was a great Gospeller and seemed to all to be an hearty Protestant. But when Q. Mary came to the Crown, he wheeled about, was made Suffragan Bishop of Dover under Card. Pole Archb. of Canterbury for the County of Kent, where he shew'd himself an eager disputant against the poor Protestants, as you may see by his arguings and reasonings with several of them about matters of religion in the book of Aits and Mon. of the Church, (¶) written by John Fox, who adds of him farther, that for his persecuting of Gods Saints he was suddenly taken with a Palsey on a Sunday at Bourn (Bishops Bourn) in Kent, having the day before return'd from the Chapter house at Canterbury. Whereupon being conducted to his bed he died soon after, viz. in fifteen hundred fifty and seven. After him succeeded another Bishop of Dover, appointed by Card. Pole, who shewing himself also vexatious to the Protestants, broke his neck suddenly, as the said author reports. In the year 1569. one Rich. Rogers bach. (afterwards Doctor) of Divinity was consecrated Suffragan Bishop of Dover, by Matthew Archb. of Canterbury, and in 1584. he became Dean of Canterb. upon the promotion of Dr. Th. Godwin to the See of B. and Wells. He was Father to Franc. Rogers D. D. and Justice of the Peace in Kent, who dying 23. of Jul. 1638. was buried in the Church of S. Margaret in the City of Canterbury. After Bishop Rogers decease succeeded in the Deanery of Canterbury one Tho. Nevill D. D. who dying in the beginning of the year 1615. was buried within that Chappel joyning to the body of the Cathedral Ch. at Canterbury, which was before repaired by him, and wherein he had erected a monument for himself, and his brother Alexander Nevill some years before that deceased.

97. WILLIAM FINCHE, occurs Suffragan Bishop of Taunton under the Bishop of B. and Wells, from the year 1539. to 1557. in which last year he was admitted Prebendary of Whitlakinton in the Church of Wells, but whether he took a degree in this University, tho study he did for a time, it appears not. In his time lived in the diocese of Exeter one William, who writes himself Episcopus Hipponensis, having been Suffragan to the Bishop of Exeter, which is all I know of him, only that he died in 1559.

98. PETER PETO, whom some call Will. Peto, was born of, and descended from, the antient Family of the Peto's living at Chesterton in Warwickshire, educated for a time, for the sake of learning, among the Grey Friars of Oxon, (of which Order he was a zealous brother,) but whether he took a degree among us, it doth not appear, unless he did it under another name, as some have done. Afterwards he became Chaplain, if I mistake not, to Q. Katherine, in whose defence he shewed himself a stout Champion when K. Hen. 8. was about to divorce her, as also against the Kings marriage with Anna Bulleyne. In 1557. Jun. 13. he was made (tho known to be unfit) a Cardinal by P. Paul 3. and at the same time Legat a La-tere in England, and soon after Bishop of Salisbury on the death of Dr. Joh. Salcot alias Capon, on purpose to thwart Cardinal Pole, whom that Pope took to be his Enemy, or rather out of stomach to work that Cardinals displeasure, whom he before had recalled to Rome, to be accused and charged as suspected corrupt in Religion. But Q. Mary, albeit she was most affectionately devoted to the Ch. of Rome, interposed, or rather opposed her self so, that Peto was forbidden (*) to enter into England, and the power Legantine left entire and whole to her Cousin Pole. Whereupon Peto continued in France, where he died in 1558. Apr. in fifteen hundred fifty and eight, leaving then behind him the character of a very godly and devout person, yet simple, and unknowing of matters of State, or of the world, which ought in some measure to accompany a person of his high degree. See more of him in Historia minor provinciae Angliae Fratrum minorum, in the first tome of the Scholastical and Historical works of Franc. à Sancta Clara, sect. 25. p. 53.

99. PAUL BUSH, was made the first Bishop of Bristol in 1542, was deprived of it for being married, in the beginning of the Reign of Q. Mary, and died in 1558. Octob. in fifteen hundred fifty and eight; under which year you may see more of him among the writers.

100. JOHN HOLYMAN, sometimes Fellow of New college was made Bishop of Bristol in the place of Bush before-mentioned, an. 1554. and died in fifteen hundred fifty and eight; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Bristol succeeded Rich. Cheyney, which he held in Commendam with Gloucester, as I shall tell you anon in Jam. Brokes, under the year 1559.

101. REYNOLD POLE, sometimes a Student in S. Mary Magd. coll. afterwards a Cardinal, and elected twice to the Papacy, was consecrated Archbishop of Canterbury in the latter end of 1555. and died in fifteen hundred fifty and eight; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. After him succeeded in the said

Archiepiscopal See Matthew Parker, who was born in the City of Norwich 6. of Aug. 1504. Son of Will. Parker, who died 16. of Jan. 1516. by Alice Monings his Wife, who died 20. of Sept. 1553. Which Will. Parker, who was an honest poor Man (as a Schismatical (a) writer tells you) and a scower or calender of worsteds in Norwich, was the Son of John Parker, and he the Son and Heir of Nich. Parker a Notary Publick of the dioc. of Norwich, principal Registrar belonging to the Archb. of Canterbury, and keeper of the Registers belonging to the Court thereof. As for Matthew Parker, after he had been trained up in Grammar learning at home, he was sent to the University of Cambridge at about 17 years of age; and being placed in Corp. Ch. coll. became soon after one of the Bible-Clerks in the said house. Afterwards he took the degrees in Arts, was made Fellow thereof, took holy Orders, and became a noted Preacher, not only in the University, but also in other publick places in the Kingdom. Whereupon his fame being spread abroad, he was sent for to the Court, and made chaplain to Q. Anne about 1534. by whose favour and endeavours he was soon after made Dean of Stoke near to Clare in Suffolk, and some time after Prebendary of Ely. In 1538. he was made Doct. of div. about which time by letters of commendation from the King, (to whom he was chaplain,) he was elected Master of C. C. coll. before-mentioned, now known by the name of Bennet college; the Fellows of which, soon after, presented him to the Rectory of Landbeach near to Cambridge. In 1545. he was Vicechanc. of the said Univ. and in 1549. he took to Wife Margaret the daughter of Rob. Harleston of Norfolk, (born 23. Jun. 1519.) by whom he had Issue, (1) Joh. Parker, born 5. May 1548. who married Joan daughter of Dr. Rich. Coxe B. of Ely. (2) Matthew who died young; and thirdly, another Matthew, who married Frances dau. of W. Barlow Bishop of B. and Wells, and afterwards of Chichester, but this Matthew dying 28. Jan. 1574. she was afterwards married to Dr. Tob. Matthews Dean of Durham, the same who was afterwards Archb. of Tork. In 1548. the said Dr. M. Parker was again elected Vicechanc. of Cambridge, and in 1552. he was made by K. Edw. 6. (to whom he was chaplain) Dean of Lincoln in the place of Dr. Joh. Tayler promoted to the See of Lincoln. But soon after, when Q. Mary came to the Crown, losing all his spiritualities, because he was married, he retired in private, and spent all her Reign within the house of one of his Friends. His headship of C. C. coll. was thereupon bestowed on Dr. Lawr. Mapped, and his Deanery on Dr. Franc. Mallet, an. 1554. he being then Canon of Windfore, Confessor to Q. Mary, and Master of Michael-house in Cambridge, of which University he had before been at least twice Vicechancellor. This Mallet, by the way it must be known, was the same person who translated into English, Erasmus's Paraphrase on John, who dying in the latter end of Decemb. 1570. had for his Successor in that Deanery Dr. Joh. Whiggift, afterwards Archb. of Canterbury. When Q. Elizab. came to the Crown Dr. Parker, tho a married man (for his Wife died not till 17. of August 1570.) was nominated to the See of Canterbury, after several persons had refused it; whereupon being consecrated thereunto in the Archb. chappel at Lambeth 17. of Dec. 1559. (after a Sermon, invocation of the Holy Ghost, and celebration of the Eucharist had been performed) by the laying on of the hands of three Bishops, viz. Will. Barlow B. of B. and Wells, Joh. Scorey of Chichester, and Miles Coverdale of Exeter, (assisted also by Joh. Hodgeskyn Suffragan Bishop of Bedford;) fate there with great honour to the time of his death. He was a religious and a learned man, and of modest manners and behaviour. He was well read in English history, and a diligent and curious collector of antient MSS. that had been scatter'd at the dissolution of Monasteries, which he gave to the coll. wherein he had been educated. He is also reported to have been a person of great charity, a noted benefactor to the publick, and an eminent ornament to the places which gave him birth and education. The chief book which he wrote and published (assisted therein, as 'tis said, by his servant or chaplain Joh. Josline) was that intit. De antiquitate Britannicae Ecclesiae, & privilegiis Ecclesiae Cantuariensis, cum Archiepiscopis ejusdem 70. Lond. 1572-3. fol. Most of the copies of this impression that were commonly sold, conclude with the life of Reynold Pole Archb. of Canterbury, who died 1558. The other copies which remained, and were to be bestowed on publick Libraries, or else to be given to special Friends, had in the year 1574. added to them, (1) The life of the author Matthew Parker, containing 29 pages. (2) A catalogue of such books which he gave to the common Library at Cambridge, containing 4 pages. (3) A cat. of Chancellours, Vicechancellours, Proctors of, and Doctors of all Faculties that took their degrees in Cambridge, from the year 1500. to 1571. containing 6 pages. Before which catalogue are the Arms of every college and hall there, with the area or platform of the common Schools, the Arms and Seal of the University, and Seal of the Chancellour thereof. (4) A cat. from 1500 to 1571. of all the Bishops that have been educated in Cambridge; among which have been divers that have been bred in Oxon, who have only taken one degree, and perhaps that neither, there. (5) The titles of such Charters that have been granted to that University by divers Kings and Queens, from Hen. 3. to the 13. or 14. of Q. Elizab. (6) An account of the particulars that are successively delivered to the Magistrates and Servants of the said University, when they enter into their respective places. (7) The foundation of each coll. and hall in Cambridge, with the building of the publick Schools, and an enumeration of the old hostles. All which contained under this seventh head, were involved in the first book of the History of the University of Cambridge, written by Dr. Jo. Cay, printed at Lond. 1574. in qu. As for the life of the said Matthew Parker, mentioned under the first head, it was, as soon as it peeped into the World, translated into English, under this title, The life of the 70th. Archbishop of Canterbury, presently sitting, Englished, &c. This number of seventy is so compleat a number, as it is great pity there should be one more, &c. Printed (in Holland) in a Dutch character 1574. in oct. It was translated by a thro-paced Separatist, with very vile notes added in the margin, endeavouring thereby to bring an odium on the Archbishop, and make him ridiculous for erecting his monument while he lived. At length paying his last debt to nature on the 17. of May 1575. was buried in the chappel where he was consecrated; situate and being within his Pallace at Lambeth in Surrey. It must be now known that in the times of usurpation, when the Bishops were put down and their lands sold, the said Pallace was inhabited by several Lay-persons, of whom Tho. Scot one of the Regicides, and one Hardyng were two. Which last having the chappel allotted to him; as part of his share, he divided it into two rooms, making the upper part towards the east a dining-room, on the bottom of which he laid joysts and on them a floor of boards. At length, he hearing that the corps of Archb. Parker had been there interr'd, he took up the floor, and pavement under it; and having so done, dug up the corps, which was put into cerecloth of many doubles in a coffin of lead. The coffin he sold to a Plummer, and after he had caused the cerecloth to be cut open to the flesh, (which he found fresh, as if newly dead,) he conveyed the corps into an out-house where he kept Poultry, and there privately tumbled it into an hole. About the time of the restauration of K. Ch. 2. that base fellow the Brute that removed it, was forced to discover where he had laid it; whereupon it was brought into the chappel, and buried just above the Litany-desk, near the steps ascending to the Altar.

102. JOHN HOPTON, was born in Yorkshire, particularly, as I conceive, at Myrfield, where his Grandfather and Father were buried, became when a young man a Black Frier of the Order of St. Dominick, had his Academical education among those of his Order in Oxon, but what degrees he took there, it scarcely appears, only, that in his travels to Rome taking the degree of Doct. of div. at Bononia, he was incorporated here after his return in 1529. and soon after was made Prior of the Convent belonging to the Black Friars in Oxon. In 1532. he was licensed to proceed in divinity, (to saith the same Register which told us that he was incorporated Doct. in that faculty.) and in the Act celebrated the 8. of July the same year, he did compleat that degree by standing therein. Afterward, he was chaplain to the Lady Mary, who, when Queen of England, nominating him by the name of her chaplain to the See of Norwyck, upon the translation of Dr. Thirlby, one of her Counsellours, to Ely, he was thereupon elected, and having the temporalities of that See

(a) restored to him 4. of Oct. 1554. late there till the time of his death, which hapning about the latter end of fifteen hundred fifty and eight, was buried in his own 1558. Cath. Church. By his Will (b) dated 24. of Aug. 1558. and proved 2. of Dec. 1559. he gave part of his study of books to the Black Friars of Norwyck, if they should be restored to their Convent again, and another part to Norwyck Church for a Library there. He also gave 5 l. to buy ornaments for the Church of Myrfield before-mentioned, several things also to the Church of Leedes in Yorkshire, and a Legacy to Christop. Hopton of that place Esq; without naming him his Kinsman. I find one John Hopton to be made Prior of Bridlington in Yorkshire, an. 1510. upon the death of one John English, but what relation there was between him and the Bishop I know not. This Prior died in 1521. and was succeeded by one Will. Brounfele. About the 22. of June 1559. the Dean and Chapter of Norwyck elected Dr. Rich. Cox to succeed Dr. Hopton in the Chair there, as it appears in a certain (c) Reg. or Ledger book of that Church, but the Queens mind being alter'd she nominated him soon after Bishop of Ely.

CUTHBERT TONSTALL, sometimes of 103. Ball. coll. afterwards of Cambridge, was consecrated Bishop of London 19. of Octob. 1522. translated to Durham 25. of Mar. 1530. and died in Nov. in fifteen hundred fifty and 1559. nine, leaving then behind him the character of a person of great reputation, and of very quiet behaviour. See more of him among the writers under that year. In the See of Durham succeeded James Pilkington Bach. of div. born of a Knightly family at Rivington in the Parish of Bolton in Lancashire, Son of Rich. Pilkington of Rivington Esq; was educated in S. Johns coll. in Cambridge, where he made proficiency in all kind of learning, was much addicted to reformation, and therefore in the Reign of Q. Mary, became an Exile in Foreign parts; but upon his return thence, being elected to the See of Durham, was consecrated thereunto 2. of March 1560. and thirteen days after had the temporalities thereof delivered (d) to him. In the eighth year of Eliz. (he being then D. of D.) he erected a Free School at Rivington, sub nomine & auspiciis R. Elizabethæ, and endowed it with lands and tennements to the yearly value of seven and twenty pounds, fourteen shillings and ten pence. This worthy Bishop who was esteemed a learned man and a profound Theologist of his time, hath written, (1) An exposition on Nehemiah. (2) Expos. on Aggeus and Abdias. Lond. 1562. oct. (3) Of the causes of the burning of Pauls Church, against a libel cast in the streets at Westchester, an. 1561. Lond. 1563. oct. &c. At length submitting to fate at Bishops Auckland 23. January 1575. aged 55 years, was buried there for a time; afterwards taken up and re-buried in the Choir of the Cath. Church at Durham on the 24. of May following, leaving then several Children behind him, begotten on the body of his Wife Alice, of the Knightly family of the Kingsmills in Hampshire. Soon after was a tomb erected over his grave, whereon was insculpd a Monodie made by Dr. Laur. Humphrey, beginning thus, Hic jacet Antistes crudeli morte peremptus, and an Epicede by John. Fox the Martyriologist, beginning Tantum te nostra possint celebrare canene; besides a large epitaph in prose. Most, or all of which, hath many years since, as I have been informed, been defaced and obliterated. In the See of Durham succeeded Rich. Barnes of Oxon, as I shall tell you hereafter.

MAURICE GRIFFYTH, or Griffyn a Welsh 104. man by birth, and a Dominican or Black Frier by Order, had his Academical education for a time among those of his profession in their house in the S. Suburb of Oxon, was admitted to the reading of the Sentences in July 1532. by the name of Maurice Gryffyth, being, if I mistake not, the same Maur. Gryffyth who was admitted Bach. of Can. Law in February following. Afterwards he was Archdeacon of Rochester in the place of one Nich. Metcalf who occurs Archdeacon of that place in 1536. and afterwards being elected to the See of Rochester, upon the translation of John. Scory to Chichester, (which John had been promoted to Rochester (e) propter singularem sacramentum literarum doctrinam,) was consecrated thereunto on the first (f) of Apr. and had restitution (g) made to him of the temporalities belonging thereunto on the 18. of the same month, in the 1. and 2. of Phil. and Mary, dom. 1554. He ended his days either in Nov. or Dec. in fifteen hundred fifty and nine, and was buried in the Church of S. Magnus the Martyr near to London-bridge. In the said See of Rochester succeeded one Edm. Guest or Gheest, Bach. of div. Archdeacon of Canterbury, and sometimes Fellow of Kings coll. in Cambridge, who being consecrated thereunto 21. Januar. 1559. received (i) the temporalities thereof 3. May following, and about that time was made Almoner to the Queen. After his translation to Salisbury, followed Edm. Freke Dean of Salisbury, of whom you may read more in the Fasti, under the year 1570. And after him Dr. Joh. Piers of Oxon, as I shall tell you among these Bishops under the year 1594. Upon his translation also to Salisbury succeeded in the said See of Rochester Dr. Joh. Young born in Cheapside in London, educated in Pembr. hall in Cambridge, of which he was Fellow, and afterwards Master, Minister of St. Giles Cripplegate, London, twice Vicech. of Cambridge, Prebendary of Westminster, in the place of Dr. E. Freke promoted to the See of Rochester, an. 1572. which he kept in Commendam with his Bishoprick till about the time of his death. He died at Bromley in Kent 10. Apr. 1605. aged 71 years, and was buried in the Church there on the 14. of May following. Soon after a comely monument was put over his grave, with an inscription thereon: Wherein 'tis said, that he was non minus varia doctrina, & prudentia, quam vita sanctimonia clarus, &c. He hath extant An exposition (which some call a Sermon) on Psal. 131. Lond. 1685. oct.

105. HENRY MORGAN, a Welsh man born, became a Student in this University about the year 1515. took the degrees in the Civ. and Can. Law, that of Doctor being compleated in an Act celebrated 17. Jul. 1525. and soon after he became Principal of an ancient Hostel for Civilians (wherein probably he had been educated) called S. Edwards hall, near to the Canon Law Schools, situated sometimes in the Parish of S. Edward, and near to the Church thereof. Afterwards he being esteemed a most admirable Civilian and Canonist, he was for several years the constant Moderator of all those that performed exercise for their degrees in the Civil Law, in the School or Schools pertaining to that Faculty, situated also in the same Parish. Which Schools, Hall, and Church, have been time out of mind gon to ruine, and the ruines themselves ruined. In 1553. (Jo. Maria) he was elected Bish. of S. David, upon the deprivation of Rob. Ferrar, which was as it seems in Nov. the same year; and being consecrated thereunto, had the temporalities thereof restored to him (k) on the 23. of Apr. 1554. In that See he sat till after Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, and then being deprived about Midsummer, an. 1559. (20. Elizab.) retired among his Friends and died a devoted Son to the Church of Rome on the 23. of Decemb. following. Of whose death hear I pray what Joh. Fox (l) saith in this manner. — Morgan Bishop of S. Davids who sat upon the condemnation of the blessed Martyr Bish. Ferrar, and unjustly usurped his room, was not long after stricken by Gods hand, after such a strange sort that his meat would not go down, but rise and pick up again, sometimes at his mouth, sometimes blown out of his nose, most horribly to behold, and so he continued till his death. Thus Fox, followed by Tho. Beard in his Theatre (†) of Gods judgments. But where, or when his death hapned, they tell us not, nor any author hitherto, only when, which B. Godwin mentions. Now therefore be pleased to know that the said Bishop Morgan retiring after his deprivation to, and near, Oxon, where he had several relations and acquaintance living, particularly the Owens of Godstow in the Parish of Wolvercote, near to the said City, did spend the little remainder of his life in great devotion at Godstow, but that he died in the condition which Fox mentions, there is no tradition among the inhabitants of Wolvercote. True it is, that I have heard some discourse many years ago from some of the Ancients of that place, that a certain Bishop did live for some time, and exercised his charity and religious counsel, among them, and there died, but I could never learn any thing of them of the manner of his death, which being miserable, as Jo. Fox saith, methinks that they should have a tradition of it, as well as of the man himself, but I say there is now none, nor was there any 30 years ago among the most aged persons then living at that place, and therefore whether there be any thing of truth in it may be justly doubted, and especially for this reason, that in the very same chapter and leaf containing the severe punishment upon Persecutors of Gods people, he hath committed a most egregious falsity, in reporting that one Grimwood of Wingham in Suffolk died in a miserable manner for swearing and bearing false witness against one Joh. Cooper a Carpenter of Wutsam in the same County, for which he lost his life. The miserable death of the said Grimwood was as J. Fox saith, thus, that when he was in his labour staking up a gosse of Corn, having his health and fearing no peril, suddenly his bowels fell out of his body and immediately most miserably he died. Now so it fell out, that in the reign of Q. Elizabeth one Priit became Parson of the Parish where the said Grimwood dwelt, and Preaching against perjury, being not acquainted with his Parishioners, cited the said story of Fox, and it hapning that Grimwood being then alive, and in the said Church, he brought an action upon the case against the Parson, but Judge Anderson, who sat at the Assizes in the County of Suffolk, did adjudge it not maintainable, because it was not spoken maliciously. Pray see in the Abridgment of many cases and resolutions, of the Common Law, written by Judge Henry Rolls, p. 87. sect. 5. tit. Action sur case. But to return; as for our Bishop Hen. Morgan, who died in Godstow house, then own'd by Rich. Owen, did by his last (*) Will and Testam. dated in Decemb. 1559. and proved 24. of January following, bequeath his body to be buried in the Church of Olvercot or Wolvercot, to which he gave six shillings and eight pence: Also to two Masters of Arts of Oxon to pray for his Friends Souls, (of which Edw. Penant Parson of Stanlake near Oxon was one,) four pounds yearly during the term of five years; to Mary Owen his Chymere of Scarlet, to Morgan Philips of Oriel coll. several Legacies, besides the bestowing of his books, &c. By which Will it appears that he did not die in a mean condition, that he was not senseless, affrighted, or any way perturbed.

JOHN WHYTE, sometimes Fellow of New coll. 106. was made Bishop of Lincoln in the beginning of 1554. translated thence to Winchester in 1557. and died in January in fifteen hundred fifty and nine; under which year you 1559. may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Winchester succeeded Dr. Rob. Horne of Cambridge, reported by a certain (l) author to be a man of a great mind and profound ingenie, and no less sagacious in detecting the crafts of his adversaries, than prudent in preventing and avoiding them. He was also a frequent Preacher, and an excellent Disputant, and wrote in the mother tongue, an answer to Joh. Fekenhams scruples concerning the Oath of Supremacy, as I have told you among the writers under the year 1585. He gave way to fate in 1559. leaving this character behind him, given by one (m) belonging to the Church of Durham, who (speaking of his demolishing several antient monuments of that Church, while Dean thereof) tells us, that he could never abide any antient monuments, acts, or deeds, that gave any light of, or to godly religion.

JAMES BROKES, sometimes Fellow of Corp. 107. Ch. coll. was consecrated Bishop of Gloucester about the beginning of the year 1554. and died about the beginning of Febr. in fifteen hundred fifty and nine; under which 1559. year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Gloc. succeeded Rich. Cheyney Bach. of Div. of Pembr. hall in Cambridge, who being elected thereunto, had restitution made (n) to him of the temporalities belonging to it, on the 15. of Apr. 1562. and had at the same time liberty allowed to him to keep Bristow in Commendam. In the reign of K. Ed. 6. he was Archdeacon of Hereford, and dignified elsewhere. In Q. Mary's time he was deprived of his spiritualities for being more addicted to the opinions of Luther than he ought. In the beginning of the reign of Q. Elizabeth. an. 1560. he was made by her the first Canon of the fourth Stall or Prebendship in the collegiate Church of S. Peter within the City of Westminster: Which dignity he keeping till 1562. was then succeeded by one Rich. Morley. After he had late Bish. of Glouc. three years, he was incorporated D. of D. of this University, as he had stood in Cambridge. One of his Successors in the See of Glouc. named Godf. Goodman doth wonder (*) why his Master Will. Camden should say that the said Rich. Cheyney was Luthero additissimus, whereas it was certain that he was a Papist, and bred up his servants Papists, as he had been informed by one of them, with whom he had spoken. He tells us also that it doth appear upon record in the Arches, that he was suspended for Popery, and died so suspended, and never would make any recantation. He was buried in his Cath. Ch. of Gloucester, but whether ever any monument was put over his grave, I know not.

108. OWEN OGELTHORP, the third natural Son of Owen Ogelthorp of Newton-Kyme in Yorkshire, Son of John Ogelthorp of Ogelthorp in the said County, was born at Newton-Kyme before-mentioned near to Tadcaster, admitted Fellow of Magd. coll. about 1526. and in 29. he proceeded in Arts, being about that time in holy Orders. In 1533. he was Proctor of the University, and on the 21. of Feb. 35. he was elected President of his coll. having a few days before taken the degrees in Divinity. About that time he was constituted one of the Canons of the coll. at Oxon founded by K. Hen. 8. on that of Cardinal Wolsey; in the year 1540 he was made Canon of Windfore in the place of Will. Tate LL. D. deceased, and in 1544. he was presented to the Church of S. Olave in Southwark. In 1551. he did undergo with great honor the Vicechancellorship of this University, and in 1553. Oct. 31. he being then Rector of Newington and Haseley in the Dioc. of Oxon, was elected again President of the said coll. (having resigned that place about an year before to make room for Dr. Walt. Haddon) and in the same year he was made Dean of Windfore. In 1554. he (o) was constituted Registrary of the most Noble Order of the Garter, to execute it by himself, or a sufficient deputy, with the fee of 50 l. per an. allowed him for it. Which office he kept, while he was Bishop of Carlile, during the time that Dr. Hugh Weston his Successor was Dean of Windfore. About the month of Apr. 1556. he was consecrated Bishop of Carlile, and in the latter end of 1558. when Heath Archb. of York, and all the rest of the Bishops refused to Crown Q. Elizabeth, (the See of Canterb. being then void,) he, with much ado, was obtained to set the Crown on her head. For which fact, when he saw the issue of that matter, and both himself and all the rest of his Sacred Order depriv'd, and the Churches holy Laws and Faith, against the conditions of her consecration and acception into that Royal Room, violated; he sore repented him all the days of his life, which were for that special cause, both short and wearisome afterwards unto him. Thus Dr. Will. Allen in his Answer (p) to the Libel, intit. The execution of justice in England. The said Dr. Ogelthorp was deprived of his Bishoprick about Midsummer in the year 1559. and about the beginning of the next year died suddenly of an Apoplexy; otherwise, had he lived, 'tis thought the Queen would have been favourable to him. He founded at Tadcaster before-mention'd a Free-School and Hospital dedicated to our Saviour Jesus Christ, called, The School and Hospital of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ of Tadcaster. The School is endowed with 40 l. per an. and the Hospital with revenues for 12 poor People, each to have one shilling every week. In the beginning of Ch. 1. there were but six in pay; how many now I know not. The said Bishop built a fair house in Headley upon Bramham in Yorkshire, where there is a memory by verses and his Arms, over the door, I think, yet remaining. After his deprivation and death, Bernard Gilpin the northern Apostle was designed to succeed him in Carlile, but he refusing, who much pressed to it, the Bishoprick was confer'd on one Job. Best a learned and pious man.

year following Bach. of Arts. Which degree being compleated by Determination, he went to Paris, where he was made Master of Arts, and at his return Archdeacon of Winchester, on the resignation of Joh. Fox, in 1526. In 1528 he resigned that dignity, being that year made Archd. of Lincoln upon the death of Will. Smyth Doctor of decrees. By which title, as also that of Bach. of Arts of this University and Master of Paris, he supplicated on the 17. Jan. 1530. that he might not be bound to be present at Exequies in S. Maries Church; which shews that he was not then incorporated. Afterwards he was employed in several Embassies, and in 1534. I find him resident in the Emperours Court, and there again in 1540. in which year was a pass-port made for him by Secretary Cromwell to Calais, in order to reside with the Emperour, as Embassador for the K. of England. In which pass-port he is stiled, Dr. Rich. Pates Archdeacon of Lincoln. In 1542. he was attainted of High Treason; whereupon his Archdeaconry was bestowed on George Heneage, and his Prebendship of East-Harptre in the Church of Wells on Joh. Heryng LL. D. In the year 1554. he being preferr'd by Q. Mary to the Episcopal See of Worcester, had restitution (q) made to him (by the name of Rich. Pate only) of the temporalities belonging thereunto, 5. March the same year, at which time Hooper his Predecessor had been dead about 3 weeks. After Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, he was not imprisoned in the Tower of London as Joh. Fox (r) saith, but being deprived, he went beyond the Seas, late in the Council of Trent, (uninvited as one (*) saith,) as he had done before, and whether he died there, or at Rome, I cannot tell. He was a learned man, of a peaceable disposition, zealous in the Faith he professed, yet always against inflicting corporal punishments on such that were opposite in Religion to him. In the said See of Worcester succeeded Edwin Sandys Son of Will. Sandys of Furnes in Lancashire, Justice of the Peace, and the Kings Receiver of that County, by Margaret his Wife, Daughter of Joh. Dixon of London. To which See being elected upon Pates his deprivation by the name and title of Edwin Sandes Capellanus regius & SS. Thol. Professor, had restitution made to him (s) of the temporalities belonging to it 23. March 2. Elizabeth. dom. 1559.

JAMES TURBERVYLE, a younger Son of 110. Joh. Turbervyle, son and heir of Richard, second son of William, first son of Sir Robert Turbervyle of Bere and Anderston in Dorsetshire Knight, (who died 6. Aug. 1424.) by Margaret his Wife, of the Family of the Carews, Barons, was born at Bere before-mentioned, which is now a little Market Town in the said County, educated in Wykeham's School near Winchester, admitted true and perpetual Fellow of New coll. in 1514. took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being compleated in an Aet celebrated in July 1520. and on the 8. of March following was elected the publick Scribe or Registrary of the University, on the resignation of Tho. Fykes M. A. and Fellow of the said coll. In 1529. he left his Fellowship, which he kept with his Scribes place, being then promoted to an Ecclesiastical Benefice, as he was soon after to a Dignity; and taking the degree of Doct. of Div. in another University, was incorporated here in 1532. In 1555. he being then Preb. of Winchester, and elected to the Episcopal See of Exeter on the death of Joh. Harman, was consecrated thereunto in St. Pauls Cath. Ch. in London (with Will. Ghynn to Bangor) on the eighth day of Sept. the same year, and on the 21. of the said month had the temporalities of the said See delivered (t) to him, and there fate with due commendations for about four years. In 1559. (2. Elib.) he was deprived of his Bishoprick for denying the Queens Supremacy over the Church, and afterwards lived a private life saith (u) one, 1562. and another (w) that he lived at his own liberty to the end of his life, adding that he was an honest Gentleman, but a simple Bishop, and a third (x) that he lived a private life many years and died in great liberty. But at length a fourth person, who comes lagg, as having lately appeared in print, I mean Richard Leack then Chamberlain of Exeter tells us in his

111. ANTHONY DUNSTAN a Benedictine Monk of Westminster. received his Academical education in Glocester coll. in the N.W. Suburb of Oxon, in an apartment therein built for such young Monks of Westminster that were designed for the University. In 1525. he was admitted to the reading of the sentences, having a little before opposed in divinity in the School of that faculty, and in the year following he occurs by the name and tit. of Anth. Dunstan Prior of the Students of Gloc. coll. before-mentioned. In 1538. he proceeded in divinity, being then Abbat of the Benedictine Monks of Einsham near to, and in the County of, Oxon, and in 1545. he by the name and title of Anthony Kechyn the Kings Chaplain and Bishop elect of Landaff, received (a) the temporalities belonging thereunto, on the 8. of May the same year, being then about 68 years of age. He is much blamed by one of his (b) successors in the See of Landaff for impoverishing his Bishoprick, accounted by some to have been before his time one of the best in England, and since to be the worst. He gave way to fate 31. Oct. in fifteen hundred 1563. sixty and three, and was buried in the Parish Church of Matherne (where the Bishop of Landaff hath a Palace) in Monmouthshire, after he had gone through several changes of times, and had taken the Oath of Q. Elizabeths Supremacy over the Church of England, which no Popish Bishop in the beginning of her reign did besides this man.

112. ROWLAND MERRICK was born in the Isle of Anglesey, mostly educated in Academical learning in S. Edwards hall, a noted place for Civilians, sometimes situated near S. Edwards Church, became Principal, while he was Bachelaur of the Civil Law, of New Inn, afterwards Doctor of his faculty, Chancellour of the Church of S. David, Canon residentiary thereof in the time of K. Ed. 6. being then one of the persons that drew up Articles against Rob. Ferrar Bishop of that place, and at length Bishop of Bangor: to which See being elected, and consecrated an. 1559. aged 54 years, received (t) the temporalities belonging thereunto 21. of March the same year. He died in the beginning of the year fifteen hundred 1566. sixty and six, and was buried in the Chancel of the Cath. Church of Bangor, under that place, where the Table stood in the time of Communion. Over his grave was an inscription afterwards put, the contents of which, I know not as yet. He left behind him a Son named Gelly Merick of Hascard in Pembrokeshire, afterwards a Knight and a great Favourite of that most popular and generous Count Robert Earl of Essex; in whose treasons having been deeply engaged, suffered death at Tybourne in the beginning of the year 1601. In the See of Bangor succeeded Dr. Merick, one Nich. Robinson a Welsh man and D. D. of Cambridge, who after he had suffered calamities for the Protestant cause in the reign of Q. Mary, became, after her death, domestick Chaplain to Matthew Archb. of Canterbury, and dignified--Vir fuit prudens (as 'tis*) said of him) & illis humanioribus literis atq; Theologia non minus excultus, quam latina patria; lingua facundus, &c. He died in the summer time, an. 1584. leaving then behind him a Widow named Jane Robinson alias Brereton, and several Sons. After him followed Dr. Hugh Bellot of Cambridge, who was consecrated Bishop of Bangor 25. Jan. 1584.

113. THOMAS YONG a learned Civilian, Son of John Yong of Pembrokeshire by Eleanor his Wife, was born in that County, became a Student in the Univ. of Oxon (in Broadgates hall as it seems) about the year 1528. where applying his muse to the study of the Civil Law, took a degree in that faculty nine years after, being then in sacred Orders. In 1542. he was made principal of the said hall, and soon after Chantor and Canon of S. Davids; where, being much scandalized at the unworthy actions of Rob. Ferrar Bishop of that place, did, with others, draw up articles against him; which being proved before the Kings Commissioners, the said Bishop was imprison'd in the time of K. Ed. 6. In the reign of Q. Mary, Th. Yong fled from the nation for religion sake, and remained in Germany in an obscure condition during her time. But when Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, and H. Morgan another accuser of Rob. Ferrar, had been deprived of his Bishoprick of S. Davids, the said Yong was design'd to succeed him. Whereupon being consecrated (a) thereunto 21. January 1559. aged 52 years, or thereabouts, the temporalities of the said See were delivered (b) to him on the 23. of March following. Where sitting till Feb. 1560. was then translated to York, and about the same time was made President of the Queens Council in the north parts of England. In Feb. 1564. he was actually created Doctor of the Civil Law, and dying on the 26. June, in fifteen hundred sixty and eight, was buried at the east end of the Choir of his Cath. Ch. at York. Over his grave was soon after laid a marble stone, with this Epitaph on it. Thomas Yongus nuper Eboracensis Archiepiscopus, Civilis juris Doctor peritissimus, quem propter gravitatem, summum ingenium, eximiam prudentiam, excellentemq; rerum politicarum scientiam, illustrissima Regina septemionalibus hujus regni partibus Praesidem constituit, quo magistratu quinq; annos persunctus est. Sedit Archiepiscopus annos septem, & sex menses. Obiit Vicesimo sexto die mensis Junii, an. 1568. He had taken to Wife in his elderly years one Jane daughter of Thom. Ky-naston of Estwick in Shropshire, by whom he had issue George Yong, afterwards a Knight, living in York 1612. for whose sake, the father, being covetous of wealth, pulled down a goodly hall belonging to him as Archbishop, for the greediness of the lead (as 'tis said) that covered it. Concerning which matter there is a large story extant, related by an (*) author who was no friend to married Bishops.

DAVID POLE or Poole of noble race, as it 114. seems, became fellow of Allsouls coll. in 1520. took the degrees of Civ. and Can. Law, that of Doctor being compleated in 1527. at which time being Archdeacon of Salop, he was much in esteem for his great sufficiencies in those Laws. Afterwards he was made Dean of the Arches, Archdeacon of Derby, and Chancellour of the diocess of Lichf. and Coventry. At length, upon the death of Joh. Chambers, being nominated to the See of Peterborough, was consecrated thereunto (c) on the 15. Aug. 1557. and on the 28. of January following had the temporalities thereof delivered (d) to him. In 1559. about the time of Midsummer, he was deprived of his Bishoprick, for denying the Queens supremacy, being then esteemed a grave person and a very quiet subject. Whereupon being committed to custody for a time, was soon after set at liberty, & Principis beneficio (as one (e) tells us) in agro suo matura aetate decessit. He gave way to fate in the latter end of May, or beginning of June, in fifteen hundred six- 1568. ty and eight, but where, unless near to S. Pauls Cathedral in London, or where buried I cannot tell. All his books of Law and Divinity, which were then at London and Peterborough, he gave to the Library of Allsoules coll. In the said See of Peterborough succeeded Edm. Scambler Bach. (afterwards Doct.) of div. a native of Gressingham in Lancashire, and Chaplain to Mathew Archb. of Canterbury, to which being consecrated 16. Jan. 1560. held in commendam with it the Prebendship of Wistow in the Church of York, and the first Canonry in the sixth stall in the Church of Westminster for the space of two, or more, years. He was a learned man, a zealous enemy against the Papists, yet an impairer of the honour, privileges, (f) and revenues of the Bishoprick of Peterborough. After his translation to Norwich succeeded in Peterborough Dr. Rich. Howland Master of S. Johns coll. in Cambridge, who dying in 1600. was succeeded in the said See by Tho. Dove D. D. and Dean of Norwich, sometimes of Pembroke hall in Cambridge, and one of the first Scholars of Jesus coll. in Oxon, to which See Q. Elizab. (to whom he was Chapl. in Ordinary) prefer'd him for his excellency in Preaching, and reverend aspect and deportment. He dyed 30. Aug. 1630. aged 75 years, and was buried in the north Isle of the Cath. Ch. of Peterborough: over whose grave was a comely mo-

He left behind him a son named Thomas, who occurs Archdeacon of Northampton 1618. having succeeded in that dignity, if I mistake not, Dr. Joh. Buckridge. In the See of Peterborough succeeded Dr. Aug. Lindell Rector of Houghton in the Spring in the County Pal. of Durham, who, after he was elected to it, had restitution (g) made of the temporalities belonging thereunto on the 20. of Feb. 1632. But being translated thence to Hereford (in Dec.) 1633. succeeded Franc. Dee D.D. who being elected to the said See of Peterborough, had the temporalities thereof (h) given to him 7. June 1634. See more of him in the Fasti under the year 1603.

115. WILLIAM BARLOW, a Canon Regular, was first made Bishop of S. Asaph, afterwards of B. and Wells; and at length of Chichester. He died in fifteen hundred sixty and eight, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Chichester succeeded Rich. Curteis or Coortesse a Lincolnshire man born, and Doctor of Divinity, (sometimes Fellow of S. Johns coll. in, and Proctor of the University of, Cambridge, and afterwards Chaplain to Matthew Archb. of Canterbury) who was consecrated at Canterbury gratis, or without reward or fees, on the feast of the holy Trinity, an. 1570. he being then 48 years of age. The said Dr. Coortesse hath written, (1) An exposition of certain words of S. Paul to the Rom. intit. by an old writer Hugo, A treatise of the work of three days. Lond. 1577. oct. (2) Two Sermons, one at Pauls Cross, and another at Westminster, an. 1576. the first on Apo-cal. 12. the first nine verses, and the other on Acts 20. 28, 29, 30, 31. Both printed at Lond. 1584. oct. (3) Serm. at Greenwich 1573. on Ecclesiastices 12. the first seven verses. Lond. 1586. oct. (4) Serm. at Richmond 1575. on Judges 1. the first 13 verses. Lond. in oct. and other things, as 'tis probable. Quare. In the See of Chichester succeeded him Tho. Bickley, whom I shall mention at large among these Bishops under the year 1596.

116. HUGH CURWYN, or Coren, was descended from an antient Family of his name in Westmorland, but whether born in that County I cannot tell, became a Student in this University in one of the Inns or Hostles frequented by Civilians and Canonists, or in Brasnose coll. (or both successively,) about 1521. took one degree in Arts, holy Orders, and some years after was made one of the Chaplains to K. Hen. 8. In 1532. he proceeded in the Civil Law, and about that time was a great promoter of the Kings marriage with Anna Bulleyn. In 1533. when Frier Peto (afterwards a Cardinal) had inveighed much against it in his Sermon, or Sermons, before the King at Greenwich, Dr. Curwyn the next Sunday following hapned to Preach there, at which time he spake as much for the marriage, as Peto had against it, uttering there several things against it, and wondred why a subject should behave himself so audacious as he did before the Kings face, &c. After this he was prefer'd to the Deanery of Hereford, where he continued all K. Edwards time. At length when Q. Mary succeeded (to whom he was Chaplain) she nominated him Archbishop of Dublin: Whereupon being consecrated thereunto in S. Pauls Cathedral at London 8. Sept. 1555. he was in few days after designed (i) by the said Queen (then at Greenwich) Chancellour of the Kingdom of Ireland. In 1567. he supplicated Q. Elizabeth to have the Bishoprick of Oxford conferr'd upon him, being desirous to spend the remainder of his days in peace. So that soon after being elected thereunto by the Dean and Chapter of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, the Queen (k) consented to the election on the eighth of Octob. and gave (l) him the temporalities belonging to that See 3. of Decemb. following, the same year. About that time he settled at Swinsbroke near to Burford in Oxfordshire, (having then no House or Pallace belonging to his See,) where dying in the latter end of October, was buried in the Parish Church of that place on the first of Nov. in fifteen hundred sixty and eight. He had a Kinsman named Rich. Coren a Lancashire man born, who was admitted Scholar of Corp. Ch. coll. in 1519. and afterwards taking the degrees in Arts and one in divinity, was made Canon of the first foundation of the college of K. Hen. 8. at Oxon, and when Doctor of his Faculty, Archdeacon of the diocels of Oxon, 1534. and about that time Canon of the Kings Chappel of S. Stephen within the Pallace of Westminster. This I thought fit to let the Reader know, that each person might have his right, that is, that the Archdeaconry of Oxon, might be intitled on Dr. Rich. Coren, and not on Dr. Hugh, which most authors that occasionally mention him, do tell you.

EDMUND BONNER, sometimes a Student in Broadgates hall, became Bishop of Hereford towards the latter end of the year 1538. but before he was consecrated thereunto, he was translated to London: To which See he was consecrated in the beginning of Apr. 1540. He paid his last debt to nature in fifteen hundred sixty and nine; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In Hereford succeeded him Jo. Skyp, and in London Nich. Ridley in the reign of Ed. 6. at which time Bonner was deprived, and Edm. Grindall in the beginning of Q. Elizabeth, when the said Bonner was deprived a second time.

GILBERT BOURN, son of Philip Bourn of Worcestershire, became a Student in this University, in 1524. Fellow of Allsouls coll. in 1531. and in the year after he proceeded in Arts, being then esteemed a good Orator and disputant. In the 33. Hen. 8. Dom. 1541. he was made one of the first Prebendaries of Worcester, after the said King had converted the Prior and Monks of that place into a Dean and Prebendaries; and two years after was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, that is to the degree of Bach. of div. which was the highest degree (as it appears in the register of that time) that he took in this University. About that time he became Chaplain to Bishop Bonner, and a Preacher against the Hereticks of the times. In 1549. he closed so much with the reformation then on foot, that he became Archdeacon of Bedford on the death of Dr. Joh. Chamber, being also then, or about that time, Archdeacon of Essex and Middlesex and Canon of S. Pauls Cath. Ch. but whether he kept the said dignities altogether, I cannot tell. In the beginning of Q. Mary, he turn'd about, and became so zealous for the Rom. Catholick cause, that preaching at Pauls cross in the behalf of the said Bonner then present, against his late unjust sufferings, and against the unhappy times of King Edw. 6. as he called them, had a dagger thrown at him by one of the auditors: Whereupon Bourn withdrawing himself to prevent farther danger, the work was carried on by another, and search being made after the Assaffinate, certain persons were imprison'd for it. In the year 1554. Sir Joh. Bourn of Batenhall in Worcestershire, Uncle to the said Gilb. Bourn, being then Principal Secretary of State to Q. Mary, the said Gilb. was elected to the See of Bathe and Wells, upon the free resignation, as 'tis (*) said, of Dr. Will. Barlow: Whereupon he had the temporalities thereof given to him 20. of April the same year, at which time Barlow fled into Germany upon account of Religion. Soon after Gilb. Bourn was made President of Wales, and was in great favour during the reign of Q. Mary, but when Q. Elizabeth succeeded, he was deprived of his bishoprick for denying her Supremacy, notwithstanding he had done many good offices for his Cath. Church, and had been a benefactor thereunto. Afterwards, he being committed to free custody with the Dean of Exeter, he gave himself up wholly to reading and devotion. At length dying at Silverton in Devonshire, 10. Sept. (†) in fifteen hundred sixty and nine, was buried in the Parish Church there, on the fourth side of the Altar, bequeathing then what he had, to his brother Rich. Bourn of Wynelscomb in Somersetsh. Father of Gilb. Bourn of the City of Wells. In the See of Wells did not succeed Will. Barlow, who returned from his exile in the beginning of Q. Elizabeth, as 'twas expected, but Gilb. Berkley D. of div. a Lincolnshire man born, and a descendant from the Noble Family of the Berkleys.

WILLIAM ALLEY, sometimes a Student in this University, of which he was afterwards Bach. and Doct. of divinity, was consecrated Bishop of Exeter in July 1560. where sitting about 10 years, died in the be-1570. ginning of fifteen hundred and seventy. See more of him among the writers under that year. In the said Bishoprick succeeded Will. Bradbridge, as I shall hereafter tell you.

1570. JOHN BEST a Yorkshire man born, was originally of this University, and afterwards was dignified in the Church of Wells and elsewhere, but leaving all in the beginning of Q. Mary for Religion sake, lived obscurely, and as occasion serv'd. At length after Q. Elizab. came to the Crown, he being then Bach. of Divinity, was consecrated Bishop of Carlisle (in the place of Owen Ogilthorpe depriv'd) on the second of March, in fifteen hundred and sixty, aged 48 years: the temporalities whereof were given (b) to him by the Queen on the 18. of Apr. following, and in 1566. he was actually created Doct. of divinity. He ended his days on the 22. of May (c) in fifteen hundred and seventy, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Carlisle. In 1533. one John Best was admitted to inform in Grammar, as I shall further tell you in the Fasti under that year, and in 1558. one John Best was elected into a Founders fellowship of University coll. from that of Lincolne. What relation this last had to the Bishop I know not, nor do I know yet to the contrary, but that Jo. Best the Grammarian, was afterwards the same who was Bishop.

1571. THOMAS STANLEY was a Cadet of the noble family of the Stanleys Earls of Derby, and after he had spent some time in this, and another University beyond the Seas, return'd to his native country of Lancashire, became Rector of Winwick and Wygan therein, as also of Badsworth in the diocess of York, and dignified in the Church. At length upon the vacancy of the See of the Isle of Man, he was made Bishop thereof, but when, I cannot justly say, because he seems to have been Bishop in the beginning of K. Ed. 6. and was really Bishop of that place after the death of Dr. Man, whom I have before mention'd, under the year 1556. This Thom. Stanley paid his last debt to nature in the latter end of fifteen hundred and seventy, having had the character, when young, of a tolerable Poet of his time, and was succeeded in the See of Man by one John Salisbury, whom I shall mention anon.

1571. JOHN JEWELL sometimes Portionist or Postmaster of Merton coll. afterwards Scholar and Fellow of that of Corp. Christi, was nominated Bishop of Salisbury by Q. Elizabeth. To which See being elected by the Dean and Chapter of that place, she gave her consent (a) to it 27 Dec. 1559. He departed this mortal life in fifteen hundred seventy and one, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Salisbury succeeded Edm. Gheast Son of Thom. Gheast of the family of the Gheasts of Rough beath in Worcestershire; which Edmund was born, as a certain (*) writer saith, at Afferton in Yorkshire; and dying 28. of Feb. in 1576. was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Salisbury.

1573. JOHN SALISBURY, seems to have been descended from the ancient family of his name living in Denbighshire, but the Town or County which gave him his first breath I cannot yet learn. This person after he had studied some years in this University, but more in another, entred into the Sacred Function, and being beneficed and dignified in the Church, was made Suffragan Bishop of Thetford in Norfolk, but the year when I cannot tell, and in 1540. Dean of Norwich in the place of Will. Castleton, who, having been the last Prior of the Black Monks there, was made the first Dean of the Cath. Ch. in 1539. But Salisbury being outed of his Deanery, for what cause I know not, in the first year of Q. Mary, Dr. John Christopherson was installed in that dignity 18. of Apr. 1554. and soon after became Bishop of Chichester. On the 4. of Dec. following he the said Salisbury was installed Chancellor of the Church of Lincoln, in the place of John Pope who had then lately obtained the Archdeaconry of Bedford. In 1560. he was restored to his Deanery upon the deprivation of Dr. John Harpesfield, and in the beginning of the year 1571. being made Bishop of the Isle of Man, was confirmed in that See on the seventh of Apr. the same year; at which time he had liberty given him to keep the Deanery of Norwich in Commendam with it. He concluded his last day about the latter end of Septemb. in fifteen hundred seventy and three, and was, 1573. as I suppose, buried in the Cath. Ch. of Norwich. In the said Deanery succeeded George Gardiner D. D. installed therein 24. of Dec. 1573. and in the See of Man one John Merick, as I suppose, of whom I shall make farther mention under the year 1599.

HUGH JONES a Welsh man born, but in what hall or college educated, unless in New Inn, I know not, was admitted Bach. of the Civil law by the name of Hugo Joris Capellanus, in 1541. Afterwards he was beneficed and dignified in his own Country, and in the Reign of Q. Mary, an. 1556. became Vicar of Banwell in the dioc. of Wells. In the year 1566. he was consecrated at Lambeth to the much impoverished See of Landaff, and on the sixth day of May the same year, the temporalities of that See were restored (d) to him. He was buried in the Church of Mathern in Monmouthshire 15. of Nov. in fifteen hundred seventy and four, aged 66 years, leaving then behind him a Wife named Anne Jones alias Henson and several daughters. In Landaff succeeded William Blethin another Welsh man, of whom I shall make large mention hereafter.

JOHN PARKHURST, sometimes Fellow of Merton college, became Bishop of Norwich in 1560. and died towards the latter end of fifteen hundred seventy and four; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See succeeded Dr. Edm. Freke, elected by the Dean and Chapter of Norwich 13. of Jul. 1575. who being translated to Worcester, Edm. Scambler D. D. and B. of Peterborough was elected thereunto 15. of Dec. 1584. and was translated in the latter end of that month. He died 7. May 1594. aged 85 years, and was buried on the 3. of June following in the Cath. Ch. of Norwich, between the two Pillars, next above the Tomb of Bishop Parkhurst. Soon after was a monument of a yard and an half high, with his Effigies in Alabafter laying thereon, erected over his grave, and all inclosed with an high iron grate. In the time of that Rebellion, which was began by the Presbyterians, the grate was taken away, the Effigies or Statua broken and the monument of freestone, on which it laid, was pulled down as far as the brick-work; which being unsightly, was afterwards taken away and the space between the pillars left void, as it now remains. There was an inscription, and four verses on it, the first of which did run thus, Vivo tibi, moriorque tibi, tibi Christe resurgam.

After his death, Will. Redman Archdeacon of Canterb. and Rector of Bishops-Bourn in Kent, (Son of John Redman of Shelford in Cambridgeshire.) was promoted to the said See, whereupon being elected thereunto, 17. Dec. was consecrated 12. of Jan. and installed 24. Feb. 1594. He gave way to fate 25. Sept. 1602. and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Norwich, leaving behind him a Relict named Isabell, and several sons and daughters, as also monies for a publick work to be done in Trin. coll. in Cambridge, of which he was sometimes Fellow. To carry on the succession a little farther tho out of my road, I desire the Reader to know that after Redmans death succeeded Dr. John Jigon in the said See of Norwich, born at Coggeshall in Essex 10. Dec. 1550. (being Son of Rob. Jigon, by Joan his Wife, daughter of one . . . White of the same County,) educated in Grammar learning there and elsewhere, became, after some years spent in Logick and Philosophy in Cambridge, Fellow of S. Johns coll. in that University, afterwards Master of C. C. commonly called Bennet coll. (which office he held 12 years) four times Vicechancellor of that University, installed Dean of Norwich (in the place of Dr. Tho. Dove made Bishop of Peterborough) 22. June 1601. and at length being elected Bishop of Norwich 18. Jan. was consecrated thereunto, (with Dr. Rob. Bennet to Hereford) on the 20. Feb. 1602. In the year 1617. March 13. he died, and was soon after buried in the Church at Aylesham in Norfolk, and in 1619. his Widdow named Lilia was married to Sir Charles Cornwallis. After him succeeded in Norwich Joh Overhall Bishop of Lichf. and Coventry, who being elected by the Dean and Chapter 21. May 1618. was confirmed 30. Sept. following. He died 12. May 1619. and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Norwich. About the time of the restoration of K. Ch. 2. Dr. Cofin Bishop of Durham, did, in honour to his memory, as having been one of the profoundest School divines of our Nation, erect a monument on the next pillar to his grave. After him followed Dr. Sam. Harsnet, educated also in Cambridge, who was translated thereunto from Chichester 28. Aug. 1619. and him Dr. Franc. White B. of Carlile and the Kings Almoner, who being elected by the D. and Chapt. of Norwich (upon the translation of Harsnet to York, after D. G. Montaigns death) on the 22. Januar. 1628. was soon after translated thereunto. To him succeeded Dr. Rich. Corbet, whom I have among the Writers mentioned.

116. NICOLAS BULLYNGHAM, was born in the City of Worcester, elected Fellow of Allsouls coll. in 1536. took one degree in the Laws, and some years after, viz. in 1549. (3. Edw. 6.) Sept. 2. was installed Archdeacon of Lincoln on the death of George Heneage, being about that time Vicar-general to the Bishop of that place. After Q. Mary came to the Crown, he absconded, and studied the Theological faculty, wherein he obtained a considerable knowledge, but when Q. Elizab. succeeded, he was made Doctor of his Faculty at Cambridge, was a Judge of Ecclesiastical matters in the Archb. Court of Canterbury, and at length was promoted to the Episcopal See of Lincoln. To which being elected after the deprivation of Dr. Tho. Watson, was consecrated thereunto 21. of Jan. 1559. and on the 18. of Apr. following the temporalities thereof were (*) restored to him. In 1566. he was incorporated Doctor, as he had stood at Cambridge, and in Jan. 1570. he was translated to Worcester on the death of Jam. Calfhill, (who was nominated by the Queen to succeed Edwin Sandys in the said See, but died before consecration,) where he continued much beloved to the time of his death. He departed this mortal life on the 18. of Apr. in fifteen hundred seventy and six, and was buried in a Chappel on the north side of the Choir belonging to the Cath. Ch. of Worcester. Over his grave was fastned a white marble table to the wall, with these rude and barbarous verses engraven thereon.

Nicolaus Episcopus Wigorn.

Here born, here Bishop, buried here,
A Bullyngham by name and stock,
A Man twice married in Gods fear,
Chief Pastor late of Lyncolne flock.
Whome Oxford trained up in youth,
Whome Cambridge Doctor did create,
A painful Preacher of the truth,
Who changed this life for happy fate.

18. Apr. 1576.

117. WILLIAM WALSH, an eminent Theologist of his time, was born in, or near to, Waterford in Ireland, bred a Cistercian Monk, and for some time lived among those of that Order in Oxon, purposely for the improving himself in the supreme Faculty, of which he was afterwards Doctor, but whether of this University it appears not. In Nov. 1554. he succeeded (†) Edw. Staple in the Episcopal See of Meath in Ireland; whence being ejected in the beginning of the Reign of Q. Elizab. for denying her Supremacy, was cast into prison for a time. Afterwards getting loose, he went into Spain, settled at Complutum, spent most of his time in Religion, and dying on the day 1576 before the nones of January in fifteen hundred seventy and six, was buried in the Church there belonging to the Cistercians. In Meath succeeded one Hugh Brady, to which being consecrated in 1563. fate there 20 years.

118. WILLIAM DOWNHAM, received his first breath in the County of Norfolk, was elected Probationer of Magdalen coll. in July 1543. and in the year following he was made true and perpetual Fellow of the said house, being then Master of Arts. Afterwards he became chaplain to the Lady Elizabeth, who, when Queen, did not only make him the first Canon of the tenth stall in the collegiate Ch. of S. Peter in the City of Westminster, an. 1560. but in the year after Bishop of Chester; to which See being consecrated (a) on the 4. of May 1561. had the temporalities thereof given to him (b) on the 9. of the same month. In 1566. he was actually created Doct. of div. and dying in Nov. in fifteen hundred seventy and seven, was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Chester, leaving then behind him two Sons, viz. George Downham afterwards Bishop of London-Derry in Ireland, and John Downham Bach. of div. both learned and painful writers. In the See of Chester succeeded Will. Chaderton D. D. Master of Queens coll. in Cambridge, sometimes Margaret, afterwards the Kings, Professor of div. in that University, and Prebendary or Canon of the fourth stall in the collegiate Church of S. Peter in the City of Westminster. This learned Doctor was born at Nuthurst (c) near Manchester in Lancashire, being the Son of Edm. Chaderton (by Margery his Wife, dau. of one Cliffe of Cheshire) and he the Son of Jeffr. Chaderton, both of Nuthurst. He died Bishop of Lincoln, leaving behind him one only daughter named Joane, begotten on the body of his Wife, named Katharine, dau. of Joh. Revell of London.

PATRICK WALSH, was born, as it seems, in or near Waterford in Ireland, and after he had been partly educated in Grammaticals in that country, was sent to Oxon, but to what coll. or hall therein, unless to that of Brasenose, I know not. In the latter end of the year 1534. he proceeded Master of Arts, and about that time applying his mind to the Theological faculty, supplicated at length the venerable Congregation of Regents that he might be admitted to the reading of the Sentences, in 1545. but whether he was admitted, it appears not in the publick Register, which was much neglected by the then Scribe. About that time he was Dean of Waterford, and in so great repute for his learning and religion, that he was made Bishop of that place and of Lismore: To which being consecrated in August 1551. had liberty then allowed him to keep his Deanery in Commendam for a time. He paid his last debt to nature (d) in fifteen hundred seventy and eight, and was, as I suppose, buried in his Church at Waterford. He had a Son named Nich. Walsh who was then Bishop of Ossory, and about that time had a hand in translating the New Testament into the Irish tongue. This Nich. Walsh seems to have been educated in the University of Cambridge.

WILLIAM BRADBRIDGE, or Brodebridge, was a Londoner born, but descended from those of his name in Somersetshire, was admitted Fellow of Magdalen coll. in 1529. and afterwards proceeding in Arts, was at length admitted to the reading of the Sentences, an. 1539. being then arrived to some eminence in the Theological Faculty. About the middle of March, 1 and 2 of Phil. and Mary, dom. 1554. he was made Prebendary of Lime and Halstock in the Church of Salisbury, vacant by the death of one Rob. Bone, and in the beginning of Q. Elizab. shewing himself conformable to the discipline then established, was made Dean of the said Church in June 1563. void by the death of Pet. Vannes an Italian. In 1565. he supplicated the ven. Congreg. of Regents that he might be admitted Doctor of divinity, but whether he was really so, or diplomated, it appears not in the publick Register, and on the 18. of March 1570. he was consecrated at Lambeth Bishop of Exeter; which See he laudably governed for about 8 years. He ended his days suddenly at Newton-Ferrers in Devonshire, on the 27. June, faith (f) one, and another (g) the 29. July, in fifteen hundred seventy and eight, and was buried on the north side of the Choir of the Cath. Ch. of Exeter. To him succeeded in the said See Joh. Woolton, whom I have mentioned among the writers under the year 1593. and him Gervase Babington D. D. (descended from the ancient Family of the Babingtons in Nottinghamsh.) who, while he was Chaplain to the Earl of Pembroke, assisted his Noble Countess Mary Sidney in her translation of the Psalms: For it was more than a Womans skill to express the sense so right, as she hath done in her verse, and more than the English or Latin translation could give her.

131. THOMAS BENTHAM, a learned and pious man of his time, was born at Shirebourne (a Market Town I think) in Yorkshire, admitted perpetual Fellow of Magd. coll. 16. Nov. 1546. proceeded in Arts the year after, and about that time did solely addict his mind to the study of Theology, and to the learning of the Hebrew tongue, in which last he was most excellent, as in those of Greek and Latin, which he had obtained before he was M. of A. After Q. Mary came to the Crown, he was turn'd out of his Fellowship (for his forward and malepert (†) zeal against the Cath. Religion in the time of Edw. 6.) by the Visitors appointed by her to regulate the University. Whereupon retiring first to Zurich, and afterwards to Basil in Germany, became Preacher to the English Exiles there, and expounded to them the intire book of the Acts of the Apostles. Afterwards being recalled by some of the Brethren, was made Superintendent of them at London, and continued among them in a timorous condition for some time. At length when Q. Elizabeth succeeded, he was nominated Bishop of Lichf. and Coventry upon the deprivation of Dr. Ralph Bayne: To which See being elected, had the temporalities thereof restored to (*) him 20 Feb. 1559. being then about 46 years of age. On the 24. of March following, he was consecrated, and about six years following he was actually created Doct. of divinity, being then in great repute for his learning. He died on the 21. of Feb. in fifteen hundred seventy and eight, leaving then behind him a Widdow named Matilda. He was succeeded in Lichf. and Cov. by Dr. Will. Overton, of whom I have made mention among the writers under the year 1609.

132. NICHOLAS HEATH, or Heath, a most wise and learned man, of great policy, and of as great integrity, was descended from the Heaths of Aspley in the Parish of Tamworth in Warwickshire, but whether born there, (where his brother had certain lands) I cannot tell, was educated for a time in C. C. coll. in this University, but before he took a degree there, he was transplanted first to Christ's coll. and afterwards to Clare hall in Cambridge, where proceeding in Arts, took holy Orders, was afterwards Archdeacon of Stafford, and in 1535. did commence D. of divinity. In 1539. Apr. 4. he was consecrated B. of Rocheſter, being then chief Almoner to the King, and on the 14. of the same month, the temporalities of that See were (h) delivered to him. On the 22. of Decemb. 1543. he was elected B. of Worceſter upon the resignation of Dr. Bell, and in Feb. following, being translated thereunto, the temporalities also of that See were restored (i) to him on the 22. March following: where continuing till the beginning of K. Ed. 6. was soon after committed Prisoner to the Fleet, as being no Friend to that King, or reformation. Afterwards Q. Mary coming to the Crown, he was restored to his Bishoprick, which Jo. Hooper had for some time occupied, and became so great in the favour of that Queen, that he was not only made by her President of Wales, but also Archbishop of York; to which See being elected, P. Paul the fourth by his Bull dated xi. Cal. Jul. 1555. did confirm it. Afterwards being translated, the temporalities of that See were given (k) to him 8. Jan. following, and on the 21. of that month was enthronized or installed in the person of Robert Bishop of Hull, Heath being then Lord Chancellor of England. While he sat Archbishop, Q. Mary gave to him Suffolk-house against S. George's Church in Southwark to be a habitation for him and his Successors for ever in that See, when their occasions called them to London; done in recompence for York-house near Westminster, which her Father had taken from Card. Wolsey. But the said house being remote from the Court, Archb. Heath sold it to a Merchant, and bought Normich-house or Suffolk-place near to Charing-cross for him and his Successors for ever. When Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, which was in Nov. 1558. (Cardinal Pole Archb. of Canterbury and Primate of all England being then dead,) he the said Heath not only refused (tho it appertained to his office) to anoint and Crown Q. Elizabeth, as all the Bishops besides did, except one, but also about the beginning of the year following refused to take the Oath of her Supremacy over the Church. Whereupon being deprived of his Archbishoprick about Midso- mer in the same year, as also of his Chancellourship, was for a time committed to custody, (Jo. Fox saith (l) to the Tower, where he died,) but being a person of great moderation, quiet behaviour, and modest disposition, was soon after set at liberty. So that retiring to his estate at Chobham in Surrey which he before had purchased, spent the remaining part of his days there in great security, retirement, good studies, and devotion, being then in such great grace with Q. Elizabeth that she several times visited him with marvellous kindness. At length arriving to a fair age, died in the beginning of fifteen hundred seventy and nine, as it should seem, for on the 5. of May that year one Tho. Heath, next Kinsman to the said Archbishop, had a Commission then granted (m) to him from the Prerogative Court of Canterbury to administer the goods, debts, chattels, &c. of him the said Nich. Heath S. T. P. sometimes Archb. of York, lately deceased. He was buried in the middle of the Chanc. belonging to the Ch. of Chobham before-mentioned, and over his grave was soon after a plain marble stone laid, with an inscription thereon; which stone was since broken and made shorter, and the inscription, engraven on a brass plate, taken away. His brother Will. Heath, as he is at Chobham so called, was also buried in the said Chancel, some years, as it seems, before the Archbishop, where there was lately, if not still, some memory of him on a grave-stone: But who are now the possessors of the Archb. lands there, which he left to his relations, I cannot tell. The picture drawn to the life of the said Archbishop, I have many times seen, which shews him to have been proper in person, black hair'd, pale-faced, thin and macerated, somewhat like the picture of Fisher B. of Rocheſter, but his nose not so long. I say, this picture I have often beheld, among many other choice pictures, hanging in the large Gallery belonging to Weston-house near to Long-Compton in Warwickshire, now in the possession of my worthy acquaintance Raphe Sheldon Esq; whose Ancestor of both his names of Booly in Worcestershire, (who died 21. Dec. 1546.) married Philippa daughter and coheir of Baldwin Heath, (by his Wife Agnes the eldest daughter and coheir of Joh. Grove of Ford-hall in Wotton in Warwickshire.) Son of Thomas Heath of Aspley in the Parish of Tamworth before-mentioned; which Thomas is supposed by those of the Sheldonian Family, (who quarter with their Arms those of Grove and Heath.) to be Great Grandfather to the Archbishop. This hath been several times told me by my never to be forgotten friend and generous acquaintance, Raphe Sheldon of Booly and Weston Esq; (who deceased 1684.) a person always very curious and industrious in Genealogies.

ROBERT PURSGLOVE, received his first 133 breath at a Market Town in Derbyshire called Tideswall, bred in puerile learning for some time there, afterwards in Grammar learning in S. Pauls School in London by the care and charge of his Uncle Will. Bradshaw; where continuing three years was afterwards placed in the Abery called S. Mary Overhee in Southwark. In which place being fitted for the University, he was sent to Corp. Ch. coll. in Oxford, and maintained there by his said Uncle for the space of fourteen years, but whether he took a degree in all that time, it doth not appear in our Registers, neither indeed of hundreds more, that have studied 7 or more years in Oxon, and therefore for that reason, and because we have no matriculation books above the time of Q. Elizabeth, the memory of many eminent Men in Church and State is lost. After he had left the University, being then esteemed an eminent Clerk, he was received into the Monastery of Gisbourne alias Gisburgh in Yorkshire, where taking upon him the habit of a Canon Regular, was at length elected Prior of that house. Afterwards upon a willing surrender of the said Monastery into the Kings hands, he had a considerable pension allowed to him, was made Provost of Rotheram coll. in Yorkshire, and on the death of Rob. Sylvester about the beginning of Q. Maries Reign, was made Archdeacon of Nottingham, and Suffragan B. of Hull under the Archb. of York, and had other dignities and spiritualities confer'd on him. After Q. Elizabeth had been settled in the Throne for some time, the Oath of Supremacy was offered to him, but he denying to take it, was deprived of his Archdeaconry and other spiritualities.

Whereupon the said Archdeaconry being given to Will. Day M. A. he was installed therein 24. Apr. 1560. as about the same time he was in the Prebendship of Ampleford in the Church of York, on the deprivation of Dr. Alb. Langdale of Cambridge. Pursuivant being thus deprived, he retired to the place of his nativity, and with the wealth that he had heaped from the Church, founded a Grammar School there, and an Hospital for 12 poor and impotent people; as also a Grammar School at Gisbourne before-mentioned, the donation or patronage of which he gave to the Archbishop of York and his Successors for ever, an. 1575. This Clerk of great renown, as he is to this day styled by the Men of Tideswall, gave way to fate on the second day of May in fifteen hundred seventy and nine, and was buried in the Church at Tideswall. Over his grave was a large monument erected, with twenty rude and barbarous verses in English engraven thereon; which being too many to set down in this place, I shall for brevity sake pass them by.

134. THOMAS GOLDWELL, was in all probability descended from a family of his name living long before his time at Goldwell in Kent, but whether born in that County, I cannot tell. About the year 1520. he became a Student in this University, particularly, as it seems, in Allsouls college, where one, or more, of his name and kindred had studied before his time. In 1531. he proceeded in Arts, and two years after was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, being then known to be more eminent in Astronomy and Mathematicks, than in Divinity. What were his preferments and employments 20 years after, I know not. Sure I am, that he being a most zealous person for the R. Catholick Religion, he was by Q. Mary promoted to the Bishoprick of S. Asaph; to which See being elected, he had restitution made (a) of the temporalities belonging thereunto 22. January 1555. Soon after he procured the Pope to renew the indulgences granted to such that went in Pilgrimage to S. Winefrids well, commonly called Halywell in Flintshire. The original of which place, with an account of many miracles performed there, is largely set down by Robert a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict, afterwards Prior of the Congregation of Cluniaks at Shrewsbury, in a book intitled, Vita mirabilis S. Winefride Virginis, Martyris & Abbatissa. lib. 2. written by him about the year 1140. (5. Reg. Steph.) and dedicated to Guarinnus Prior of Worcester, the author being then Prior of Shrewsbury before-mentioned. So that how it comes to pass that Silo. Giraldus who lived afterwards in K. Johns time, did not make any mention of the said Well in his Itinerarium Cambria, which Camden doth take (b) notice of, I know not. After Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown Bishop Goldwell conveyed himself away beyond the Seas, was present at the Council of Trent under P. Pius 4. an. 1562. and afterwards going to Rome lived very pontificially among the Theatines, was appointed by the Pope to baptize Jews there, and to confer orders on all such Englishmen that fled their Country for Religion's sake, which he did there and in several places elsewhere in other Countries to the time of his death. He was esteemed among them a most useful person, was had in great veneration for his learning, having, as I have been informed, wrote one, or more books, and was living at Rhemes in fifteen hundred and eighty, being then about 80 years of age. Afterwards going to Rome died there soon after, and was either buried among the Theatines, or else in the chappel belonging to the English college there. See more of him in Rob. Kynge among these Bishops under the year 1557. as also in a book intit. Concertatio Ecclesie Catholice in Anglia, &c. among the matters relating to the martyrdom of Ralph Sherwin. Joh. Fox in his book of Aets and Monuments, &c. doth tell us of one Thom. Goldwell a Priest, living at Brussels, mentioned in a letter written to Bishop Rich. Thornden, in June 1554. but whether he be the same with Tho. Goldwell before-mentioned, I cannot tell.

135. RICHARD DAVYES, sometimes a Student, as it seems, of New Inn, was consecrated Bishop of S. Asaph in the place of Goldwell before-mentioned, 21. Jan. 1559. aged 50 years, was translated thence to S. Davids, in which See he was confirm'd 21. May 1561. and died in fifteen hundred eighty and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of S. Asaph succeeded Thomas Davyes a Doctor of divinity of Cambridge; who, being rich, left much money for pious uses, and settled a Scholarship in Queens coll. in the said University. He gave way to fate about the Feast of S. Michael 1573. and was buried either in the Church at Abergwilly, or in the Church of Llanpeder y Kennen. In the See of S. Davids succeeded the said Rich. Davyes Dr. Marmaduke Middleton, as I shall tell you under the year 1592.

RICHARD COXE, sometimes of Kings coll. in Cambridge, afterwards Canon of Card. Wolfseys coll. in Oxon, was consecrated Bishop of Ely 1559. and died in fifteen hundred eighty and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See succeeded Martin Heton of Oxon, whom I shall mention among these Bishops under the year 1609.

MATHEW SHEYNE, an Irish man born, laid a foundation of literature here in Oxon, which afterwards he well improved. At length returning to his Country, was, thro several preferments made Bishop of Cork and Cloyne; to which being (*) consecrated in 1572. fate there to the time of his death; which hapned according to some, on the thirteenth day of June in fifteen hundred eighty and two. Whether this M. Sheyne or John Sheyne was the author of the book De reipublica, I cannot yet tell. See in Rich. Shagens among the writers, under the year 1570. and in the Fasti 1523.

JOHN WATSON, was born at a Market Town in Worcestershire called Evesham, admitted Fellow of Allsouls coll. in 1540. took the degree of Master of Arts two years after, and about that time applied his mind to the study of Medicine; in which afterwards he had considerable practice. At length, about the time that Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, if not happily before, he entred into holy Orders, was made Prebendary of Winchester, Archdeacon of Surrey, and Chancellour of S. Pauls. In the 15. year of Q. Elizabeth Dom. 1572. he was made Dean of Winchester in the place of Dr. Franc. Newton deceased, and in 1575. he was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Physick. About which time, he being in great favour at Court, he was made Bishop of Winchester, tho somewhat against his will, in the year 1580. to which being consecrated on the 18. of Sept. in the same year, fate there to the time of his death. He died on the 23. of January in fifteen hundred eighty and three, aged 63 years, and on the 17. of Feb. his Funeral was solemnized in the Cath. Ch. of Winchester; at which time his corps was buried in the body thereof. By his last (e) Will and Test. dat. 23. Oct. 25. Eliz. and proved 22. Jul. 1584. he gave 40 l. to Alls. college, 20 l. to the University of Oxon, 100 marks to certain poor Scholars studying there, to five poor Students of Oxon studying there also 4 l. a-piece for five years after his decease, and to the poor of Evesham before-mentioned he was a liberal benefactor, for whose sake also he gave a stock of 40 l. to set them on work.

THOMAS CHESTER, a Londoner born, was a Student in this University in the time of K. Hen. 8. but in what house I cannot yet find, took one degree in Arts, and was afterwards beneficed and dignified. In 1580. he was made Bishop of Elphine in Ireland, where sitting about 4 years, gave way to fate (f) at Killianhan in that County in the month of June in fifteen hundred eighty and four. In the said See succeeded one John Linch, whom I shall mention at large among these Bishops under the year 1611.

RICHARD BARNES, Son of Joh. Barnes, 140. by Fridebonda his Wife, daughter of Ralph Gifford of Cleydon in Buckinghamshire, was born at Bould near to Warrington in Lancashire, admitted Fellow of Brasenose coll. by the authority of the Kings Council, 6. Edw. 6. Dom. 1552. where making a quick progress in Logick and Philosophy, took the degree of Master of Arts 1557.

About that time he took holy Orders, and was made Minister of Staingrave in Yorkshire. In 1561, Jul. 12. he was admitted Chancellor of the Cath. Ch. of Tork in the place of Jeffry Downes D. of D. (who had succeeded in that dignity one Dr. Hen. Trafford, in Aug. 1537.) and about the same time was made Canon residentiary and Preb. of Laughton in the said Church, as also a publick Reader of divinity therein. About 1567. he was consecrated Suffragan Bishop of Nottingham, in the Church of S. Peter at Tork, and in 1570. June 25. being elected to the See of Carlisle, in the place of Jo. Best deceased, was confirm'd therein on the 7. Aug. following. In 1557. Apr. 5. he was elected to the See of Durham, was confirmed the 9. of May following, and was ever after a favourer of Puritanism. In Feb. 1579. he was actually created Doctor of divinity at Oxon, having taken the degree of Bachelor in that Faculty at Cambridge, and dying in fifteen hundred eighty and seven, was buried in the Chaire, sometimes called the Presbyterie, of the Cath. Ch. of Durham. Over his grave was a monument soon after put, with this inscription thereon. Reverendo in Christo Patri ac Domino, Dom. Richardo Barnes Dunelmensis Episcopo, Prasuli pio, docto, liberali, & munifico; P. S. precariff. P. P. P. P. Obiit xxiv. Aug. an. dom. 1587. aetatis sue 55.

141. WILLIAM BLEYTHYN, a Welsh man born, was educated in New Inn or Broadgates hall, or in both, where applying his studies to the Civil Law, took one degree in that Faculty, in 1562. and afterwards became Archdeacon of Brecknock and Prebendary of Osbaldwyke in the Church of Tork. In 1575. Apr. 17. he was (*) consecrated Bishop of Landaff, and dying in Octob. in fifteen hundred and ninety, was buried in the Chancel of the Ch. at Matherne in Monmouthshire (where the B. of Landaff hath a Seat) near to the body of Hugh Jones his Predecessor. At which time he left behind him three Sons, William, Timothy, and Philemon.

142. THOMAS GODWIN, was born at a Market Town in Berkshire (a) called Oakingham, and bred in Grammar learning in the School there, where being fitted for a gown, was sent to the University of Oxon, about the year 1538. was elected Probationer of Magd. coll. in 1544. and the year after true and perpetual Fellow, being then Bach. of Arts. In 1547. he proceeded in that Faculty, and two years after, did, upon pretence of being disturb'd by certain Papists in that house, (he himself being heretically inclin'd as they said,) leave his Fellowship, and accepted from the said college the Rectory of their School at Brackley in Northamptonshire. Afterwards he took to him a Wife, and what time he had to spare he bestowed on the study of Theology. But so it was, that when Queen Mary came to the Crown he was silenced, and in a manner put to his shifts; whereupon applying his study to Physick to maintain him and his, he was admitted to the reading of any of the books of Hypocrates, or of the Aphorisms of Hypocrates, that is to the degree of Bachelor of Physick, an. 1555. When Queen Elizabeth succeeded, and Religion thereupon was altered, he took holy Orders from Dr. Bullingham B. of Lincoln, who made him his Chaplain, and being a chief instrument of his Preaching several times before the Queen, she approved of him and his person so well, that she thereupon made him Dean of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, in June 1565. So that taking the degrees in divinity the same year, and being esteemed much by all for his learning and piety, he was made Dean of Canterbury in the place of Dr. Nich. Wotton deceased, an. 1566. In 1584. he was nominated Bishop of Bathe and Wells, after that See had laid void three years; whereupon being consecrated thereunto (b) on the 17. of Sept. (his Son Fr. Godwin saith the 13.) the same year, fate there to the time of his death without any removal. He came to the place as well qualified (as one (c) saith) for a Bishop as might be, unreprouable without Simony, given to good hospitality, quiet, kind, affable, a Widdower, and in the Queens good opinion. If he had held on as cleer as he had entred, he would have been extoll'd by all: But see his misfortune that first lost him in the Queens favour, and after forced him to another mischief. For so it was that he being aged, diseased and lame of the Gout, he married (as some thought for opinion of wealth) a Widdow of London, which was his second Wife at least. A chief favourite of that time (Sir Walt. Ralieghe) had laboured to get the Mannor of Banwell from his Bishoprick, and disdaining the repulse, did upon hearing of this intempestive marriage, take advantage thereof, and caused it to be told to the Queen, (knowing how much she disliked such matches,) and instantly persued the Bishop with letters and mandates for the Mannor of Banwell for an 100 years. The good Bishop not expecting such a sudden tempest, was greatly perplexed, yet a while he held out, and endured many sharp messages from the Queen, of which Sir Joh. Harrington of Kelston near to Bathe carried one, being delivered to him by Robert Earl of Leycester, who seemed to favour the Bishop, and mislike Sir Walter for molesting him; but they were soon agreed like Pilate and Herod to condemn Christ. Never was harmless man so traduced to his Sovereign, that he had married a Girl of 20 years old, with a great portion, that he had conveyed half the Bishoprick to her, that (because he had the Gout) he could not stand to his marriage, with such, and the like, scoffs to make him ridiculous to the vulgar and odious to the Queen. The Earl of Bedford hapning to be present when these tales were told, and knowing the Londoners Widdow, the Bishop had married, said merrily to the Queen after this manner, Madam, I know not how much the Widdow is above 20. but I know a Son of hers is but a little under forty, &c. The conclusion of the premises was this, that to pacifie his persecutors, and to save Banwell he was fain to part with Wywelscomb, commonly called Willcomb, for 99 years, and so purchased his peace. To conclude, his reading had been much, his judgment and doctrine sound, his government mild and not violent, his mind charitable, and therefore not to be doubted, but when he lost this life, he won Heaven. In his last days, being taken with an quartan Ague, he did, by advice of his Physicians, remove to the place of his Nativity, Okingham before-mentioned, with hopes of recovery, but nothing availing, he gave way to fate 19. of Novemb. in fifteen hundred and ninety, aged 73 years. 1590. Whereupon being buried on the south side of the Chancel belonging to the Parish Church there, had a monument soon after set up in the wall over his grave by his Son Franc. Godwin then Subdean of Exeter. In the See of Bathe and Wells succeeded John Still D. D. Master of Trin. coll. in Cambridge, (Son of William Still of Grantham in Lincolnshire;) who had been installed Canon of the seventh stall in the Church of Westminster, in the place of Thom. Aldridge deprived for Nonconformity, an. 1573. and Archdeacon of Sudbury 28. of March 1576. He died 26. of Feb. 1607. and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Wells, leaving then behind him several Children which he had by his two Wives, especially the first.

MARMADUKE MIDDLETON, Son of Tho. 143. Middleton of Cardiganshire, (descended from the Middletons of Middleton in Westmorland;) by Lucia his Wife, daughter of Rob. Nevill, had part of his education here, but took not, as I can yet find, a degree. Afterwards he went into Ireland, where he became Rector of Killare in the diocess of Meath, and on the death of Parr. Walsh, (d) B. of Waterford and Lisemore, in 1579. In 1581. he was translated to S. Davids, and about two years after he was actually created Doct. of div. of this University. He was afterwards not only deprived of his Bishoprick. but (e) degraded from all holy Orders for many notable misdemeanours: And the sentence for it was accordingly executed by, and before, the High Commissioners at Lambeth house, not only by reading of it in Scriptis, but by a formal degrading him of his Episcopal robes and Priestly vestments. He departed this mortal life on the 30. of Nov. in fifteen hundred ninety and two, leaving then a Son behind him named Richard who was Archdeacon of Cardigan. In the See of S. Davids succeeded Anthony Rudd D. of div. of Cambridge, and a Yorkshire man born, whom I shall mention in the Fasts under the year 1577. 1592.

144. JOHN UNDERHILL is according to time to follow Tho. Godwin; but before I enter upon him, I must let the reader know that after the death of Dr. Hugh Croom Bishop of Oxon, that See continued void about 21. years. At the term of which, a great person (Sir Fr. Walsingham) out of pure devotion to the leaves, that would yield good fines, recommended the said Underhill to it, perswading him to take it, as in a way to a better, but, as it should seem, it was out of his way very much, for ere the first fruits were paid, he (a) died in much discontent and poverty. Yet his preferer to seem to do some favour to the University, for recompence of the spoil done to the Bishoprick of Oxon, erected a new lecture at his own charge, which Dr. Rainolds of C. C. coll. did for some time read, as I have (b) told you elsewhere. This John Underhill was born in an ancient tenement or receptacle for guests called the Cross Inn in St. Martins Parish, within the City of Oxon, where his name lived two or three generations, if not more, and continued there till the daughter and heir of Underhill was married to one Breys or Brice. After he had been trained up in Grammar learning in Winchester school, he was sent to New coll. of which he became true and perpetual fellow in 1563. After he had taken the degree of M. of Arts, it hapned that Doctor Horne Bishop of Winchester visited the said coll. but Underhill making opposition by questioning the Bishops right for what he did, or should do, as to visitation, he was removed from his fellowship in 1576. Whereupon making his complaint to Robert Earl of Leicester chancellour of the University of Oxon, he hearkned to, and encouraging him to go to law with the Bishop for what he had done, the Bishop forthwith let the cause fall to the ground, knowing very well that he should be a loser by carrying on the cause, if that great Count should stand by Underhill. In 1577. he was elected Rector of Lincoln coll. and proceeded in Divinity in 1581. About which time he was made Chaplain to the Queen, one of the Vicars of Bampton, and Rector of Witney, in Oxfordshire. In 1589. he was nominated Bishop of Oxon upon Walsingham's motion, as I have before told you; whereupon being elected by the Dean and Chapter of Ch. C. on the 8. day of Decemb. was consecrated thereunto about the latter end of the same month in the said year. He paid his last debt to nature at London on the 12. of May, in fifteen hundred ninety and two, and soon after his body being conveyed to Oxon, was buried in the Cath. Ch. towards the upper end of the choir, just before the Bishops chair, leaving then this character of him, that he was Vir clarus eloquio, & acutus ingenio. From the time of his death to the consecration of Dr. Jo. Bridges his successor, an. 1603. the patrimony of the Bishoprick of Oxon, was much dilapidated, and made a prey (for the most part) to Robert Earl of Essex, to whom it proved as miserably fatal, as the gold of Tholouse did of old to the soldiers of Capio. The said John Bridges had been sometimes fellow of Pembr. hall in Cambridge, was D. of D. and made Dean of Salisbury in the beginning of Januar. 1577. upon the promotion of Dr. John Piers to the Episcopal See there. He was a learned man in the time he lived, and wrot several books, as the Bodleian or Oxford catalogue will tell you. See more of him in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 291. b.

145. JOHN WOOLTON sometimes of Brasnose coll. was consecrated Bishop of Exeter in Aug. 1574. died in the latter end of fifteen hundred ninety and three, and was buried on the south side of the choir or presbytery of his Cathedral. Over his grave was soon after put an Epitaph, the beginning of which is this.

Hic jacet, hanc jacet hic tumulo quem credis inesse, Terra nequit tantum contumulare virum.

See more of him among the writers, under the year 1593.

146. THOMAS COOPER sometimes fellow of S. Mary Magdalens coll. was made Bishop of Lincolne in 1570. translated thence to Winchester, in 1584. and died in the beginning of the year fifteen hundred ninety and four, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Winchester succeeded Will. Wickham, Son of John Wickham of Enfield in Middlesex, Son of Tho. Wickham of Swadlow in Oxfordshire by Joyce Sandbury his Wife: which Will. Wickham was born at Enfield before-mention'd, educated in Eaton school near Windsore, became a member of the foundation of Kings coll. in Cambridge, an. 1556. fellow of Eaton college, Prebendary of the fourth stall in the collegiat ch. of S. Peter in Westminster, in the place of Rich. Morley, an. 1570. Canon of Windsore 1571. Dean of Lincolne 1577. and afterwards Bishop thereof, preached at the burial of Mary Q. of Scots at Peterborough, 1. Aug. 1587. translated from Lincolne to Winchester about the latter end of March 1595. and died in Winchester house in S. Mary Overhees parish in Southwark on the 12. of June following. You may see his epitaph in Jo. Stow's Survey of London, printed 1633. p. 452. and more of him in Antimartinius, five monitio ejusdam Londinensis, &c. Printed 1589. p. 52.

147. JOHN ELMER or Aylmer was born of, and descended from, an antient and gentile family of his name living in Norfolke, spent some time in this University while young, but more in Cambridge, where, if I mistake not, he took the degrees in Arts. Afterwards he became chaplain to Henry Grey Duke of Suffolk and Tutor to his daughter the Lady Jane Grey, while she lived at Bradgate in Leycestershire, who taught her so (c) gently, so pleasantly, and with such fair allurements to learning, that she thought all the time nothing, whilst she was with him. And when she was called from him, she would fall a weeping, because that whatsoever she did else, but learning, was to her full of grief, trouble, fear, and altogether misliking to her. And thus her book was so much her pleasure, and brought daily to her more pleasure and more, that in respect of it, or other pleasures, were in truth but trifles and troubles to her. In 1553. he, by the name of John Aylmer, was made Archdeacon of Stow in the place of Christop. Massingberd, who died 8. March in that year; and soon after we find him one of the Protestant Disputants in the Convocation house at S. Pauls, when certain Theologits of each party met to solve such scruples and doubts; as any of them might pretend to have. He spake but little on the first day, but the next day he read certain authorities out of a note-book, which he had gathered against the real prence. Afterwards shewing himself nonconformable, he was deprived of his Archdeaconry; whereupon John Harryson being put into his place, an. 1554. he the said Elmer went as a voluntary Exile into Germany, where he was miraculously preserved from several dangers. After Q. Elizabeth came to the Crown, he was appointed one of the Protestant Disputers against the seven R. Cath. Bishops concerning matters of religion, when that Q. was about to make a reformation, and in 1562. he by the name of John Aylmer M. of A. was made Archdeacon of Lincoln in the place of one Tho. Marshall, who had succeeded Nich. Bullingham in 1554. In the year 1573. he retired to this University again, and there as a member of it, took the degrees in divinity, that of Doctor being compleated in an Act celebrated on the 12. of Octob. the same year. On the 24. of March 1576. he was (d) consecrated Bishop of London, being then accounted a learned and an honest man, and about 1588. he was made the Queens Almoner, at which time he was a great enemy to the Puritanical party, then numerous in the nation. He died at Fulham in Middlesex on the third of June in fifteen hundred ninety and four, and was buried in S. Pauls Cathedral before the chappel of S. George. By his last Will (e) and Test. which I have seen, he desires to be buried in the Cath. Ch. of S. Paul on the north side, in some convenient place within the wall, with a Tomb of his Picture after the manner of Dean Collet; which, as he saith, is on the south side of the Choir. He then left behind him several Sons, the second of which named Theophilus, succeeded Jo. Molyns in the Archdeaconry of London 1591. being about that time well beneficed in Hertfordshire, and esteemed a learned and reverend divine. His father also, the Bishop, was well learned in the Languages, was a ready Disputant and a deep Divine, and wrote, as 'tis said, a book called (f) The Harbrough of Princes, which I have not yet seen, and therefore cannot tell you where, or in what Vol. 'twas printed. He was a man but of mean stature, yet in his youth very valiant, which he forgot not in his age. When he first became a Preacher, he followed the popular phrase, and fashion of the younger Divines of those times, which was to inveigh against the superfluities of the Church men, and thereupon he is (a) remembered to have used these words in a Sermon before a great auditory—Wherefore away with your thousands you Bishops, and come down to your hundreds, &c. But this was but a heat of his spirit, of which, not long after, by reading and conference, he was thoroughly cured; inasmuch as being asked by one of his own rank, after he was Bishop of London, what he meant, to preach of the brainick fashion, he answer'd with the words of S. Paul, Cum essem parvulus, loquebar ut parvulus, sapiebam ut parvulus. But certain it is, no Bishop was more persecuted and taunted by the Puritans of all sorts, than he was by libels, by scoffs, by open railing and privy backbiting. He used for recreation to bowl in a Garden, and Martin Marprelate thence took this taunting scoff, that the Bishop would cry Rub, rub, rub, to his bowl, and when 'twas gone too far, say, the Devil go with it, and then quoth he the Bishop would follow. Thus he was rub'd, as he rub'd others, till they were all gall'd sometimes, and the B. was so weary of the place, that he would gladly have removed to Ely, and made great suit, and was put in some hope, for it. He was diligent in Preaching at his cure where he was first beneficed, and when his auditory grew dull and unattentive, he would with some pretty and unexpected conceit, move them to attention. Among the rest was this: He read a long text in Hebrew, whereupon all seemed to listen what would come after such strange words, as if they had taken it for some conjuration: then he shewed their folly, that when he spake English, whereby they might be instructed and edified, they neglected and hearkned not to it; and now to read Hebrew, which they understood no word of, they seem'd careful and attentive. When there was talk of dangers, rumours of wars and invasions, then he was commonly chosen to Preach in the Court, and he would do it in so cheerful a fashion, as not only shewed he had courage, but would put courage into others. Here is much talk saith he of Malum ab aquilone, and our Cole-prophets have prophesied that in exaltatione luna leo jungetur leona, and the Astronomer tells us of a watry Trigon. But as long as Virgo is in that ascendent with us, we need not fear of any thing: Deus nobiscum, quis contra nos: and for this the Queen would much commend him, yet she would not remove him. In the See of London succeeded Dr. Rich. Fletcher sometimes of C. C. coll. in Cambridge, and him Rich. Bancroft an. 1597. who being remov'd to Canterbury 10. Decemb. 1604. Rich. Vaughan Bish. of Chester, was translated (b) to London 24. of the same month.

148. JOHN PIERS was born of plebeian and sufficient Parents at South Henxsey near to Abendon in Berks, and within a short mile of Oxon, was educated in Grammar learning in the free-school joyning to Magd. college, in Academics in the said coll. of which he was admitted perpetual fellow 25. July 1546. being then Bach. of Arts. Soon after, upon an invitation, he was elected into the number of the senior Students of Ch. Church: which place he being unwilling to take, had liberty granted to him, that if he did dislike it at the years end, he might leave it. Whereupon being weary of it at the term of that year, he was elected Probationer of Magd. coll. before-mention'd 26. Jul. 1548. and the next year proceeded in Arts. About that time he entred into holy orders, and being soon after made divinity reader of that house, obtained also the rectory of Quainton in Bucks: both which places he kept together for some time. But so it was, that he being a man of good parts, and accounted by his contemporaries an excellent disputant, yet by keeping rustical company at Quainton, or at some small cure that he had near to his native place, before he had obtained Quainton, (where 'twas usual with him to sit tipling in a blind Ale-house with some of his neighbours) was in great hazard to have lost all those excellent gifts that came after to be so well esteemed and rewarded in him. In 1558. he was admitted to the reading of the sentences, being about that time Prebendary of Chester: of which Church being soon after made Dean in the place of Rog. Walker M. A.

he proceeded in divinity. In the beginning of 1570. he was elected Master of Balliol coll. but before he was settled therein, he was made Dean of Ch. C. in Oxon. So that resigning his Mastership in May 1571. was on the 15. of March following made Dean of Salisbury upon the resignation of Dr. Edm. Freke made Bishop of Rochester. Which Deanery he kept with that of Ch. Ch. till he was consecrated Bishop of Rochester, 15. Apr. 1576. About which time being made the Queens Almoner, she gave him leave notwithstanding to keep a commendatary title to Salisbury till 1577. and then in the beginning of that year, she made him Bishop of that place, on the death of Dr. Edm. Gheast who died in Feb. 1576. In the said See he fate several years with great honour and repute, and was beloved of all. At length, upon the death of Dr. Edwin Sandys, being made Archb. of York, was translated to that place on the 19. of Feb. in 1588. He died at Bishops-Thorp in York-shire 28. Sept. in fifteen hundred ninety and four, aged 71. 1594. years, leaving then behind him the character of a great and modest Theologist; whereupon his body was buried in the third Chappel at the east-end of the Cath. Ch. of York. Over his grave was soon after erected a fair monument on the east Wall; the inscription on which, wherein his character (*) is contained at large, you may see in Historia & Antiquitates Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 255. a. & b. He left his estate to Job. Piers Registrary to the Archb. of York, (Son of Thomas Piers of S. Henxsey before-mention'd, the Archb. brother) who married Elizabeth daughter of Rich. Bennet, and Sister of Sir John Bennet Kt. Judge of the Prerogative Court of Cant.

WILLIAM ALLYN Allen or Alan, sometimes 148. fellow of Oriel coll. was created Cardinal under the title of S. Martin in Montibus, an. 1587. and in 1589. he was made Archbishop of Mechlin the Metropolis of Brabant. He paid his last debt to nature in fifteen hundred ninety and four, as I have told you elsewhere. See more among the writers under that year. In the See of Mechlin succeeded Levinus Torrentinus a native of Gant, and Bishop of Antwerp, founder of the coll. of Jesuits at Louvaine, who dying 6. of the Cal. of May 1595. aged 70. and more, was buried in his Cath. Church.

LEWES OWEN or Owen Lewes, by both which 148. names he is written, was born in the village of Maltrayth in Bodean in the Isle of Anglesey, was educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's School near Winchester, made perpetual and true fellow of New coll. in 1533. took the degree of Bach. of the civil law in Feb. 1558. and made a farther progress in that faculty, with intentions to proceed therein. But his opinion as to religion not suffering him so to do, left the University about 1561. (tho his fellowship was not pronounced void till 1563.) and went to Doway, where he was for his great merits made the Regius Professor of his faculty. At length being nominated Bishop of Cassano in the Kingdom of Naples by Philip 2. King of Spain, and elected by P. Sixtus 5. (whose Referendary he was of each signature) was consecrated thereunto at Rome on the third of Febr. 1588. according to the accompt there followed. In which See sitting about seven years, died full of commendations and praise on the fourteenth of Octob. according to the same accompt, in fifteen hundred ninety and four. Whereupon his body was buried in the Chappel belonging to the college of the English Students at Rome, dedicated to S. Thomas Archb. of Canterbury. Soon after was a marble stone laid over his grave, with this inscription thereon, which gives a farther account of the man. *D. O. M. Andreno Ludovico Cambro-Britanno, I. V. chiepiscopus Montis Regalis Amico posuit. The said Dr. Lew. Owen had a Nephew called Hugh Griffith who was Provost of Cambray.

1501. JOHN GARVEY, was born, as it seems, in the County of Kilkenny in Ireland, took one or more degrees in the Reign of K. Edw. 6. he being then a Student in Oxon, but by the negligence of the Scribe his name is omitted in the publick Register of that time. Afterwards he retired to his Country, became Archdeacon of Meath, and in 1565. Dean of the Church of the Holy Trinity, commonly called Christ-Church in Dublin. Afterwards being made a Member of the Queens Privy Council there, was (a) promoted to the Bishoprick of Kilmore in Apr. 1585. with liberty then allowed him to keep his Deanery in Commendam. In 1589. he was made Archbishop of Armagh in the place of Dr. Joh. Long deceased: Whereupon being translated thereunto on the tenth of May the same year, had liberty given him to keep his Deanery then also. He departed this mortal life on the second day March in fifteen hundred ninety and four, and was buried in the Church of the Holy Trinity before-mentioned, leaving then behind him a little thing of his writing intit. The Conversion of Philip Corvine a Franciscan Fryer, to the reformation of the Protestant Religion, an. 1589.—Published in 1681. when the Phanatical party were big with hopes of satisfying their insatiable ends, under pretence of aggravating and carrying on the pretended horridness of the Popish Plot. He was succeeded in Kilmore by one Rob. Draper Rector of Trimm in Ireland, and in the See of Armagh by Henry Usher, whom I shall mention at large under the year 1613.

1511. WILLIAM LALY, or Lawly alias Mullaly received his first being in this World in the County of Galloway in Ireland, was educated in New Inn, took the degree of Bach. of decrees as a Member of that house, in 1555. (1. and 2. of Ph. and Mary,) and returning soon after into his own Country, was made Dean of Tuam, and at length consecrated (b) Archbishop of that place, in Apr. 1573. He ended his days in fifteen hundred ninety and five, and was buried, as I presume, in the Cath. Ch. at Tuam. In the See of Tuam succeeded one Nehemias Donellan an Irish man, educated in the University of Cambridge, as my author here quoted saith. Yet the Reader must know, that one or more, of his Sirname, and time, studied in Oxon, but his or their Christian names being not registred, I cannot say that either of them was Nehemias.

1521. THOMAS BICKLEY, was born at Stow in Bucks. educated in Grammaticals in the Free-School joyning to Magd. coll. while he continued in the quality of a Chorister of that house: Afterwards upon examination of his proficiency, he was elected one of the Demies or Semi-Commoners, and in July 1540. was admitted Probationer, and on the 26. of the said month, in the year following, was made perpetual Fellow of the said house. In the beginning of K. Edw. 6. he became the Kings Chaplain or Preacher at Windsor, to which he was elected according to custom by the Members of the University of Oxon, and about that time shewing himself a very forward (c) person for reformation, and therefore looked upon as an impudent and pragmatial Man by the R. Cath. party, nay and by some also of his own, he was forced to leave the coll. in the beginning of Q. Mary's reign, being then Bach. of divinity. Whereupon going into France, he spent most of his time at Paris and Orleans during her reign, where he improved himself much in learning, and in the language of that Country. After Q. Elizab. came to the Crown, he returned and became Chaplain to Dr. Parker Archb. of Canterbury, Archdeacon of Stafford and Residentiary of the Church of Lichfield; which dignities were given to him by Dr. Bentham Bishop of that place, sometimes his Friend and Contemporary in Magd. coll. In the beginning of the year 1569. he was one of the three persons that was elected Warden of Merton coll. by the Fellows thereof; whereupon the Archb. before-mentioned conferred that place on him, and in the next year he proceeded Doct. of div. as a Member of the said house. In 1585.

he had the Bishoprick of Chichester confer'd upon him on the death of Rich. Coortess; to which See being consecrated 30. of January, was installed or enthronized the 3. March the same year, where he fate to the time of his death much beloved of all in his diocess. He gave up the ghost on the 30. of Apr. in fifteen hundred ninety and six, and was buried in the north Isle joyning to the Choire of his Cath. on the 26. May following. Soon after was a monument set over his grave, with his figure kneeling thereon, (which shews him to have been a comely and handsome Man,) with this inscription engraven near it. Thomas Bickley sacra Theologiae Doctor, Magdalenensis Collegii Oxon. Alumnus, Archidiaconus Stafford: Collegii de Merton Custos, & hujus Ecclesie Episcopus, quam annos decem, & tres menses, sobrietate & sinceritate, summâ justitiâ & prudentiâ singulari & piâ & religiosâ administravit. Obiit pridie calendâs Maii Aldingbornie, anno salutis nostrae Milleimo quingentesimo nonagesimo sexto, & ætatis suae septuagesimo octavo, &c. I find, by his last Will and Test. that he gave to Magd. coll. his good nurse, forty pounds to be bestowed on the Grammar School joyning to the said college, for the seeling and paving it. To Merton coll. also he gave an hundred pounds to buy land, that the revenue thereof be bestowed in exhibition on one of the Fellows thereof that professeth divinity, to preach one publick Sermon, &c. This exhibition was afterwards ordered to be given to that Fellow that should Preach a Sermon to the University on May-day in the Chappel or Church belonging to Merton coll. which yet continues. In the See of Chichester succeeded Anth. Watson D. D. of Cambridge, Son of Edward Watson of Thorp-Thales in the County Pal. of Durham, and he the Son of Will. Watson of the same place. Which Anthony was first Chancellour of the Ch. of Wells, in the place of Dr. Rog. Goad; afterwards Dean of Bristow on the death of Joh. Sprint in 1590. and in 1596. being consecrated Bishop of Chichester before-mentioned, was succeeded in his Chancellourship by one Joh. Rogers, (to whom succeeded also Will. Barker D. D. 1602.) and in his Deanery by Simon Robson, not in 1596. but in 98. which shews that Watson kept the said Deanery for some time in Commendam with Chichester. This Dr. Watson, who spent his life in celebacy, as his Predecessor Bickley did, gave way to fate at his house in Cheame or Chesham in Surrey, being then Almoner to K. Jam. 1. whereupon his body was buried in the Church there, on the third day of Oct. 1605. By his last Will (d) and Testam. he gave an hundred pounds to Christs coll. in Cambridge, where he had been educated before he became Fellow of Bennet college, and divers other Legacies for pious uses.

RICHARD MEREDYTH, a Welsh man born, 1531. became a Student in this University about 1568. but in what house, unless in S. Johns coll. it appears not. In 1575. he proceeded M. of Arts as a Member of Jesus coll. which was the highest degree he took in this University. Afterwards being Chaplain to Sir Joh. Perot L. Lieutenant of Ireland, he was by him made Dean of S. Patricks Church near Dublin, and at length B. of Leighlin: To which See being consecrated in the month of Apr. 1589. fate there till the time of his death; which hapning (e) on the third of August in fifteen hundred ninety and seven, was buried on the north side of S. Patricks Church before-mentioned. In the said See of Leighlin succeeded one Rob. Grave Dean of Cork, but whether he was ever a Student in Oxford, I cannot yet tell.

JOHN BULLYNGHAM, received his first 1541. breath in the County of Gloucester, was elected Probationer of Magd. coll. in July 1550. being then Bach. of Arts, and intimate with Julius Palmer the Protestant Martyr, (whose story he hath written in a large letter dated from Bridgnorth about 1562. for the satisfaction of Jo. Fox when he was in writing his English book of Acts and Monuments) &c. but before he took the degree of Master, he left the University, (Q. Mary being then in the Throne,) and retired, as it seems, beyond the Seas, where continuing mostly all her reign, returned when Q. Elizabeth succeeded, became well beneficed, and in 1567. was made Archdeacon of Huntingdon, but in whose room, unless in that of Anth. Draycot, I know not. In 1568. he compleated the degree of D. of div. in an Act celebrated on the twelfth of July, and two years after was made Prebendary of Worcester in the place of Libbens Byard deceased. In 1581. Sept. 3. he was consecrated (f) Bishop of Gloucester; about which time he had the See of Bristol given to him in Commendam, but that being taken away from him in 1589. the rectory of Kilminster alias Culmington in the dioc. of Wells was conferr'd on him, in Jul. 1596. He paid his last debt to nature about the 20. of May in fifteen hundred ninety and eight, and was buried, as I suppose, in the Cath. Ch. of Gloucester. Whereupon his rectory was bestowed on Rich. Potter, father of Franc. Potter, author of the Interpretation of the number of 666, &c. as I shall tell you when I come to him in the next volume of this work, and his Bishoprick on Godfrey Goldsborough Doct. of div. of Cambridge.

155. JOHN MERICK was born in the Isle of Anglesea, educated in Wykeham's School near Winchester, made perpetual fellow of New coll. in 1557. took the degrees in Arts, became one of the Proctors of the University in 1565. Vicar of Hornchurch in Essex, in 1570. and three years after Bishop of the Isle of Man on the death of John Salisbury. He yielded up his last breath in Yorkshire (as it seems) in 1599. Sept. or Oct. in fifteen hundred ninety and nine, and was succeeded in the said See by Dr. George Lloyd of Cambridge, (Son of Meredyth Lloyd, Son of Joh. Lloyd of Caernarvan-shire) who was translated thence to Chester in 1604. This Joh. Merick left behind him a brother named Will. Merick, LL.D. and another called Maurice Merick, then M. of Arts, and certain letters concerning Ecclesiastical, and other, affairs, which I have seen in the Cottonian Library, under the picture of Julius, F. 10.

156. WILLIAM HUGHES Son of Hugh ap Kendrick of Caernarvan-shire by Gwenllian his wife, daughter of John Vychan ap John, ap Gruff, ap Owen Pygott, was born in the said County, and for a while educated in this University. Afterwards retiring to Christs coll. in Cambridge, he took there the degrees in Arts and holy orders; and being soon after made chaplain to Thom. Howard or Howard Duke of Norfolk, attended him to Oxon in the beginning of the year 1568. where, on the same day that the said Duke was created Master of Arts, this his chaplain was incorporated Bach. of div. as he had stood in Cambridge. The year after, the said Duke writing letters to Dr. Laur. Humphrey in his behalf, he was, by the said Humphreys endeavours made to the Vicechancellor and Convocation, permitted to proceed in his faculty. Whereupon being licensed the same year, stood in an Act celebrated 10. Jul. 1570. to compleat that degree. In 1573. he was promoted to the Episcopal See of S. Asaph, to which being consecrated in Lambeth chappel on the thirteenth (g) of Sept. the same year, fate there to the time of his death without any removal. He concluded his last day in Octob. in sixteen hundred, and was, as I suppose, according to his will, buried in the choir of the Cath. Ch. of S. Asaph; leaving then behind him a Son named William, and a daughter named Anne (the then Wife of Tho. Mostyn Gent.) begotten on the body of his Wife Lucia daughter of Rob. Knowesley of Denbigh-shire. By his last Will (h) and Test. dated 16. Oct. 1597. and proved 9. Nov. 1600. he left lands and revenues for the founding a free school in the Cath. Ch. of S. Asaph. He the said Dr. Hughes was succeeded in St. Asaph by Dr. Will. Morgan author of the first translation of all the Bible (since printing was used) into the ancient and unmixed language of the Britains. The translation he dedicated, with a latin epistle prefix'd, to Q. Eliz. and was printed in 1588. For which work he was rewarded with the Bishoprick of Llandaff first, and afterwards with that of S. Asaph.

157. JOHN CHARDON or Chardlon sometimes fellow of Exeter coll. was consecrated B. of Downe and Connor in Ireland, an. 1596. and died in sixteen hundred and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Downe and Connor succeeded one Rob. Hampston Master of Arts, but whether of this University I cannot tell.

158. HERBERT WESTPHALING sometimes a Student of Ch. Ch. was consecrated B. of Hereford, in 1585. and departed this mortal life in the latter end of sixteen hundred and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See succeeded Dr. Rob. Bennet sometimes of Trin. coll. in Cambridge, Son of Leonard Bennet of Baldock in Hertfordshire, who was consecrated thereunto 20. Feb. 1603. By his last (i) Will dated 3. Mar. 14. Jac. 1. he bequeathed his body to be buried in the Cath. Ch. of Hereford, and moneys for the erection of a Tomb of white Alabaster, with the picture of a man lying in a white Sheet upon an Altar of other stone, to be compassed about with strong Iron bars, after the example of other Tombs in the Church. Which monument was to be erected (as he saith) in the Church of the Quire, behind the seat of his Wife, and to be of the value of an hundred Marks, with this inscription thereon—Robertus Bennet S. Theol. Professor fidelis christi Minister, qui obiit ... die ... an. 16... He also gave 20 l. to the library of Trin. coll. in Cambridge, and 20 l. towards the building of the New Schools in Oxon. See more of him in the Fasti following, under the year 1572.

STEPHEN KEROVAN was born at Gallo-way in Ireland, studied several years in this University, but whether he took a degree I know not. Afterwards advancing his studies in the University of Paris, returned to his native Country, and became Archdeacon of Enagh-dune in the county of Galloway, and at length Bishop (by Q. Eliz. command) of Kilmacogh, in 1573. Where sitting some years, was translated thence to Clonsfert 1582. and after a successful enjoyment of that See for about 20 years, gave way to fate about sixteen (k) hundred and two. In both the said Sees succeeded Rowland Linch Archd. of Clonsfert, whose Sirname occurring often in our writings, I have just reason to suppose that he had received some Academic education among us.

DANIEL NEYLAN or Neyland an Irish man 160. born, spent also some time here among his Countrymen, but whether he took a degree it appears not. Afterwards retiring to his native Country, he became Rector of Iniscarty in the diocess of Killaloe, and much in esteem in those parts for his piety and learning. At length obtaining the Bishoprick of Kildare, was consecrated thereunto by (l) Adam Archb. of Dublin (and his assistants) in the month of Nov. 1583. where sitting more than 19. years, yielded to nature at Disert 18. May in sixteen hundred and three. In the said See succeeded William Pilsforth of Magdalen coll. of whom I shall make large mention among these Bishops under the year 1635.

EUGENIUS O-CONNER commonly called Conner another Irish man and contemporary with Neylan, became, after he had left Oxon, Dean of Achomy in his own Country, and at length by the favour of Q. Eliz. was promoted to the Episcopal See of Killala, in 1591. where after he had fate about 16. years, surrendered up his last breath to him that first gave it, in sixteen hundred and six or thereabouts. After his death one Miler Magrath Archb. of Cashells, did keep the See of Killala in (m) Commendam with his Archbishoprick.

WILLIAM OVERTON sometimes fellow 161. of Magdalen coll. was consecrated B. of Lichfield and Coventry in the beginning of the year 1579. (where he shewed himself sufficiently severe to suppress such, whom he suspected of Nonconformity) and died in sixteen hundred and nine, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. He was succeeded in the said See by George Abbot, of whom I have spoken at large among the said writers.

MARTIN HETON Son of George Heton Esq; by Joane his Wife, daughter of Sir Martin Bowes Knight, was born in London, but descended from an ancient family of his name living in Lancashire. His father was master of the Inn or House belonging to the English Merchants at Antwerp; and being a person of great Hospitality, caused his house there to be free and open for such that fled from England for religion sake in the time of Q. Mary. At his return into England, he became Chamberlain of London, sent this his Son to Westminster school, where profiting exceedingly in good letters, was thence sent to Oxon, and in 1571. was, with Rich. Eedes, made Student of Ch. Ch. where in short time he became a most acute disputant. In 1578. he proceeded in Arts, and in 1582. he was made one of the Canons of his house. In 1588. he was nominated and installed Vicechancellor of the University of Oxon, and in the latter end of 1589. he succeeded Dr. Laur. Humphrie in the Deanery of Winchester, being then but 36. years of age. At length after the See of Ely had laid void 20. years, and a large portion of it taken thence by the Queen, as it was generally spoken, he was in a sort compelled to take it. Whereupon being consecrated at Lambeth, on the third (a) of Feb. 1599. fate there ten years, and as Cambridge men (who had no great affection for him, because not bred among them) report, did impoverish (b) the said See by sealing many good deeds of it, and till they were cancelled, it would never be so good as it should be. He was a noted Preacher while he continued in the University, and a subtle Disputant in Theology, in his elder, as he was in his younger, years in Philosophy: And while B. he was esteemed inferior to few of his rank for learning and other good parts belonging to a Prelate. He took his last farewell of this world on the 14. of July in sixteen hundred and nine, aged 57 years, and was buried in the choir or presbytery of the Cath. Ch. of Ely. Soon after was a fair and large monument built over his grave, joyning to the south wall of the said Presbytery, with his Statua thereon lying on the back, with the hands erected in a praying posture. On the said monument was engraven an inscription in prose, to shew his descent, preferments, and time of his death; also a copy of long and short verses, in number 12. composed by Dr. Will. Gager his Chancellor, and another of 14. composed by his Nephew George Heton Bach. of div. of Cambridge. All which being too long and large to be here inserted, I shall therefore for brevity sake pass them by.

164. THOMAS RAVIS received his first breath at Maiden alias Meandon in Surrey, his juvenile education in the quality of a Kings Scholar in the college school at Westminster, and his Academical education in Ch. Ch. of which he was made a Student in 1575. After he had taken the degrees in Arts he entred into holy orders, and preached in and near Oxon for some time with great liking. In 1589. he was admitted to the reading of the sentences, in 1592. he was made Canon of the seventh stall in the Ch. of Westm. in the room of Dr. Joh. Still, promoted to the See of B. and Wells, an. 1592. and in 1594. he was made Dean of his house. In the year following he took the degree of Doct. of div. and after he had compleated it by standing in the Aët, took the office of Vicechancellor on him for two years together. In 1604. he was for his eminent learning, gravity, and approved prudence, prefer'd by K. Jam. I. to the See of Glocester, and on the 19. of March the same year was (c) consecrated thereunto. The diocess of which place being then pretty well stock'd with such people that could scant brook the name of a Bishop, yet, by his Episcopal way of living among them, he obtained their love, and were content to give him a good report. In 1607. June 2. he was (d) translated to London, where sitting but for a short time, paid his last debt to nature (to the great reluctance of all good men, especially such who knew the piety of the Bishop, and how he had for many years with much vigilancy served his Church, King, and Country) on the fourteenth day of Decemb. in sixteen hundred and nine. Whereupon his body was buried in the upper end of the north Isle joyning to S. Pauls Cath. Ch. and soon after had put over it a monument, with an inscription thereon; a copy of which being already printed at least (e) twice, I shall now omit it, and pass to the next. In his Prebendship of Westminster succeeded Hugh Goodman M. A. and Student of Ch. Ch. installed therein 10. May 1607. in his Deanery Dr. Joh. King, and in his Bishoprick Dr. Geo. Abbot.

165. JOHN LINCH Son of James Linch was born at Galloway in Ireland, and educated in New Inn, as it seems, with Will. Laly his Countryman, (afterwards Archb. of Tuam) took the degree of Bach. of Decrees in Apr. 1555. and soon after going into his own Country, had several benefices bestowed on him. At length by the favour of Q. Eliz. he was promoted to the Bishoprick of Elphine an. 1584; which place he keeping about 27. years, resigned (f) it 19.

Aug. 1611. and dying soon after, was buried in the Ch. of Clar. S. Nicholas in Galloway. In the said See succeeded one Edw. 1611. King a Huntingdonshire man born, Doct. of div. of the University of Dublin, who was consecrated thereunto in Dec. 1611. See another Joh. Linch in the Fasti, 1618. among the Incorporations.

GILES TOMSON a Londoner born, was entred 166. an Exhibitioner of University coll. in 1571. took the degrees in Arts, and in 1580. was elected fellow of Allsoul's coll. In 1586. he was one of the Proctors of the University, and about that time Divinity reader of Magd. coll. When he was a Junior, he gave (*) a great hope and good presage of his future excellency, having a rare gift ex tempore in all his School Exercises, and such a happy wit to make use of all occurrences to his purpose, as if he had not taken the occasions, as they fell out by accident, but rather bespoken such pretty accidents to fall out to give him the occasions. Afterwards he was chaplain to the Qu. Residentiary of Hereford, Rector of Pembridge in Herefordshire, was installed Dean of Windfore, 2. March 1602. being then Doct. of div. Scribe or Registry of the most noble Order of the Garter, and a most eminent Preacher. At length being nominated and elected B. of Glocester, had restitution of the temporalities belonging to it, made to him (g) on 27. June 1611. and was in the next month consecrated thereunto, with liberty then allowed to him to keep his Deanery in Commendam for one year and no longer. He departed this mortal life, to the great grief of all that knew the piety and learning of the man (after he had taken a great deal of pains, at the command of K. Jam. I. in translating the four Gospels, Acts of the Apostles and Apocalypse) on the 14. June in sixteen hundred and twelve. Whereupon his body was buried in Brays chappel on the south side of that of S. George at Windfore, and had soon after a monument put over him, with his Bust to the middle, and this inscription under it. Individua Trinitati per omnia secula, sit gloria per quam fui, sum, ero. Commendatum, mors intempestiva (anno decurso) presulem rapuit. Obiit 14. Junii An. Dom. 1612. etat. 59.

RICHARD DEANE Son of Gilb. Deane of Saltonstall in Yorkshire (by Elizabeth his Wife daughter of Edm. Jennings of Syelsden in Craven) was born at Saltonstall, and after he had been educated in Grammaticals in his own Country, became a Student in Merton coll. 1587. aged 17. years: where continuing about 5. years, in the quality, as it seems, of a Portionist, retired to S. Albans hall, and, as a member of that house, took the degree of Bach. of Arts, in Octob. 1592. and that of Master three years after; which was the highest degree he took in this University. Afterwards he taught school at Caermerthen in Wales, (as a note that came thence, which I have seen, reports, tho I hardly believe it) was made Dean of Kilkenny in Ireland, and at length Bishop of Offory there, about the latter end of the year 1609. He yielded up his last breath on the 20. of Feb. in (h) sixteen hundred and twelve, and was buried near to the Bishops chair in the Church at Kilkenny. In the said See of Offory succeeded Jonas Wheeler another Oxford Student, whom I shall at large mention among these Bishops, under the year 1640.

HENRY USHER a Dublin man born, was educated in the University of Cambridge till he was Bach. of Arts, and some time after. In the beginning of the year 1572. he went to Oxon, settled in University coll. was incorporated in the same degree in the beginning of July the same year, and in few days after was licensed to proceed in Arts. Which degree being compleated by standing in the Aët, he made some continuance here, studied the Theological faculty, and laid a sure foundation therein by the helps of divers noted men, then in the University; among whom Dr. Humphrey and Dr. Holland were two. Afterwards he retired to his native Country, became

To which See being consecrated in Aug. 1595. fate there till the time of his death in great honour and repute, among all Protestants in that country. He died at Termon-Fechan on the (a) second day of April in sixteen hundred and thirteen, and was buried in S. Peters Church at Drogheda, commonly called Tredagh. In the See of Armagh succeeded Dr. Christopher Hampton, and him Dr. James Usher nephew to Henry before mention'd, whom I shall mention in the Fasti under the year 1626.

169. HENRY COTTON a younger Son of Sir Ric. Cotton Kt. one of the Privy Council to K. Ed. 6. was born in Hampshire, educated in the Free school at Guildford, became a commoner of Magd. coll. in 1566. or thereabouts, took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being compleated in 1571, holy Orders, and about that time a Wife; by whom afterwards he had (b) nineteen children. In 1586. he being then Prebendary of Winchester and well beneficed, supplicated to be admitted to the reading of the sentences, but whether he was really admitted, it appears not. On the 12. of Nov. 1598. he was (c) consecrated B. of Salisbury, and in the year following was actually created Doct. of div. by certain Doctors deputed for that purpose, who went to him, then (I think) at Salisbury. He was Godson to Q. Eliz. while she was Lady Eliz. who, as 'tis (d) reported, usually said that she had blest many of her Godsons, but now this Godson should blest her. He gave way to fate on the seventh day of May in sixteen hundred and fifteen, and was buried in the Cath. Church of Salisbury, near to the body of his sometimes Wife. In the said See succeeded Dr. Rob. Abbot, whom I have mention'd before among the writers, under the year 1617.

170. THOMAS BILSON sometimes fellow of New coll. was consecrated B. of Worcester in 1596. translated thence to Winchester in the year following, and concluded his last day in sixteen hundred and sixteen; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In Worcester succeeded Gervase Babington of Cambridge, of whom I have made mention in Will. Bradbridge among these Bishops, an. 1578. and in Winchester succeeded Dr. James Mountague sixth Son of Sir Edw. Mountague of Boughton in Northamptonshire Kt. who was translated thereunto from Bathe and Wells, 4. Octob. 1616. This worthy person died on the twentieth (e) day of July 1618. aged 50. and was buried 20. Aug. following, on the north side of the body of the Church dedicated to S. Peter and S. Paul within the City of Bathe. Over his grave was soon after a high Altar-monument erected between two Pillars of the said Church, with the proportion of the defunct painted to the life lying thereon, by his brethren Sir Edw. Mountague of Boughton, Sir Hen. Mountague Lord Chief Justice of the Kings Bench, Sir Charles Mountague his Executor, and Sir Sidney Mountague Master of the Requests, Kts. All which were lineally descended from the Earls of Salisbury. The said Dr. Jam. Mountague was educated in the University of Cambridge, was Master of Sydney coll. and there noted for his piety, vertue, and learning. Afterwards he was made Dean of the Royal Chappel, then B. of Bathe, afterwards of Winchester, (as 'tis before told you) and for his faithfulness, dexterity and prudence, in weighty affairs the King chose him to be one of his Privy Council. By his last Will and Testament, he made choice of the said antient Church for the place of his Sepulture: which, among many other monuments of piety, he repaired to his great charge. When K. James came first to the Crown he was made Dean of his Chappel, as before 'tis told you; which place he held not only when he was B. of Bathe and Wells, but of Winchester also: And being a great stickler in the quarrels at Cambridge, and a great Master in the Art of insinuation, had cunningly (as one (f) observes) fashioned K. James unto certain Calvinian opinions; to which the Kings education in the Kirk of Scotland had before inclined him: So that it was no very hard matter for him (having an Archb. also of his own persuasion) to make use of the Kings authority for recommending the nine Articles to the Church of Ireland, which he found would not be admitted in the Church of England.

HENRY ROWLANDS was born in the Parish of Mellteyrn in LLyn in Caernarvanshire, educated in the School at Penllech, was admitted a Student in the University about 1569. took the degrees in Arts as a member of New coll. that of Master being compleated in 1577. and soon after became Rector of Ladinton near Bister alias Burchester in Oxfordshire. In 1598. Nov. 12. he was consecrated (a) B. of Bangor, being then Bach. of div. and in 1605. he was actually created Doct. of that faculty. He bestowed on his Cath. Ch. four bells, instead of those that were sold away by Arthur Bulkley his predecessor, and in 1609. he (b) gave lands to Jesus coll. for the maintenance of two scholars or fellows there. At length after he had bestowed much money on pious uses, had spent all his time in celebrity, and had govern'd his church and diocese with great commendations, surrendered up his pious soul to God 30. (c) June, in sixteen hundred and sixteen, and was buried in the Choir of the Cath. Ch. at Bangor, among the sepulchres of the Bishops. By his last Will (d) and Test. he bequeathed moneys for the erection of a School at Mellteyrn, or Bottunog, where he was born and christned. In the See of Bangor succeeded Lewes Bayly, whom I have mention'd at large among the writers, under the year 1632.

HENRY ROBINSON was born within the City of Carlisle in Cumberland, became a poor serving child of Queens coll. about the year 1568. afterwards Tabarder, and at length Fellow, being then esteemed an excellent Disputant and Preacher. In 1581. he was unanimously elected Provost of his college: which office he enjoying about 18. years, restored it in that time, and made it flourish, after it had continued many years but in a mean condition, occasion'd by the negligence of former Governours. In 1590. he proceeded in div. and in 98. being nominated and elected to the See of Carlisle, was consecrated thereunto by John B. of Lond. Joh. B. of Roch. and Anthony B. of Chich. on the 23. of July in the same year. He was a person of great gravity and temperance, and very mild in his speech, yet, as one (e) observeth, not of so strong a constitution of body as his countenance did promise. He paid his last debt to nature on the 13. of the Cal. of July in sixteen hundred and sixteen, aged 63. years or more, and was buried on the north side of the high Altar in the Cath. Ch. of Carlisle. Soon after was a brasplate set up on the wall over his grave, by the care and charge of Bernard Robinson his brother and heir, with an inscription and verses thereon, running almost word for word, or at least in sense, with that inscription on a bras plate also, fastned to the south wall near to the Altar in Qu. coll. chappel in Oxon, a copy of which you may see in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 124. a. b. In which book p. 116. b. you may also see something of his benefaction to the said coll. In the See of Carlisle succeeded one Dr. Rob. Snoden or Snowden of Cambridge, (Prebendary of Southwell) third Son of Ralph Snoden of Mansfield Woodhouse in Nottinghamshire; the temporalities of which See were given to (f) him 20. Dec. 1616. He died at London while the Parliament was sitting in the latter end of May 1621. leaving behind him a Son named Rutland Snoden of Horncastle in Lincolnshire, (who was afterwards a Justice of the Peace) begotten on the body of his Wife Abigail, daugh. of Rob. Orme of Elston in Nottinghamshire. After him followed in the said See of Carlisle Ric. Milbourne B. of S. David, descended from those of his name in Pembrokeshire, but born in London, (his mother being occasionally there at the delivery of him,) educated in Grammar learning in Wykeham's school near Winchester, and from thence was sent to Qu. coll. in Camb. where he continued several years. Afterwards he became Minister of Sevenoke in Kent, Chapl. to P. Hen. Chantor of S. Davids cath. ch. and Dean of Rocheester, as I shall elsewhere tell you. At length he being made B. of S. David, was, after he had fate there about 6. years, translated to Carlisle, where he continued till 1624. In which year dying, he left monies, as 'tis said, for the endowing of a School, and monies for the building of an Hospital. He hath a Sermon in print concerning the imposition of hands, preached, while he was Minister of Sevenoke, at the Archb. Metropolitcal Visitation, 7. Sept. 1607. on 1. Tim. 5. 22. printed in oct. To him succeeded in the said See of Carlisle Rich. Senhouse Dean of Glocester, who was first admitted a Student in Trin. coll. in Camb. and afterwards was removed to that of S. Johns, of which he was made Fellow, and continuing there many years, took the degree of D. of div. as a Member thereof, about 1622. He was first chaplain, as 'tis said, in the Earl of Bedfords family, afterwards chaplain to Pr. Charles, and at length to K. Jam. 1. who advanced him to a Deanery and afterwards to the said See of Carlisle, for his transcendent parts and admirable gifts in Preaching. He hath extant Four Sermons preached at Court, and left behind him at his death Lectures on the first and second Psalms; which are not, as I conceive, made yet publick.

173. HENRY PARRY, or ap Harry, sometimes Fellow of Corp. Ch. coll. was consecrated B. of Gloucester 12. Jul. 1607. translated thence to Worcester in the latter end of Sept. 1610. the temporalities of which See were (u) restored to him 23. Oct. the same year. He yielded to nature in sixteen hundred and sixteen; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. He was succeeded in Gloucester by Dr. Giles Tomson, and in Worcester by Dr. Joh. Thornborough. Of the first I have made mention already among the Bishops, and of the other I shall speak in the second volume of this work, under the year 1641.

174. WILLIAM JAMES, sometimes a Student of Ch. Ch. became Bishop of Durham in 1606. and died in sixteen hundred and seventeen; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. After his death Rich. Neile Bishop of Lincoln was translated to Durham, and thence to Winchester, as I shall elsewhere tell you.

175. WILLIAM LYON, a Cheshire man born, was partly educated in this University, but whether in Oriel or S. Johns coll. where several of his surname and time have studied, I cannot tell. Afterwards he went into Ireland, became Vicar of Naas and Chaplain to Arthur Lord Grey of Wilton L. Lieutenant of that Country, who promoting him to the Episcopal See of Ross, was consecrated thereunto (*) in the year 1582. and the year following was constituted commendatory of Cork and Cloyne by the favour of Qu. Eliz. He bestowed a thousand pound in building the Bishops house at Cork, and other monies in repairing the Bishops house at Ross, which three years after was burnt by the Rebel O'Donow. This W. Lyon died in a good old age on the 4. Oct. in sixteen hundred and seventeen, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Cork, leaving then behind him a Son of both his names, who in the 17 year of his age, 1610. became a Com. or else Gent. Com. of S. Johns coll. in this Univ. In the said Sees of Ross, Cork, and Cloyne, succeeded Dr. Joh. Boyle, whom I shall anon mention.

176. ROBERT ABBOT, Master of Balliol college, was consecrated B. of Salisbury on the third of Decemb. 1615. to the great joy of all Scholars, especially such who knew the learning and piety of the man. He concluded his last day in the latter end of sixteen hundred and seventeen; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Salisbury succeeded Dr. Martin Fotherby Son of Maurice Fotherby, of the ancient and gentle Family of his name living at Grimsby in Lincolnshire; which Martin having been bred Fellow of Trin. coll. in Cambridge, was, after he had been Prebendary of Canterbury 22 years, consecrated at Lambeth on the 18. Apr. 1618. He surrendered up his last breath on the eleventh day of March, an. 1619. and was buried in Allsaints Church in Lombardstreet within the City of London. Soon after was a very fair monument erected over his grave, with a large inscription thereon, but destroyed by the great Fire that hapned in London in the beginning of Sept. 1666. He hath extant at least 4 Sermons; besides his Atheomastix, which being put into the press before his death, was not published till 1622. fol. After him succeeded in the said See Dr. Robert Tounson, or Tonson, Dean of Westminster, sometimes Fellow of Queens coll. in Cambridge, who was consecrated thereunto on the 9. July 1620. See more in the Fasti, among the incorporations under the year 1599.

177. JOHN BOYLE, a Kentish man born, and brother to Rich. Boyle the first Earl of Cork in Ireland, received some education with us, but whether D. of div. of this Univ. as one (a) reports, it appears not in the publick Registers. He was consecrated B. of Cork before-mentioned in 1618. at which time liberty was allowed him to keep the See of Ross in Commendam. He died in sixteen hundred and twenty, 1620, and was buried at Troughall, of which place his brother before-mentioned was Baron. In the said See of Cork and Ross succeeded Rich. Boyle Dean of Waterford, and Archd. of Limerick, brother to Michael Boyle B. of Waterford and Lismore, which Richard kept the See also of Cloyne in Commendam with the two former.

JOHN KING, sometimes a Student of Ch. Ch. afterwards Dean of that house, was consecrated Bishop of London in 1611. and died in sixteen hundred twenty and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. To him succeeded Dr. George Mountaigne Bishop Almoner, sometimes Dean of Westminster, who was translated from Lincoln to London 20. July 1621.

ROWLAND SEARCHFIELD, a Londoner 179. born, was educated in Grammar learning in Merchant-Taylors School, admitted Scholar of S. Johns coll. in 1582. aged 17 years, or thereabouts: Afterwards he was made Fellow of that house, Proctor of the University, Doct. of div. and successively Vicar of Emley in Northamptonshire, Rector of Bowthorp in Gloucestershire, Vicar of Cherbury in, and Justice of the Peace of, Oxfordshire. He was consecrated B. of Bristol 9. May 1619. upon the translation of Dr. Nich. Felton to Ely; which was made 14. March 1618. The said Dr. Searchfield died on the eleventh of Oct. in sixteen hundred twenty and two, and was buried near to the Communion Table at the upper end of the Choir of the Cath. Ch. of Bristol, leaving then one Son or more behind him, begotten on the body of his Wife, Mrs. Anne Huchenson of Rewley near Oxon. Over his grave was a stone soon after laid, with an epitaph thereon, but removed thence by Dr. Rich. Thompson Dean of that Church when he raised the Communion Table. In the said See of Bristol succeeded Dr. Rob. Wright, tho one Kevercher (as he is called) rug'd hard for it.

RICHARD PARRY, Son and Heir of Joh. Parry, was born at Ruthyn in Denbighshire, educated in Westminster School under Camden for some time, elected Student of Ch. Ch. in 1579. aged 19 years, took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and became School-master, as 'tis said, of Ruthyn before-mentioned. In 1598. he proceeded D. of div. and whether he was before that time Dean of Bangor, I cannot tell. Sure it is, that that dignity was enjoyed by one Rowland Thomas, who died in 1588. Afterwards when K. Jam. 1. who had an especial respect for his learning, came to the English Crown, he soon after promoted him to the See of S. Asaph. To which being consecrated (b) on the 30. Dec. 1604. he received (c) the temporalities belonging thereunto on the 5. of Jan. following. He ended his days at Diefert commonly called Dyffart in Flintshire on the 26. of Sept. in sixteen hundred twenty and three, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of S. Asaph. The year before he died he left a pension of 6 l. per an. to Jesus coll. for the maintenance of a poor Scholar born in the Town of Ruthyn, or in the diocese of S. Asaph, to be paid by his Son Richard and his Heirs for ever. See more in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 317. a. He assisted Dr. Will. Morgan B. of Landaff in the translating the Bible into Welsh, and after his death had a Lat. Sermon ad clerum, on Rev. 3. ver. 4. printed under his name, 1628. in oct.

WILLIAM BISHOP, sometimes a Member of Gloucester hall, as it seems, became Bishop of Chalcedon (titular only) about 1622. and died in the beginning of the year sixteen hundred twenty and four; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See he was succeeded by Dr. Richard Smith another Oxford man by education, but the year when I cannot tell. Of this Rich. Smith I shall make large mention elsewhere.

MILES SMITH, sometimes a Member of Brasnise coll. afterwards Petty-Canon of Ch. Ch. was consecrated B. of Gloucester in 1612. and died in sixteen hundred twenty and four; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Gloucester succeeded Godfrey Goodman, born at Ruthyn in Denbighshire in the first Gregorian year, an. Dom. 1581. Feb. 28. between the hours of one and two in the morning, being the Son of Godfr. Goodman Gent. (Nephew to Dr. Gabr. Goodman) by Jane Cruxton his Wife, made Chorister, and after Scholar, of Westminster under Camden, an. 1592. Scholar of Trin. coll. in Cambridge in 1600. Parson of Stapleford-Abbats in Essex, 1607. Canon of Windsore, 1617. installed Dean of Rochester in the place of Dr. Rob. Soot deceased, 6. Jan. 1620. and at length was made B. of Glouc. in 1625. with leave to hold his Canonry of Windsore, and the Rectory of West-Hildesley in Berks. in Commendam: About which time maintaining several heterodox opinions in his Sermons at Court, he was check'd for so doing in 1626. In 1640. he dissented from the Canons, for which, after three admonitions pronounced by Archb. Laud in little more than half an hour, to subscribe, he was to his great honour (as 'twas esteemed by some,) imprison'd, and thereupon accounted a Papist. In certain writings which sometimes belonged to Archbishop Laud I find these matters relating to Goodman. — The Synod was dissolved 29. May 1640. wherein were 17 Canons subscribed by the Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, and Doctors, to the number of 100. or 120. — The last business insisted on was of the deprivation of Dr. Goodman Bishop of Gloucester for refusing to subscribe to the said Canons, which had been done by all the Bishops except him of Gloc. and all the lower house of Convocation. — With much perswasions he was drawn to subscribe, notwithstanding after his subscribing, for his obstinate refusal as first, and the scandal of it, he was by both houses with a general consent suspended ab officio & beneficio, till he had given the King and Church satisfaction. The Archbishop, upon his refusal to subscribe, told him, that he must be either a Papist, or Socinian, or Puritan; which he utterly denied, and said it was a matter of another nature, &c. Afterwards the Archbishop made an exhortation to the Clergy, wherein he exhorted them to carry themselves well both in life and doctrine: And professed that all his sufferings were for supporting them; and this he spake with a great deal of passion. He protested before God that the King was far from Popery, that there was no man in England more ready to be a Martyr for Religion than his Majesty. Bishop Goodman who was first committed to a Pursevant, and afterwards to the Gate-house, wrote a letter to Archb. Laud and told him he dissented from the Canons, and entered an Act in the 19. Session to that purpose, &c. In 1643. he the said Goodman was plunder'd, spoyl'd, rob'd, and utterly undone. His losses were so extraordinary and excessive great, that he was ashamed to confess them, lest they might seem incredible, and lest others might condemn him of folly and improvidence. About that time he lived obscurely in S. Margarets Parish within the City of Westminster in the house of one Mrs. Sibilla Eglington, making frequent use of the Cottonian Library, and the company of certain R. Priests; whose perswasion he having taken up for several years before, died at length in their belief (Fr. & S. Clara his old acquaintance being then with him) on the nineteenth day of Jan. 1655. whereupon his body was buried near to the Font in S. Margarets Church; leaving then behind him, the character of a harmless man, that he was hurtful to none but himself, that he was pitiful to the poor, and hospitable to his neighbours. In his last (d) Will and Testament dated 17. Jan. and proved 16. Feb. 1655. I find these matters. — I do profess that as I have lived, so I die most constant in all the Articles of our Christian Faith, and in all the doctrine of Gods holy Catholick and Apostolick Church, whereof I do acknowledge the Church of Rome to be the Mother Church. And I do verily believe that no other Church hath any salvation in it, but only so far as it concurs with the Faith of the Church of Rome. — My body to be buried in S. Marg. Ch. in Westminster near to the Font, in the meanest manner according to the deserts of my Sins. — Item, I give 20 s. for the painting, or otherwise, of the said Font. — It. I give my tenement in Yale, and the two tenements in Caernarvanshire, Cordmaur, and Tudne to the Town of Ruthyn in Denbighshire where I was born, &c. The rent of the tenement in Yale he bequeathed to several uses, and among the rest was 20 l. to be given to some Gentleman who should desire to travel, and that he, together with good security, should undertake within the compass of two years to live two months in Germany, two months in Italy, two months in France, and two months in Spain, and that his own kindred be chosen before others for that purpose, &c. The books that he designed for Chelsey college, he gave to Trin. coll. in Cambridge; but with this condition, that if Chelsey coll. be ever restored, the books should be restored thereunto. He gave 16 l. to outed and sequestred Ministers of the Loyal Party, and a 100 l. to poor distressed Churchmen (Rom. Catholicks) according to the discretion of his Executors Gabriel Goodman and Mrs. Sib. Eglington. He desired also that his collection of notes be perused by some Scholar, and if any thing should be found worthy of printing, that they be published, &c. It must be now known that in hate and detestation of Socinianism, he did, in his younger years, examine all the mysteries in Religion, and all the miracles in Scripture, how far they agreed with natural reason, and wherein they transcended, and thereupon did publish a book intit. The fall of man, or the corruption of nature, proved by natural reason. Lond. 1616. and 1624. qu. And then he undertook to proceed in the rest of the Mysteries. Together with these he drew up an History from the beginning of the World to his time, and so he ended with the Church of England, as sealed by Laws, little regarding the opinion of particular men, but Statutes, Acts of State, Proclamations, Injunctions, &c. In which work he was much beholding to Sir Tho. Cottons Library. But these with the rest of his goods were lost, and whether they were ever recovered before his death, I know not. He hath also written, Arguments or animadversions and digressions on a book intit. An apology, or declaration of the power and providence of God in the government of the World, &c. written by Dr. George Hakewill. Which arguments and digressions are with Hakewills answers involved in the sixth book of the said Apology, printed at Oxon, the third time, 1635. fol. See more in G. Hakewill among the writers, an. 1649. Bishop Goodman also wrote, The Court of K. James by Sir A. W. reviewed. 'Tis a MS. in a thin fol. in Bodl. Library, and hath this beginning, I cannot say that I was an eye and ear-witness, but truly I have been an observer of the times, and what I shall relate of my own knowledge, God knows is most true. My conjecturals I conceive, &c. The conclusion which is imperfect is this—Yet notwithstanding I have given him (Sir A. W.) the name of a Knight, because he hath pleased so to stile himself, and that I might not offend him. This manuscript book was made in answer to a published book intit. The court and character of King James. Lond. 1650. oct. written and taken by Sir A. W. Which book being accounted a most notorious Libel, especially by the Loyalists and Court-party, was also answered in print by Anonymous, intit. Anticui Coquinaria: or a vindication in answer to a Pamphlet intituled, The Court and Character of K. James, &c. Lond. 1650. The author of the said Court and Character was one Sir Anth. Weldon of Kenil, whose Parent took rise from Queen Elizabeths Kitchen, and left it a legacy for preferment of his Issue. Sir Anthony went the same way, and by grace of the Court got up to the Green-cloth; in which place attending K. James into Scotland he practiced there to libel that Nation. Which, at his return home, was found wrapt up in a Record of that Board; and by the hand being known to be his, he was deservedly removed from his place, as unworthy to eat his bread, whose birth-right he had so vilely defamed. Yet by favour of the King, with a piece of money in his purse, and a pension to boot, to preserve him loyal during his life, tho as a bad creditor, he took (e) this course to repay him to the purpose. In his life-time he discovered part of this piece to his Fellow-courtier, who earnestly dissuaded him not to publish so defective and false a scandal; which, as it seems, in Conscience he so declined. I have also been credibly informed that Sir A. Weldon did at the beginning of the Long Parliament communicate the MS. of into the Lady Elizabeth Sedley, (Mother to Sir Will. and Sir Charles;) accounted a very sober and prudent Woman; who, after perusal, did lay the vileness of it so much to Sir Anthony's door, that he was resolved never to make it publick: Which perhaps is the reason why a certain author (f) should say, that with some regret of what he had maliciously written, did intend it for the fire and died repentant; tho since stolen to the Press out of a Ladies closet: And if this be true, our exceptions may willingly fall upon the practice of the publisher of the said libel, who by his additions may abuse us with a false story, which he discovers to the Reader in five remarkable (g) passages, and therefore in some manner gives us occasion to spare our censure on Sir Anthony, who was dead some time before the said libel was published. The second edition of it printed at Lond. in oct. an. 1651. is dedicated to the said noble Lady Elizabeth Sedley, and hath added to it, (1) The Court of K. Charles continued, unto the beginning of these unhappy times, &c. (2) Observations (instead of a character) upon this King, from his Childhood. (3) Certain Observations before Elizabeths death. But these are not animadverted upon by Aulicus Coq. or B. Goodman, because they came out after they had written their respective answers. The said Bishop Goodman hath also written The two mysteries of Christian religion, the ineffable Trinity and wonderful incarnation explicated, &c. Lond. 1653. qu. Dedicated by one Epist. to Oliver Cromwell L. General, and by another to the Master, Fellows, Scholars and Students of Trin. coll. in Cambridge. Also An Account of his sufferings; which is only a little pamphlet, printed 1650.

183. BERNARD ADAMS was born in Middlesex in the diocese of London, admitted Scholar of Trinity coll. in 1583. aged 17. years; fellow five years after, and when Master of Arts he went into Ireland; where by the favour of the Lord Lieutenant he was consecrated Bishop of Limerick in Apr. 1604. In the year 1606. he, by a dispensation kept the See of Kilfenore with it, to the year 1617. at which time he voluntarily resign'd it. He bestowed much money in repairing the Church of Limerick, and in the adorning it with Organs and several Ornaments, as also in repairing the house belonging to his See, besides other moneys for pious uses. He died (a) on the 22. of March in sixteen hundred twenty and five, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Limerick, where was a monument soon after erected to his memory. In the said See succeeded Francis Gough commonly called Goffe, whom I shall anon at large mention.

184. ARTHUR LAKE sometimes Fellow of New coll. was consecrated B. of Bathe and Wells, in the month of Dec. 1616. and concluded his last day in sixteen hundred twenty and six; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See succeeded Dr. Will. Laud, of whom I shall make mention at large among the writers in the second volume of this work.

185. TOBIE MATHEW Son of John Mathew, a native of Roos in Herefordshire, by his Wife Elleanor Croston of Ludlow, was born in the city of Bristol, in that part of it which is in Somersetshire, educated in Grammar learning in the City of Wells, became a Student in this University in the beginning of the year 1559. aged 13. years, but in what house, unless in Univ. coll. (the antient members of which have claim'd him as theirs) I know not. Sure it is, that being a Student of Ch. Ch. soon after his first coming, he did, as a member of that house, take the degree of Bach. of Arts in 1563. and three years after, that of master, and holy orders; at which time he was much respected for his great learning, eloquence, sweet conversation, friendly disposition, and for the sharpness of his wit. In 1569. he was unanimously elected the publick Orator of the University, which office he executed with great applause, and with no little honour to the University. In 1570. he was made Canon of Ch. Ch. and on the 28. Nov. the same year, he was admitted Archdeacon of Bathe. In 1572. May 15. he became Prebendary of Teynton Regis with Yalmeton in the Church of Salisbury, and in July the same year, he was elected President of S. Johns coll. At which time being much famed for his admirable way of Preaching, he was made one of the Queens chaplains in Ordinary, and soon after proceeding in Divinity, was made Dean of Ch. Ch. 1576. So that then his name sounding high among scholars, he deservedly obtain'd the name of Theologus præstantissimus, for so he is stiled by the learned Camden, who adds (b) that in him doctrina cum pietate, & ars cum natura certant. Edm. Campian the Jesuit in his book of Ten Reasons, (which the R. Catholicks count an Epitomy of all their doctrine) labouring to prove that the Fathers were all Papists, and to give the uttermost he could to his assertion faith that Thoby Mathew confest to him so much—Parentavimus faith he, &c. We did once in a familiar sort sound Th. Mathews opinion, he that now domineers in your Pulpits, whom for his good learning and seeds of vertue, we esteemed, &c. Which character coming from a Jesuits pen, makes it the truer because he was in some manner his Adversary. In 1579. he did undergo the office of Vicechancellour of this University, and in 1583. he was not only made Chantor of the Church of Salisbury on the resignation of George Carew, in the month of June, but also Dean of Durham, void by the decease of Dr. Tho. Wilson: In which dignity being installed 31. Aug. he gave up his Chantorship in Febr. following, wherein he was succeeded by Dr. Will. Zouch, and in the beginning of the year following his Deanery of Ch. Ch. In 1595. he was to the great joy of many, especially those of the Clergy, made Bishop of Durham, upon the translation of Dr. Math. Hutton to York; (which was made 24. of March 1594.) to which See being consecrated soon after, sate there till August an. 1606. and then being translated on the 18. of the said month, and installed on the 11. of Sept. following in the person of his Proctor, sate there in great honour and repute till the time of his death. He gave way to fate in a good old age, on the 29. of March in sixteen hundred twenty and eight, and was buried in a chappel behind or beyond the east end of the choir of the Cath. Ch. of York. Soon after was a noble monument of black and white marble set up under the great east window of that chappel, with his Effigies in his Archiepiscopal robes, and an inscription thereon: A copy of which containing his just character, you may see in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 255. b. 256. a. He hath extant a latin Sermon. intit. Concio Apologetica contra Edm. Campianum, in Deut 32. 7. Oxon. 1638. oct. As also a letter to K. Jam. 1. which is printed in the Cabala. I have been informed that he had several things lying by him worthy of the Press, but what became of them after his death, I know not, nor any thing to the contrary but that they came into the hands of his Son Sir Tobie. In the said See of York succeeded Dr. George Mountaigne of Queens coll. in Cambridge, sometimes a Lecturer in Gresham coll. afterwards Master of the Savoy, Dean of Westminster in the place of Dr. Neile promoted to the See of Lichf. and Cov. (in which dignity he was install'd in Dec. 1610.) Bishop of Lincolne, (to which he was consecrated 14. Dec. 1617.) and then of London, being translated to that place 20. July 1621. In the latter end of 1627. he was translated to Durham; whence, after he had sate three months, he was translated to York, in the place of Mathew; (as I have before told you) to which See being elected 16. June, was inthronized therein 24. Oct. 1628. But he expiring soon after in the year of his age 59. six months, and two days, was buried in the chancel belonging to the Church of Cawood in Yorksh. (in which parish he was born) and had soon after a comely monument set up to his memory, at the charge of Isaac his brother (Curator of his last Will and Test.) in the north wall of the said chancel, containing his bust in his lawn sleeves, with a large inscription under it: All which, especially the verses, were made by Hugh Holland the Poet. After him succeeded in the said See Dr. Sam. Harsnet Bishop of Norwich, sometimes Master of Pembr. hall in Cambridge, who being elected thereunto on the 26. of Novemb. 1628, was inthronized 23. April following. He died on the 12. of March 1630 (being then Privy Counsellour to his Majesty) at Moreton in Marsh in Glocestershire, in his return from Bathe to his Mannour of Southwell in Nottinghamshire. Whereupon his body was carried to Chigwell in Essex, and was buried in the Chancel of the Parish Church there. Over his Grave was soon after a Monument of black Marble set up, with the Effigies of the Defunct engraven on a brass plate fastned thereunto. Among the several books that this Doctor Harsnet hath published are (1) A discovery of the fraudulent practices of John Darrel Minister; written in answer to a book intit. A true narration of the strange and grievous vexation by the devil of Seven persons in Lancashire and Will Sommers of Nottingham: printed 1600. qu. Whereupon Darrell came out with a reply intit. A detection of that sinful, shameful, lying, and ridiculous discourse, intit. A discovery &c. printed 1600. qu. (2) A Declaration of egregious Popish impostures, to withdraw the hearts of her Majesties Subjects from their allegiance, &c. practised by Edmunds alias Weston a Jesuit, &c. Lond. 1603 qu. besides one, or more Sermons, and four or more MSS. fit for the Press, of which one is, De Necessitate Baptismi, &c. This Learned and judicious Prelate, was born, as 'tis said, in the Parish of St. Botolph in the antient borough of Colchester in Essex, educated in Pembr. hall, where he was first Scholar and afterwards Fellow. When he was some years standing Master, he was chosen Proctor; which office he went through with great credit to himself. Afterwards he became Vicar of Chigwell in Essex, Archdeacon of Colchester, Chaplain to Archb. Bancroft, Prebendary of St. Pauls Cathedral, Master of Pembr. hall in, and twice Vicechancellour of, the University of Cambridge: From whence he had an easie Progress to the see of Chichester, and afterwards to Norwich. After his death Dr. Rich. Neile Bishop of Winchester being elected to the See of York 28. Feb. 1631. was translated thereunto, and on the 16. of Feb. 1632. was inthronized in the person of Dr. Phineas Hodson Chanc. of the Church of York

186. GEORGE CARLETON, sometimes Fellow of Merton coll. was consecrated Bishop of Landaff on the 12. July, an. 1618. translated thence to Chichester in Sept. 1619. and departed this life in the month of May in sixteen hundred twenty and eight, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Chichester succeeded Dr. Rich. Mountague, who, after election and confirmation thereunto, was consecrated in the Archbishops chappel at Croyden in Surrey 24. Aug. 1628. This learned person who was Son of Laurence Mountague Minister of Dorney in Bucks. And he the Son of Rob. Mountague of Boudney in the Parish of Burnham in the said County, was born at Dorney, educated in Grammar learning in Eaton School, elected a Member of Kings coll. in Cambridge 1594. took the degrees in Arts, became Parson of Wotton-Courtney in Somersetshire, Prebendary of Wells, Rector of Stanford-Rivers in Essex, Chaplain to K. Jam. 1. Archdeacon and Dean of Hereford; which last dignity he changed with Ol. Lloyd LL. D. for a Prebendship of Windfore, in 1617. and being about that time made Fellow of Eaton coll. which he kept with Windfore by a dispensation, did learnedly read for 8 years together the Theological Lecture in the chappel at Windfore. Afterwards he was made Rector of Petworth in Sussex, bestowed much money in the repairing of the Parsonage house there, as he did afterwards on the Bishops house at Aldingbourne. At length his Majesty being minded to translate him to Norwich was elected thereunto by the Dean and Chapter 4. of May 1638. where sitting to the time of his death (which hapned in Apr. 1641. leaving then behind him a Son named Richard) was buried in the Choire of the Cath. Ch. belonging to that place, where, to this day, is this only written on his grave, Depositum Montacutii Episcopi. He came to Norwich with the evil effects of a quartan Ague, which he had had about an year before, and which accompanied him to his grave, yet he studied and wrote very much, had an excellent Library of books, and heaps of papers fairly written with his own hand concerning the Ecclesiastical History: He was a person exceedingly well vers'd in all the learning of Greeks and Romans, and as well studied in the Fathers, Councils, and all other ancient monuments of the Christian World, as any Man be-fides in the whole Nation. K. Jam. 1. knew the Man well, and was exceedingly pleased with his performance against the History of Tithes, wherein he had beaten the (then thought) matchless Selden at his own weapon, and shew'd himself the greatest Philosopher of the two. Upon which ground his Majesty looked upon him as the fittest person, and therefore commanded him to view and purge the Church History, which was then taken and judged by many to be corrupted and depraved with various figments by certain writers of the R. Cath. party, especially by Baro-nius; which he accordingly did with great industry and admirable judgment. What other things he wrote you may mostly see in the Bodleian or Oxford catalogue: And what he suffered for his New Gag for the old Gospel, or his Answer to the late Gagger of Protestants, occasioned by the Puritan, and also for his Apello Casarem, you may see at large in Dr. Heylyn's History of the life and death of Will. Laud Archb. of Canterbury, under the years 1624. 25. &c. He also set forth Nazianzen's invective orations against Julian, in Greek, and was employed by Sir Hen. Savile (who countenanced him much) in correcting most part of Chrysostom in Greek before it went to the Press.

187. WILLIAM GIFFORD, the Ornament of the English Catholicks of his time, was sometimes a Member of Lincoln coll. but took no degree in this University. Afterwards retiring beyond the Seas, he became thro various preferments Archbishop of Rheims, in 1622. He paid his last debt to nature in sixteen hundred twenty and nine, under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said Archbishoprick succeeded Henry de Loraine Son of Charles Duke of Guise, as I have before told you.

188. JOHN HANMER, a Shropshire man born, but descended from those of his name living at Hanmer in Flintshire, was admitted Fellow of Allsouls coll. from that of Oriel, in 1596. aged 20. and when five years standing Mast. of Arts, was unanimously elected one of the Proctors of the University, in 1605. Afterwards he became Rector of Bingham in Nottinghamshire, (in which Church he was succeeded by Dr. Math. Wren in May 1624.) and Prebendary of Worcester in the place of Dr. Joh. Langworth sometimes of New coll. about the latter end of 1614. and shortly after was licensed to proceed in Divinity, he being then Chapl. in Ord. to K. Jam. 1. At length upon the death of Dr. Rich. Parry he being nominated Bishop of St. Asaph, was elected thereunto about the 20. of January in 1623. consecrated 15. of Feb. following, and on the 23. of the said month had the temporalities of that See given (a) to him, with liberty then allowed to keep his Prebendship in Commendam with it. He died at Pentrepant or Pentrepant near to Oswestrey in Shropshire, 23. July in sixteen hundred twenty and nine, 1629. and was buried the next day in the Church at Sillatin or Selattyn: To the poor of which place, as also of Oswestrey and S. Asaph, he gave to each five pounds. In his Prebendship succeeded Giles Thornborough M. of A. (afterwards D. D.) Nephew to Dr. John Thornborough B. of Worcester, who kept it to the time of his death 1663, and in the See of S. Asaph succeeded Joh. Owen D. D. of Cambridge and Arch-deacon of S. Asaph, who was consecrated thereunto 20. of Sept. 1629. He died at Perthkinesy 15. Oct. 1651. and was buried on the 21. of the said month in the Cath. Church of S. Asaph under the Bishops Throne. This Dr. Owen who was the Ministers Son of Burton-Latimers in Northamptonshire, and born (b) there, as also bred Fellow in Jesus coll. in Cambridge, hath written Herod and Pilate reconciled: Or, the concord of Papists, Anabaptists, and Sectaries, against Scripture, Fathers, Councils, and other Orthodox Writers, for the coercion, deposition, and killing of Kings.—Published 1663. and by the author dedicated to the Loyal Subjects of Great Britain. What other things he hath written and published, I cannot tell, nor any thing else of him, only that he was a great Loyalist, a true Son of the Church of England, and had been much respected by Laud Arch. of Canterbury, who obtained for him from his most gracious King the said Bishoprick of S. Asaph; which lying void after his death till the Restauration of K. Ch. 2. Dr. George Griffith was consecrated thereunto.

JOHN BUCKRIDGE, sometimes Fellow, afterwards President of, S. Johns college, became B. of Rochester in 1611. and from thence was translated to Ely in 1627. He was conducted to the habitation prepared for old age in sixteen hundred thirty and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Rochester succeeded Dr. Walt. Curle, and in Ely Dr. Francis White, both Cambridge men by education.

JOHN HOWSON, sometimes Student and Canon of Ch. Ch. was consecrated B. of Oxford in the month of May 1618. was translated thence to Durham in 1628. and departed this mortal life towards the latter end of sixteen hundred thirty and one; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Durham succeeded Dr. Thom. Morton B. of Lichfield and Coventry; the temporalities of which, he (*) received from the King 12. Jul. 1632. and dying in the house of Sir Hen. Yelverton of Easton-Manduit in Northamptonshire, on the morrow after S. Matthews day, in 1659. aged 95 years, was succeeded in the year following by Dr. Joh. Cofin of Cambridge.

LEWES BAYLY, sometimes a Member of Exeter coll. was consecrated Bishop of Bangor in 1616. and departed this mortal life in the beginning of the year sixteen hundred thirty and two; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said See of Bangor succeeded a Native of Segroet near Denbigh a certain learned Doctor of div. named David Dolben of S. Johns coll. in Cambridge, a younger Son of Robert Wynn Dolben of Denbigh before-mentioned in Denbighshire: who dying in Bangor-house situated in Shoe-lane near S. Andrews Church in Holbourn in the Suburb of London, on the 27. of Nov. 1633. was buried in the Church at Hackney, which he kept in Commendam with his Bishoprick. He was succeeded in the See of Bangor by Edm. Griffith. of whom I shall speak by and by.

JOHN RIDER, sometimes a Student in Jesus coll. was consecrated Bishop of Killaloe in Ireland on the 12. of Jan. 1612. and concluded his last in a good old age, in sixteen hundred thirty and two; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the said

Bishoprick succeeded one Lewis Jones a Welshman, sometimes a Student in this University, whom I shall mention at large among the Bishops in the second vol. of this work.

193. FRANCIS GODWIN sometimes a Student of Christ Church, was consecrated Bishop of Landaff in 1601, thence translated to Hereford in 1617, and died in the beginning of the year sixteen hundred thirty and three; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. To the said See, (after Goodman of Gloucester had endeavoured to obtain) was elected Dr. Will. Juxon of Oxon, but before he was consecrated, he was translated to London; whereupon Dr. Augustin Lindell Bishop of Peterborough was translated thereunto in (Dec.) 1633. After him followed Mathew Wren D. of D. of Cambridge; the temporalities of which See (Hereford) were given (a) to him 24 March 10. Car. 1. Dom. 1633. But he being soon after translated to Norwich, Theophilus Field of Pembroke hall in Cambridge (born in the parish of S. Giles Cripplegate Lond.) succeeded: The temporalities also of which were restored (b) to him, 23. Jan. 1635. This Dr. Field dying soon after, George Cook sometimes of Pembroke hall in Cambridge, brother to Sir Joh. Cook Secretary of State succeeded, and had the temporalities thereof given (c) to him 7. July 1636. He was the Son of Rich. Cook of Trusley in Derbyshire by Mary his wife, daughter and heir of Tho. Sacheverell of Kirby in Nottinghamshire, and he the Son of Will. Cook of the same place, by his wife the daughter of Ralph Fitzherbert of Tyllyngton in the said county of Derby. Which George Cook dying in 1646. (22. Car. 1.) the see of Hereford laid void till the restoration of K. Ch. 2 and then 'twas supplied by Dr. Nich. Monk of Oxon, of whom I shall make large mention in his proper place.

194. GEORGE ABBOT sometimes of Balliol college, afterwards Chaplain to Thomas Lord Buckhurst, and then to the Earl of Dunbar, with whom he was solemnly sent into Scotland, for an effecting of an Union in the Hierarchy, was consecrated Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry 3 Dec. 1609, translated to London about the latter end of January following, and in 1610 he was translated to Canterbury, on the death of Dr. Richard Bancroft. He departed this mortal life in sixteen hundred thirty and three; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. In the See of Canterbury succeeded Dr. William Laud, as I shall tell you at large when I come to the next Vol. of this work.

195. JOHN PHILIPPS, was a Welsh man born, as it seems, and having received his Academical education in Oxon, became afterwards Parson of Thorp Bassett, and Slingsby in Yorkshire; which last he obtained in the latter end of March 1591. About that time he being Chaplain to Henry Earl of Derby, became Archdeacon of Cleveland (on the resignation of Rich. Bird, Bach. of div.) in Apr. 1601, also Archdeacon of the Isle of Man, and at length, (about 1614.) Bishop of that place, but in whose room I cannot tell, for between the translation thence of Dr. George Lloyd to Chester 1604. some person, yet unknown to me, did succeed. In the Rectory of Slingsby succeeded Sam. Philipps M. A. in Jan. 1618. and in Cleveland Henry Thurcroft M. A. an. 1619. as I shall tell you in the Fasts, an. 1610. So that I presume those two places were kept in Commendam with the Bishoprick, by the said John Philipps, whom I take to be the same with Joh. Philipps who took the degree of M. of Arts as a Member of S. Maries hall, in the month of May 1584. Which degree he completed as a Member of Broad-gates, in an Act celebrated 10. of July the same year. The said Joh. Philipps Bishop of Man translated the Bible into the Manks language, that is, the language commonly spoken in the Isle of Man, assisted in the said work by Sir Hugh Cannal Minister of Kirk St. Michael in the said Isle. He concluded his last day about the year sixteen hundred thirty and three, and was succeeded in the said See of Man by William Forster a Divine of some note in his time, but whether he was ever of Brasnose coll. as some think he was, (wherein several of his surname and time have studied.) I cannot tell. One Will. Forster a Warwickshire man born, was entered a Student in S. Johns coll. 1601. and another of that house was a writer, as I have before told you among the writers under the year 1633. One Joh. Philipps wrote A summon to repentance. Lond. 1584. oct. but he is not to be taken to be the same with the former, and another Joh. Philipps wrote The way to Heaven, on Acts 2. 47.— Printed in qu. 1625. Which book, I having not yet seen, I cannot say to the contrary but that it may be published by Joh. Philipps the Bishop. 2u.

FRANCIS GOUGH, commonly called Goffe, the 196. fifth Son of Hugh Gough Rector of Allcannings in Wilt., by Fane his Wife, Daughter of one Clifford of Clifford-hall in Devonsh. was born in Wiltshire, entered a Butler in S. Edmunds hall in the latter end of 1611. aged 17 years, and afterwards was made one of the Clerks of New college; where continuing some years, returned to the said hall, and as a Member thereof took the degree of M. of Arts, in 1618. Soon after, he having a just opportunity of going into Ireland, became first Chancellour, then Bishop, of Limerick; to which See being consecrated (e) at Cashills 17. Sept. 1626. fate there till the time of his death: which hapning on the 29. of August in sixteen hundred thirty and four, was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Limerick, leaving then behind him his eldest brother named Hugh, who was Chanter of Limerick and Justice of Peace. In the See of Limerick succeeded George Webb, whom I shall mention in the next volume, under the year 1641.

WILLIAM PILSWORTH was born in Fleet. 197. street in the west suburb of London, elected and admitted Demie of Magd. coll. 29. Sept. 1578. aged 18 years on the day of the Nativity of our Saviour following, took one degree in Arts as a member of Magd. hall in Dec. 1581, left the University without any other degree, went into Ireland, became Prebendary of Monabannoc, and at length Bishop of Kildare: To which see being consecrated (d) at Balscon in the county of Meath, 11. Sept. 1604, fate there without any removal to the time of his death; which hapning at Naas on the 9. of May in sixteen hundred thirty and five, was buried in Dunfert in the county of Kildare. In the said See succeeded Robert Usher D. D. Son of Hen. Usher sometimes Archbishop of Armagh; who lived upon it till the Rebellion broke out in Ireland; an. 1641, and then retired into England for protection.

RICHARD CORBET sometimes Student, afterwards Dean of, Christ Church, was consecrated Bishop of Oxford in 1629. (tho in some respects unworthy of such an office) and translated thence to Norwich in the beginning of 1632. He died in the latter end of July in sixteen hundred thirty and five; under which year you may see more of him among the writers. After his death a Native of the Parish of S. Peters Cheap in London named Dr. Math. Wren B. of Hereford was translated to Norwich; the temporalities of which See were (e) restored to him 24. of Nov. 1635. being elected thereunto on the tenth day of the same month. Afterwards upon the death of Dr. Franc. White Bishop-Almoner, he was translated to Ely; the temporalities of which were restored to him (f) on the 5. of May 1638. where he fate to the time of his death. He (by the way I must tell you) was the Son of Franc. Wren Citizen of London, (a branch of the Wrens of Binchester in the Bishoprick of Durham.) and being an eminent Scholar in his youth, became first a Student in Pembroke hall in Cambridge, then Greek Scholar and Fellow of that house, and soon after Chaplain to Lancelot Andrews Bishop of Winchester. Afterwards he was made Master of Peter house, Vicechancellour of the said University, Chaplain to K. Charles 1. when he was Prince, (whom he attended after he had taken his journey to Spain) as also when he was King, Prebendary of Winchester, Dean of Windsor, (in which honourable Dignity he was installed 24. Jul. 1628.) sworn Registrary of the most noble Order of the Garter, 23. of Sept. following, and in 1633 became Clerk of the Closet, in the place of Dr. Will. Juxon. In 1634 he became Prebend of Westm. in the room of Dr. John Wilson, and near upon that time Bishop of Hereford. But continuing there not long, he was translated to Norwich, as I have before told you: And being made Dean of the Chappel Royal, upon Juxons advance to the Treasurers staff, an. 1636, he was translated to Ely in the beginning of 1638, as 'tis already said. In all which offices his deportment was with such gravity, exemplary piety, and Government with no less prudence, that upon the beginning of the unparalleled rebellion raised by the Presbyterians, commonly then called Puritans, who had an implacable hatred for him, for his pride, insolence, and high hand used towards them, as they frequently reported, he was by them miserably persecuted, and grievously oppressed by plunder of his goods, seizure of his estate, and by a strait and tedious imprisonment in the Tower of London, which he endured with great patience and magnanimity near 18 years. After his Majesties return he was set at liberty, was restored to his Bishoprick of Ely, and notwithstanding his former losses, performed several acts of Piety. Among which, was his building a new Chappel in Pembroke hall before mentioned; which being beautified with splendid and decorous Furniture, and amply endowed with an annual revenue, was, upon the Feast of S. Mathew, (21. Sept.) in 1665. solemnly consecrated and dedicated by himself in person, and by his Episcopal authority, to the honour of Almighty God. A noble and lasting Monument of the rare piety and munificence of that great and wise Prelate, and in every point accorded to his character; which was then so well known, that the sole nomination of the Founder was a sufficient account of the elegance and magnificence of the foundation. Before evening service, the exterior or outer Chappel, and the Cloyster leading to it, (a new Fabrick of Sir Robert Hitchams foundation) were by his Lordship also consecrated, for places of Sepulture to the use of the Society, together with a cell or vault at the east end of the chappel under the Altar, for a dormitory for his Lordship. He paid his last debt to nature in Ely House in Holbourn near London, on Wednesday 24 of Apr. 1667. aged 81 years and upwards. Whereupon his body being embalm'd, was conveyed to Cambridge, and deposited with great solemnity in a stone coffin in the vault before-mention'd. This worthy and learned Bishop hath written (1) Increpationes Bar. Jesu: five Polemica adersiones locorum aliquot S. Scripturae ab imposturis perversionem in catechesi Racoviana. Lond. 1660. qu. remitted into the ninth vol. of the Criticks. (2) The abandoning of the Scotch covenant. Lond. 1661. qu. (3) Epistola varia ad viros doctiss. Among whom are to be numbred Ger. Jo. Vossius: As also two or more Sermons; one of which is on Prov. 24. 21. printed 1627. and another on Psal. 44. 18. printed in 1662. both in qu. &c. He left behind him several Sons, who will be mention'd elsewhere.

199. MICHAEL BOYLE was a Londoner born, Son if I mistake not, of Michael Boyle of S. Mar. Magd. Parish in Milkstreet (who died in the latter end of 1596.) and nearly related to the Boyles of Kentish Town in Middlesex; was educated in Merchant Taylors School, became Scholar of S. Johns coll. in 1593. aged 18. years, took the degrees in Arts, holy orders and was made Vicar of Finden in Northamptonshire. In 1611. he proceeded in Divinity, and three years after resigning his Vicaridge, he went into Ireland, was made Dean of Lismore, and at length in the latter end of the year 1619. was consecrated Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, being then esteemed a person of good learning and prudence. He yielded up his last breath at Waterford (g) on the 27. Dec. in sixteen hundred thirty and five, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of the holy Trinity there, leaving then behind him a brother named Richard Boyle Archb. of Tuam, whom I shall mention in the Fasti, among the incorporations, an. 1601. There was another Michael Boyle, who was Archb. of Dublin 1663. but he was Nephew to the former Michael, by being Son to Richard before mention'd.

200. EDMUND GRIFFITH a Caernarvanshire man born, was admitted in the quality of an Exhibitioner (a) into Brasnosc college on the 8. Apr. 1587. having before, as I conceive, been a Student of that of Jesus, took the degrees in Arts, that of Master being compleated in 1592. About which time being in full Orders, had some employment agreeable to his profession in these parts. In 1599. he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, and afterwards being made Dean of Bangor in the place of Dr. Joh. Williams deceased, in Sept. or Oct. 1613. was at length made Bishop of that place, on the death of Dr. Dav. Dolben, an. 1633. To which See being consecrated, the temporalities thereof were restored to him (b) on the 26. of Febr. the same year. He died in sixteen hundred thirty and seven, 1637. and was, as I suppose, buried in the Church of Bangor. In the said See succeeded Dr. Will. Roberts Subdean of Wells, and Archdeacon of Anglese, sometimes Fellow of Queens coll. in Cambridge, and Proctor of that University, who having the said Bishoprick bestowed on him by the endeavours of Dr. Land Archb. of Cant. for discovering Church goods to the value of 1000 l. had the temporalities thereof given (c) to him 24. Sept. 13. Car. 1. Dom. 1637. with liberty then allowed to him, to keep his Archdeaconry in Commendam. In the time of Rebellion he suffered much, and about 1649. he was sequestred of all, or most, of his Estate, whether spiritual or temporal. In the great year of the Restoration of K. Ch. 2. he was restored to all he had lost, and dying in 1665. one Dr. . . . Price was elected Bishop, but he dying before consecration in the same year, Robert Morgan Dr. or Bach. of div. Rector of Llandysnan in Anglese and Archdeacon of Merioneth being elected into his place, was consecrated at Lambeth on the first day of July 1666. He died in Sept. 1673. leaving behind him a Relict called Anne.

JONAS WHEELER, Dean of the Church of the Holy Trinity, commonly called Christ Church in Dublin, and Chaplain to K. James 1. was consecrated Bishop of Ossory in S. Patricks Church near Dublin on the eighth day of May 1613. and died in the ninety seventh year of his age at Dunmore, on the 19. of April in sixteen hundred and forty: 1640. Whereupon his body was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Kilkenny. He was born in Oxfordshire, as 'tis (†) said, particularly, as I suppose, within the City of Oxon, was educated in this University, but in what house, unless in that of Brasnosc, where one or more of his name and kindred studied about his time, I know not, nor what degrees he took, because many have studied, in the said University, five, seven, ten years, or more, and yet never took any degree.

JOHN ATHERTON, Son of John Atherton, who became Rector of Bawdripp in Somersetshire in 1584. was born in that County, (at Bawdripp as it seems,) and at 16 years of age 1614. became either a Butler or Commoner of Gloucester hall, where continuing till after he had taken one degree in Arts, was transplanted to Lincoln college, took the degree of Master as a Member of it, holy Orders, and soon after was made Rector of Huish Combflower in his own Country. At length being made known to Thomas Earl of Strafford L. Lieutenant of Ireland, for his great sufficiencies in the Canon Law, and Ecclesiastical affairs, was by him made Prebendary of Ch. Ch. in Dublin, and afterwards Bishop of Waterford and Lismore in the year 1636. (he being then Doctor of divinity,) in which office he behaved himself for some time with great prudence, tho forward enough, if not too much, against the R. Catholics in that Country. At length being charged with a crime, not now to be named, was seized on and imprisoned: And being found guilty of it, was first degraded, and afterwards suffered death by hanging at Dublin, (being the first of his Function that suffered that kind of death, as he said it openly to the People at the Gallows,) on the fifth day of Decemb. in sixteen hundred and forty. Afterwards his body was buried, according to his desire, in the remotest or obscurest part of the Yard (where rubbish used to be laid) belonging to S. Johns Church in Dublin. Nich. Bernard D. D. sometimes Chaplain to the learned and religious Dr. Usher Archb. of Armagh hath written and published a book of his penitent death, with a Sermon at his burial, to which (being very worthy of perusal) I refer the Reader for his farther satisfaction. In Waterford and Lismore succeeded Dr. Archibald Adair a Scot, and him Dr. George Baker, who died in Octob. or thereabouts, an. 1668.

JOHN BANCROFT, Son of Christop. Bancroft (by Audrey Andrews his Wife) eldest Son of John Bancroft of Farnworth in Lancashire, by Mary his Wife, daughter of John Curwyn, brother to Hugh Curwyn, sometimes Bishop of Oxford, was born in a little Village called Astell or Estwell, lying between Witney and Burford in Oxfordshire, was admitted a Student of Ch. Ch. in 1592. aged 18 years or more, took the degrees in Arts, holy Orders, and became a Preacher for some years in and near Oxon. In 1609. he being newly admitted to proceed in Divinity, was by the endeavours of his Uncle Dr. Rich. Bancroft Archb. of Cant. (a younger Son of John Bancroft before-mentioned.) elected Master of University college, where he continued above 20 years: In which time, he was at great pains and expence to recover and settle the antient Lands belonging to that foundation. In 1632. he was, upon the translation of Dr. Corbet to Norwyck, nominated Bishop of Oxford; whereupon being elected by the Dean and Chapter in April the same year, had the temporalities of that See given () to him on the 6. of June following, being about that time consecrated. In 1640. when the Long Parliament began, and proceeded with great vigour against the Bishops, he was possessed so much with fear (having always been an Enemy to the Puritan) that without little or no sickness, he surrendered up his last breath in his lodging at Westminster. Afterwards his body was carried to Cudeston in the diocese of Oxon, and was buried near to, and under the, south wall of the Chancel of the Church there, on the twelfth day of Febr. in sixteen hundred and forty, leaving then behind him the character (†) among the Puritans or Presbyterians then dominant of a corrupt unpreaching Popish Prelate. The Reader is now to know that before this Mans time, the Bishops of Oxford had no house left belonging to their Episcopal See, either in City or Country, but dwelt at their Parsonage-houses which they held in Commendam, tho Dr. Jo. Bridges, who had no Commendam in his diocese, lived for the most part in hired houses in the City. For, as I have before told you in Dr. Rob. Kynge, tho at the foundation of the Bishoprick of Oxford in the Abbey of Osney, the King appointed Gloucester coll. for the Bishops Pallace, yet when that foundation was inspected into by K. Edw. 6. and a recital thereupon made of the foundation thereof done by his Father, that place was left out of the Charter, as being designed then for another use. So that from that time till this Man (Dr. Bancroft) came to be Bishop, there being no settled House or Pallace for him or his Successors, he did resolve by the perswasions of Dr. Laud Archb. of Cant. to build one. Wherefore in the first place the impropriate Parsonage of Cudeston before-mentioned, five miles distant from Oxon, which belonged to the Bishop in right of his See, he let the lease thereof run out without any more renewing, that in the end it might be made an improvement to the slender Bishoprick. The Vicaridge also of his own donation falling void in the mean time, he procured himself to be legally instituted and inducted thereunto. All which being done, he, thro the power and favour of Dr. Laud before-mentioned, obtained an annexation of it to the See Episcopal, (the design of bringing in the impropriation going forward still) and soon after began, with the help of a great deal of timber from the Forest of Shotover, given to him by his Majesty, to build a fair Pallace; which, with a Chappel in it, being compleatly finished, an. 1635. was, then out of curiosity visited by the said Dr. Laud; which he remits into his diary thus. Sept. 2. an. 1635. I was in attendance with the King at Woodstock, and went thence to Cudeston, to see the house which Dr. Jo. Bancroft then Lord Bishop of Oxford had there built to be a house for the Bishops of that See for ever; he having built that house at my perswasion. But this house or Pallace (which cost three thousand and five hundred pounds) proved almost as short liv'd as the Founder, being burn'd down by Col. Will. Legg during the short time that he was Governour of the Garrison of Oxford, in the latter end of 1644. for fear it might be made a Garrison by the Parliament Forces, tho with as much reason and more piety (as one () observes) he might have garrison'd it for the King, and preserved the house. Being thus ruined, it laid so till Dr. Joh. Fell became Bishop of Oxon, and then with monies out of his own purse, and the help of timber, which one of his Predecessors named Dr. Will. Paul had laid in in his life-time for that purpose, did rebuild it upon the old foundation, with a Chappel in it, as before. The outside of which being finished in 1679. the inside followed soon after.

METROPHANES CRITOPYLUS, a Grecian born, came into England to be instructed in the doctrine and discipline of the Church, and in order thereunto to learn the Latin and the English tongues. To these ends he addressed himself to Dr. Abbot Archb. of Canterbury, who sent him forthwith to Baliol college, where he had for his interpreter the noted Grecian Mr. Edw. Sylvester, and continued there till the time of his departure from England, which was about 1622. at which time he was Chancellour to the Patriarch of Constantinople. After his return to his own Country, he became Patriarch of Alexandria in the place of Cyrill Lucaris translated to Constantinople, and wrote, as some (†) suppose, The Confession of Faith, which went under the name of Cyrill Patriarch of Constantinople, published in the Greek tongue 1629. Which Confession was, with a censure upon it, printed at Rome 1632. the title of which, rendred into English is this, The condemnation of the confession of the Calvinists, as it was set forth in the name of Cyrill Patriarch of Constantinople. With this condemnation and confession is printed an answer to the Anathematisms of Cyrill Patriarch of Alexandria, Predecessor to Critopylus; wherein the said Anathematisms are acknowledged to be genuine, tho they decry the said Confession as spurious. This Critopylus was in great renown in his own Country in sixteen hundred and forty. but when he died I cannot yet find.

The Chancellour of the University this year, was Dr. John Moreton, Archb. of Canterbury, and Cardinal of S. Anastasius: But he dying in the Month of Sept. Dr. Will. Atwater became Cancellarius natus, and in his Absence W. Herward, D. D. and others. At length in the beginning of Nov. following, the Members of the University elected for their Chancellour Dr. Will. Smith Bishop of Lincoln. Which honorable Office, he, upon notice by Letters, accepting, the said Members delegated Mr. John Reede Chaplain to the Prince (afterwards Warden of Wykeham's Coll. near Winchester) and Mr. John Dunham Bach. of Div. to give him his Oath; which being taken, he was admitted to his Office.

The Committary or Vicechancellour of the University was this year Mr. Will. Atwater, D. D. of S. Mary Magdalen's Coll.

Proctors { Edward Darby of Linc. } College.
{ Tho. Claydon of New }

The Senior Proctor, who was Fellow of Linc. Coll. was afterwards Archdeacon of Stow, in the place, as I conceive, of Hugh Hanworth, who dying the 7th of March 1518, was buried in the Cath. Church of Lincoln. He the said Darby also was Canon resident of Linc. and Prebendary of Ketton in the said Church; and dying in 1542, was buried in Chanter Isle joyning to the Cath. Ch. of Linc. before mentioned. See more of him and his Benefaction to Learning, in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 2. p. 161.

Masters of Art,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in Arts, or admitted among the number of Masters of the Faculty of Arts, in order to their proceeding, or being compleated in that Degree in the Art or Comitia following.

Will. Gray, or Grey. — The same, as I have just reason to conceive, who was some years after this time Archdeacon of Berkshire in the place of Christop. Twinkley; as also Prebendary of Horton in the Church of Sarum. He died in the Year 1521, at which time he bequeathed twenty Marks to the University Chest, four Marks for the Reparation of S. Mary's Church, and four Pounds to buy a new pair of Organs to be plaid upon in the said Church. For which, and other his good Deeds, was yearly a Dirige and Mass said for the health of his Soul. In his Archdeaconry succeeded Rob. Audley, nearly related to Edm. Audley B. of Sarum, 14 Feb. 1521.

Opponents in Divinity,

Or such who opposed in Divinity disputations, in the School belonging to that Faculty, in order to their Admission to the Degree of Bach. of Divinity.

Tho. Browne — He was about this time Prior of the Cell at Dunster in Somersetshire. The said Cell or Priory was for Benedictines or Black Monks, and stood, as Jo. Leland tells (a) us, in the roots of the North-west side of the Castle at Dunster, and was a Cell to the Priory at Bath.

Bachelours of Divinity,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of the Master of the Sentences, or to the Sentences of Pet. Lombard.

John Storke or Sterke, Prior of the Houle or Coll. of the Fryers of the Order of S. Austin the Hermit. — This Coll. was situated in the North Suburb of Oxon. On the scite of which place, Wadham Coll. was afterwards built.

John Haukebourne, Prior of the Coll. of S. Mary the Virgin (a Nurfery for Canon Regulars of the Order of S. Austin) within the University of Oxon. — The great Gate of this Coll. which is now standing, is almost opposite to that of New Inn, in a Lane commonly called New Inn Lane. This John Haukebourne, I take to be the same with him who is sometimes written John Haukebourn, who was after this time Doctor of Divinity, and Lord, Abbat of the Monastery of our Lady at Cirencester, (a place for Black Canons) in Gloucestershire.

John Holwell of Exeter Coll. — In the year 1505, he occurs Principal of Black Hall near to that of Hart, about which time he was Canon of the Cath. Ch. at Exeter.

Doctors of the Civil Law,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in the Civil Law, or admitted Doctors of the Civil Law, in order to proceed, or to be compleated Doctors in the Art following.

Henry Wilcocks, now, or about this time, Principal or chief Moderator of the Civil Law School in the Parish of S. Edward, being Deputy for Dr. Will. Warham Master of the Rolls, and afterwards Archb. of Canterbury. — This Civil Law School and the Church of S. Edward (both which joyned together) have been time out of mind demolished. They stood in, or near, that Lane, which we now call Blew-boar Lane, near to the Back-gate of the Blew-boar Inn. This Dr. Wilcocks was Archdeacon of Leicester, (in which Dignity he was succeeded by Ric. Mawdley or Mawdlin, D.D.) and Vicar gen. to Dr. Smith Bishop of Lincoln.

Doctors of the Canon Law,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in the Decrees or Canon Law, &c.

Roger Sandysford or Sandford, Principal of Broadgates Hall in the Parish of All Saints — Upon the Resignation of Philip Agard, an Inceptor in the sacred Canons or Decrees, the said Rog. Sandford succeeded in the Principality of that Hall in 1498, which Hall did once stand where now is a Yard containing divers Tenements belonging to Magd. College; the Gate leading to which, is almost opposite to the sometimes Inn called the Swan, in that part of the High Street between the Churches of All Saints and S. Mary.

Will. Horsley Principal of Peckwaters Inn. — This Inn is involved in that Quadrangle belonging to Ch. Ch. now called Peckwater.

(a) In his second Vol. of Itineraries. MS. fol. 62. b.

This year was a Supplicate made in the venerable Congregation of Regents for one Tho. Dalby to be admitted to a Degree in Decrees; but whether he was admitted I cannot yet tell. — This Tho. Dalby whom I find afterwards written Doctor of Decrees, was installed Archdeacon of Richmond in Oct. 1506, upon the Promotion of James Stanley to the See of Ely, was made about that time Prebendary of the Prebend of Stillington, and Canon residentiary, in the Church of Tork, afterwards the thirty seventh Provost of the Church of S. John at Beverley, Treasurer of the Pallace of Tho. Savage sometimes Archb. of Tork, Chaplain and Counsellor to King Hen. 7. and Dean of the Chappel to the Duke of Richmond and Somerset. This Dr. Dalby died 26 Jan. 1525, and was buried in the North Isle joyning to the Choir of the Cath. Church of Tork. I find another Tho. Dalby who was Archdeacon of Richmond, and Residentiary in the Church of Tork, but he dying in 1400, must not be supposed to be the same with the former.

Doctors of Divinity,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in Divinity, or admitted Doctors or Professors of Divinity, or of the Holy Writ, in order to their proceeding, or being compleated in that Degree in the Act following.

William Vavasor Gardian or Warden of the House or Coll. of the Franciscans or Grey Fryers in the South Suburb of Oxon. — This Coll. was situated without Little Southgate, commonly called Watergate, where now a Brewer and a Tanner, besides other People, live; and the Gardens and Grove belonging thereunto, situated on the West side of the said Coll. are now called by the Name of Paradise Garden. This College was one of the famousst Places for learned Fryers in the Christian World, and therein did Roger Bacon, the Miracle of his Age for Learning, live and die in the Habit of a Franciscan. Another Miracle also did live and study there about Roger's death, named John Duns, highly famed at this day beyond the Seas, for those Books which he hath written, yet so little valued now among many English Men, that the Philosopher (b) of Malmesbury doth not tuck to say, that any ingenious Reader, not knowing what was the design (meaning the Pope's design to carry on his Authority) would judge him to have been the most egregious Blockhead in the World, so obscure and senseless are his Writings.

Hugh Saunders alias Shackspere of Merton Coll. — He was afterwards Principal of S. Albans Hall, and is stiled in one of our public Registers (c) Vir literis & virtute precelebris.

John Stonewell Prior of the Benedictine Monks of Glocester Coll. now Gloc. Hall. — He was the same Person with John Stonewell who was soon after Lord Abbat of Pershore (a Monastery for Benedictines) in Worcestershire, and a Bishop by the Title of Episc. Polerensis, as I have among the Bishops told you.

John Avery of Lincoln Coll. — He was afterwards several times Commissary of the University.

John Percivall the seven and fortieth Minister or Provincial of the Minorites, Franciscans or Grey Fryers, in England, did proceed about this Year in Divinity. See among the Writers under the year 1502.

John Kynton a Minorite or Franciscan, did also proceed this year, but when admitted, I find not.

Proctors { John Game of Allsoules Coll. elected for the Southern Proctor.
Will. Dale, elected for the Northern Proctor.

Bachelors of the Civil Law,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of any of the Books of Institutions.

Thomas Howell Archdeacon of Cardigan, &c.

Mastr. of Arts,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in Arts, &c.

John Longland of S. Mar. Magd. Coll. — He became Bishop of Linc. in 1521.

Tho. Randolph of New Coll. did proceed about this year. — He was afterwards Canon and Prebendary of the Cath. Church at Lincoln.

Bach. of Divinity,

Tho. Brynkell of Linc. Coll. — See more among the Writers under the year 1521.

Clement Lychfeld a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict in the Monastery of Evesham in Worcestershire — He was afterwards Abbat of that Place, and continuing there till towards the dissolution of Religious Houses, with a resolution not to surrender his House for a profane use, was at length by the tricks of Tho. Cromwel Secretary of State to K. Hen. 8. perswaded to resign his pastoral Staff to one Philip Hawford alias Ballard, a young Monk of Evesham: which being done accordingly, (not altogether to the content of Lychfeld) was a Surrender of that Monastery soon after made into the hands of the said King. For which Service Ballard had not only a considerable Pension allowed, but also the Deanery of Worcester given to him, in 1553, (1 Mar.) upon the deprivation of one John Barlow, M. A. who had been intalled Dean in June 1544, in the place of Hen. Holbeach alias Rands the first Dean, afterwards Bishop of Lincoln. As for Lychfeld, who was a most pious and zealous man in the way he professed, he expended much Money in building the Abbey of Evesham and other places belonging to it, as also in building and adorning the Choir. He made (d) also a right sumptuous and high square Tower of Stone in the Cemetery of Evesham. This Tower had a great Bell in it, and a goodly Clock, and was as a Gatehouse to one piece of the Abbey. This Abbat builded at his Manor at Uffordham about a mile above Evesham. This good man died at, or near, Evesham, and was buried in a Chappel (which he before had built) joyning to the Abbey-Church there, 9 Octob. 1540. In memory of whom, was, in his life time, an Inscription set up in a Window of the said Church, running thus, Orate pro anima Domini Clementis Lychfeld Sacerdotis, cujus tempore turris Eveshamie edificata est.

John Colet M. A. was about this time admitted to the reading of the Sentences.

Henry Rytner Abbat of Rewley (a Monastery for Cistercians in the West Suburb of Oxon.) was admitted about this time.

Doctors of the Civ. Law,

Robert Langton of Queens Coll. — In the Month of Sept. 1485 he was made Prebendary of Fordington and Wrislington in the Church of Salisbury, and about that time Preb. of Chyrmminster and Bere in the same Church. In 1486, Jun. 25. he became Archdeacon of Dorset, void by the Death of Will. Ascough, and in 1509 Apr. 24. he was installed Treasurer of the Church of Tork, in the place of one Martin Collyns deceased, who had before been Chauntor of the said Church. — See more of him (Rob. Langton) among the Bishops in Tho. Langton an. 1501.

Rob. Honeywode of Allsoules Coll. did proceed also this or the year before. — In 1506 he became Canon of Windfore, and about that time Archdeacon of Taunton. He died 22 Jan. 1522, and was buried in the Chappel of S. George at Windfore.

Doctors of Div.

Thom. Swawell a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict, and Warden or Gardian of Durham Coll. in Oxon.

Sim. Greene alias Fotherbie of Linc. Coll. — He was afterwards several times Commissary of the University, and for his Merits made Chauntor and Residentiary of the Cath. Ch. at Lincoln, and also Prebendary of Bykylleswade or Biggleswade in the said Church. He gave way to Fate 27 March 1536, and was buried in the Isle called Chauntor Isle within the Precincts of the Cathedral of Linc.

Frater or Brother Thom. Latymer a Dominican or Black Fryer.

This year Thom. Beaumont of Merton Coll. of about 15 years standing in the Degree of Master of Arts, did supplicate to be licensed to proceed in Divinity, but whether he was licensed or admitted I cannot yet find. Before this time he was Archdeacon of Barbe, and in great repute there for his Learning; which Dignity he surrendring up, one John Pikman LL. Bac. was collated thereunto (per dimissionem Tho. Beaumont) 12 Jul. 1499. The very next day Beaumont was collated to the Provostship of Wells, with the Prebendary called Combe de twelf, on the Death of Mr. Thom. Barrow, (who had been also Archdeacon of Colchester) and in 1502 he became Archdeacon of Wells, and well benefited in the Diocess belonging thereunto. In Octob. or thereabouts, in the year 1507, he died; whereupon Cardinal Hadrian de Castello Bishop of B. and Wells, did bestow the said Dignity of Archdeacon on his Kinsman Polydore Virgil alias Casteller, with the Prebendary of Brent in the Church of Wells annexed, on the sixth of Febr. the same year. At which time Polydore being in great favour with R. Foxe B. of Winchester, had, as I conceive, some Dignity or Benefice in the Church confer'd on him by that worthy Person. In the Reign of Ed. 6. he being then well stricken in years, he procured an Order or License from the King to depart from England to go to his native Country; in which Order (e) dated 2 June 4 Ed. 6. Dom. 1550. I find these matters — "Whereas our trusty and welbelov'd Pollidorus Virgilius hath made humble sute unto us, that he, being born in the Parts of Italy, and, having served our Grandfather K. Hen. 7. and our Father K. Hen. 8. and Us, by the space of forty years and above, in writing, and putting forth in Print divers notable Works and Stories, may be licensed to depart out of this our Realm, and visit and see, now in his old Age, his said native Country, and there to make his abode, during his pleasure, and also quietly &c. to enjoy all the Profits of the Archdeaconry of Wells, in the Cathedral Church of Wells, and the Pheband of Nonington in the Cathedral Ch. of Hereford, which the said Pollidorus now enjoyeth, &c. By vertue of the said Order he departed: but before he went he Sold the perpetuity of the House of Wells which belonged to the Archdeacon of Wells; and dying at Urbis in Italy, the place of his Nativity, was (f) there buried in 1555. There was some Memory of him remaining divers years after his Death in the Choir at Wells; and Jo. Leland takes (g) notice of his Arms in the Arras Chanc. the same, viz. Mr. Will. Smyth B. of Lincoln; but he resigning about the beginning of Aug. Dr. Rich. Fitzjames Warden of Merton Coll. and Bishop of Rochester, being at this time resident in the University, became (i) Cancellarius natus, and in his absence Mr. John Kymon and Mr. John Thornden or Thornton. At length, after a great deal of disturbance in the University concerning the Election of a Chancellour, Mr. Rich. Mayhew, President of Magd. Coll. and the Kings Almoner, was elected Chancellour about the latter end of Nov. following.

Bach. of Musick,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of any of the Musical Books of Boetius.

Henry Parker of S. Mary Magdalens Hall. — He was eminent in these times for his Compositions in Vocal and Instrumental Musick, some of which, if I do not forget my self, I have seen in the Musical Bibliotheca repoted in the School of that Faculty.

Mastr. of Arts.

About nineteen Masters proceeded this year, of which three or four were of Alls. Coll. four of Merton, and one or more of Magd. Coll. among whom Laur. Stubbes was one, afterwards President thereof. What were the Promotions or Dignities of any besides him, I cannot yet tell.

Opponents in Divinity,

Thomas Wallashe now, or soon after, Prior of the Monastery of the Virgin Mary at Bradenstoke of the Order of S. Augustin, in the Dioc. of Salisbury. — About the year 1511 he was admitted Prebendary of Hufway in the Church of York in the place of Christop. Fisher Bishop of Elphine (in Ireland) deceased. Whether the said Th. Wallashe was afterwards admitted to the reading of the Sentences, which usually follows Opposition in Divinity, I cannot yet find.

Bach. of Div.

John Maynard a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict. — He was afterwards Prior of the Novices of the said Order living in Gloucester Coll. in this University, in the place of Dr. Stranywell before-mentioned, and was succeeded in the said Priorship by one John Wynyscombe or Wynchcombe a learned Monk of the said Order, who occurs Prior in the year 1512.

Doctors of Physick,

Or such who were licensed to proceed in the Faculty of Medicine or Physick.

John Gam or Game of Allsoules Coll. sometimes one of the Proctors of the University. — He was now Principal of Biham, commonly called Beame, Hall in the Parish of S. John Bapt. Which Principality he resigned this year to make room for Hugh Pole of the same Coll.

Doct. of Div.

John Thornden or Thornton, did proceed in Divinity about this Year. — He was afterwards several times Commissary of the University, and a Bishop, as I have before told you.

This year one John Newland, a Black or Regular Canon of the Order of S. Augustin, supplicated for a Degree in Divinity; but whether granted, Record, which is very imperfect (or not at all) tells us not. This is the same John Newland who was born at Newland in the Forest of Deane in Gloucestershire, and was commonly called and written John Nailebeart alias Newland. He was the last Abbat saving one of the Monastery of S. Austin at Bristol; in which Monastery, as also in the Church belonging thereto, he expended much Money in building and adorning. He was called the Good Abbat, being a Person solely given up to Religion and Almdeeds; and after he had ruled 33 years or thereabouts, he gave way to Fate in a good old Age, and was buried on the south side of the Chaire of the Church of S. Austin, now the Cath. Church at Bristol. Over his Grave is his Statua in Pontificalia, graven or carved out from Stone, laying on the Back, with a Crosier in his Hand, and a Mitre on his Head. His Arms do now, or did lately, continue in the Church and other Buildings of that Monastery, which are a Man's heart pierced thro from top to bottom with three nails, which is as 'twere a Rebus for Nailebeart.

Bachelours of Arts,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of any Book of the Faculty of Arts of the Logick of Aristotle.

Edward Lee of S. Mar. Magd. Coll. seems to have been admitted Bach. of Arts this year, among twenty or thereabouts that were admitted within the compass of the same year. — We have no Register that shews it, only certain imperfect and broken Scripts containing sums of money received for the taking of Degrees, which I have seen, but I think are now perished.

Bach. of Physick,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of any Book of the Aphorismes of Hippocrates.

Rich. Barthlet Master of Arts and Fellow of Allsoules Coll. — See more among the Doctors of Physick under the year 1508.

Doct. of Div.

Will. Salyng (or Selling) Lord Prior of Martyn, or Merton, in Surrey. Rob. Tely or Thay of Magd. Coll.

Rich. Sydenore of the same Coll. about this time Archdeacon of Toinefs. — In 1518 he was made Canon of Windsor, and in 1524 constituted Scribe or Registry of the most noble Order of the Garter. He died 1534, and was, I presume, buried in the Chap. of S. George at Windsor. In his Canonry and Registry's place succeeded Rob. Aldridge, who was afterwards Bish. of Carlisle, and in his Archdeaconry of Toinefs succeeded, as it seems, George Carew.

This year was a Supplication made in the ven. Congregation of Regents for one Rich. Bere a Benedictin Monk, to be graduated in Divinity; but whether in the Degree of Bach. or Doct. it appears not; or whether he was admitted to either. 'Twas the same Rich. Bere who was installed Abbat of Glastenbury on the Death of John Selwood the former Abbat, 20 January 1493, (after the Election of another Person named Tho. Walsyn a Monk of the same Order, had been cassated by Rich. Fox Bish. of B. and Wells, on the 12. of Nov. going before.) This Rich. Bere, who was well known to, and revered (k) by, Erasmus, died 20. Jan. 1524, whereupon Rich. Whyting was elected Abbat in his place on the third of March following, there being then in the Monastery of Glastenbury 47 Monks. If you are pleased to know more of this Bere, you may read what Leland saith (l) of him, and his Benefaction to the said Abbey, thus. — "Rich. Bere Abbat, built the new Lodgings by the great Chamber called the Kings Lodgings in the Gallery. — He builded also new Lodgings for Secular Priests and Clerks of our Ladies Chappel. He also arched on both sides the East part of the Church. He built Edgar's Chappel at the East end of the Church. Abbat Whyting performed part of it. — Abbat Bere made the Vault on the Steeple in transept. — He also made a rich Altar of Silver and gilt, and set it afore the high Altar. And coming from his Embassadry out of Italy, made a Chappel of our Lady of Loretto, joyning to the North side of the Body of the Church. — He made the Chappel in the South end Navis Ecclesie Glaston, where by he is buried sub plano marmore in the South Ile of the Body of the Church. — He made an Almshouse in the North part of the Abbey, with a Chappel, for seven or ten poor Women. He also made the Mannor place at Sharpsham in the Park, two miles by West from Glaston. It was before a poor Lodge, &c.

Mast. of Arts.

Edward Finch. --- Of what Coll. or Hall he was a Member, I cannot yet find: sure I am that on the 23 Sept. 1517, he became Prebendary of Fordington and Writlington in the Church of Salisbury, on the death of Andrew Ammonius an Italian, (whom I have mention'd among the Writers in Will. Grocyn. an. 1522.) that also he was made Archdeacon of Wiltshire on the death of Christoph. Urshwyke, 12 May, 1522; and Preb. of Charmister and Bere in the said Church of Salisbury, on the death of Rob. Langton sometimes of Queens Coll. in this University, 20 June 1524.

Philip Dense Fellow of Mert. Coll. --- He hath this Character added to his Name in the Album of that Society, Medicus & Astronomus cum primis doctus. In the Act wherein these two proceeded, were about 14 Masters, but whether any of them were afterwards Bishops, Writers, or Dignitaries, I cannot yet find. The said Philip Dense, who was a learned man as certain Writings which he left behind him shew'd, died of a pestilent Disease 4 Sept. 1507, and was buried in the choir belonging to the Church of the said Coll.

Doct. of Div.

John Colet the most learned and religious Dean of S. Pauls Cathedral in London. --- I have largely mention'd him before.

John Adams of Merton Coll. --- He was afterwards a Dignitary in the Church.

This year was a Supplicat made in the ven. Congregation of Regents in behalf of Father William Byrd a Benedictine Monk, to be admitted Bach. of Div. or licensed to proceed in that Faculty; but whether either was granted, I cannot tell. I take this Father to be the same William Byrd who was elected Prior of the Monastery of Benedictines at Bathe in Aug. 1499, after the death of John Cantlow the preceeding Prior. For what Benedictine of both those Names it should be, but he, I cannot tell. It is reported by one (m) who pretended to know him well, that this Will. Byrd was given much to Chemistry and chemical Operations, that he found out the Stone, or discovered the Elixir, and at the Suppression of Abbeys he hid it in a Wall.

And ten days after he went to fetch it out,

And there he found the Stople of a Clout.

This put the Father into so great an Agony, that he became almost frantick, as the same Author tells us; who adds, that he ever after wandred about, had no settled place, that he became blind, had a Boy to lead him about, lost his Ecclesiastical Preferments, and died poor; with other the like fabulous Tales, which are commented upon forsooth by a certain Rosacrucian, as if they were as true as Gospel. I find this Person Will. Byrd to have expended much money in finishing his Church at Bathe, which is now the great Church there, dedicated to S. Peter and S. Paul, but before he could finish it, he gave way to Fate; which happening on the 22. of May 1525. John Holway of the same Order was elected Prior on the first of July the same year, and was Prior thereof at the dissolution or suppression of Abbeys, and not W. Byrd as several (n) Authors report. Towards the upper end of the Choir of the said Church dedicated to S. Peter and Paul, was, by the Appointment of this Person, erected, between two of the South Pillars, a neat tabernacular Edifice, which, I presume, he intended to be the Seat of the Prior at Divine Service. His Arms on the Roof of it are curiously carved out in Stone, which are a Chevron between three Spread Eagles, on a chief a Rose between two Lozenges; and on the outside of the said Seat is a Memorial of his name, viz. a W and a Bird carved in Stone: in which Seat, or else near to it, he was, as I conceive, buried. As for John Cantlow beforementioned, who was his Predecessor, and graduated in this University, he built in a certain Village near Bathe, called Holloway, in the Parish of Widcomb, a pretty little Chappel dedicated to S. Mary Magd. as also, as 'tis said there, the little Hospital adjoining for Lunatics.

Mathew Smyth of Oriel Coll. who was afterwards the first Principal of Brasenose Coll. and a Benefactor to Learning; and another named John Cottisford of Line Coll. afterwards Rector of that House, and a Dignitary. Both whom were admitted the last of June.

Bach. of the Civil Law,

Or such who were admitted to the reading of any book of the Institutions.

About 10 were admitted this year, among whom Dionis Calakan (an Irish Man) was one, June ult. Twenty or more also supplicated for the said Degree, who were not admitted this year; among whom Tho. Bennet was one, but whether the same Tho. Bennet who became Chauntor of the Cath. Church of Salisbury in Jan. 1541, I dare not affirm it.

Bach. of the Canon Law,

Doct. of the Civil Law,

Doct. of Div.

Jan. Reg. Vaughan or Vachan, a Black Fryer or Dominican, Prior of the Coll. of Black Fryers in the South Suburb of Oxon.

Feb. 3. John Aslaby was then admitted; which Degree he completed in an Act celebrated on the 15. of the same Month, at which time ten Masters of Arts proceeded.

Incorporations,

Or such who have taken a Degree in another University, and have been embodied or taken into the bosom of this of Oxon, and have enjoyed the same Liberties and Privileges, as if they had taken their Degree here.

Jul. 2. Walt. Peers Doct. of the Civ. Law of Bononia in Italy (where he was held in great Admiration for that Faculty) was then solemnly incorporated into the same Degree in the House of Congregation.

Jan. 24. Rich. Kirkby Mast. of Arts of this Univ. and Bach. of Divin. of the Univ. of Paris, was incorporated Bach. of Div. of this University. --- Which being done, he supplicated the same day to be admitted or licensed to proceed in Divinity; but whether granted it appears not.

.... James Denton Doctor of the Laws, sometimes Fellow of Kings Coll. in Cambridge, did this year supplicate to be incorporated; but whether he was really so, it appears not. He was Chancellour to the Lady Mary Queen Dowager of France, who was afterwards married to Charles Brandon Duke of Suffolk, and so I presume he took that Degree beyond the Seas. About this time, he being one of the King's Counsellors, and much in favour, was made Prebendary of York, Lincoln, Salisbury, and in 1510, Canon of Windsor. In 1521, or thereabouts, he succeeded Dr. Ralph Collingwood in the Deanery of Lichfield, having been intalled Prebendary of that Church by his Proct. Dr. Rich. Salter of Oxon. an. 1509, and in 1523 he became Archdeacon of Cleveland in the Church of York upon the promotion of Dr. Richard Rawlins of Mert. Coll. to the See of S. David. This Dr. Denton was also Lord President of Wales, and dying at Ludlow in Shropshire in 1532, was there buried. In his Deanery of Lichfield succeeded Dr. Rich. Sampson, Sampson, who holding it till 1536, at which time he was promoted to the See of Chichester, Rich. Williams Chaplain to, and beloved of, K. Hen. 8. succeeded. In his Archdeaconry of Cleveland succeeded Tho. Bedell, as I shall tell you under the year 1508, and in his Canonry of Windfore Dr. Rich. Wolman, whom I shall mention elsewhere. This Dr. Denton built the large Back-stairs at Windfore, was an especial Benefactor to the Church there by founding Maintenance for the Singing-men and Choiristers; and did, with Dr. John Clerke Dean of Windfore, receive (o) by Indenture from the Lord Hastings; the Sheets (as a Relique) wherein *K. Bach. of Arts.

Feb. 8. Rob. Morment of Magdalen, afterwards President of Corp. Christi, Coll.

Beside these two (who were great Promoters and Encouragers of Learning) were 32 more admitted Bach. of Arts this year.

Bach. of the Civ. Law,

Jan. 28. John Incent or Innocent of Allsoules Coll. — Two days before he was admitted Bach. of the Canon Law, as I shall anon tell you.

Besides him were admitted this year six more, and eight at least that supplicated for the said Degree, who were not this year admitted; among whom Job. Pryme was one, Nov. 24. This J. Pryme I take to be the same who was Prior of the Monastery at Timbridge in Kent, an. 1518.

Bach. of the Can. Law,

Or such who were admitted to the extraordinary reading (or reading extraordinary) of any Book of the Decretals or Volumes, as I have before told you.

Mar. 29. John Ashdowne a Monk of the Cluniac Order, and Prior of the Monastery of Lewes in Suffex. — He had before spent seven years in studying the Canon Law in Cambridge.

Jan. 26. Job. Incent or Innocent before mention'd, who had formerly spent one year in the study of the Canon Law at Cambridge, was then admitted Bach. of the Canon Law. — He was afterwards Doctor of his Faculty, as I shall tell you hereafter, and the worthy Dean of S. Pauls Cath. Church in London. Besides these two, were eleven more admitted this year, and about fifteen that supplicated for the said Degree, of whom Thom. Egyston a Benedictine was one. The rest were mostly secular Chaplains, among whom Rich. Hylle or Hylley was of the number; but whether the same with one of both his names who succeeded in the Treasurership of the Church of Salisbury one Henry Sutton sometimes Fellow of Merton College, in the Month of Aug. 1505, I know not. The said Rich. Hylley who was Treasurer, dying in Septe. or thereabouts, in 1533, Nicholas Shaxton D. D. succeeded him in that Dignity in the beginning of Oct. the same year, and him (who was afterwards Bishop of Salisbury) Rich. Sampson LL. D. as I shall tell you under the year 1531.

Masters of Arts.

Of 23 Masters of Arts who were admitted, and stood in three several Asis solemnized in S. Maries Church this year, (whereof one was 3 July, another 26 Jan. and the third on the 8 Feb.) I cannot yet find any one of them that arrived to any Eminence, only John Henrys of Merton Coll. who was Chaplain to Qu. Catherine, and a rich Dignitary in the Church.

Opponents in Divinity,

Or such who opposed in Divinity disputations, in the School belonging to that Faculty, in order to their admission to the degree of Bach. of Div.

May 13. Frater Dedicus Fernandus, a Dominican, or Black, or Preaching Fryer.

June 28. Frat. Petrus Lusitanus, a Minorite, or Franciscan, or Grey Fryer. Neither of these two (who were learned men) appear in the public Register to be afterwards admitted Bach. of Divinity. Besides them were six more admitted to oppose, who were all religious, or of religious Orders, and eight that supplicated to oppose; all, except one, of religious Orders also, among whom Nich. Peppyr, a Canon Regular, was one. Of him by the way, I must let the Reader know, that he was elected Prior of the House of Can. Regulars at Taunton in Somersetshire (on the Resignation of John Prows) 23 Feb. 1513, and dying there 26 Sept. 1523, one Will. York of the same Order was admitted Prior in his place. In the year 1519, when the said York was admitted Bach. of Div. this Peppyr did then supplicate for that Degree.

Bach. of Div.

Dec. 14. Thom. Goldwell of Canterbury Coll. (who on the 19. of Oct. going before was admitted to oppose in Divinity) was then admitted Bach. of Divinity. — He was a Monk of the Order of S. Benedict, and in the year 1517 was chose the last Prior of the Church at Canterbury. I have mention'd another Thom. Goldwell among the Bishops under the year 1580.

Feb. ult. Rob. Kyng, a Monk of the Cistercian Order in the Abbey of Rewley in the West Suburb of Oxon. — He was afterwards the first Bishop of Oxford. See more among the D. of D. 1518.

Mar. — Richard Frys a Carme. — See among the D. of D. 1513.

Besides these three, were seven more admitted of whom John Combe a Cistercian was one.

Doctors of the Civil Law.

June 28. Brian Hygden LL. Bacc. of Broadgates Hall, now Pembroke Coll. was then admitted Doctor. — On the 26 May 1515, he was admitted Archdeacon of Tork, or of the West Riding in Yorkshire, on the Resignation of John Carver LL. D. On the 20. of June 1516, he was admitted Prebendary of Ulleskelf in the Church of Tork, and on the 27 of the same Month Dean thereof, in the place of John Young LL. D. Master of the Rolls, deceased. He paid his last debt to Nature 5 June 1539, (having before been a Benefactor to Learning, as I have elsewhere (p) told you) and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Tork. In his Deanery succeeded Rich. Layton or Leighton LL. D. on the 26 of July the same year, who on the 31 of June going before, was admitted to the said Prebendship of Ulleskelf, purposely to capacitate him for the Deanery. This Dr. Layton was Chaplain and Counsellor to K. Hen. 8. and did act much to please the unlimited desire of that King. In Oct. 1541, he, under pretence of his Majesty's Pleasure, converted the Silver Capsula gilt (in which were then the bones of the head of S. William Archbishop of Tork reposed) with the Jewels and Ornaments of it, to the public use and benefit of the Church of Tork. In 1544. Dec. 24. Nich. Wotton LL. D. was installed by proxy Dean of Tork in Dr. Layton's place, and in Wotton's Dr. Matthew Hutson, 8 Apr. 1567.

Feb. 29. Rob. Froost was then admitted Dr. of the Civil Law, but never stood in the Asis to compleat that degree.

This year March 29. John Ashdowne mentioned before, did supplicate just after he had been admitted Bac. of the Canon Law, to be licensed to proceed in that Faculty, but was not granted. Robert Coke also LL. B. and Principal of Henxsey Hall in S. Aldates Parish, did supplicate to be licensed to proceed in the Civil Law, but was then denied.

Doct. of Div.

May 12. John Heskins a Preaching or Black Fryer.

Oct. 24. Rob. Holyngbourne a Benedictine Monk and Warden or Guardian of Canterbury Coll. (now part of Ch. Ch.) in Oxon.

Dec. 13. Will. Gylbert a Canon regular, and Prior of the Monastery at Brewton in Somersetshire.

Dec. 13. Tho. Mychell of Exeter Coll. Canon of the Cath. Ch. of Exeter and of Wells.

Will. Fauntleroy of New Coll. was admitted the same day. — His Sister Elizabeth was Abbess of Amesbury.

Jan. 22. John Smyth a Minorite or Franciscan.

These also supplicated this year for the said degree; viz. (1.) Will. Gydng M. of A. and Bac. of Div. (2.) Sim. Pykeryng a Carme. (3.) John Wetwang B. D. a Cistercian, &c.

Incorporations.

June 28. Will. Smyth Commissary to the Bishop of Lincoln, and Doctor of Decrees in another University, was then incorporated. — He was Nephew, or near of kin, to Dr. Will. Smyth Bishop of Lincoln, was Archdeacon of Lincoln, and dying in 1528, was succeeded in that Dignity by Rich. Pase M. A. of Oxon, as I have told you elsewhere among the Bishops.

Bentley* of New Coll. being elected Proctor, served out the remaining part of the year.

Bach. of Arts.

June 19. John Blyffe. — He hath this Character added to his Name in the Cat. of Fellows of Mert. Coll. he being of that Society, Medicus & Astronomus quam doctus.

Feb. 27. Reg. Egworth or Eagworth of Oriel Coll. whom I have mentioned among the Writers, under the year 1560.

Besides these two were at least 55 Bachelors admitted this year, and 23 that supplicated for that degree, that were not this year admitted.

Bach. of Law.

Four in the Civil, and eight in the Canon, Law were admitted. Nine in the Civil, and five in the Canon, Law supplicated for that degree. One was admitted Bach. of both the Laws, and one to the Volumes.

One Hen. Rawlins occurs Bach. of the Civil Law this year, but his Admission is omitted; and therefore all that I can say of him is, that he became Archdeacon of Salisbury 10 Apr. 1524, upon the death of James Bromwich, who had that dignity confer'd upon him 2 March 1523, after the decease of George Sydenham. This H. Rawlins who was Prebendary of Faringdon, and had been thrice Preb. of Combe and Harnham, in the said Church, within the space of four years, was made at the same time (10 Apr. 1524.) Preb. of Husborne and Burbach in the said Church of Salum. He was also dignified in the Church of Wells.

Maist. of Arts.

Oct. 13. Hugh Aston, Astorn or Astorn, so many ways I find him written. — He became Archdeacon of York, that is, of the Westriding of Yorkshire, upon the resignation of Brian Hygden, in Sept. 1516, and dying in Decemb. 1522, was succeeded in that dignity by Tho. Winter in the year following, as I shall tell you under the year 1525. I have made mention of one Hugh Aston a Musician, in Will. Forest among the Writers, under the year 1558.

Mar. 8. Thom. Makerel of Univ. Coll. — One Dr. Makerel Prior of Berlings in Lincolnshire headed the Commons of that County under the Name of Capt. Cobler when they rose against the King in 1536, upon the beginning of the dissolution of Religious Houses, or, as some say, because they would not pay a certain Tax. Whether this Tho. Makerel be the same I cannot tell, till I know the Christian Name of the Doctor. John Stow saith that Dr. Makerel, an Abbat and a Suffragan Bishop, was drawn and hang'd at Tybourne about 29 March 1537, for denying the Kings Supremacy; which I suppose is the same with him who was Prior of Berlings, and the same perhaps who was incorporated Doctor of Cambridge 1516.

Besides these two, were eleven more that were admitted, and four that supplicated, that were not admitted, this year.

Opponents in Div.

May 10. Peter de Campo, a Portuguese.

Dec. 10. Walt. Goodfield a Minorite. — See under the year 1510.

Feb. 4. Edm. Veffy or Vesley a Benedictine. — Besides seven that supplicated, who were all, except one, Benedictines and Black Fryers.

Bach. of Div.

Jun. 22. John Claymond the most deserving President of Magd. Coll. stiled in his Admission Vir discretus, gravis, & multa doctrina percelebris.

Feb. 6. Gerardus Smyth a Minorite. — and others of no great account, besides five at least that supplicated for that degree.

Doct. of the Civ. Law.

Apr. . . . John Cockys or Cocks of Allf. Coll. — This year I find him Principal of George Hall in S. Maries Parish, and in 1509 Warden or Rector of the Church of Elmely in Kent, upon the resignation of Will. Broke Doct. of Decrees. Afterwards he was Principal of Henxfey Hall in S. Aldates Parish, (a place for Civilians) Principal or chief Moderator or Professor of the Civil Law School in the Parish of St. Edward, and Dean of the Arches. He died in Febr. 1545.

William Parker and Thom. Maket Bachelors of the Civ. Law supplicated to be licensed to proceed in that Faculty, but were not admitted.

Thom. Myllyng Bach. of the Canon Law, supplic. also to be Dr. of that Fac. but not admitted.

Doct. of Div.

Oct. . . . Thom. Charde Abbat of Foord in Devon. — On the second of the same Month he did really proceed, being then stiled (as 'tis entred in the public Register of this time) Vir magna doctrina & virtute clarus. He was born at Aulescombe in the said County, and educated in S. Bernard's Coll. (now S. John Baptist) to which place being afterwards a Benefactor, his Memory was there preserv'd, as a token of it, in several of the glass Windows of that House, particularly in a middle Chamber Window on the South side of the Tower over the common Gate of that Coll. where was (if not still) his Name contracted in golden Letters (as the fashion was lately on Coaches) in an Escutcheon Sable, and hath behind it, paleways, an Abbats Crozier. He founded, as 'tis said, an Hospital at Honyton in his own Country, and repaired, built, and adorned much of his Monastery, which, I think, he lived to see dissolved.

Mar. . . . Thom. Brynkwell of Linc. Coll. — He stood in the Art on the 13. of the same Month, at which time the Professor of Div. or Commissary, did highly commend him for his Learning.

Those that supplicated this year to be Doctors of Div. were (1.) Humph. Wyflow, sometimes of Allf. Coll. whom I shall mention under the year 1509. (2.) John Maynard a Benedictine; see in an. 1502. (3.) Clem. Lychfeld another Benedictine, mention'd under the same year. (4.) Tho. Anyden or Anyday B. of Div. and a Minorite. (5.) Rob. Burton a Minorite also, and Prior or Gardian of the College of Minorites or Franciscans, commonly called Grey Fryers, in the South Suburb of Oxon, who had studied Divinity in this, and the University of Cambridge, 20 years.

Incorporations.

May 4. James Mallet, Master of Arts of Cambridge. — This Person was afterwards Canon of Windfore, D. of D. and Master of the Hospital of S. Giles in Great Wycomb in Bucks. But in his latter days, uttering certain Words which were accounted High Treason, was executed in 1543. The Treason was this; When the News of the great Commotions made by the Commons in several parts of the Nation, upon, or after, the dissolution of Religious Houses, he openly said, Then hath the King brought his Hogs to a fair Market.

Rob. Fisher a Doctor beyond the Sea, did supplicate to be incorporated May 10, but he is not registred as admitted. He afterwards was beneficed in Somersetshire.

Thom. Scarysbrigg of Mert. Coll. Doct. of Div. beyond the Seas also, did in like manner supplicate 20 Jan. but I cannot find him actually incorporated.

Creations,

Or such that have degrees confer'd upon them without performing any exercise for the same, and sometimes (especially if Noblemen) without paying of Fees.

Jan. 29. It was then granted to James Stanley Bishop of Ely, that he might be created Doctor of Decrees by a Cap put on his head, by William Archbishop of Canterbury and Richard Bishop of London; which accordingly was by them performed with solemnity, at, or near to, London.

It was also granted on the same day to Mr. John Rede Master of Arts, Bach. of Div. and Warden of Wykeham's Coll. near Winchester, that he might be created D. of D. by a Cap put on his head by Dr. Fauntleroy the Commissary, the Proctors, and two Masters. Whether performed, I cannot justly say, because in the year 1511 he supplicated for the degree of D. of D. He had been Tutor to Prince Arthur, was then Canon of Chichester, afterwards Warden of New Coll. in Oxon. and Master of the Hospital of S. Mary Magd. near Winchester.

Of which Proctors having spoken largely elsewhere, I shall only now say, that they were afterwards Servants to, and in favour with, Cardinal Wolsey; the senior of them being Steward of his Household, and the junior Controller of his Buildings in Oxon.

Grammarians,

Or such who were admitted to inform and teach in the Faculty of Grammar.

March 17. William Beaumont stiled in our Registers Disertus vir, & vir doctus. — After he had been admitted by the Commissary to instruct Youths in Grammar, he delivered into his hands a Fennel and Rod, as badges of his Office, to be used by his Authority. For at this time, and beyond all memory, no person in this Kingdom could teach Grammar publicly, until he had first been graduated in, or authorized by, either of the Universities.

Bach. of Musick.

Feb. 12. John Mason. — He was now much in esteem for his Profession.

This year Dec. 12. John Scherman a secular Chaplain and a Student in Musick, supplicated the ven. Congregation that he might be admitted Bach. of that Faculty. Whether he was admitted it appears not.

Bach. of Arts.

Oct. 23. John Redman or Redmayne. --- One of both his Names was Archdeacon of Taunton, and Prebendary of Milverton in the Church of Wells; in which Dignities he was succeeded by John Fitzjames 1554, as I shall tell you in 1524: See in the year 1543.

Jan. 18. Marmaduke Bona alias Lindsey. --- I shall mention him elsewhere.

Jan. 29. John Moreman of Exeter Coll. --- He was afterwards Dean of the Cath. Ch. at Exeter.

Besides these, were about 32 more admitted, and about 27 who supplicated for the said degree, but were not admitted this year.

Bach. of the Civ. Law.

Nov. 5. Thom. Bedell of New Coll. --- In June 1533 he became Archdeacon of Cleveland in the place of Dr. James Denton; which Dignity he resigning in Aug. following, Will. Clyffe LL. D. succeeded. About which time Bedell became Archdeacon of Cornwall, and soon after was appointed one of the Commissioners (Rich. Layton LL. D. and Tho. Barthlet public Notary being two other) to visit Religious Houses in order to their dissolution.

Besides Th. Bedell were thirteen admitted, and eight that supplicated, that were not admitted this year.

Fifteen also were admitted Bac. of Can. Law, and eleven supplicated that were not admitted.

Mast. of Arts.

About fifteen were admitted, and about ten supplicated to be admitted, but were not. Among all which, I cannot yet find any one that was afterwards a Bishop, a Writer, Dignitary, or Man of note.

Bach. of Div.

July. . . Thomas Beel a Canon Regular of the Order of S. Austin, and Prior of the Students of that Order living in S. Maries Coll. --- See more among the D. of D. an. 1514.

Oct. 17. Fr. John Howden a Dominican.

Jan. . . James Dickson, M. A.

Feb. 1. . . Rob. Osbourne a Carme.

Which two last are several times mentioned in the public Register to be Clar. & perdocti viri.

Besides these were about thirteen that supplicated for the said degree, but not admitted this year; among whom was Will. Gyllingham of the Order of S. Benedict, who succeeded Rob. Holynghourne in the Guardianship or Wardenship of Canterbury Coll. in Oxon. about this year.

Doct. of Law.

Not one, either in the Canon or Civ. Law, was licensed to proceed this year.

In the Canon Law were three that supplicated to be Doctors, viz. David Talley Abbat of Tally in the dioc. of S. David, Will. Wolter, and John Lacy, all Bachelors of that Faculty. In the Civil Law was only one, whom I shall mention the next year.

Doct. of Physick.

Nov. 3. Rich. Bartlet mention'd under the year 1503, supplicated that he might be licensed to proceed in Physick; but whether he was admitted, or did really proceed, or stood in the AB, it doth not, by the neglect of the Registrary, appear in the Register of this, or of any year following. --- He was about this time admitted by the Name of Dr. Rich. Bartlet into the Coll. of Physicians in London, and some years after was made President thereof. He died about the latter end of the year 1556, being then possessed of Lands in Cudeston and Denton in Oxfordshire, and was buried in the Church of Great S. Bartholomew in London. In the Annals of the Coll. of Physicians before-mention'd, is this Character left of him, by the famous Dr. Jo. Cay of Cambridge. --- "This good and venerable old man (very famous for his Learning, great Knowledge and Experience in Physick) died in the 87 year of his Age; at whole Funeral the President and College attended, it being the first time that the Statute Book of the College, adorned with Silver, was carried before the President. --- He the said Dr. Bartlet did bequeath to Allsoules College (his tender Parent) his Balon and Ewre of Silver, and to his Brother Edm. Bartlet and his Children of Castel Moreton in Worcestershire several considerable Legacies.

Doct. of Div.

Not one was admitted or licensed to proceed, or stood in the public Comitia, which we usually call the AB.

Four I find who supplicated for the said degree, viz. (1.) Fath. Walt. Goodfield a Minorite, who proceeded in 1510. (2.) Rich. Dudly of Oriel Coll. lately Proctor of the University. (3.) John Mylford a Benedictine and Bac. of Div. (4.) Nicholas Bradbridge M. A. and Fell. of Mert. Coll. Which last was afterwards D. of D. and Chancellor of the Cath. Church of Lincoln. D. mention'd under the year 1501. After Colynson's death, Will. Clyffe, LL. D. of Cambridge, was installed Treasurer of the said Church 13 Apr. 1539; the same Will. Clyffe, I mean, who became Chauntor of that Church on the resignation of Will. Holgyll (then or lately Master of the Savoy Hospital near London) in the beginning of Nov. 1534. As for the Treasurership, Clyffe by his Letters resign'd it into the hands of K. Edw. 6. which being confirmed under the common Seal of the Dean and Chapter of Tork, he was afterwards made the third Dean of Chester in the place of Hen. Man Bishop of the Isle of Man. Frideswyde*, and in that Parish; was then admitted Bach. of the Can. Law. --- He is stiled in the public Register of this time Vir doctus & praeclarus, which is all I know of him, only that he was of noble Race.

June. . . Will. Page a Canon Regular and Prior of Ivy Church in the County of Wilts. --- One Richard Page who was an Oxford Man by Education, but not graduated as I can yet find, occurs Prior of Idro or Ederos in the same County, an. 1526.

Besides these two were but two more admitted, and 13 that supplicated, who were not this year admitted.

Mast. of Arts.

Thirteen were admitted, and five supplicated who were not admitted this year; but none of them were afterwards Writers or Bishops, and whether Dignitaries, I know not.

Opponents in Div.

Seven were admitted to oppose, who were afterwards admitted Bach. of Div. and eight supplicated, some of which were afterwards Bach. of Div. also.

Jun. 21. Roberts Cleyton of Lino. Coll. Principal of Seaple Hall in Schoolstreets, stiled in the public Reg. Vir doctus.

Jul. 5. Henry Broke a Benedictine --- One Thomas Broke who had been of this University, (of Glocester College I think) did supplicate for, or at least took, a degree in this University, but 'twas before the time that these Fasti begin. In 1504, Jan. 21. he was confirmed Abbat of Muchelney of the Benedictine Order, in Somersetshire, after the death of one William Wyke; and dying in 1523 John Shirbourne was confirmed Abbat in his place, on the 6 of Nov. in the same year.

Will. Taylour a Canon regular of the Premonstratensian Order, was also admitted the same day (Feb. 3.)

Besides which three, were about 33 admitted, and more than twenty that supplicated, who were not admitted this year. Among these last, I find one Rich. Wraxhall a Benedictine, who on the 7 Jan. 1516 was confirmed Abbat of Arbelney in Somersetshire, in the place of John Wellington some time before deceased: which Wellington had been confirmed Abbat 27 July 1503, in the place of one John George, who had been elected Prior 29 Oct. 1485, on the death of Robert Hill, who died on the tenth day of the same month. Thirteen supplicated for the said Degree, but not, as I conceive, admitted this year, among whom Rich. Gray a Canon regular was one, (written in the publick register *) Canonicus regularis & Guardianus S. Augustini and John Essex a Benedictine was another, of whom I shall make mention in 1515.

Doct. of Physick.

James Radbourne Bach. of Physick did supplicate on the 29. June to be licensed to proceed in that faculty, but whether he was admitted, it appears not, nor that he stood in the Comitia.

On the 18. of December died Will. Gilbert Bach. of Arts of Magd. Coll. who, in his Epitaph in the Chappel of the said Coll. is stiled Archidiaconus Salopia; but the day and year when he was admitted Bach. of Arts, appears not in the public Registers. In a certain Writing (a) dated 24 March 1515, (which is a quarter of an year after W. Gilbert died) I find one Mr. Henry Marten to occur Archdeacon of Salop, together with Mr. William Webbe Archdeacon of Hereford and William Porter Chaunter thereof; so that I suppose that the said Marten succeeded in that Dignity William Gilbert.

Doct. of Musick.

Robert Perrot Bach. of Musick, and about this time Organist of Magd. College, supplicated that he might be licensed to proceed in the said Faculty. — His request was granted conditionally that he compose a Mass and one Song, before he really proceed, or stand in the Comitia; but whether he was admitted or licensed to proceed, it doth not appear in the Register. This Robert Perrot, who was the second Son of George Perrot of Haroldston near Haverford West in Pembrokeshire (of an ancient and knightly Family living there) was an eminent Musitian of his time, and did compose several Church Services and other Matters, which have been since antiquated. He was a Benefactor to the said College, as his Widow, and his eldest Son Simon afterwards were, and is Ancestor to the Perrots of North-Ley in Oxfordshire, I mean to that Family of the Perrots, (for there are two that live there) who are called Gentlemen Perrots. He gave way to Fate 20 April 1550, and was buried in the North Isle or Alley joyning to the Church of S. Peter in the East in Oxon.

Besides these who were admitted Doctors of Divinity, supplicated for the said degree about 20; among whom were (1) Will. Malvern Lord Abbat of S. Leland (b) calls Malvern alias Parker late Abbat of Glocester, who made a Chappel joyning to the Church of Glocester to be buried in. (2) Rob. Showldbam or Shuldeim mentioned under the year 1511. He was a Benedictin or Black Monk, and now, or soon after, Lord Abbat of S. Saviour or S. Mary Overie in Southwark. Also *Tho. Bach. of Arts.

Thomas Garret was this year admitted, but the Month or Day when, appears not, because the Register is imperfect; however in the year following he occurs by the Title of Bach. of Arts. — He was afterwards Curate of Honey-lane in London; and being much addicted to the Opinions of Martin Luther, went to Oxon in 1526, and dispersed divers prohibited Books among his Acquaintance and Contemporaries, as Anth. Delaber of S. Albans Hall, afterwards a Civilian of Gloc. College, Nich. Udall and John Dior both of C. C. C. John Clerke, Hen. Sumner, Will. Betts, John Taverner a Musitian, of Card. Coll. &c. All which being Lutherans, or Hereticks as they were then called, suffer'd much. At length Thomas Garret, after several Flights from place to place, Sculkings and Imprisonments, was burnt in Smithfield near London, with Dr. Robert Barnes and William Hierome, an. 1541, as John Fox, in his Book of Acts and Monuments of the Church, will at large tell you.

Between the ending of one Register and the beginning of another, are the Acts of the Congregation of this year wanting, many of which were torn out from the former.

Maft. of Arts,

Their Admissions being all wanting in the public Register, I therefore recur'd to my MS. Book of Inceptions, and there found that 30 Masters stood in the public AR or Comitia, but none can I yet find, who were afterwards Bishops, Writers, or Men of note.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Feb. . . . Ralph Barnack of New Coll.

A Supplication was this year made for one Will. Woddysbury a Monk of the Order of S. Holbeach alias Randes, was elected Prior 13 March 1535, and afterwards became the first Dean of Worcester.

Oct. ... Fernandus or Ferdinandus de Victoria Doctor of Physick (beyond the Seas) now Physitian to King Hen. 8. and the Queen Consort. He, Dr. Thomas Lynacre, and Dr. John Chambré, were the first Founders of the College of Physicians at London.

Oct. ... William Arden a Dominican or Black Fryer, Prior elect of the College or Convent of the Black Fryers in the South Suburb of Oxon, and D. of D. in the Court of Rome.

Feb. ... Thomas Wellys or Wells Master of Arts of this University and Doctor of Divinity elsewhere. — Whether he be the same with Thomas Wellys mention'd in the Incorporations under the year 1510, I know not.

This year, the month I cannot tell, I find that there was a kind of a Supplicat made for one Magnus a Doctor beyond the Sea, to be incorporated here, but in what Faculty, I cannot yet discover. This Person was the same with Thomas Magnus who was a Foundling at Newark upon Trent in Nottinghamshire, and had the Sirname (a) of Among given to him, as being maintained among certain People there; or, as some say, by certain Yorkshire Clothiers, who occasionally travelled that way early in the Morning and first found him. At length being brought up in Literature in one of the Universities in England, became so much noted to King Henry 8. that he was by him not only promoted to several Dignities, but sent Ambassador into various Countries; whereupon he was, by the generality of People, called Dr. Magnus, and by some Magnus Doctor.

Among

Among several Embassies that he was employed in, was that into Scotland an. 1524, where he was employed as the Kings Agent to procure his business, and to encline the young Kings ear towards him, as also to give intelligence, &c. Among the Dignities he enjoyed were (1) The Archdeaconry of the East-Riding of Yorkshire, to which he was collated in June, 1504 upon the promotion of Dr. Richard Mayhew to the See of Hereford. (2) The Sacristship of the Chappel of our Lady and the holy Angels at York, to which he was collated in Dec. the same year. (3) A Canonry in the Church of Windfore, an. 1520, which he resigning in the latter end of 1547 was succeeded by Dr. Richard Cox. (4) The Mastership of the hospital of St. Leonard at York, &c. And among the benefices he had, was the rectory of Bedall in Yorkshire one. Towards his latter end he founded a Free-school in the place of his nativity, which he well endowed; and paying his last debt to nature at Sefay or Sessay in Yorkshire 27. Aug. or thereabouts, in 1550, was buried in the Church there. Whereupon John Dakyn LL. D. was installed in his Archdeaconry of the East-riding, 13. April 1551. I have seen a copy of his last Will and Test. dated 8. March 1549. and proved 30. Apr. 1551, wherein he desires that if he dye at his house at Sybithorp, or nigh those parts, to be buried in the Trinity Isle of the Church of Newark upon Trent, afore the midst of the altar there, for there he was baptized, &c. He makes mention therein of his singular good Lord and Master Savage sometimes Archbishop of York and his singular good Lord the Earl of Wilts. and Lord Treasurer of England.

One George Marshall did also supplicate, but was not admitted.

Bach. Musick.

Feb. . . John Sylvester did supplicate, and was, as it seems admitted in that month, being at the same time accounted very eminent in his profession.

Bach. of Arts.

About 60 were admitted, and about 29. supplicated who were not admitted this year.

Jul. 8. John Mason, about this time Probationer-Fellow of All-souls Coll. was then admitted. --- He was born at a mercate town called Abendon in Berks, the son of a Cowherd, by his Wife, the Sister of a Monk at that place. Which last Person finding him very apt to learn, he caused him to be trained up in Grammaticals and Academicals in this University, where he obtained for him a Fellowship in the said Coll. of Alls. Soon after, his pregnant and acute parts being taken notice of by great Persons, he was upon the motion of Sir Thomas More, sent by the King to the University of Paris to be accomplished with other parts of learning. After his return thence, he became a favourite to K. Hen. 8. who employed him in several Embassies and made him one of his Privy Council. After that Kings death he was made a Privy-counsellour to K. Ed. 6. and tho he was a Knight, and a perfect Lay-man, yet he enjoyed several Church Dignities, or as one (a) saith, he was a great intruder into Ecclesiastical Livings. Among which the Deanery of Winchester Cathedral was one, installed therein, in the place of William Kingsmill the last Prior of St. Swithins Monastery there, and the first Dean of the said Cathedral, in the third of Ed. 6. Dom. 1549. In 1552 he succeeded Dr. Richard Cox in the Chancellourship of this University: which honourable office he keeping till 1556, did then resign it purposely to make room for Cardinal Pole then designing to visit, and to do great matters for, it. He was also a Privy Counsellour to Queen Mary, and much respected by her, but did not hold any Ecclesiastical Dignity in her Reign, as I can yet learn. For giving up the Deanery of Winchester in the first year of her Reign, Dom. 1553. Edmund Steward LL. D. of Cambridge, was then installed, and kept it till 1559. After her death, he became a Privy Counsellour to Queen Elizabeth, and in 1559 was elected Chanc. of this University again, being then Treasurer of the Queens Chamber, and Master of the Hospital in Abendon, (the erection of which he had before procured, as also the Incorporation of that Town) but whether a possessor of any Dignity in the Church in her Reign, I find not. He paid his last debt to nature 20. Apr. 1566, and was buried in the North Chancel, or the North Isle joyning to the Chancel of the Cathedral Ch. of St. Paul in London; whereupon Sir Franc. Knoll Knight succeeded him in the Treasurership of the Qu. Chamber. Soon after was a large Epitaph set over his grave; which, tho since consumed, yet his memory lives among the learned Men in the Encomia (b) illustrium virorum, penned by John Leland.

Three supplicated in the former and as many in the latter.

Maft. of Arts.

June 19. Thomas Lupset who had studied four years at Paris and Oxon, was then admitted M. of A.

Jul. 5. Thomas Runcorne --- He was afterwards made Provost of the Collegiat Church of St. Elizabeth (Daughter of the King of Hungary) founded in the time of Ed. 1. in the meadow of St. Stephen, situate before, and opposite to, the gates of Wolvesey Castle near to Winchester. This Thomas Runcorne surrendered the said Coll. into the hands of K. Hen. 8. and thereupon he was made one of the first Pichendaries of the Cath. Church of Winchester. Afterwards the King granted the said Coll. and its site to Thomas Lord Writbousley, who sold it to the Warden and Fellows of Wykeham's Coll. near to Winchester for 360 l. provided that they either make the Church there a Grammar School for 70 Persons to be taught therein, or to pull it down to the ground before Pentecost an. 1547. Which last they did sooner than the first, because it should not be prejudicial to their School. This Thomas Runcorne was a learned Man, and among the learned Men of his time is he remembered by Leland in his Encomia beforementioned, p. 67.

Bach. of Div.

Dec. 7. Father Richard Stopys or Stopes Abbat of Meaux or Melfa in Yorkshire of the Cistercian Order, now studying in St. Bernards College.

Besides these were 8 at least admitted, and 12 at least that supplicated; all whom, except two, were of religious Orders.

Several also were admitted to oppole in Divinity, that were not admitted Bach. of that faculty; among whom were Father Rieb. Wyche of Whalley a Cistercian Monk now studying in St. Bernards College.

Doct. of Law.

Not one admitted either in the Can. or Civ. Law, and only Will. Lytherland. Bach. of the Can. Law supplicated to be admitted Doctor of that faculty, and John Noble beforementioned, supplicated to be admitted Dr. of the Civ. Law.

Doct. of Physick.

Jul. 3. Thomas Moscroff or Musgrave of Mert. Coll. --- In 1522 he was Card. Wolseys Physick reader in, and in 1523 he was Commissary of, the University, being then a Student in Divinity; and on the eleventh of March the same year he did supplicate the ven. Congregation of Regents, that it might be dispensed with him from circuiting and certain exercises preceding, if so be it should happen that he should be admitted to the reading of the Sentences. The reason for this was because he was Commissary, and that it did not become a Doctor to circuit for an inferior Degree. This supplication was granted conditionally that he Preach a Sermon in the Church of St. Peter in the East. Afterwards, his exercise being all performed, as twice answering in the Schools and 4 times Preaching in St. Maries Ch. (all done in the space of one year) he was admitted to the reading of the Sentences, that is to the Degree of Bach. of Divinity by Dr. John Young Bishop of Callipolis and Warden of New Coll. in the presence of 8 Doctors of Divinity. In 1527 he would have proceeded in that faculty, but was prevented by death.

Doct.

Doct. of Dec. and Chancellour to the Bishop of Batbe and Wells was constituted by him the said Bishop his Vicar General in the beginning of June 1526, and dyed in Apr. or May 1529.

This year, but the day or month I know not, was a supplicate made in the behalf of Richard Sampson sometimes of Trin. hall in Cambridge, to be incorporated LL. D. but whether he was so, it appears not, and therefore I shall only say these matters of him, that he had that Degree conferr'd upon him beyond the Seas, was incorporated at Cambridge the last year, was installed Dean of Windsore by proxy 14. Nov. 1523, being then in remote parts about the Kings affairs; made Dean of St. Pauls Cathedral about 1530, Dean of Lichfield in 1532, Treasurer of the Church of Salisbury, 16. Mar. 1534, Bishop of Chichester in 1536, translated thence to Lichfield in 1543, and published several books, which shew him to have been a learned Man, the titles of which you may see in the Oxford Catalogue. He did at Eccleshall in Staffordshire (the seat belonging to the B. of Lichfield) on the 23. Sept. 1554.

In like manner was such another supplicate made for Garniel Clifton Doctor of Decrees, Canon of Windsore and the Kings Chaplain, but no appearance there is that he was really incorporated. He was afterwards Dean of Hereford, and dying in 1541, had for his successor in that Deanery, if I mistake not, Dr. Hugh Curwyn, who before had Preached zealously for the Kings divorce from Queen Catherine.

Mar. 31. John Beconsau of New Coll. the famed Grecian of his time.

May 27. George Cotes of Ball. Coll. --- He was afterwards B. of Chester.

Jul. 21. David Talley or Tolley the noted Grammarian of St. Maries hall.

Seventy in all, or more, were admitted, and about 22 supplicated for the said Degree, who were not admitted.

This year was a supplicate made for George Carew (of Broadgates hall as it seems) to have the Degree of Bach. of Arts conferr'd on him, but whether he was really admitted, having spent about 4 years in the University, it appears not. This Person being the younger Son of a Baron, (descended from the Carews of Pembrokeshire) retired afterwards to the royal Court, and married, but soon after burying his Wife to his great grief, travelled beyond the Seas, and improved his knowledge as to Men and Manners very much. After his return, he took holy Orders, was made Archdeacon of Tornefs, and if I mistake not, either Prebend or Canon of Exeter. In 1552 he was constituted Dean of Bristol in the place of one John Whiteheare, who, in the year before, had succeeded William Snow the first Dean; and in the beginning of July 1555 was made Preb. of Isarcomb in the Church of Salisbury. In the beginning of Aug. 1556 he was made Preb. of Netherbury in Ecclesia in the same Church; and in the same year, notwithstanding he had been deprived of the Prebendship of Barton in the Ch. of Wells, an. 1554, (1. and 2. of Ph. and Mar.) yet he was made Preb. of Dulstingcote in the same Church, on the resignation of William Thynne, and double beneficed in the Dioc. of Wells during the Reign of Queen Mary. On the 27. of Oct. 1558 he became Chaunter of the Church of Salisbury, and in 1559 (Qu. Elizabeth being then in the Throne,) he was made Dean of the Queens Chappel, Dean of Windsore, Dean of Ch. Ch. in Oxon, and about that time Master of the Savoy Hospital. In 1560 he became Dean of Bristol again, upon the going away of Hen. Jolliff, who had enjoyed it most of Qu. Maries Reign, and about the same time was made Dean of Exeter and Rector of Silverton in Devon. In 1561 he gave up his Deanery of Ch. Ch. and was succeeded therein by Thomas Sampson a Nonconformist. In 1572 he resigned the Deanery of Windsore, with a Canonry in that Church, being then succeeded in the former by Will. Day Bach. of Div. and in 1580 he resign'd the Deanery of Bristol, wherein he was succeeded by John Sprint; but when he resign'd that of Exeter, I cannot tell. He finished this mortal life in 1585 aged 85 and was buried in the Church of St. Giles in the fields near London, leaving then behind him a Son named George, afterwards Earl of Tornefs, and another named Peter, a Knight.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 21. Richard Parker a compounder, or one that payed double, or treble fees for his Degree, as having a temporal estate, or a rich Dignity, or Dignities.

Feb. 4. John Foxe Archdeacon of Winchester --- On the same day he was also admitted Bach. of the Can. Law. See more among those following.

Besides these two, were about 22 admitted; among whom was Thomas Day of Ally Coll. who was afterwards constituted the fecond Canon of Osney, when first founded by K. Hen. 8. and in few years following was by him made the first Canon of the third Prebendship of Ch. Church, at what time Osney was translated thereunto. He died in Feb. 1567, and was buried on the 22. of the same month in the Cathedral of Ch. Ch.

Six also, or thereabouts supplicated for the said Degree, that were not admitted this year.

Bach. of Can. Law.

Jul. 10. Henry Morgan --- He was afterwards Bishop of St. Davids.

Feb. 4. John Foxe Archdeacon of the Dioc. of Winchester and Preb. of Rescombe in the Church of Salisbury. --- I take him to be the same John Foxe who was afterwards made Fellow of C. C. Coll. by the Founder thereof. For in the Catalogue of Scholars and Fellows of that house made by Rob. Hegge, (whom I have mention'd among the writers under the year 1629.) I find one John Foxe a Londoner born, to be put in Fellow there 1523, being then, or about that time Archdeacon of Surrey, as the said Catalogue tells us. As for Foxe beforemention'd, who was Bach. of Can. Law, being nearly related to Foxe Bishop of Winchester, became Archdeacon of that place in 1519 upon the resignation of one Hugh Ashton, and he upon the resignation of John Frost 1511, and he upon the resignation of Rob. Frost, 1502, who succeeded Dr. John Morton that was afterwards Archb. of Canterbury.

Besides these two were about 18 admitted, among whom was Antho. Draycot, besides six or more that supplicated.

Besides which, were 25 more admitted, and about 4 that supplicated.

Within the compass of this year were three ABs celebrated in St. Maries Church, viz. the first on the last of March, wherein stood nineteen, the second on the 21. July, wherein stood nine, and the third on 23. March, wherein stood twelve, Masters of Arts.

Jul. 17. Rich. Mawdley or Mawdieu Archdeacon of Leycester. --- See among the D. of D. 1529.

Six or more were besides them admitted, and 12 that supplicated.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

June 23. John Olyver --- In Feb. 1532 he succeeded Dr. John Hyden in the Deanery of the Coll. founded at Oxon, by K. Hen. 8. and dying in Doctors Commons at London in the month of May, or thereabouts, an. 1552, left much of his substance to pious uses. On the 2 of June the same year, (he being then dead) Leonard Bilson succeeded him in the Prebendship of Teynton Regu with Talmeton in the Church of Salisbury.

John Feyster of Ally Coll. was admitted the same day.

John Tregonwell sometimes of Broadgates, afterwards Principal of Vine, hall alias Peckwaters Inn, was admitted also the same day (June 23.) --- He was an eminent and learned Man in his profession, and therefore was employed to be Proctor for K. Hen. 8. in that long and costly cause of his divorce from Qu. Catherine; wherein shewing himself very diligent, was by him Knighted, and for an inconsiderable sum of money, had settled on him and his heirs for ever the rich demesne and site of the mitred Abbey of Milton alias Middleton for Benedictine Monks in Dorsetshire. He gave way to fate in the latter end of the year 1564 (7. Elizab.) and was buried in the Church there.

Doct. of Can. Law.

June 23. Father John Burton a Canon Regular, Prior of St. Frideswydes Monastery in, afterwards Abbat of Osney near to, Oxford.

John Prymme a Secular Chaplain was admitted the same day --- He was afterwards Subdean and Can. resident. of Lincolne, and dying 29. Apr. 1558, was buried in the Cathedral Church of Lincolne.

Anthony Draycot lately Principal of White hall (involved afterwards within the limits of Jesw Coll.) and of Pirye hall adjoining, was admitted also the same day --- In 1542 he was made Archdeacon of Stow in the place of Edward Darbye sometimes of Linc. Coll. deceased, and in the year following Archdeacon of Huntington in the place of Dr. Richard Gwent deceased. He was Chancellour for a time to Dr. Longland Bish. of Linc. and to Dr. Ralph Bayne Bish. of Lichfield, in which Offices he acted much against the Protestants, as John Fox in his book of ABs and Monuments of the Church &c. will tell you. In the beginning of Qu. Elizabeths Reign he was committed Prisoner to the Fleet, and suffer'd much upon account of of Religion. Nich. Saunders tells (a) us that one Draycot Archdeacon of York, was ejected from that Dignity, or left it of his own accord in the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth, but I find no such Man in my Catalogue of Archdeacons of that place, which is punctually made from the registers of the Church of York.

Doct. of Div.

Jul. 3. Fath. Peter Lee a Monk of the Order of St. Benedict.

This year Jun. 2. Rowland Philips M. of A. supplicated for the Degrees of Bach. and Doctor of Divinity, and was, as it seems, admitted. Soon after, by the power of the Archbishop of Canterbury he was thrust in Warden of Merton College. He was now Vicar of Croyden in Surrey, one of the Canons of Pauls, a famous and notable Preacher and a forward Man in the Convocation of the Clergy, an. 1523, in acting and speaking much against the payment of a Subsidie to the King.

Incorporations.

May 2. George Henneage Bach. of the Canon Law of Cambridge, Archdeacon of Oxford and Chaplain to John Bishop of Lincolne. — With him it was then dispensed that he might (b) uti pallis ac sumptuosus omni vestitu, pellibus ac serico pertinet. In Apr. 1521 he was installed Archdeacon of Oxford on the death of Christoph. Urswyke, in 1528 he became Dean of Lincolne on the death of John Constable, who dyed 15 July in the same year, and in 1542 Archdeacon of Lincolne upon the attainder of Richard Pates, I mean him who was afterwards B. of Worcester. This G. Henneage died in 1549 and was buried in the Cath. Ch. of Linc. near to the tomb of Mr. Sim. Fosherbie, sometimes Chanc. of that Church, directly before the image of the Virgin Mary without her Chappel. In the Archdeaconry of Linc. succeeded Nich. Bullyngham in Sept. 1549. and the same year succeeded John Tayler D. D. in the Deanery.

Feb. 18. Nich. de Burgo a Minorite, Bach. of Divinity of the University of Paru — He was an Italian born, did succeed Dr. Tho. Brynknell in the reading of Card. Wolsey's Divinity Lecture, lately erected in this University: And when the matter of the divorce of K. H. 8. from Qu. Catherine was in agitation in the University, he shewed himself so forward for it, that the Women of Oxon did not only scold at him publicly, but threw stones after him as he passed along the street. Whereupon complaining of their rudeness, thirty of them were the next day imprisoned in Bocardo where they continued 3 days and as many nights. I find one Nicholaus Italus to be Sub-commissary of this University in Aug. 1534. whom I take to be the same with Nich. de Burgo beforemention'd, a very learned Man of his time.

Feb. 19. Nich. Cracher or Kratzer Bach. of Arts of Colen and Wittenburgh.

In the month of May one John Taylor Dr. of Decrees and of the sacred Canons beyond the Seas, having been lately incorporated at Cambridge, supplicated for incorporation in this University, which being granted, he was, as it seems, taken into the bosome thereof. — This Person who was Archdeacon of Derby and Bucks. and had been Rector of Sutton Colfield in Warwickshire was Clerk of the Parliaments that sat in 1515. (7. Hen. 8.) and prolocutor of the Convocation of the Clergy that was dissolved 21 Dec. the same year. In which Parliaments and Convocation, arose those most dangerous seditions between the Clergy and Seculars concerning several Ecclesiastical Liberties. In 1528. the said Dr. Taylor, who had been employed in several Embassies beyond the Seas, succeeded Thomas Hamball in the Mastership of the Rolls, and dying in 1534, was succeeded in that office by Thomas Cromwell. This Dr. Taylor who was a learned Canonist, and a Statesman, was born (being the Son, I suppose, of a Taylor) in a poor Cottage at Barton, in the Parish of Tatnall in Staffordshire, and being the eldest of the Tremelli, which his Mother had at one birth, were by command of the King, to whom they were presented (*) as he rode in hunting in that Country, carefully educated in good Letters. Afterwards in gratitude to the place that gave him birth, he built a fair Chappel upon, or near, the site where the Cottage stood. In his rectory of Sutton Colfield succeeded George Henneage beforemention'd.

Dec. 15. Richard Pates or Patys of Corp. Ch. Coll. — He was afterwards through several preferments Bishop of Worcester. Besides him were about 52 admitted, many of which were afterwards Prebendaries and Canons, and but four who supplicated.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

Oct. 27. Petrus Garfias de La'o M. of A. of the University of Parmuse, and about this time a Lecturer or Canon of Cardinal Coll. in Oxon. was then admitted Bach. of the Civil Law.

Feb. 8. John Lawrence of Alls. Coll. — He was afterwards made Archdeacon of Wiltshire, upon the deprivation of John Pollard, 10. Aug. 1554. being the second year of Qu. Mary. He died in 1568, having before been deprived of his Archdeaconry. See in an. 1578. among the Doctors of Law.

Ten at least were admitted, among whom were Robert Wratton, Richard Mychell, Robert Norbury, &c. Benedictine Monks, Thomas Krikham a Minorite, Nicholas Cartwright, Anthony Moineaux, &c.

Among these must not be forgotten William Hyberden (of Exeter Coll. as it seems) who was admitted 23 Nov. having been before, as 'tis said in the publick register, Bach. of the Canon Law. He was in these times, and especially after, a most eminent Preacher, a Person of great devotion and of devout fasting, and being a most zealous Bigot for the Church of Rome; did, while he was beneficed in, or near, Bristow, make it his sole employment to preach against the hereticks, as they were in his time so called, viz. Luther, Melancthon, Zwinglius, John Fryth, William Tindall, Hugh Latimer, &c. When King Ed. 6. reigned, he withdrew, and continued silent as much as he durst, but when Queen Mary came to the Crown, he made it his sole employment to ride about the Country and Preach in every Church, that he approached, against them. See more of him in John Fox his book of Acts and Monuments of the Church, under the year 1555, where you will find him called by him by the name of Hubberdin an o'd Divine of Oxford.

Seven also there were that supplicated for the said Degree of Bach. of Div. among whom were William Basing a Benedictine, Father Philip Davies a Dominican, William Swadell of the same Order, &c.

Doct. of Can. Law.

Doct. of Div.

Apr. 24. Fr. John Maudley or Maudlyn a Dominican or Preaching Fryer.

June 17. Fr. Richard Cromer an Austin Fryer — He is stiled in his admission Compositor that is a Compounder, because he paid double, or treble, fees for his Degree, being then, as it should seem, a rich Dignitary.

Feb. 7. Nich. de Burgo a Minorite — He is mention'd in the Incorporations in the beforegoing year.

Incorporations.

Oct. 26. Joban. Ludovicus Vives LL. D. beyond the Seas, was then incorporated, being this year a Lecturer in Oxon. as I have told you among the Writers, under the year 1544.

In the same month of Oct. Richard Wolman Doctor of Decrees of Cambridge and an Archdeacon, supplicated to be incorporated, but whether his supplication was granted it appears not. See more in the Incorporations 1531.

In the beginning of March one William Throckmorton LL. D. beyond the Seas, supplicated also to be incorporated; which was granted simpliciter. In the Chancel of the Church at Shottsbrook in Berks. is an Epitaph for the said Throckmorton, wherein he is stiled Gardianus istius Ecclesie. Which Church was a Collegiat Church, and valued at the suppression of religious places in the Reign of K. Hen. 8. to be worth 33 l. 18 s. 8 d. per an. He died 12 Jan. 1535 and was there buried.

Bibliander* tells (†) us that he really thinks that in him, Christian piety, all virtues and the muses had taken up their habitation. He hath written several books, the titles of most of which, you may see in the Bodleian Catalogue, and died in the prime of his years 1541.

Four only were admitted to, and eleven or more supplicated for, that Degree, whom I cannot find admitted this or some years after. Among them were. (1) William Sandwyck a Benedictine Monk afterwards Warden of Canterbury College in Oxon. (2) Robert Carter of Magdalen College about this time Steward of the Household of Cardinal Wolsey and afterwards Canon of the College of King Hen. 8. in Oxon. (3) Oswald Benson Minister of the House of St. Robert near to Knaresborough, of the Order of the Holy Trinity.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

June ult. Edward Carne or Kerne now or lately Principal of Greek hall in St. Edwards Parish. --- He was the Son of Howell Carne of Cowbridge in Glamorganshire, by his Wife Cicely Daugh. of William Kemys of Newport; and lineally descended from Thomas Le Carne second Son of Ithyn King of Gwent. --- He was a wise Man, learned in the Civil Law, and afterwards Knighted by the Emperour Charles 5. In 1530 I find him the Kings Orator at Rome to remonstrate to his holiness that the King was not bound by the Law to make his appearance either by Person, or by proxy in the Court of Rome, according to a citation which was coming to him for his appearance in the matter of his divorce from Queen Catherine. In the Reign of Queen Mary (who valued him) he was Ambassador there for her, as also for Queen Elizabeth, but when the Pope was stirred with anger, upon the resolution of the last, to expel his power from England, he commanded (a) Sir Edward Carne to lay down his Office of Ambassador, and to take upon him the Government of the English Hospital at Rome. Yet, as 'tis thought by some, this crafty old Knight did voluntary chuse his banishment, out of a burning zeal to the Roman Catholick Religion, and eagerly desired to continue there, (though sent for to come home by the Queen) rather than return to his Country which was then ready to be overspread with Heresie, as he call'd it. He died at Rome on the 14 of the Cal. of Febr. according to the account there followed, in 1561 (about which time the Abbat of Martinego the Popes Nuncio was denied entrance into England) and was buried there in the Church belonging to the Monastery of St. Gregory in Calo. He was always accounted the last Ambassador of the Kings of England to the Pope, till Roger Earl of Castlemain was sent thither by King James 2. an. 1687.

Jun. ult. Richard Gwent of Allsouls College, Principal or Chief Moderator of Canon Law School situated near St. Edwards Church. --- He was about this time Archdeacon of Brecknock, afterwards of London, (in the place, as it seems, of one William Clyffe,) Dean of the Arches, and at length in 1542 Archdeacon of Huntingdon, upon the promotion of William Knyght to the See of Barb and Wells. He gave way to fate in 1543 being then Archdeacon of two places at least London and Huntingdon) and was buried in the middle of St. Pauls Cathedral in London. This Person who was a Welsh Man born, was well known to John Leland the Antiquary, who, in his Encomia illustrium & eruditum virorum in Anglia, doth highly celebrate him, by the name of Richard Ventanus Juridicus for his virtues and learning.

Feb. 13. Henry Morgan about this time Principal of St. Edwards hall, situated in the Church-yard of St. Edward and near to Canon Law School. --- He was afterwards Bishop of St. David.

Doct. of Can. Law.

Mar. 10. Richard Muge or Mugg of Allsouls College. --- He was now benediced and dignified in the Church, and was accounted by all that knew him a learned Canonist.

Doct. of Div.

Not one was admitted this year, nor one supplicated for the said Degree, only Richard Stubbs or Stubbs Master of Arts, Bachelor of Divinity and Master of Ballsol College.

Incorporations.

May . . . William Middleton Doct. of the Civ. Law of the University of Lovaine.

June . . . Richard Brynckley a Minorite or Franciscan Fryer, Dr. of Divinity of Cambridge, and, as our publick register saith, General Minister of the Minorites throughout England. --- His supplication, which was granted simpliciter, and his incorporation, are set down in the said register under this year (1524) yet perusing Cambridge (b) tables containing the names of such who were admitted Doctors of that University, he is put down there, under the year 1527, as being then admitted D. of D. In the said Generalship or Provincialship he succeeded Dr. Henry Standish, (whom I have mention'd among the Writers) and was succeeded by Steph. Baron a Cambridge Man, Confessor to K. Hen. 8. and an eminent Preacher of his time.

This year, but the day or month appears not, was a Supplicare made for one Rowland Lee Doctor of the Canon Law of Cambridge, to be incorporated into that degree; but whether he really was so, I cannot justly tell, his Incorporation having perhaps been neglected to be registred. This Rowl. Lee was the Son of Will. Lee of Morpeth in Northumberland, Treasurer of Barwick, by Isabel his Wife, Daughter and Heir of Andr. Trollop Kt. who, after he had been educated in Academical Learning in S. Nicholas House in Cambridge, became first Chancellour to Dr. Jeffr. Blythe Bishop of Lichfield, and afterwards Prebendary of Corburgh in that Church. At length, for the several Services which he had done to please the unlatiable desire of K. Hen. 8. Jul. 12. Arth. Bokeley or Bulkley before mention'd.

13. Hugh ap Rice or Price. — He was afterwards Prebendary of Rochester, Treasurer of the Cath. Ch. of S. David, &c. By his Will dated 8 Aug. 1574, and proved the last day of the same month, he bequeathed threescore pounds per an. to Jesus Coll. in Oxon, conditionally that he might have the name of Founder of it. In the Margin of the said Will, are his Arms painted, viz. Gules a Chevron Ermine between three flower de Life or, which are not the Arms that that Coll. now give, or own, tho the Society acknowledged him to be their Founder.

Besides these two, were two others that supplicated for the said degree, namely John Worthall lately Principal of New Inn and Thomas Parker: the last of which, tho I find him not admitted, yet about this time I find (e) him written Decretorum Doctor, Collegiorum de Stafford & de Tomworth Decanus, &c. In 1522 he became Chancellor of the Dioc. of Worcester in the place of Dr. John Bell, who had succeeded Dr. Tho. Hanyball in that Office 1518, and afterwards was made Chancellour of the Church of Salisbury, in the place of one Edward Farmer; which Dignity he keeping to the time of his death, was succeeded by Rog. Jul. 13. Tho. Ware of Oriel Coll. — Afterwards Provost thereof. He hath this Character given of him by a learned (f) person, Vir, & vita & eruditione clarissimus. I find another Thom. Ware who was not a sec. Priest as the former was, but a Monk of the Cistercian Order, and sometimes a Student in S. Bernard's Coll in the North Suburb of Oxon. Afterwards he became the last Abbat of Flaxley in Gloucestershire (in the place of Will. Bawdley) and living to see his House dissolved, and himself and his Brethren turn'd out thence, he retired to Aston Rowant near to Thame in Oxfordshire, where spending the remaining part of his days in devotion and retiredness, gave way at length to Fate, in a good old Age, an. 1546, whereupon his Body was buried in the Yard belonging to the Church there.

John Fryer was, upon account of Religion, committed Prisoner to the Master of the Savoy, where he did much solace himself with playing on the Lute, having good skill in Musick; for which reason, a Friend of his would needs commend him to the Master, but the Master answered, Take heed, for he that playeth is a Devil, because he is departed from the Catholick Faith. Afterwards he was set at liberty, and travelling beyond the Seas, he returned to that Religion wherein he was educated, was made Doctor of Physick, and after his Return, he settled in the Parish of S. Besides these two were about 37 admitted.

This year, but the month or day I know not, was a Supplicat made in behalf of one Tho. Winter to be Bach. of Arts; but whether he was admitted, I cannot, in all my searches, find. This Tho. Winter who was Nephew (or rather nat. Son) to Cardinal Tho. Wolsey, had several Dignities confer'd upon him before he was of Age, by the means of the said Cardinal: among which was the Archdeaconsry of York, or of the West Riding of Yorkshire, on the death of Hugh Ashton, in which he was installed 31 August 1523, being about that time Chancellour of the Church of Sarum in the place of one William Wilton: also the Deanery of Wells, in the place of Dr. William Cofin sometimes Fellow of Kings College an. 1525; and upon the death of Thomas Dalby, (which was in January the same year) he had not only the Provostship of Beverley confer'd upon him, but also the Archdeaconsry of Richmond; in which last he was installed 24 of Mar. the same year, &c. This Tho. Winter, with several others, after they had been maintained in the Schools at Oxon by the Cardinal, were also by him maintained in the University of Paris, to obtain, if possible, proficiency in such Arts and Sciences which our Universities in England could not yield. The Governor or Tutor to Tho. Winter was Tho. Lupset of Corp. Ch. Coll. in this University, to whom, as also to Winter, the Cardinal would write that the said Winter should study the Divines Logick Questions, meaning, I suppose, the Logick Questions of John Duns. In the Schools at Paris I find him conversant in 1528, and what degree, or degrees, he took there, I cannot tell. Sure I am, that about the time of the Cardinals fall, he gave up all or most of his Dignities; for about 1530 Dr. Richard Wolman succeeded him in the Deanery of Wells; and in Decemb. 1529, Will. Knyght LL. D. succeeded in the Archdeaconsry of Richmond, and Edw. Lee in the Chancellourship of Sarum in Feb. following. As for the Archdeaconsry of York, he keeping it till 1540, then resigned it; whereupon Tho. Westby, Bac. of Div. was installed therein 26 June the same year; and whether he continued to be the last Provost of Beverley, I cannot in truth tell. The Arms, with which he sealed, did very much resemble those of Cardinal Wolsey, as it appears in the Office of Arms.

Nov. 9. John Pekyns of Exeter Coll. --- The Records of that House saith, that he was Proctor of the University, Canon of Westminster, Bach. of Div. and a Dignitary, &c.

Feb. 25. Alexand. Belfire of New Coll. --- He was afterwards the first Canon of Osney, the first Canon of the fourth Prebendship of Ch. Ch. and the first President of S. John's Coll. but whether Bach. of Div. it appears not in our Registers that are in the latter end of K. Hen. 8. and all the time of K. Ed. 6. very imperfect.

Feb. 18. Fr. Edw. Baskerville a Minorite. --- He was afterwards Gardian of the Coll. of Minorites or Franciscans in the South Suburb of Oxon.

Besides these were about 8 admitted, and 10 at least that supplicated.

On the 12 of June this year Will. Knyght M. A. supplicated the ven. Congregation to be admitted Bach. of Div. and the next month supplicated to proceed in the same Faculty; but whether either of them were granted, it appears not. This Will. Incorporations.

Oct. ... Stephen Gardiner Doct. of the Civ. Law of Cambridge. — He was now Bishop elect of Winchester, and had lately returned from his Embassy to Rome, to expedite the King's Divorce from Qu. Catherine, being then Secretary to the King, and commonly called by the name of Dr. Stephens. He was a learned man and of excellent parts, a great Statist, and a Writer of many Books, which are printed. I have seen one or more Letters written to him, while he was at Rome, by Card. Wolsey, who styling him by the name of Mr. Stevens, desires him and his Colleagues to spare no Labour and cost to obtain for him the Papacy, for the settlement of the state wherein the Church and all Christendom doth at present stand, as also the state of this Realm and of the Kings secret matter, (meaning the Divorce from Qu. Cath.) which if it should be brought to pass by any other means than by the Authority of the Church, I account this Prince and Realm utterly undone, &c. (an. 1529.) Many of the Letters written by this Dr. Gardiner to the King, Cardinal Wolsey, and others, are subscribed by the name of Stevens and Stephens.

Oct. ... John Bell Archdeacon of Glocester and Doct. of the Civil Law beyond the Seas. — He was afterwards Bishop of Worcester.

Wolman Dean of Wells, Doct. of Decrees, as the public Register under the year 1523 tells us, and Dr. of the Civil Law of an University beyond the Seas, as the said Reg. under this year saith, was incorporated Doct. of the Civ. Law. In 1532 he was made Canon of Windsore in the place of Dr. James Denton (mention'd under the year 1505) being then styled Consiliarius regius, and dying in the Summer time, 1537, at which time he left several Legacies to the Church of Wells, and to Clavering (in Essex) was buried in the Cloyster belonging to the Coll. of S. Stephen within the Palace of Westminster. In his Deanery succeeded Tho. Cromwel Secretary to K. Hen. 8. and in his Canonry one Rich. Arche, of whom will be mention made under the year 1537.

William Knight Archdeacon of Richmond, and Doctor of Law beyond the Seas. — He was afterwards Bishop of Barbe and Wells.

Oct. ... Ed. Lee D. of D. beyond the Sea, and Archbishop elect of York.

These five persons who were incorporated, were not then present in the University, but were deplomated, or had sent to each of them a Writing under the University Seal, to attest that they had the consent of the Commissary and Regents that they were embodied or incorporated.

Oct. 29. John Chamber Doctor of Physick beyond the Seas, was then incorporated. — A Certificate of it was sealed with the University Seal 16 Nov. following, and forthwith sent to him. This person, who had been Fellow of Mert. Coll. did, after he had taken the Degree of M. of A. travel into Italy 1502, studied Physick at Padua, and there took the Degree of Doctor in that Faculty. After his Return he became the Kings Physician, and (with Lynacre and Victoria) Founder of the Coll. of Physicians at London. Coll.* and about the same time was made Dean of the Kings Chappel dedicated to the blessed Vergin Mary and S. Stephen, within the Palace of Westminster; the Cloyster of curious Workmanship adjoining to which, he did not only build, but did give to it the said Chappel, and the Canons belonging thereunto for ever, certain Lands, which he afterwards, upon the dissolution, saw taken into the Kings hands. Afterwards he was made Treasurer of WVells, was double beneficed in Somersetshire and Torkshire, and without doubt had other Dignities. He died in 1549, whereupon his Canonry was bestowed on Orwel Holinshed, and his Archdeaconry on Gilb. Bourne, who was afterwards Bishop of Barbe and WVells. As for his Wardenship of Mert. Coll. he resigned in 1545 and his Treasurership of WVells in May 1543, in which last succeeded John Marler, sometimes Prior or Master of the House or Hospital of S. John Bapt. in WVells. There was another John Chamber equal in time almost with the former, who was Bishop of Peterborough, and died in 1556, as I have among the Bishops told you.

John Cardmaker* a Minorite, who had spent 16 years here and at Cambridge in Logic, Philosophy, and Divinity; but whether admitted, it appears not. This Cardmaker did about the time of the dissolution of Abbeys 1535, preach very freely against the Power of the Pope, and afterwards was made Prebendary of Wells. In the Reign of K. Ed. 6. he took to him a Wife, and had by her a Female Child, and became a Reader in Pauls, where his Lectures were so much offensive to the Rom. Cath. Party, that they abused him to his face, and with their knives would cut and haggle his Gown. About that time he was made Chancellor of the Church of Wells by the name of John Tayler alias Cardmaker, and was looked upon there and at London as the most zealous Minister to carry on the work of Reformation. At length when Qu. Mary came to the Crown he was deprived of his Spiritualities, and imprisoned in the Fleet, was had before the Bishop of London and the Spiritual Power, to know whether he would recant his Heresie as they called it, but he stilly denying it, and therefore condemned to dye, he was burnt in Smithfield 30 May 1555, as John Fox in his Book of Acts and Mon. of the Church will tell you.

He died 13 Jan. 1571, and was buried in the Church of Ingerſton in Essex on 11 Feb. following. The learned Camden (a) saith, that he was a man of approved Wisdom and exquisite Learning, and not so much memorable for those honorable Places and Offices of State which he bare, and for his oftentimes being sent in Embassy to foreign Princes, as for that being bred and brought up in good Learning, he well deserved of Learning in the University of Oxford, and was Over whose Grave tho there be no Inscription, (notwithstanding, as I remember, there is a Monument for him) yet his (a) contemporary in Mert. Coll. named Jo. Parkhurst, hath perpetuated his Memory by certain Epigrams.

Jan. 16. Fr. Will. Browne a Minorite. — One Will. Browne became Prior of Monk-Bretton in the Dioc. of York, about 1523, but I take him not to be the same with the Minorite.

29. Guy Eton, Eton or Eaton, a Minorite or Franciscan or Gray Fryer. — In the Reign of K. Ed. 6. he was Archdeacon of Glocester; but when Qu. Mary came to the Crown, he left that Dignity and certain Spiritualities, and went with his Companion and Friend John Jewell into Germany, and lived as an Exile at Strasburgh; from whence returning in the beginning of Qu. Eliz. he was restored to his Archdeaconry, and kept it to 1571, and after. He is stiled by a learned (*) Author Vir pius & eruditus.

Feb. 26. Fa. Tho. Wellys a Benedictine. — He seems to be the same with Tho. Wellys a Ben. who supplicated for the degree of Bach. of Div. in 1514. This Tho. Wellys was afterwards Prior of Gloc. Coll.

Besides these, were about seven more admitted, among whom Rich. Ewer was one, afterwards one of the first Prebendaries of Worcester, Rich. London a Benedictine another, and Tho. Thomson a Franciscan a third.

There were also about eight that supplicated, among whom was Tho. Clerke a Monk of the Cistercian Order; but whether he was admitted, I cannot find. Perhaps he may be the same Tho. Clerke who from being the last Abbat of S. Werburgh in Chester (of the Benedictine Order, from which the Cistercians have their rise) was made the first Dean of the Cath. Ch. of Chester.

Doct. of Div.

Jul. 9. Rich. Lorgan sometimes Fellow of Oriel Coll. afterwards Principal of S. Maries Hall, now Divinity Reader of Magd. Coll. was then admitted D. of D. but did not proceed till 1535.

John Hurleston or Huddleston a Carne, did supplicate for the deg. of Doct. but I cannot find him admitted. See among the Incorp. in 1533.

Incorporations.

Jul. 20. George Browne a Fryer of the Order of S. Austin, and Doct. of Div. of another University, was then incorporated. — He was afterwards Archbishop of Dublin.

About this time the famous Ralph Gualter of Zurich studied in Oxon, for the sake of Libraries and scholattical Company. Afterwards he became an eminent Theologit of the reformed Perswasion, and Author of many Books.

Bach. of Arts.

Jul. 5. Edw. Quemmerford an Irish Man. --- He is reported by a Writer of his Country to be a learned Man, as indeed he was, considering the time he lived in, as other Authors also tell us. One Nich. Quemmerford I have mention'd among the Writers, but what this Edward hath written I cannot yet find.

About 41 were admitted this year, and about 10 that supplicated who were not admitted.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 12. Henry Siddall --- He was afterwards Canon of Ch. Ch. in Oxon. and in the Reign of Edw. 6. a great admirer and follower of Pet. Martyr, a turner about in *Qu. Besides him were seven admitted, of whom Richard Plunket a Secular Chapl. was one, and nine that supplicated for the said Degree, but were not admitted.

Not one Doctor of the Can. or Civ. Law was admitted this year.

Doct. of Physick.

Jul. 5. John Warner of Allf. Coll. --- In the year following he was made Warden of the said Coll. being about that time the publick Professor of Physick in the University, and in 1541. or thereabouts he became one of the first Prebendaries of Winchester. In 1547 in July he was made Archdeacon of Clievlend in the place of Dr. Rich. Langrigg or Langrish deceased, and afterwards became Archdeacon of Ely in the room of Dr. John Boxall, but the year when, I cannot tell. In 1559 (1. Eliz.) he being then Preb. of Ulfcomb in the Church of Sarum, was made Dean of Winchester in the place of Dr. Edm. Steward, and dying in his house in Warwick-lane in London, 21. March 1564 was buried in the Chancel of the Church of Great Stanemere in Middlesex. In his Wardenship of Allf. Coll. Rich. Barber LL. D. succeeded, in his Archdeaconry of Clievlend, (which he resign'd about an year before his death) one Christoph. Malton M. A. was installed in Apr. 1564. in his Archd. of Ely. (which also he had resign'd) one Rob. Wisdome of Cambridge a good Lat. and English Poet of his time, and one that had been an Exile in Qu. Maries Reign, succeeded, but the year when I cannot justly say; and in his Deanery of Winchester followed Franc. Newton D. D. an. 1565. As for Rob. Wisdome beforemention'd, who was also Rector of Settrington in Yorkshire, died in 1568.

Jul. 5. John Gaynes (sometimes written Jaynes) M. A. and Bac. of Phyl. was then adm. being the same day on which Dr. Warner was admitted.

12. Ralph Skymmer of New Coll. --- Whether he took the Degree of M. of A. or of any other faculty in this University, I cannot in all my searches find: Yet when he was elected Warden of New Coll. in the beginning of May 1551, he is said to be M. A. In 1560 March 5. he was installed Dean of Durham in the place of Rob. Horne promoted to the See of Winchester, and dying in 1563 was succeeded by Will. Whittingham, to whom the Queen gave it (notwithstanding she had promised it to Dr. Tho. Wilson) on the 19. Jul. the same year.

Feb. 27. John Harpesfeild of New Coll. --- He was afterward a grand zealot in the times of reformation for the R. C. cause.

Besides these four, were about 30 more that were admitted, besides about 7 that supplicated.

Bach. of Law.

Jun. . . . Will. Binsley of New Coll. was then admitted Bach. of both the Laws --- After he had resign'd the Vicaridge of Adderbury in Oxfordshire 1554, he became about that time Chancellour to D. Pole Bishop of Peterborough and Archdeacon of Northampton, in which last Dignity he was succeeded by one Nich. Sheppard Master of St. Johns Coll. in Cambridge, about 1571. This Binsley is reported to have been a persecutor of Protestants in Queen Maries Reign while he was a Chancellour: And that after Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown he was notwithstanding that, made Archdeacon of Peterborough, &c.

Mar. 22. Rich. Read of New Coll. --- See among the Doctors in 1540.

Besides these two, were but two more that were admitted, and but three that supplicated, that were not admitted; among whom Donatus Tayge an Irish Man was one.

Not one was admitted in the Canon Law, nor one that supplicated: For Religious houses being about this time dissolved, there occurs not the third or fourth part of Bachelours of the Can. or Civ. Law (especially the former) as before.

Mast. of Arts.

For the same reason but eleven Masters were admitted this year, five of whom were of Merton Coll. and but two that supplicated, who were not admitted.

May 13. Rich. Smyth of Merton Coll. now the Kings Professor of Divinity.

Jun. 28. Tho. Raynolds of the same Coll. --- See afterwards among the Doctors this year.

Mar. 9. Father James Proctor a Monk of that Order of St. Bernard alias Cisteaux and Archdeacon of Dorset, (in the place of Edw. Fox) who studied now in St. Bernards Coll. in Oxon. was then admitted. --- He was afterwards made Canon of the Kings Coll. in Oxon. where abiding till 1545, at which time the said Coll. was to be converted into a Cathedral, he had in recompense for it 20 l. per an. paid unto him out of the Exchequer. Afterwards being made Prebendary of Salisbury, was at length, about the year 1579, nominated by Qu. Elizabeth to succeed John Devereux in the See of Fernes in Ireland; but he dying before his consecration thereunto, Hugh Allen B. of Downe and Connor was translated to that See.

Fa. Anth. Clarke a Monk of the said Order, and of St. Bernards Coll. was admitted the same day.

Fa. Edward Manchester another Monk of the same Order and Coll. was then also admitted. --- When his Monastery was dissolved he return'd to his old Sirname again, which was Pedley, and in 1538 I find him in a poor condition, as the other Fathers of the same Order probably were.

Two more were admitted, and six that supplicated for that Degree, who were not admitted; among whom were Fr. John Lyllyng a Minorite.

Doct. of Civil Law.

Octob. 11. Will. Coke or Codge of Allf. College, now Rector or Warden of Elmely in Kent. --- In 1537 I find him by the name of Will. Coke LL. D. to be Principal or Chief Moderator of the Civ.

Civ. Law School in St. Edwards Parish, and in 1548 Judge or General Commissary, or custos of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. I take this Dr. Cook to be the same with him, who was zealous in examining Protestants about matters of faith, when they were brought before the Bishop of London; as you may see in the Acts and Mon. of the Church under the year 1558. and elsewhere.

Doct. of Div.

Jul. 5. John Hastings sometimes of University, now Canon of the Kings, Coll. in Oxon.

Thom. Reynolds of Merton, sometimes one of the Canons of Cardinal, Coll. was admitted the same day. --- He was afterwards Warden of Merton Coll. Residentiary of Exeter, Dean of Bristol for a time, an. 1553, and Dean of Exeter in the year following, on the death of Dr. John Moreman. This Person being learned, and Chaplain to Queen Mary, she therefore nominated him to succeed Rob. Parfew alias Warion in the Episcopal See of Hereford, but she dying before he received consecration thereunto, was not only put aside by Queen Elizabeth, but by her committed to custody in the Prison called the Marshalsea in Southwark, where he died about 24. Nov. 1559.

Jul. 5. Nich. Cartwright M. of A. and Bach. of Div. --- In the Reign of K. Ed. 6. he was a great admirer of Pet. Martyr and his Doctrine, and about that time was made Master, or Schoolmaster, of the House or Hospital of St. John Baptist joyning to Banbury in Oxfordshire. In the Reign of Qu. Mary he was commanded to dispute with Hugh Latymer in the Divinity School, before he was to sacrifice his life in the flames, an. 1554, yet spoke as little as could be; and two years after, he was deprived of a benefice in the Dioc. of Lichf. and Cov. He died and was buried at Banbury beforementioned, about 1558.

Jul. 5. { John Huchenson } Masters of Arts and Bach. of Div.
{ Matthew Wytalls }

George Cotes of Magd. Coll. was adm. the same day --- Soon after he was Master of Balliol Coll. and at length Bishop of Chester.

Rich. Smyth of Mert. Coll. mention'd before among the Bach. of Div. was also admitted the same day --- Afterwards, in the times of reformation, he was esteemed the chief pillar of the R. Cath. cause.

At the same time one John Vyne M. A. and Bach. of Div. supplicated to be Doctor of that fac. but was not admitted.

Incorporations.

Not one was really incorporated, only several supplicated in Order to it, as (1) Ralph Smale M. A. of an University beyond the Sea, who also supplicated in the year following for incorporation. Feb. 17. Tho. Young a Sec. Chaplain, now, as it seems, of Broad- gates hall. --- He was afterwards Archbishop of York.

Rob. Weston of Allf. Coll. was admitted the same day. --- See among the Doctors of the Civ. Law in 1556.

Will. Dalby of the said Coll. was also adm. the same day. --- He was afterwards Chancellor of the Diocels of Bristol, whence he was ejected upon account of Religion in the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth, as Nic. Saunders tells (a) us.

Feb. 17. Benediclus Guarsum, sometimes written Balsarus Gwar- ciu. Quere.

Besides these, was only Arth. Pytts of Allf. Coll. admitted; and one Hugh Whytford who supplicated for the said Degree.

Rich. Reeve of Allf. Coll. was adm. the same day --- He was afterwards the first Prebendary of the ninth Prebendship of Westminster an. 1560, Canon of Windsore in 1561 and the Queens Chaplain. This Person is remembered by John Fox in his book of Acts and Monuments of the Church, to have been the noted Schoolmaster of Berchamstede in Hertfordshire, and that for his zeal to protestancy, he was brought into some kind of trouble in the Reign of Qu. Mary. He died in 1594, leaving behind him the Character of a religious and learned Man; whereupon Cuthbert Bellot M. A. succeeded him in his Prebendship, and Alex. Newell Dean of St. Pauls Cathedral in his Canonry.

Feb. 13. John Man of New Coll. was then admitted Master, being the same whom I have mention'd under the year 1533.

Ch.* in Oxon. Some report that he was also Dean of Exeter, but false, for 'twas Simon Heynes that enjoyed that Dignity.

Four more were admitted, and about 7 there were that supplicated for the said Degree, among whom John Crayford a Minorite was one, who had spent several years in study both here and at Cambridge, Rob. Wellys M. A. and Fellow of Eaton Coll. another, and Thom. Massie a Canon regular a third; which last was Prior of St. Maries Coll. in Oxon and was about this time adm. Bach. of Divinity, but neglected to be registred by the publick scribe.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Jan. 18. Richard Lyell of Allf. Coll.

Rowl. Merick about this time of New Inn was adm. the same day --- He was afterwards Bishop of Bangor.

For the same Degree supplicated one Rich. Arche LL. B. but was not admitted. In 1526 I find him to be Principal of Broadgates hall by the name of Rich. Archer, and now (1538) to be the Kings Chaplain and Canon of Windsore. On the 28. Dec. 1551. he was made Treasurer of the Church of Salisbury on the death of Matthew Wotton, who had succeeded in that Dignity one Tho. Stevens.

Incorporations.

May ... Christop. Massyngberd LL. Bach. of Cambridge and Chanc. of the Church of Linc. --- Afterwards he supplicated to be licensed to proceed in the Laws, but whether he was so, it appears not. In 1543 he succeeded Dr. Anth. Draycot in the Archdeaconry of Stow, and dying 8. March 1553 was buried in the middle of the Isle on the South side of the Choir belonging to the Church of Lincolne. Whereupon John Aylmer or Elmer succeeded in that Dignity, but before he had enjoyed it an year, was deprived of it, being then the first year of *Qu. I put this observation under the year of his death because that he, being reported by (c) one to be a Licentiat in Divinity, and by (d) another a Professor of Divinity, of this University, I cannot find any such thing in our publick registers, which are imperfect in several years before this time, especially in the year 1517.

Incorporations.

I find a supplicate made in the behalf of one John Hardyman a Doctor of Divinity of Cambridge that he might be incorporated in the same Degree, but whether really he was so, I know not. He ran with the mutable times of K. Hen. 8. Ed. 6. and Qu. Mary, and being in shew a zealous Protestant in the beginning of Qu. Elizab. was by her made the first Canon of the second stall in the collegiate Church of Westminster, in the year 1560. About which time being well known among the Puritanical Party (who began to shew themselves betimes) he was made their instrument to break down the Altars, and to deface the ancient utensils and ornaments of the Church of Westminster. For which, upon complaint, he was deprived by the Queens Commissioners for causes Ecclesiastical, an. 1567.

His Wardenship he gave up in 1571, and about the same time the Archd. of Bedf. in which last he was succeeded by Will. Redde. Jul. 1. Walt. Wryght now or lately Principal of Peckwaters Inn --- In the beginning of 1543 he was made Archdeacon of Oxon in the place of Dr. Rich. Coren deceased, was afterwards Master or Prefect of Durham Coll. in the interval, between its dissolution and conversion into Trin. Coll. Canon of Winchester and several times Commissioner and Visitor of the University. He died in Exeter Coll. 10. May an. 1561. (being then Preb. of North Grantham in the Church of Salum) and was buried in the nave of St. Maries Church in Oxon. Whereupon John Kennall LL. D. succeeded him in his Archdeaconry, being the second that bore that office after Oxford was made an Episcopal See. A certain Author, (a) who by many is accounted erroneous, tells us that this Doctor Wryght did take occasion in a Sermon preached in Oxon, after Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown, to make several reflections on the Popes Supremacy, and falling accidentally on the words of St. Paul to the Ephesians --- And he gave some, Apostles, and some, Evangelists, and some Pastors and Teachers, he told the auditory, to obtain favour from them, you see here is not a word of the Pope --- After Sermon, instead of going to dinner to refresh himself, he was took suddenly with a sickness, and thereupon took his bed and dyed about 8 days after. This seemed very remarkable among the R. Catholics, because the said Wryght was not only one of Cardinal Poles Visitors of the University of Oxon. in the time of Qu. Mary, but also took all occasions then, to express his zeal for the R. Cath. Cause. I have made mention of this Dr. Wryght, in several places in Hist. & Antiq. Univ. Oxon. lib. 1. p. 267. b. 276. a. 279. a. 283. a. lib. 2. p. 422. a. b. &c.

Parry*, and about the same time Chanc. to the B. of that place. You may read much of him in the Ant. and Mon. of the Church, &c. written by J. Fox, in the story of Jul. Palmer, under the year 1556. and in that of Rich. White, under 1558. in which year Dr. Will. Geffry, dying, Cardinal Pole bestowed the said Chancellorship on an eminent Scholar called Dr. Thom. Heskins in Octob. 1558. who keeping that Dignity till Aug. 1559. Hen. Parry was restored. Whereupon Dr. Heskins went beyond the Seas with other Rom. Catholics and wrote The Parliament of Christ, &c. concerning the Sacrament, impugned in a Sermon by Jo. Jewell. Antw. 1565. fol.

Oct. 19. John ap Harry or Parry Master of Arts of the University of Caen in Normandy. --- See among the Doctors of Law in 1542.

In the month of July, I find a Supplicate made for one Roger Haskham to be incorporated M. of A. as he had stood at Cambridge; but whether he was incorporated, I find it not to stand in the Register, having been probably neglected, as things of that nature (when the Supplices are set down) have frequently been done. I take this person to be the same with Reg. Ascham who was born at Kirby Wiske in Yorkshire, an 1515, educated in S. John's Coll. in Cambridge, where he attained to great excellency in the Latin and Greek Tongues, took the degree of M. of A. in that University 1537, and was a great Tutor, and did much good by his admirable Learning there. This Person, by the way I must let the Reader know, was a passing good Orator, had a great faculty in writing Greek, Lat. and Engl. Epistles, which were not only excellent for matter, but for the neatness of the hand-writing, adorned with Illumination, which we now call Limning, in the margin. And being the best of all Scholars in his time for those matters, he was entertained, as an Instructor in them, by Prince Edward, the Lady Elizabeth, and the two Brothers Henry and Charles Dukes of Suffolk. In 1544 he succeeded John Cheek in the Oratorship of the University of Cambridge, which he performed to the wonder and applause of all; and in the Reign of Ed. 6. he accompanied Sir Rich. Marysine in his Embassy to the Emperor Charles 5. where continuing about three years, (in which time he became acquainted with many learned men, among whom John Sturmius was one) he returned upon the news of the death of K. Ed. 6. from whom he had not only received an annual Pension in his absence, but also the gift of the Latin Secretariship: so that at the present being destitute of convenient maintenance and Friends, was, by the endeavours of the Lord Paget and Dr. Steph. Gardiner Bish. of Winchester, made Secretary of the Latin Tongue to Qu. Mary. In 1554 he married one Margaret Haw, by whom he had a considerable Portion; yet notwithstanding that and his Place, he lived and died not according to his condition, being given to Dicing and Cock-fighting. After Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown, he was not only continued in his place of Secretary, and made Tutor to her for the Greek Tongue, but also by her favour was installed Prebendary of Wetwang in the Church of York (by the deprivation of George Palmes LL.D.) on the eleventh day of March 1559. This Person, whose Memory is celebrated to this day among learned men for Oratory, Poetry, and the Greek Tongue, hath written (1) Toxophilus: the School or partitions of Shooting, contained in two books, written 1544 &c. --- Lond. 1571, qu. As in his later days he delighted much in Dicing and Cockfighting, so in his younger, while at Cambridge, in Archery, wherein he much excelled. (2) The Schoolmaster: or, a plain and perfect way of teaching Children to understand, write, and speak the Latin Tongue, &c. in two Books. Lond. 1570 and 1589, qu. (3) A report and discourse of the affairs and state of Germany and the Emperour Charles his Court, during certain years while he was there. Printed in qu. (4) Familiarium Epistolarum libri tres, &c. Lond. 1577, 78. oct. (5) Quaedam poemata, printed with the Epistles. (6) Apol. contra missam & ejus prestigias, &c. printed about 1577, in oct. This eminent Scholar R. Ascham died (a) on the 30 of Dec. 1568, and was buried, without any funeral Pomp, on the 4 of Jan. following, in the church of S. Sepulchre without Newgate, London, leaving behind him this character by a learned (b) person, that he inter primos nostrae nationis literas Latinas & Gracas, stylique puritatem cum eloquentiae laude excoluit.

After Gardiner's Death, which hapned in 1555, he became one of the Benedictine Monks of Westminster, where continuing till Qu. Copinger who was M. of A. of this University long before the other man's time, who in his Works in MS. (which are in Ball. Coll. Library, and therefore thought by some (d) to have been of that House) did shew himself to be a very pious Divine, and a Pronouncer of the men of this World to be vain, in whom the knowledge of God reigneth not. Virgil* in the Archdeaconry of Wells, an. 1554 or thereabouts, being the first year of Qu. Mary, at which time Virgil was in Italy among the living. In the same year also, he was made Prebendary of Tymberscombe in the Church of Wells, Vicar General to Gilbert Bishop of that place, and at length Prebendary of Fordington and Wrislington in the Church of Salurn. He died about the month of Feb. in 1575, and was buried in the Cath. Smith* in the Archdeaconry of Northampton. This Dr. Parry died in the beginning of 1549, and was buried in the Chancel of the Church of Castor in Northamptonshire.

John Williams lately Principal of Broadgates Hall, was admitted the same day.

Doct. of Div.

June 1. Philip Brode about this time a shagling Lecturer of Divinity in this University. — He was afterwards a Prebendary of the Church of Tork, beneficed in the Diocese thereof, and died in 1551, or thereabouts.

John Robyns the Astrologer and Mathematician, sometimes Fellow of Allf. Coll. and now Canon of Windsore, did supplicate that he might be admitted to proceed in Divinity; but whether he was admitted it appears not. — Rich. Cox also, a D. of D. of Cambridge, did supplicate that he might sit and take a place among the Doctors of Divinity, (tho it was unusual and out of order) as being not incorporated. See in the year 1545.

Incorporations.

This year, or thereabouts, John Cheek of Cambridge was incorporated, but in what degree, unless in that of Master of Arts, I cannot justly tell, because of the imperfectness of the Registers. He had studied before for some time in this University, and was now one of the Canons of Kings Coll. in Oxon., I mean of that College founded by K. Hen. 8. on that of Card. Wolsey, which continued from the year 1532 to 1545, at which time he was about to translate the See of Oxon from Osney to his said Coll. intended then by him to have it known by the name of Christ Church, which was effected accordingly in the year following. When the said Kings Coll. was dissolved by Hen. 8. in the beginning of the year 1545, he allowed most of the then Canons yearly Pensions in lieu of their Canonries; and to Jo. Cheek who was then Tutor to his Son Prince Edward, he allowed six and twenty pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence. He was afterwards a Knight, and most famous for his Learning, expert in his Introductio Grammatices, his Book De ludimagistrorum officio, in another De pronuntiatione Lingue Græcæ, and in many more, besides Translations; the Catalogue of which, (mostly taken from Baleus) you may see at the end of Sir John Cheek's Life, written by Ger. Langbaine, put by him before a Book written by the said Cheek, entit. The true Subject to the Rebel, or the hint of Sedition, &c. Oxon. 1641. qu. This Sir John Cheek died at Land. in the house of Pet. Osbourne Esq; a great Comforter of afflicted Protestants, in the month of Sept. 1557, and was buried in the Church of S. Alban in Woodstre. within the said City.

Apr. 7. In an A7 then celebrated Will. Fitzjames Dean of Wells was adorned with the degree of Bachelaur of Arts, wearing then the Gown and Habit of a Compounder, that is, one who compounds or pays double or treble Fees for his Degree, which is usually done by rich Dignitaries. In the year following he was admitted into Commons in Exeter Coll. and allowed to take place among the Fellows of that Society. He succeeded in that Dignity Tho. Cromwell Secretary of State, an. 1540, and was succeeded by John Goodman 1548.

John Hopkyns was admitted the same day. — He is supposed to be the same John Hopkyns who had a hand in turning into English meetre several of David's Psalms.

Nov. 3. Rich. Edwards of C. C. Coll.

Jan. 12. Reob. Harford of Mert. Coll. — Whether he took a higher degree in this University, it appears not. While he was Bach. of Arts he was Archdeacon of S. David's, which he keeping for some years, was at length made Archdeacon of Hereford. At the time of his death he gave Lands to Mert. Coll. situate and being within the Town of Walton near to Tewkesbury in Glocestershire.

Besides these four were 56 admitted.

In the month of June this year supplicated for the Degree of Bach. of Arts one Will. Walker a Priest, but whether he was admitted it appears not. In Dec. 1554 he was made Succentor of the Cath. Ch. of Salisbury, in which Dignity he was succeeded by one Hen. Brisher in the beginning of 1561.

But 4 Bach. of the Civ. Law were admitted, the encouragement for that Profession being now much decayed.

Bach. of Div.

Jul. . . Bernard Gilpin of Queens Coll. — This Person who was born of an antient and gentle Family at Kentmeire in Westmorland, became a poor serving child of the said Coll. in 1533. aged 17 or thereabouts, and about the time that he proceeded M. of A. he was made Fellow thereof, being then esteemed a good Disputant in Logick and Philosophy, and well read in the Greek and Hebrew; in which tongues, he was instructed by his contemporary Thomas Neale of New Coll. who was afterwards Heb. Prof. of this University. About that time his eminence in learning was such, that he was made choice of to be one of the first Masters to supply Ch. Ch. when first founded for a Dean, Canons and Students by K. Hen. 8. But continuing there not long, was at length taken thence, and by the care and charge of his Mothers Uncle Dr. Cusbb. Tonstall Bishop of Durham, he was sent to travel, and while he continued in the University of Paris, he did him some service in correcting and printing one of his books, as I have elsewhere told you. After his return he confer'd on him the rectory of Eslington, with the Archdeaconsry of Durham annex'd, about 1556; but in whole room or place I cannot tell, unless in that of one Will. Franklin Bach. of Decrees and Chancellour of Durham, who occurs Archdeacon of Durham 1531. After he was settled at Eslington, he preached much against the vices, errors, and corruptions of the times, to the great displeasure of some of the neighbouring Ministers, who were then R. Catholics. But his desire being to part with those troublesome places, as too much for one Man to keep (as he pretended) he was presented to the rich rectory of Houghton in the Spring in the county pal. of Durham, where being settled, his Preachings were so frequent, and in other places as well remote, as near thereunto, that he was commonly called The Northern Apostle. His almes were also so large, frequent, and constant, that he was usually called The common father of the poor. In his Archdeaconsry of Durham succeeded John Edden Bach. of Div. sometimes Proctor of the University of Cambridge, who had it given to him by Qu. Elizabeth, while the See of Durham was void, 22. May 1560; a little before which time, Gilpin had a congedellier sent to him to be elected Bishop of Carlisle on the death of Owen Oglethorpe, but refused it. Soon after he erected a Grammar School at Houghton, and bestowed 460 l. to buy Lands to endow it for a Master and Usher. Which, with other Moneys and Lands given for that purpose by Job. Heath of Kepier Esq; the School was settled in 1572 or thereabouts. To conclude, this worthy Person having his life written and published by one (*) of his Scholars, I shall now say no more of him only that he died on the 4. March 1583 aged 66 and was buried in the Church at Houghton, and that by his will dated 17. Oct. 1582, he left half of his goods to the poor of that place and the other half in exhibitions upon Scholars and Students in Oxon, viz. Mr. Rich. Wharston, Mr. Steph. Copperthwaite, George Carleton (afterwards B. of Chich.) Ralph Ironside born in Houghton before-mentioned (Father to Gilbert Bishop of Bristol an. 1660) Evan Airay, Hen. Airay (afterwards Provost of Qu. Coll.) Will. Cayrw, Franc. Risley, Tho. Collinson, &c. He hath written several things, but hath nothing extant, only A Sermon before the King and Court at Greenwich, on the first Sunday after Epiph. an. 1552, on Luke 1. from verse 41. to 48. Lond. 1581. oct. there again 1630. qu.

Bach. of Musick.

Tho the publick register of this time is very imperfect, as having been neglected by one who was afterwards deservedly turn'd out of his place, yet it appears therein (tho very obscurely) that one Joh. Merbeck or Marbeck Organist of St. Georges chap. at Windfore did supplicate for the Degree of Bach. of Musick, but whether he was admitted it appears not, because the admissions in all faculties are for several years omitted. All therefore that I can say of him, is, that he was an eminent Musician of his time as well for the Theory, as practical part, of Musick, as may be seen in a book of his composition, intit. The book of Common-prayer noted. Lond. 1550. qu. besides divers compositions that are not extant. As for other books that he wrote and published relate to Divinity, and matters against the Pope, among which are (1) A concordance of the Bible, &c. Lond. 1550. fol. 8cc. (2) The lives of holy Saints, Prophets, Patriarchs, &c. Lond. in 4°. (3) The ripping up of the Popes fardel. Ibid. 1581. oct. (4) Book of notes and common places, with their exposition, &c. Ibid. 1581. qu. (5) Examples drawn out of Holy Scripture, with their application: Also a brief conference between the Pope and his Secretary, wherein is opened his great blasphemous pride. Ib. 1582. oct. (6) Dialogue between youth and old age, wherein is declared the Persecution of Christs Religion, since the fall of Adam, hitherto. Lond. 1584. oct. John Fox in his book of ABs and Mon. of the Church, &c. doth speak largely of this John Merbeck, if not too much, in the first edition thereof, wherein he made him a Martyr while he was living, which hath administered a great deal of sport among the R. Cath. writers, as Alan Cope, Rob. Persons, &c.

Bach. of Arts.

Will. Overton } of Magd. Coll.

Both afterwards Bishops in England.

Pet. Whyte of Oriel } Coll. &c.
Pet. Marwyn of Magd.

The admissions of Bachelours ad Lecturam, and of those ad Determinandum, being omitted by the publick Scribe this year, the just number therefore is unknown.

Maſt. of Arts.

The number of Masters that were admitted, I cannot tell because record is defective. However the number of those that stood in the Comitia, held 8. Sept. is fifteen, among whom are James Dugdale afterwards Master of Univ. Coll. and Will. Norfolk of Oriel, afterwards Princ. of St. Maries hall and one of the first Prebendaries of Worcester.

Bach. of Div.

John Jewell of C. C. } Coll.
John Harley of Magd.

Both afterwards Bishops, and the first a very learned Man.

Paul French of Allf. Coll. — In 1560 he became Canon of Windfore and about that time Preb. of Canterbury. He died 1. Nov. 1600. and was buried at Windfore.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

John Gibbons lately of Allf. Coll. now Principal of New Inn, was admitted this year, but the day or month is not set down. — He was afterwards a Member of Doctors Commons, and died at London in the Parish of St. Faith the Virgin, about the beginning of the year 1581.

James Bell of C. C. Coll. — In the latter end of May 1556, he, as a Somerfetsh. Man born, was elected Fellow of Trinity Coll. but whether he be the same Jam. Bell, who suffer'd death by hanging at Lancaster, for being a Rom. Priest, in Apr. 1584; or James Bell a Translator of several books into English I cannot tell. This last was a zealous Protestant and translated (1) A treatise touching the liberty of a Christian. Lond. 1579. oct. written in Latin by Dr.

The admissions, and names of Determiners are omitted this year, and therefore you are not to expect the just number of Bachelors that were admitted.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

Nich. Saunders of New Coll. — He was afterwards a zealous R. Catholick, and a forward and indefatigable writer in defence of the Religion he professed.

Mastr. of Arts.

Humph. Lloyd or Lbyd of Brasnosc Coll. — He was afterwards in much esteem for his great knowledge in British antiquities.

The admissions of Masters are this year omitted; yet the number that stood in the Act or Comitia celebrated 6. of July, is 21. The Junior of which called Ralph Treiver of Ch. Ch. was, with the approbation of the Vicech. and whole congregation admitted into the School of the Physicians (or entred on the Physick line) in Jan. 1552.

Bach. of Div.

John Morw. of C. C. Coll. — This Person did, about this time, upon a sight of the decay of the fac. of Div. enter himself on the Phys. line, but whether he continued in it I cannot tell.

John Harpsfield of New Coll.

Christoph. Goodman of Ch. Ch. sometimes of Brasen. Coll.

John Molens or Mullins of Magd. Coll.

Hen. Pendleton of Brasnosc. Coll.

Not one Doctor of Law, Physick or Divinity was admitted or licensed to proceed this year; as it appears in the imperfect register of this time.

Incorporations.

Rob. Johnson LL. Bach. (of Cambridge as it seems) was incorporated Bach. of both the Laws, but the day or month when, appears not. In 1544 Jul. 10. he was installed Prebendary of the Church of Worcester in the place of Tho. Baggard LL. D. deceased, and in the same month, as it seems, was made Chancellour of the Diocese of Worcester; which had been held by the said Baggard. In the Reign of K. Ed. 6. he kept both those places, though wrot privately against Jo. Hoper B. of Gloucester and Worcester; in 1555 Feb. 22. (tertio Maria Reg.) he was installed Prebendary of Stillington in the Church of York, and in Jul. 1558 he was collated by Nich. Archb. of York to the rectory of Bolton Percy in Yorkshire, on the death of Arth. Cole President of Magd. Coll. but enjoyed it for a short time. This Person who was esteemed learned and well read in the Theological faculty, did write a book against Hoper beforementio'd, but did not publish it. After his death, which hapned in 1559, the book came into the hands of one Henry Joliff or Jolliff Bach. of Div. sometimes Proctor of Cambridge, afterwards Rector of Bishops Hampton in Worcester-shire, one of the first Prebendaries of Worcester, and in 1554 Dean of Bristol in the place of Tho. Rainolds promoted to the Deanery of Exeter. I say that the said Joliff having the book in his hands, carried it with him beyond the Seas, when he fled there upon the alteration of Religion in the beginning of the Reign of Qu. Elizabeth, and settling for a time at Lovaine, did correct, put some additions to, and publish it, under his and the name of Rob. Johnson with this title. Responsio sub protestatione facta ad illos articulos Johannis Hoperi Episcopi Vigornie nomen gerentis, in quibus a Catholica fide dissentiebat: una cum quibusdam confutationibus ejusdem Hoperi, & replicationibus reverendiss. in ch. pat. Steph. Gardineri Episc. Winton. tunc temporis pro confessione fidei in carcere detenti. Antwerp. 1564. in a thick oct. dedicated by Joliff to Philip K. of Spain, acknowledging not only his favours shew'd to him in England, while he was King there, but also at Lovaine. Whether Rob. Johnson the original Author died at Worcester, or York I know not, or Joliff at Lovaine: Sure I am that the last died in 1573; for on the 28. Januar. in that year, a commission (c) issued out from the Prerogative Court of Canterbury to one Will. Seers a Stationer of London, to administer the goods, debts, chattels, &c. of Hen. Joliff Clerk, late Dean of Bristol, who died in parts beyond the Seas, &c. I find another Hen. Joliff, in whom Dr. John Whyte Bishop of Winton took (d) much delight for his towardliness and great vertues; but he was a youth, and dying 19. Aug. 1548 must not be understood to be the same with Hen. Joliff beforementio'd, who also wrot against Nich. Rydley; nor Rob. Johnson of Allf. Coll. who was admitted Bach. of Law 1552, or thereabouts, to be the same with him that was the original Author of Responsio, &c.

About this time Abr. Ortelius of Antwerp spent some time in study, in the condition of a Sojourner, within this University. Afterwards he became a most admirable Cosmographer, the Ptolemy of his time, and the ornament of the learned World. He died in 1598.

Chanc. the same, viz. Dr. Rich. Cox, to whom it was granted by the venerable congregation this year, Jul. 19, that whereas he was about to resign his office of Chancellour within a short time, he should never after be burnd with the office of Vicechancellour. The 14. Nov. following he resign'd it, and on the 18, the congregation of Regents and Non-regents elected according to their new statutes Sir John Mason Knight, sometimes Fellow of Allf. About 26 were admitted this year, one half of which are omitted in the Register.

Bach. of LL.

Ellis Heywood of Allf. Coll. — He was afterwards a Jesuit and a writer.

Griffith Williams of New Coll. — In 1554 he became Chancellour of the Dioc. of Worcester, in the place of Rob. Johnson resigning; and whether he be the same Williams who was Chancellour to the Bishop of Gloucester about the same time, (remembered by Joh. (e) Fox for his strange, fearful, and sudden death which befel him in 1558, after Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown, and therefore esteemed as a judgment on him for condemning a blind boy to be burnt, in 1556) I cannot justly tell you. In 1557. Will. Turnball LL. Bac. succeeded Griffith Williams in the Chancellourship of Worcester.

In the publick register, which is very imperfect in the beginning of this year, it partly appears that one John Bodey supplicated to be admitted Bach. of LL. See in the year 1554.

Mastr. of Arts.

The last of the said Masters was afterwards one of the first Fellows of St. Johns Coll. and the first Greek reader there. He was Tutor in the said house to Edm. Campian and Greg. Martin; but upon the alteration of Religion leaving the Coll. and his Country, was made a Ro. Cath. Priest, and afterwards was one of those that endured a tedious imprisonment in Wiche Castle in Cambridge-shire upon account of Religion.

Twenty Masters stood in the Act celebrated 18. July this year, but how many were admitted, it appears not in the register.

Thom. Harding of New Coll.

Thom. Buckler } of Magd. Coll.
Tho. Benham }

The two last were afterwards Bishops.

Gilbert Burnford — In 1554 he had the Chancellourship of the Church of Wells granted to him under the Seal of the Bishop and Chapter thereof. But when he craved admission thereunto in 1560, he was denied, because he refused the oath of Supremacy. For the same reason he was deprived of the Prebendary of Haslibro in that Church, and of a rectory in the Dioc. of Wells.

Note that whereas always before this time, when any Bach. of Div. was admitted, he was registred as admitted ad lecturam libri sententiarum, so now during the Reign of K. Ed. 6. they are registred as admitted ad lectionem Paulinarum Epistolarum: And this year those that were admitted, are registred as admitted ad enarrationem Epistolarum Apostolicarum in ipsis comitiis hoc anno, viz. 18. Julii.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

promoted a Rebellion against her. See in Cædæns Annals of Qu. Elizab. under the year 1571. This Dr. Jones died in, or near, Dofors Commons, about the beginning of Feb. in 1591, and was buried, as it seems, in the Church of St. Bennet near to Pauls wharf in London.

✧ Not one Doctor of Phys. was admitted this year.

Doct. of Div.

Rich. Martiall of Ch. Ch. --- Soon after he was made Prebendary of Winchester, and Dean of his Coll. by the intercession of the Lord Arundell (to whom he was Chaplain) made to the Queen. In the Reign of K. Ed. 6. he seem'd to be a great Reformer, and retracted what he zealously had held in the Reign of K. Hen. 8. After the death of K. Ed. 6. he returned to his former opinions, and was more zealous for the Cath. cause than before: But when Qu. Elizab. succeeded, he absconded for a time, and went from place to place. At length being taken and conveyed to London, retracted again in hopes of being settled in his Deanery of Ch. Ch. which might have been, had he behaved himself moderately in the Reign of Qu. Mary. Afterwards, as 'tis said, he went into Yorkshire, where he died obscurely. In his Deanery succeeded G. Carew, as I have told you before, under the year 1522.

Hen. Pendleton of Brasn. Coll. was also admitted this year and stood, with Martiall, in the Act that followed.

Henr. Syddall LL. B. and Canon of Ch. Ch. who had studied sacred letters for 18 years, did this year supplicate that he might put on, or be honour'd with, the cap of Doct. of Divinity. This desire of his was granted conditionally that he be inaugurated and dispute in Divinity in the next Act that should follow. But whether he was so, or did dispute, it appears not in the publick register, or in the Catalogues of Inceptors.

Incorporations.

Nov. 12. Brian Baynes Bach. of Arts of Cambridge --- The next year he proceeded in the said faculty, being then a member of Ch. Ch. which is all I know of him.

Nov. ... Valentine Dale of Allf. Coll. Doctor of the Civ. Law beyond the Seas, (at Orleans I think) seems to be incorporated in that month, because he had supplicated more than once for that Degree --- He was afterwards Master of the Requests, Dean of Wells, 1574, and about that time Embassador to the French King upon the calling home of Sir Franc. Walsingham to be Secretary of State, &c. He died in his house near St. Pauls Cathedral 17. Nov. 1589, and was buried in the Parish Church of St. Gregory near to the said Cathedral, leaving behind him a Daughter named Dorothy, who being coheir to her Father, was married to Sir John North, Son and Heir to Roger Lord North.

Dec. 2. Walter Haddon President of Magd. Coll. in Oxon, and Doctor of the Civil Law at Cambridge. --- This Person who was a Buckinghamshire Man born, and educated in Grammar learning in Eaton School, was chose Scholar of Kings Coll. in Cambridge, an. 1533, where arriving to great eminence in the Civil Law was made the Kings Professor of that faculty in the said University, and much esteemed for his eloquence and learning, especially by Leiland who (*) calls him Heveddunus. Afterwards, being a Man much addicted to reformation, he was by virtue of several letters written by the King in his behalf, elected, tho contrary to statute, President of Magd. Coll. where he continued about an year; and then learning it to prevent expulsion, sheltered himself in private during the Reign of Qu. Mary. After Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown he was made one of her Masters of Requests, and by her employed in one or more Embassies. His works are (1) A sight of the Portugal Pearl, in answer to the Epistle of Hieron. Osorius entit. A Pearl for a Prince. This book which was written in Latin, I have not yet seen, only the translation of it into English, made by Abrah. Hartwell, an. 1565. in tw. (2) Lucubrations. Lond. 1569. qu. collected and published by Tho. Hatcher of Kings Coll. in Cambridge. These Lucubrations consist of Orations and Epistles. Among the Orations is that De obitu Mart. Bucerii, and among the Epistles is that De vita & obitu fratrum Suffolciensium Henrici & Caroli Brandon. (3) Poemata. Lond. 1567. qu. collected also and published by the said Hatcher (4) Contra Hieron. Osorium, ejusq; odiosam insectationes pro Evangelicæ veritatis necessaria defensione, responsio apologetica. Lond. 1577. qu. This book was began and carried on by him more than half: Afterwards coming into the hands of John Fox, was by him finish'd and published, and at length translated into English by Jam. B. ll. (5) Poematum lib. duo. Lond. 1592. oct. Before which Poems is printed the life of Walt. Haddon. Whether these two books contain his Poems beforemention'd I cannot tell. I remember I once saw them, but dreaming not in the least of any future mentioning Dr. Haddon, I throw'd them aside after I had taken the title, otherwise I should have spoken more of him. He gave way to fate 21. January 1571 (leaving then behind him the Character of Orator dicens & facundus;) and was buried on the 25. of the same month in the Greyfriars Church, now called Ch. Ch. within the City of London. Over his grave was soon after a comely monument erected; which, with the Church it self, was consumed by the dreadful conflagration that hapned in the said City in the beginning of Sept. 1666.

Incorporations.

Will. Momse or Mosse Dr. of the Civ. Law of Cambridge, was incorporated this year, but the particular time when, I cannot find. --- He was of Trin. hall in that University, was this year the Kings Professor of the Civ. Law in this of Oxon, but whether in his own right, or in that of Dr. Will. Ambrey, is yet to me uncertain. On the first of March 1560 he was intalled Prebend of Borevane in the Church of York, being at that time Master of the aforesaid hall, and dying in 1588, became a considerable benefactor to that house.

Andr. Perne D. of D. of Cambridge, was also this year incorporated, but the day or month when, appears not. --- He was educated in Peter house, whereof he was Fellow, and Master; and Doct. of Musick.

Apr. 21. John Shephard who had been a Student in Musick for the space of 20 years, did then by his Dean supplicate the ven. congregation that he might be licensed to proceed in that faculty, that is to be admitted Doct. of Musick; but whether he was admitted, or stood in any Act following it appears not in our registers. The words of some of his Church services are made publick in The Divine Services and Anthems usually sung in Cathedrals, &c. Lond. 1663. oct. collected and published by James Clifford, as I have told you under the year 1548. I have seen some of his compositions of six parts in six MS. Books, remaining at this day in the Archives of our publ. Musick School, containing Church Musick or Anthems and certain Songs.

Mastr. of Arts.

But 13 were admitted this year, among whom Will. Allyn or Alan of Oriel Coll. was one, afterwards a Cardinal and Archb. as I have before told you; and Sexius Quaterman of New Coll. another.

In an Act celebrated 16. July, were 19 that stood, of whom the said Allyn was junior, whom we usually call Junior of the Act, who with the Senior, perform exercise in the name of the rest of the Masters.

Bach. of Div.

Jun. 7. Arthur Cole of Magd. Coll. sometimes Cross-bearer to Cardinal Wolsey, now Fellow of Eaton Coll. and Canon of Windfore was adm. to the reading of the Sentences by Dr. O. Ogleshorp Dean of Windf. in a certain Chamber belonging to his Lodgings there, by power and authority given to him for that purpose by Dr. Rich. Smyth Provicechancellor of the University. --- This Mr. Cole had his grace granted in order to the taking of that Degree in 1545, and in 1555 he succeeded the said Dr. Ogleshorp in the Presidentship of Magd. Coll.

Jul. 5. John Boxall of New Coll. --- He was now Archdeacon of Ely, and Warden of the Coll. near Winchester, &c.

Besides these two, were but 3 more admitted this year.

Doct. of Civil Law.

Jul. 13. Tho. Huyck of Mert. Coll. --- He died at London 1575, having a little before been made the first and original Fellow of Jesus Coll. to which he was a Benefactor.

(*) See in the Acts and Mon. of the Church, by John Fox under the Year 1549.

Rob. Reynold of New Coll. was licensed to proceed the same day. --- He was now Fellow of Wyghams Coll. near to Winchester, Prebendary of Linc. and Chichester, and about 1557, Master of the Hospital of St. Cross near to Winton.

Will. Ambrey of Alls. Coll. was admitted also on the same day. --- See before, under the year 1549. A Person he was of exquisite learning and singular prudence and therefore mention'd with honour by Thuanus and others. He was born in Bricknockshire, particularly, as I conceive, at Cantre, wrot divers things, but not printed; among which are several letters to his Cousin Dr. John Dee concerning the Sovereignty of the Seas, (some of which I have seen) and dying 23. Jul. 1595 was buried within the Cath. Church of St. Paul in London. Afterwards there was a Mon. with his bust set over his grave, which, with the Cathedral it self was consumed in that dismal conflagration which hapned in that great City in the beginning of Sept. 1666.

Doct. of Physick.

May 9. Rich. Master of Alls. Coll. --- On the 14. of March 1562 he was installed Prebendary of Fridayborpe in the Church of York, being about that time Physician of the Chamber to Qu. Elizabeth. His eldest Son George Master settled in the Abbey at Cirencester in Gloucestershire, where his posterity yet remaineth. Another Son named Robert was Doctor of the Civ. Law in 1594, as I shall tell you when I come to that year.

Rich. Caldwell or Chaldwall lately of Ch. Ch. but originally of Brasnosc Coll. was admitted the same day.

Thom. Francis of Ch. Ch. was also admitted the same day --- After this Person had taken the Degree of M. of A. he applyed his studies to the Theological faculty, but the encouragement thereof being in these days but little, he transfer'd himself to the School of Physicians, and, with the consent and approbation of Dr. Wrythe the Vicechancellor, was entred on the Physick line, 4. Aug. 1550. In the year after, I find him supplying the place and office of the Kings Professor of Physick, being, I presume, only Deputy for Dr. John Warner, and on the 9. Mar. 1553 he was admitted Bach. of Phys. In 1561 he succeeded Hugh Hodgson in the Provostship of Qu. Coll. and was afterwards Physician to Qu. Elizabeth and much respected by her.

Jul. 14. John Symmings or Symmings --- In what Coll. or Hall educated, I know not. Sure I am that he was one of the Coll. of Physicians in London, where he was in great practice; and dying in his house in Little St. Barthelmew in Smithfield. 7. July 1588, was buried in the Church in the Spittle there.

Doct. of Div.

Apr. 20. John Harpesfield } of New Coll.

Jul. 13. Thomas Hardyng }

Both zealous and stout Champions for the Rom. Cath. cause.

Jun. 20. It was then granted to Hen. Cole LL. D. of New Coll. that he might have the Degrees of Bach. and Doctor of Divinity conferr'd upon him, without any disputations or exercise done for the same.

Incorporations.

Certain Doctors of Div. of the Univ. of Cambridge having been commanded by their Chancellor Dr. Steph. Gardiner Bishop of Winchester to go to Oxford, and there to joyn themselves with other Doctors and learned Men of that University, to dispute with Archb. Cranmer, Bish. Rydley, and B. Latimer concerning matters of Religion, did accordingly come to Oxon. 13. of Apr. this year, and taking up their quarters at the Cross-inn near to Quatervon, were the next day incorporated. The names of them are these.

John Young D. D. Master of Pembroke hall and Vicechancellor. --- He was a learned Man, and is stiled by some Writers Job. Giovannus.

John Seaton or Seaton D. D. of St. Johns Coll. in Cambridge and Prebendary of Winchester. --- He was now famous in that University for the brief and methodical book of Logick which he had composed for the use of junior Scholars.

Rich. Atkinson D. D. Provost of Kings Coll.

Will. Glynn D. D. Master of Queens Coll. and now or lately Archdeacon of Anglesea. --- In 1555 Sept. 8. he was consecrated Bishop of Bangor within the Cath. Ch. of St. Paul in London, and died a little before Qu. Mary.

Tho. Watson D. D. Master of St. Johns Coll. and Chaplain to Gardiner B. of Winchester. --- In 1553 Nov. 18. he was instituted Dean of Durham by Dr. Tonstall B. thereof, on the deprivation of Rob. Horne, and in Aug. 1557 he was consecrated B. of Linc. From which See being removed by the authority of Parliament in the beginning of Q. Mary. as being an enemy to reformation, and the Qu. Supremacy over the Church, was committed Prisoner to several places and kept in durance in and near London for about 20 years. At length in the year 1580, he, and Jo. Fekenham, being sent Prisoners, with others, to Wisbich Castle in Cambridgeshire, continued there to the time of his death. He was buried in the Ch. belonging to the Town of Wisbich 27. of Sept. an. 1584. In his younger years he was given much to Poetry and making of Plays and gained great commendations for his Antigone out of Sophocles by the learned Men of his time; who have farther avowed that as George Buchannans Tragedy called Jepthe have among all Tragedies of that time, been able to abide the touch of Aristotles precepts, and Euripides Examples: So hath also the Tragedy of this Tho. Watson called Abfalon which was in a most wonderful manner admired by them, yet he would never suffer it to go abroad, because (a) in locis paribus, Anapestus is twice or thrice used instead of Jambus. In his elder years, being then of a seiv disposition as one (b) faith, and warmed in deep Divinity, but surly with an austere gravity, as another (c) tells us, published several matters of Divinity, among which were Two Sermons of the real Presence, before Qu. Mary, on Rom. 12. 1. &c. Lond. 1554. oct. and Wholsome and Cath. Doctrine concerning the seven Sacraments, &c. Lond. 1558. qu. This Book consists only of Homilies.

Cuthbert Scot D. D. Master of Christ's Coll. and Prebendary of York. — He was afterwards Bish. of Chester.

 Alban Langdale D. D. of S. John's Coll. in Cambr. — In 1556, he being then Parson of Buxted in Sussex, was made Archdeacon of Leves on the death of one Dr. Brasley, and about the same time Prebendary of Ampleford in the Church of York. In the beginning of Qu. Eliz. he was deprived of those, and other, Dignities, (1) Because he had behaved himself zealous in the Reign of Qu. Mary, in carrying on the Rom. Catholick Cause against the Protestants. (2) Because he denied the Queens Supremacy over the Church. He lived afterwards many years a constant Member of the Church of Rome, but when or where he died, I cannot tell. See more of him in Nich. Ridley pag. 78.

Chanc. the same.

Vicechanc. Rich. Smyth D. D. sometimes Fellow of Mert. Coll. now Canon of Ch. Ch. and one of Qu. Maries Chaplains, was admitted to his Office in Apr. this year. Dr. Martiall occurs also Vicechancellour 16 Oct. at what time Rydley and Latimer were burnt in Canditch; for then, if I mistake not, Dr. Smyth preached to them when they were at the Stake.

Proct. { Will. Norfolk of Or. Coll. } elect. 14 Apr.
 { Jam. Gervys of Mert. Coll. }

Bach. of Arts.

This year Apr. 26. John Woolson of Brafn. Coll. (afterwards Bishop of Exeter) supplicated for the Degree of Bach. of Arts; but whether he was admitted it appears not, or that he determined in the Low following.

Adm. 33.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

June 26. John Calverley of Alls. Coll. — He was afterwards Archdeacon of Rocheſter in the place of John Bridgewater, about 1574. and dying in 1576, he was succeeded by Dr. Ralph Pickover of Ch. Ch. in Oxon.

Besides Calverley, were five admitted, and three or more that supplicated for the same Degree.

Bach. of Decrees.

Apr. 3. Will. Laly or Lawley of New Inn. — He was afterwards Archbishop of Tuam in Ireland.

John Linch of New Inn also, as it seems, was admitted the same day. — He was afterwards Bishop of Elphine in Ireland.

Maſt. of Arts.

Jun. 26. John Russell of New Coll. — He afterwards gained to himself an eminent name, especially among those of his Profession, for his Writings against Joh. Jewell.

Jul. 12. Herbert Westphalyng of Ch. Ch.

26. Pet. Whyte of Or. Coll. — He was afterwards much celebrated by his Scholar Rich. Stanyhurst for his Learning.

He was the only person that was admitted Bach. of Div. this year. Two or more there were that supplicated for the said Degree, of whom Will. Cholwell M. A. was one; who being learned and a zealous man for the R. Cath. Cause, was designed by certain of the Queens Commissioners, on the 8 Cal. May 1554, to preach concerning various matters which were controverted in Qu. Maries Reign.

(*) The Author of The execution of Justice in England, printed the second time 1581.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Feb. 17. Thomas Darbyshire of Broadgates Hall, now Canon of Pagls, Chancellor of the Diocese of London, and Archdeacon of Essex. — In the beginning of Qu. Elizabeth he was deprived of his Spiritualities, whereupon Tho. Cole (who had been Dean of Salisbury, as 'tis (*) said, in the time of K. Ed. 6. and afterwards an Exile in the time of Qu. Mary) succeeded him in his Archdeaconry, who kept it to the time of his death, which was in the beginning of the year 1571. After Darbyshire was deprived, he went beyond the seas, and at length entered himself into the Society of Jesuit, and became a noted person among the Rom. Catholicks. He had great skill in the Scriptures, and was profound in Divinity: he catechised also many years publicly at Paris in the Latin Tongue, with great concourse and approbation of the most learned of that City. Whether he wrote any thing I find not as yet, only that he died in a good old Age at Pont à Mousson in Lorraine an. 1604. († Jac. 1.) While he was Chanc. of London he had much to do in examining Hereticks, as they were then called, that were brought before Bishop Bonner about matters of Faith.

Doct. of Physick.

Jul. 22. John Hotwell of Alls. Coll.

He was the only person that was admitted or licensed in that Faculty.

Incorporations.

Jul. 1. Thom. Martyn of New Coll. Doctor of the Civ. Law of the University of Bourges in France, was then incorporated in the same Degree.

Oct. 1. John Whyte Bishop of Lincoln, D. of D. of another University.

Nov. 14. Petrus de Sorbo D. D. of an University in Spain, was also incorporated, being then a Reader and Instructor in this University to undo the Doctrine which Pet. Martyr had founded there in the time of K. Ed. 6. as I have told you among the Writers, under the year 1563. pag. 209.

Jan. ... John Thirlby Bish. of Ely, and Doct. of the Civ. and Can. Law of Cambridge, was incorp. in that month. — He had been sometimes Fellow of Trinity Hall in that University.

Whereas 'tis affirmed by some that Bartholm. Carranza of Miranda, a Spanish Fryer of the Order of S. Dominick, (afterwards Archbishop of Toledo) was a Reader about this time in Oxon, and supposed to be incorporated also with Pet. de Sorbo, I can find no such matter in the publick Register of this time, or elsewhere, tho there 'is no doubt but that he was in Oxon for some time, and abode there as a Stranger.

Dom. 1556.
 An. { 3 } Maria.

Chanc. the same, viz. Sir John Mason Kt. but he resigning by his Letters read in Convocation 26 Oct. the most noble Reynold Pole sometimes of Magd. Coll. now Cardinal of S. Mary in Cosmedin, or in Schola Græca, in Rome, Legat a Latere in this Kingdom, and soon after Archbishop of Canterbury, was elected into his place on the same day.

Commiff. Dr. Will. Tresham; who continuing in his Office till Nov. Tho. Reynolds D. of D. Warden of Mert. Coll. and Dean of Exeter, was then designed Commissary or Vicechancellour, by the Chancellours Letters dated the sixth of the said month, during only his pleasure; by virtue of which he took his place, and had for his Deputy Dr. Rich. Martiall Dean of Ch. Ch.

Proct. { Hen. Wotton of Ch. Ch. } elect. 15 Apr.
 { Tho. Davys or Davys of New Coll. }

But Hen. Wotton being chose Greek Reader, and Fellow of C. C. Coll. 14 of Aug. (the Fellows of which Coll. are disabled by their Statutes from taking upon them the Procuratorial Office) Will. Allyn or Alan M. of A. of two years standing and Fellow of Oriel Coll. was elected into his place the same day, and served out the remaining part of the year.

Bach. of Arts.

June 5. Rob. Poyntz of New Coll. — He was afterwards a zealous Writer for the Rom. Cath. Cause.

Jul. 6. Rob. Vauce of Brafn. Coll. — Whether he be the same with Rob. Vaulx who translated into English Andr. Hiperius his Two common places, in the first of which he sheweth The force that the Sun and Moon have over men, and in the second Whether the Devils have been the shewers of magical Arts, &c. Lond. 1581. oct. I know not. Quare. One Rob. Vaux was Bach. of Div. of Exeter Coll. 1594.

Pet. Levens of Magd. Coll. was adm. the same day. — He was afterwards an eminent Physician.

Dec. 2. Tho. Stapleton of New Coll. — A stout Champion in defence of the Rom. Cath. Cause.

Feb. 23. { Christop. Johnson } of New Coll.
 { Joh. Fowler }

* In a brief discourse of the Troubles began at Frankford, &c. printed 1575.

Both afterwards Writers, the first in Physf. the other in Divinity. John Hamington of New Coll. was adm. the same day. — This person who was born at Tadley in Hampshire, and John Plankeney a Native of Forsthill alias Foresthill near to, and in the County of Oxon, (who became perpetual Fellow of New Coll. in 1560) were both learned, of good natural parts, and very hopeful young men, one in Philosophy and the other in the Civ. Law. But because they were zealous Papists, or as John Fox saith, blinded with Papistry, the just Judgment of God therefore, (*) as he adds, fell upon them, that is to say, that Hamington, who had been Pupil to John Martiall (who wrot of the Cross) was down'd in a Well about Rome, or as some say, about Padua; and Plankeney drowned himself about Rewley near Oxon, an. 1566. (he should have said 1565.) and both were taken up with Crucifixes about their necks.

Admitted in all 49.

Bach. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 8. John Martiall of New Coll. — Afterwards he became noted for his Writings against Dr. Jam. Calvil.

Besides him, were five admitted this year, of whom Rich. Edmunds and Geo. Catagree of the same House were two, and Arth. Dakyns another.

Bach. of Decrees.

Aug. 12. Daniel Ryane. — So is he written in his Admission; but in his Supplication for that Degree, Dona'dus Ryane, being then, as I suppose, a Member of New Inn. See more in the year 1533. He was the only person that was admitted Bach. of Decrees this year.

Maft. of Arts.

Apr. 20. John Bridgewater, (Aquepontanus) of Brafn. Coll.

27. Walt. Baylie of New Coll.

Jul. 6. John Rogers of Queens Coll. Quere.

Dec. 17. Tho. Palmer of Brafn. Coll. — He was this, or the year following, made one of the primary Scholars of S. Johns Coll. and at length Principal of Glocester Hall. He was an excellent Orator, and the best of his time for a Ciceronian Style. He collected several matters from Cicero, which coming to the view of the learned Camden, he judged them very fit to be printed. This Th. Palmer, after he had left his Principality, had a considerable Estate given to him in Essex; but he being a zealous Rom. Catholick, suffered much in his Person and Estate for Religion sake, and therefore numbred by those of his Profession among the Confessors for the Cause in the time of Qu. Elizabeth.

Dec. 17. Rich. Mulcaster of Ch. Ch.

March 10. Rich. Barnes of Brafn. Coll. — He was afterwards Bishop of Durham.

Bach. of Physick.

This year Tho. Cooper M. A. and Master of the Free-School joyning to Magd. Coll. great Gate, did supplicate the ven. Congregation, that whereas he had studied Philosophy 12 years, and Physick five, he might be admitted to the reading of any Book of the Aphorismes of Hipocrates. Which being, as it seems, granted in Oct. did practise Physick in Qu. Maries Reign. But when Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown, he returned to his Divinity, and at length became Bishop of Winchester.

Bach. of Div.

July 23. Tho. Neale of New Coll.

29. Laurence Vaux, Vaux or Vaulx, sometimes of C. C. Coll. now Warden of the Coll. at Manchester.

Six Masters of Arts did supplicate this year to be admitted to the same Degree, but were not: Among them Edmund Daniel lately Fellow of Merton Coll. was one, who was now Prebendary of Worcester and Dean of Hereford; in the first of which he succeeded Gilb. Bourne, and in the other Dr. Hugh Coren or Curwyn. In 1559 he was depriv'd of the said Dignities; whereupon his Prebendship was bestowed on Rob. Avice M. A. and his Deanery on Job. Ellis, as it seems, who in Nov. 1570 became Preb. of Worcester.

Another who supplicated for that Degree was Nich. Smyth of New Coll. now Fellow of Wykeham's Coll. near Winton, and afterwards Fellow of that at Eaton near Windfore.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 8. Rob. Weston of Allf. Coll. — He had formerly been Principal of Broadgates Hall, and Deputy Professor of the Civ. Law (while he was Bach. of that Faculty) for Dr. John Storie, but now Dean of the Arches, and Chancellour of Exeter. Afterwards he became (as it seems) Dean of Wells, and at length one of the Lords Justices of Ireland; and for six years Lord Chancellour of that Realm. He was so learned, judicious, and upright in the Court of Judicature all the time that he was Lord Chancellour (I speak this from his Epitaph) that no Order or Decree that he made, was ever questioned or reversed. He paid his last debt to Nature 20 May 1573, and was buried in S. Patrick's Church at Dublin. Over his Grave is a noble Monument yet remaining.

This Dr. Weston was the only Doctor of his Fac. that was licensed to proceed this year, at which time was such a scarcity of Doctors of the Civil Law in the University, that there was a dispensation pass'd the House, that Tho. Darbyshire an Inceptor in that Faculty, might undergo the place of Doctor in the Depositions of the said Dr. Weston.

(*) In his Acts and Mon. of the Church, &c. under the year 1554.

Not one Doctor of Physick or Div. was admitted, or licensed to proceed this year; Will. Wryght Bac. of Div. and Master of Ball. Coll. did supplicate to proceed, but was denied.

Incorporations.

June 5. Rich. Mulcaster B. of A. of Cambridge. — Soon after he took the Degree of Master, as I have before told you, and at length became a noted Writer of his time.

Jul. 21. Nicholas Ormanet Doctor of the Civ. Law of Padua, now one of the prime Visitors appointed by Cardinal Pole Legate à latere, to visit this University, was then incorporated. — John Fox in his Book of Acts and Mon. of the Church, &c. under the year 1557, tells us, that he was the Pope's Datary, but false; for at this time I find him thus written, Nich. Ormanettus Patavinus Archipresbyter plebis Bodolesini Viennensis dioc. He had been recommended to the Service of the said Cardinal by Pope Julius 3. who had an especial esteem for him; and being a Visitor, and an haughty person, as the Protestants esteem'd him, he thought it not fit to be presented, and stand bare before the Commissary or Vicechanc. for Incorporation; and therefore it was agreed upon by the Members of the House, that he should be diplomated; by virtue of which he was also made Doctor of the Canon Law. By some of the reformed Party now (1556) remaining in the University, he was esteemed a supercilious man, and intolerably arrogant, but by the Rom. Cath. severe, pious, and prudent. He afterwards sat in the Council at Trent, was made Bish. of Padua by Pope Pius 5. an. 1570, in which See sitting 7 years, died full of praise, and in a good old Age.

Nov. 12. Arthur Teldard M. A. of Cambr. — He was afterwards made the second President of Trin. Coll.

Creations.

May ... John Fekenham sometimes of Glocester Coll. now either Dean of S. Pauls Cathedral, or Abbat of Westminster, had the Degree of Doct. of Div. confer'd on him, without any Exercise performed for the same. — At the same time, he being absent, it was granted by the venerable Regents and Non-Regents, that either Dr. Will. Cheadsey, Dr. John Harpesfield, or Dr. Rich. Smyth, might carry to, and give, him the Ensigns or Badges of his Doctorship.

Vicechanc. or Commiff. Dr. Tho. Raynolds before mention'd, who holding his Office till about 16 Decemb. Tho. Whyte LL. D. and Warden of New Coll. succeeded by virtue of the Chancellours Letters, dated 10 of the same month; which Office he was to keep no longer than it pleased the Chancellour.

Proct. { Fran. Babington of Allf. Coll. } elected 18 Apr.
 { Will. Allyn again }

Of the senior Proctor I shall speak among the Doct. of Div. an. 1559; of the other I have spoken already among the Writers.

Bach. of Arts.

Oct. 30. Will. Pomerell of New Coll. — He was afterwards numbred by his Countrymen of Ireland among the learned men of that Country. See more of him in Rich. Whyte among the Writers, under the year 1612. pag. 324.

Dec. 14. Tho. Gressop of Allf. Coll. — See among the Masters under the year 1561.

John Neale of Exeter Coll. was adm. the same day. — He was elected Rector of his Coll. while he was Bach. of Arts, an. 1560, such then was the scarcity of Masters in that, and other, Houses.

Admit. 31.

Maft. of Arts.

July 1. Rob. Newton of Exeter Coll. — He was elected Rector of the said House on 17 Oct. following, and afterwards became the second perpetual Rector.

John Wolley of Mert. Coll. was admitted the same day. — This person, who was a Shropshire man born, was elected probat. Fell. of that House in 1553, and about the time of his proceeding in Arts, studied the Civ. and Can. Law, but took no Degree in either in this University. In Nov. or Dec. this year, he travelled beyond the Seas, where he improved himself much as to Learning, knowledge of Men and Manners. After the death of Roger Ascham, which hapned in 1568, he became Latin Secretary to the Queen; and in 1569 he was made Prebendary of Compton-Dundo in the Church of Wells. In 1578 he was made Dean of Carlisle (tho a Layman) on the death of Sir Thomas Smyth, and in 1589 Chancellour of the most noble Order of the Garter. In 1592 he was made a Knight, and about the same time one of the Privy Council to her Majesty, being then a person most eminently perspicuous for his Learning, Piety, Integrity, Goodness, and Gravity. He died at Poyford in Surrey (where he had an Estate) in the latter end of Feb. or beginning of March, an. 1595, whereupon his Body was buried in the middle of the Chancel behind the high Altar of S. Pauls Cathedral. Over his Grave was, soon after, laid a flat stone with an Inscription thereon, under which also Sir Fran. Wolley, Wolloy his Son and Heir, sometimes of Merton Coll. also, was buried an. 1611, as also Elizabeth Widow of Sir John. All whose bodies were removed in 1614, and buried between S. George's Chappel and that of our Lady, within the Precincts of the said Cathedral, and had a very goodly Tombe with a large Inscription on it, erected over them; which was, with the Cathedral it self, consum'd in the dreadful Fire that hapned in London in the beginning of Sept. an. 1666.

Admitted 18.

Bach. of Div.

Only one was admitted this year, viz. Hen. Henshaw alias Heronshaw of Magd. Coll. Dec. 3. --- In the next year he was elected Rector of Linc. Coll.

There were also but two that supplicated for the said Degree, one of which was named Will. Ely of Brasn. Coll. who was made the second President of that of S. John, by the Founder thereof, an. 1559. In 1563 or thereabouts, he was removed from that place for maintaining the Pope's Authority, and not the Queens, over the Church of England; whereupon leaving Oxon, lived many years obscurely, having, if I mistake not, entred into some religious Order beyond the Seas. Afterwards being seized upon for a Seminary, he was committed to the common Prison at Hereford, where remaining several years, died an aged man an. 1609. being then accounted by those of his persuasion, a most holy Confessor. What I have farther to observe of him is this, that when Archb. Cranmer was brought to the Stake to be burnt at Oxon, he took leave of some of his Friends standing by, and seeing this Will. Ely among them, went to shake him by the hand, but he drawing back, said, It was not lawful to salute Hereticks and especially such an one that had falsly returned into his Opinions that he had forsworn, &c.

Not one Doctor of Law, Physick, or Divinity, was admitted this year.

Dec. 5. Leonard Stopes of S. John's Coll. --- In the year following he either left his Fellowship of the said Coll. or else was ejected; and going beyond the Seas, was made a Priest, much about the same time that Ralph Windon another ejected Fellow of that House was made a Priest also. Afterwards they both came into England, were taken and committed to custody in Wisbich Castle in Cambridgeshire, where they endured a tedious Imprisonment, and therefore accounted by those of their persuasion, Confessors. Contemporary with them, was one Thom. Bramston alias Brimston a young Fellow of the same Coll. who with leave from the Founder thereof, lived with John Ekenham Abbat of Westminster; but upon the alteration of Religion which was made soon after, he went beyond the Seas, and was made a Rom. Cath. Priest. Afterwards he returned into England, was taken and committed to custody in Wisbich Castle, where we find him 1595. Afterwards being set at liberty, lived beyond the Seas, to about the year 1608.

But two more, besides the said two, were admitted, and three there were that supplicated; one of whom was called Frat. Anton. Resebius or Raschius, who for the space of twelve years had studied Divinity in Paris and Oxford. His Grace was granted simpliciter in July, but whether he was ever admitted it appears not. He was one of the Fryers that was appointed by publick Authority to do the Doctrine that P. Martyr and others had settled in the University in the time of K. Ed. 6. and is the same, if I mistake not, whom John Fox, in his book of Acts and Men. of the Church, doth call Fryer Richard in his Discourse of the burning of Archb. Cranmer at Oxon.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 8. Thom. Powell. --- On the second day of Jul. 1563, he was admitted Archd. of Worcester in the place of Pet. Vannes deceased, and resigning in 1579, was succeeded by Godfr. Goldesborough.

Doct. of Div.

Jul. 6. Fr. Joh. de Villa Garcia or Garcina the Kings publick Professor of Div. in this University. --- This person who was now very forward in promoting the Rom. Cath. Cause in this University, (being authorized by publick Authority) was born at a Town in Spain called Garcia or Garceville, and being from his Childship much addicted to Letters, he was while a Boy, received among, and instructed by, the Dominicans or Black Fryers in his own Country; so that in a short time profiting much under them in several sorts of Learning, especially in Divinity, he took the Degree of Bach. of that Faculty in the University of Valladolid, he being then a Member of S. Gregories Coll. there. Afterwards upon the performance of certain Exercise for the said Degree in this University, had it confer'd upon him, as I have told you, under the year 1555; and this year being licensed to proceed, stood in an Act celebrated in S. Maries Church on the 11 of July. This is the person, who, with Hen. Syddal Canon of Ch. Ch. a very inconstant man in his Religion, took great pains in perswading Archb. Cranmer to recant his Opinions, when he was condemn'd to be burnt at Oxon, and the same who hath this character given of him by one (*) living in his time in this University. --- Prælegit autem nostra memoria Frater Johannis Hispanus scientissimus, cum 27 non excesserat annos; Platonis autem disciplinarum cyclopediam absolvisset: tum apud Philosophos Oxonienses Platoniam & Aristotelicam, mysticam & sacram professus est. &c. Whether he hath published any Books I cannot tell. Sure I am, that after Qu. Elizabeth came to the Crown he returned to the Country from whence he came, leaving then behind him the character of a most subtle Philosopher and Theologist.

This Fryer was the only person that was admitted D. of D. this year; and but 3 there were that supplicated for the said Degree, among whom were Baldwyn Norton Bach. of Div. and Divinity Reader of Magd. Coll. who the next year became Prebendary of Langtoft in the Ch. of York.

He died on the 29. of January. in the year 1617 and in that of his age 83, and was buried on the South side of the Chancel of St. Maries Church in Cambridge. Over his grave was soon after erected a comely Monument in the wall with his bust to the middle, and an inscription underneath, part of which runs thus. *Gulielmus Butlerus Clarenfis Aula quondam socius, medicorum omnium quos presens aetas vidit facile princeps, hoc sub marmore secundum Christi adventum expectat, & monumentum hoc privata pietas statuit, quod debuit publica. He first dissolved the choire, conveyed away the plate and ornaments, then the bells, and lastly put out the Almes-men from their houses, allowing them portions of 12 d. per week, which also in short time vanished away. This I thought good to let the reader know, because the Author here quoted, having reported these matters to be done by one Johnson, have caused some to think them done by Rob. Johnson beforementioned.

Apr. 7. Christoph. Perkins --- In what Coll. or Hall this Person was educated I know not: Sure I am that he leaving the University abruptly without completing his Degree by Determination, went beyond the Seas, and having spent some time in one of the new erected Seminaries, entred into the society of Jes. S. and lived among them in good repute for his learning. At length upon the coming to Rome (under the name of a Traveller) of Mr. William Cecil (afterwards Earl of Exeter) Grandson to Will. Lord Burleigh, there were whisperings in the English Coll. of doing him some mischief, in revenge for what his Grandfather had done in apprehending several Priests and putting them to death, yet they came to nothing. Whereupon Perkins possessed him with fears, and took upon him to direct him what to do and how to behave himself: And when Mr. Cecil had seen Rome and the Monuments thereof, Perkins did conduct him out of the City; and being a Man of a very great understanding, and Mr. Cecil therefore delighting much in his company, he perswaded him to accompany him to England. Afterwards they came together, and Mr. Cecil recommending him to his Grandfather for a wise understanding Man, and one that had taken much care of him at his being in Rome, and withal having been a Jesuit, he was now reconciled to the Church of England, the Lord Burleigh did thereupon procure for him the Deanery of Carlisle, which had been before possess'd by Sir John Wolley, and about the same time procured of the Queen that he should be employed into Germany, to make answer in the Queens name to the complaints of the Hanse-towns about their customes, to the Emperour, an. 1595. After his return, tho it was the desire of the said Lord Burleigh that he should live at Carlisle and follow the Ministry and nothing else, yet he lived in London, and being brought into the acquaintance of Dr. Bancroft Bishop of that place, that Doctor did make use of him both for his discovery beyond the Seas, and likewise upon other occasions. In 1600 he with the said Doctor and Joh. Swale, were as Delegates or Embassadors, sent by the Queen to Emden to parley with the Delegates of Denmark concerning matters of traffick, &c. and Perkins performed his part well as to that matter. Soon after by the said Bishops endeavours he became substitute to Sir Dan. Donne Master of the Requests, who, by reason of his age, could not well attend that place; and when he died he became Master in his own right and a Knight. About that time George Duke of Buckingham who was in great favour with K. Jam. 1. Sir Christopher thought that his only way to rise higher was to be married to one of his Relations: Whereupon tho he had vowed Virginity, he took to Wife his Mothers Siftet, yet with this condition, that she should not expect that he should pay old debts, to which she made answer, that she would expect none. Afterwards Buckingham hearing of the laid vow, detested him and made a resolution that he should rise no higher. Afterwards out of a revenge, Sir Christopher made his estate over to a Servant of his that was childless and in a deep consumption; and he dying within a few months after Sir Christopher, (who departed this mortal life in the month of Aug. 1622.) the said Servant left most of the estate to the Lady. I have been credibly informed (†) by a good Author that the said Sir Christopher had a hand in contriving and drawing up the Oath of Allegiance, while he was intimate with Dr. Bancroft. In the Deanery of Carlisle succeeded the said Sir Christopher Dr. Franc. White afterwards Bishop of that place.

Hen. 8.* In the time of Ed. 6. he was ejected, restored in the beginning of Qu. Mary and ejected again in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth. But Lancelot Salkeld B. of A. must not be taken to be the same with the other, because later in time. His successor in the said Deanery in the time of Ed. 6. and beginning of Qu. Elizabeth, was Sir Tho. Smythe, as I have told you among the Writers, under the year 1609.

Afterwards returning into England, was seized on, and committed to custody in Wibich Castle; where, upon some quarrel that followed between him and one of the Gentlemen, (that were Papists and Prisoners there) he was, as a certain (a) note informs me, slain, tho elsewhere it appears (b) that he was only beaten by one Blues a Jesuit. Law in upper Germany, did supplicate for the Degree of Bach. of that fac. but whether he was admitted it appears not. In 1575 he was made Archdeacon of Wells in the place of *Dr. Joh. 16. Edw. Eglington M. A. and Fellow of Kings Coll. in Cambridge --- He was now esteemed a good Grecian, and Latin Poet, was afterwards a Justice of Peace in Warwickshire; and drawing the Pedegree of *Qu. 26. John Pory Doct. of Div. and Master of Corp. Ch. College in Cambridge. --- One John Pory sometimes of Gonevill and Caius College in Cambridge did translate and collect A Geographical Historie of Africa, written in Arabick and Italian by John Leo a More, born in Granada and brought up in Barbary. --- Lond. 1600. fol. What relation there was between this John Pory and the other who was Doct. of Div. I know not; nor whether he be the same John Pory M. A. who was installed Canon of the seventh stall in the Church of Westminster, on the resignation of John Hyll, an. 1568.

Creations.

Aug. 27. Rich. Barber Bach. of the LL. and Warden of Allf. Coll. was then actually created Doctor of the Laws in an upper Chamber belonging to him as Warden, by Dr. Will. Ambrey and Dr. Rob. Longher, by virtue of a Commission directed to them from the ven. Convocation. — See more among the Bach. of Law, an. 1540.

Edw. Atflow M. of A. and Fellow of New Coll. was actually created Doct. of Phys. the same day, in the house of Dr. Hen. Baylie situated in the Highstreet leading to the Quadrivium, by Dr. Thom. Francis and him the said Dr. Baylie by virtue of a Commission, &c.

Rob. Barnes Bach. of Phys. sometimes Fellow of Mert. Coll. was also actually created Doctor of that Faculty in the same place and on the same day, by virtue of a Commission, &c.

Aug. 30. Roger Gifford Bach. of Physick, sometimes Fellow of Merton College, now, or lately, Fellow of that of Allsoules, was actually created Doct. of that Fac. by Dr. Walter, and Henry Baylie, in the house of the said Henry, by virtue of a Commission, &c. This Doctor Gifford was afterwards President of the Coll. of Physicians at London, and Physician to Qu. Elizabeth.

Note that the aforesaid four persons were created, because they were appointed by the Convocation to dispute before Qu. Elizabeth when she was to be entertained by the Academians in the beginning of Sept. this year.

After she had been entertained, these noble Persons following, with others of quality, were actually created Masters of Arts, on the 6 day of the said month of Sept. viz.

Edward Vere Earl of Oxford. — He was Son of John Vere Earl of the said place, who dying in 1562, left this his Son Edw. a vast Estate, which he afterwards squandered, for the most part, away, upon some distaste taken against his Wives Father Will. Lord Burleigh L. Treasurer of England, who refused to endeavour, when it laid in his power, to save the life of his beloved and entire Friend Thomas Duke of Norfolk for what he was charged with relating to Mary Queen of Scots. This most noble Earl of Oxon was in his younger days an excellent Poet and Comedian, as several matters of his Composition, which were made publick, did shew, which, I presume, are now lost and worn out. All that I have yet seen are certain Poems on several Subjects, thus entit. (1) His good name being blamished, he bewayleth. (2) The complaint of a Lover wearing black and tawnie. (3) Being in love he complaineth. (4) A lover rejected complaineth. (5) Not attaining to his desire, he complaineth. (6) His mind not quietly settled he complaineth thus; with many such like things, that were highly valued in their time. He gave way to fate in a good old age 24 June 1604, and was, as I conceive, buried by the body of his Father, at Earls Colne in Essex.

Will. Howard or Howard Baron of Effingham, Lord Chamberlain to the Queen. — He was Son of Thomas, the second Duke of Norfolk, by Agnes his second Wife, dau. of Hugh Tilney, and Sister and Heir to Sir Philip Tilney of Boston in Lincolnshire, Kt.

Tho. Butler Earl of Ormond. — This person is one of the Ancestors of the present Duke of Ormond, was now in great favour with Qu. Elizab. and by her employed several times in matters of concern relating to Ireland, especially in that of quelling the Rebellion there, made by some of his house, as Sir Edm. Butler, Pierce and Edw. his Brethren.

Ambrose Dudley Earl of Warwick. — He was the eldest Son that survived of Joh. Dudley Duke of Northumberland, (beheaded for High Treason in the Reign of Qu. Mary) and elder Brother to Rob. Dudley Earl of Leicester, Chanc. of this University.

Hen. Lord Strange Son of Edw. Earl of Derby. — He became Earl of Derby after his Fathers Death, an. 1572.

Edw. Stafford
Joh. Sheffield } Barons.

The first of these two Barons was the true heir of the Staffords Dukes of Buckingham, and is Ancestor to John Howard the present Viscount Stafford. The other, Joh. Sheffield, died in 1568, leaving then behind him a Son of about two years of age named Edmund, who was created Earl of Mulgrave or Mulgrave by K. Ch. 1. in the first year of his Reign.

Sir Will. Cecil Secretary of State. — He was afterwards Lord Burleigh, and Father to Tho. Earl of Exeter, Rob. Earl of Salisbury, and Edw. Vicount Wimbleson.

... Rogers Controller. — What his Christian Name was, I cannot yet tell.

Sir Franc. Knollis Knight, Captain of the Halbertiers.

Sir Nich. Throcmorton Knight, a wise and stout man, lately leiger Embassadour in France, and about this time chief Butler of England and Chamberlaine of the Exchequer. — He died suddenly in Leycester House in the Parish of S. Clement without Temple barre, London, on Munday 12 Feb. 1570. Whereupon his body was carried to his house in the Parish of Chree Church near Algate; where resting till the 21 day of the said month, was then buried in the Parish Church there. See more of him in Camdens Annals of Qu. Elizabeth, under the year 1570.

John Tomworth or Tamworth Esq; of the Privy Council to the Queen. — The same who in 1564 had been sent to Mary Qu. of Scots to interceed with her for the readmission of some of her Lords that had been against her Marriage with Henry Lord Darnley. This Jo. Tomworth had spent much of his youth in travelling beyond the Seas.

These Nobles, and persons of Quality before mention'd, were, I say, actually created Masters of Arts, in a Convocation held Sept. 6. in the public Refectory of Ch. Church, in the presence of Robert Earl of Leicester Chancellour of the University, Dr. Kennall Commissary, Dr. Laur. Humphrey, both the Proctors, &c. the Queen being then about to leave Oxon.

Sept. ... Thom. Randolphe Bach. of the Civ. Law, sometimes Principal of Broadgates Hall, had leave, tho absent, to be created Doctor of his Faculty: but whether he was created it appears not.

Oct. 11. By virtue of a Commission from the prime Members of the University, then bearing date and sealed, directed to Dr. Laur. Humphrey the Queens Professor of Divinity, were these five Bishops following made Doct. of Divinity.

Oct. 30.	{	Job. Parkhurst	}	Bishop of	Normych.
		Will. Downham			Chester
		Tho. Bensham			Lich. and Cov.
		Rich. Davies			S. David.
		Job. Best			Carlile.

All which were actually created (Oct. 30.) in the House of one Steph. Medcalf at London, in the presence of Will. Standish publick Notary, and Registry of the University, Thomas Roberts, John Pratt Archdeacon of S. David, Wait. Jones Archdeacon of Brecknock (afterwards Canon of Westminster in the place of Dr. Mathew Hutton) and Thom. Huet Chantor of S. David.

Oct. ... Edward Earl of Rusland was actually created Master of Arts (at London.)

Feb. ... Will. Smyth one of the Clerks of the Queens Council, was also created M. of A. (at London.)

S. John's Coll. in the aforesaid University, made Dean of Durham

Mother of France* for plotting secretly to remove her from the Government. For so it was, that he comforted them in the Queen of England's name, promising them, that she would omit no opportunity to help and relieve them. Of this civility the Qu. Mother of France having notice, prosecuted Wilkes so much, that he was fain to withdraw himself into England, where she also followed him with letters of complaint; insomuch that he was sent back into France and there humbly craved pardon (a) of the *Qu. However the King of Navarr not unmindful of the consolation he gave him, did, when he came to be King of France, honor him with the degree of Knighthood, when he saw him in Normandy twenty five years after. All the great men of his time did make honorable mention of him in their respective books, and some did dedicate their Writings to him, and his Brother Francis Pitheus, as the Lights of France. Thuanus doth very much (*) commend, and at length concludes thus of him, that "In the Civil Law of the Romans, he came to that height, that it might be justly said of him, and his famous Master Cujacius, hunc discipulo praeipuisse, ne primus Jurisconsultus esset, illum praeceptor, ne solus, &c. Many of his works are mention'd in the Oxford Catalogue."

Christi*, Coll. in Cambridge, became Dean of Peterborough in 1583, and was present with Mary Queen of Scots when she suffer'd death at Fotheringbey in Northamptonshire, in the month of Febr. 1586. At which time being the person appointed to pray with, and for her, did persuade her to renounce her Religion, contrary to all Christianity and Humanity (as it was by many then present to taken) to her great disturbance. In 1589 he was made Bish. of Bristol, there being then many leases to be past in that Bishoprick, and about that time Bish. Almoner. Whereupon Thomas Nevill D. D. of Cambridge succeeded him in the Deanery of Peterborough, an. 1590. From Bristol he was translated to Worcester, and soon after to London. At length he took to him a second Wife (a very handsome Widow) called the Lady Baker, Sister, as 'tis said, to George Gifford the Pensioner. At which Marriage the Queen being much displeased, (as she was at the marriage of all the Clergy) he died discontentedly by immoderate taking of Tobacco, on the 15 (+) of June 1596, and was buried before S. George's Chappel within the Cathedral Church of S. Paul. He had a Brother named Giles Fletcher, a Kentish man born also, as 'tis said, bred in Eaton School, elected Afterwards he was sent Commissioner into Scotland, Germany and into the Low Countries, Ambassador to Russia, was made Secretary to the City of London and Master of the Requests. At length he wrote and published The History of Russia, &c. Or Of the Russian Commonwealth. Lond. 1591. oct. Which book was quickly suppressed, lest it might give offence to a Prince in amity with England. Afterwards it was reprinted in tw. an. 1643, &c. This Dr. Gil. Fletcher died in the Parish of St. Catherine in Colemanstreet in London, in the month of Feb. 1610, and was buried, I presume, in the Ch. of St. Cath. there; leaving then behind him a Son of both his names, Bach. of Div. of Trin. Coll. in Camb. equally beloved of the Muses and Graces; who died at Alderson in Suffolk, an. 1623. He left also behind him another Son named Phineas Fletcher of Kings Coll. in the same University, where he was accounted an excellent Poet. Afterwards he was beneficed at Hilgay in Norfolk, and became Author of several books; among which, one is entit. A Fathers testament written for the benefit of his particular Relations. Lond. 1670. oct. at which time the Author had been dead several years. Westphaling*, numb. 157. In the Deanery of Windsore succeeded Dr. Giles Tompson a little before Qu. Elizabeths death, and in the Mastership of the Hosp. of St. Crofs, (which was designed by the Queen for George Brook Brother to Henry Lord Cobham) K. James at his first entry into England, gave it to Mr. James Hudson, who had been his Agent there during part of the Reign of Qu. Elizabeth. But Hudson being a Lay-man and therefore not found capable of it, Sir Tho. Lake, for some reward given to him to quit his interest therein, prevailed with the King to give it to his Brother Arthur Lake: Whereupon George Brook being discontented, it put him upon plotting with his Brother, Raleigh and others; for which afterwards he suffered death.

Thom. Staller or Stallard M. A. of Camb. was also then incorporated --- He was afterwards D. of D. and Archdeacon of Rocheſter, as I shall tell you among the Doctors of Div. an. 1591. and 1605.

Thom. Willoughby Bach. of Div. of (Cambridge) was incorporated, but the day or month when, I cannot yet find. --- This year June 23, he was installed the third Dean of Rochester in the place of Dr. Edm. Freke, and was succeeded in that dignity by John Coldwell M. D. of St. John Coll. in Cambridge, installed therein 7. Januar. 1585. He was afterwards the first married Bishop that late in the Cath. Martin, who being unacquainted with his Christian name, sets him down in the title by the name of John Madax, tho no such Person appears to have been ever Fellow of Allf. Coll. In 1563, one Rich. Madax was admitted Bach. of Law, and another in 1590, but they are both different, and different from Rich. the Divine, who was M. of A.

Feb. 1. John Bode of New Coll. --- The next year he was removed from his Fellowship for being a Papist; whereupon going beyond the Seas, he took upon him Priestly Orders, and returning into England in the condition of a Seminary, was taken and imprisoned and at length executed at Andover in Hampshire, for denying the Queens Supremacy over the Church of England, an. 1583. He was born in the City of Wells; was well vers'd in the Civil Law, and esteemed by those of his opinion a learned Man. See more of him in *Card. Will. Doct. of Civ. Law.

Dec. 5. Rob. Whitmore.

Thom. Randolph mention'd among the creations, under the year 1566, did supplicate for the Degree of Doct. of the Civ. Law, in June; yet he appears not admitted. He was afterwards made Doct. of that faculty in another Country, when he performed one of his Embassies, as it seems. Quere.

Jul. ... John Watson of Allf. Coll. who had studied Physick for 20 years, was admitted Doctor of that faculty --- He was afterwards Bishop of Winchester.

✧ Not one Doctor of Divinity was admitted this year.

Incorporations.

A supplicate was made for one Hugh Blythe Bach. of Div. of Kings Coll. in Cambridge to be incorporated, but whether it was granted, it appears not. In 1572, he was installed Canon of Windfore in the place of George Carew made Dean of that Chappel, (he being about that time Schoolmaster of Eaton) and in 1589 he succeeded *Dr. Rich. Jul. 3. Barthelm. w Chamberlaine of Trin. Coll.

Besides which two, were 7 admitted.

On the 4. Jul. Petrus Regius a French Man M. of A. of 12 years standing in the University of Paris, now an Exile for his Religion, and a Catechistical Lecturer in this University, supplicated that he might be admitted Bach. of Div. and that the exercise to be performed for it, might be deferr'd till Michaelmas Term following, because he shortly after designed to return to his native Country. But the Regents, upon mature consideration, return'd this answer, that he might take the said Degree when he pleased, conditionally that he perform all exercises requisite by the statute before he take it.

On the same day Giles Gualter M. of A. of 8 years standing in the University of Caen (another Exile, as it seems) did supplicate under the same form; but whether either of them was admitted, it appears not.

Doct. of Civ. Law.

Jul. 3. Griffith or Griffin Lloyd Principal of Jesui Coll. --- He was afterwards the Kings Professor of the Civil Law and Chancellour to the Bishop of Oxford. He died in Doctors Commons, 26. Nov. 1586, and was buried two days after in the Church of St. Bennet near to Pauls-wharf, in London.

✧ Not one Doctor of Physick was admitted this year.

Doct. of Div.

Apr. 10. Adam Squire Master of Ball. Coll. --- This Person who was a learned but fantastical Man, married the Daughter of Dr. Jo. Elmer Bishop of London, by whose favour he was made Archdeacon of Middlesex, but when, I cannot tell.

Apr. ... John Bold of C. C. Coll. --- In the year 1578. Sept. 25. he was collated to the Archdeaconry of Northumberland by Dr. Barnes Bishop of Durham, on the resignation of Mr. Franc. Bunney, who some years before had succeeded Mr. Ralph Lever in that Dignity. After Dr. Bold had resign'd it, Ralph Tomstall M. A. was collated thereunto 29. Oct. 1581, but who succeeded him, the register of the Church of Durham, which is deficient, tells us not till Bishop Neyes time, who collated to the said Archdeaconry Gab. Clerke D.D. 7. Aug. 1619. upon the resignation of Dr. John Craddock. See more among the Masters of Arts, an. 1612.

Jul. 6. Pet. Lozillerius Villerius a French Man, Doctor of the Civil Law and Divinity of an University in his own Country, was then admitted to proceed in Divinity, and three days after did compleat that Degree by standing in the Act then celebrated. --- He was an Exile for his Religion, lived in Ch. Ch. for some time, but whether he read a lecture, or taught privately, as other Exiles did, I know not. Sure I am he was a learned Man, and had newly corrected and set forth Bez's New Testament in Greek.

Incorporations.

June 5. Tho. Hakeluyt M. A. of Cambridge.

22. Will. Smyth M. of A. of the same University --- I take this to be the same Will. Smyth who was afterwards Master of Clare Hall, Chaplain to Qu. Elizabeth, Vicechanc. of the said University, an. 1603, Chaplain to K. Jam. 1. and at length Provost of Kings Coll. to which he was elected 22. Aug. 1612. He died 26. March 1615, and became a considerable benefactor to the said College.

Jul. 10. Humph. Tindall M. A. of the same University --- He was afterwards Master of Queens Coll. there, and became the fourth Dean of Ely in the place of John Bell D.D. who died 31. Oct. 1591 aged 61. The said Tindall was descended from the antient and gentle family of his name living in Norfolk, and dying 12. Oct. 1614 aged 65 was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Ely.

July 11. Peter Baro D.D. of Cambridge --- This learned and worthy Divine was born at Estampes in France, left that Country upon account of Religion, came into England for refuge, settled in Cambridge by the endeavours of *Dr. Andr. many. At length the Calvinistical Party disgusting certain matters, (which they looked upon as heretodox) vented by him in his readings and prints, viz. in his Comment on Jonah and his book De Fide, one of them named Lawrence Chadderton had a contest with him. Their objections were (1) That in his readings upon Jonah, he taught the Popish Doctrine of the cooperation of faith and works to justification; which, tho in terms a little changed, yet the Doctrine was one and the same in effect. (2) That he laboured to make Men believe that the reformed Churches Doctrine, was not so differing from Popish Doctrine, but that by distinctions they might be reconciled, and therefore concluded that both professions might be tolerated. And thirdly that in his said readings he taught that the Heathen may be saved without the Faith of the Gospel, and other strange matters, which they looked upon as damnable errors, &c. Besides also, as they observed, that after many years, wherein he had sundry ways hurt the sincerity of the Doctrine, he brought the Popish Schoolmen into credit, and diminished the honour of the learned Writers of that age. Since which time the course of studies in Divinity, and the manner of preaching hath been much changed in that University by some, who have followed that vain, and left the study of sound Writers (as they stile them) and apply themselves to the reading, as they farther add, of popish, barbarous, and fantastical Schoolmen, delighted with their curious questions and quiddities, whereby they draw all points of Christian faith into doubts, being the high-way not only to Popery but to Atheism, &c. For these, I say, and such like matters, he was, by the zealous travel of some of the Brethren in the said University, removed from his place of Margaret Professor, about the year 1596, not without the consent of Dr. Whigfist (a) Archb. of Canterbury. For so it was, and they could not be beaten out of it, that they thought, that as a certain Spaniard named Ant. Corranus was brought to, and settled in, Oxon. purposely to corrupt the true Doctrine; so Pet. Baro a French Man was for Cambridge, which last, is nevertheless reported in the following age by a high Church of England (b) Man that tho he was a Forreigner by birth, yet he better understood the Doctrine of the Church of England, than many of the Natives, his contemporaries in the University of Cambridge, &c. His writings are these. (1) In Jonam Prophetam praedicationes 39. (2) Conciones tres ad clerum Cantabrigiensem habitae, in templo B. Mariae. (3) Theses, publicae in Scholis peroratae & disputatae. Which Theses being only two, were translated into English by John Ludham with these titles. First Gods purpose and decree taketh not away the liberty of mans corrupt will. The second, Our conjunction with Christ is altogether spiritual. Both printed at Lond. 1590. in oct. (4) Precationes, quibus usus est auctor in suis praedicationibus inchoandis & finiendis. All which were published at Lond. 1579. fol. by the care and labor of Osmund Lake Bach. of Div. and Fellow of Kings Coll. in Cambridge who viewed and corrected them before they went to the press. This Osm. Lake, by the way I must tell you, had been Proctor of that University, was afterwards Vicar of Ringwood in Hampshire and a publisher of several books, (besides others which he wrot, that are not yet extant) among which are A probe Theological, or the first part of the Christian Pastors proof of his learned Parishioners faith. Lond. 1612. qu. He died in 1621 leaving then behind him the character of a learned Man. As for the other works of Pet. Baro they are these. (5) De praestantia & dignitate divinae Legis, lib. 2. printed 1586. oct. (6) Tractatus in quo docet expetitorem oblatus a mente boni & fiduciam ad fidei justificantis naturam pertinere. (7) Summa trium sententiarum de praedestinatione &c. Har-drov. 1613. oct. printed with the Notes of Joh. Piscator, Disquisition of Franc. Junius, and Praelection of Will. Whittaker. (8) Special treatise of Gods providence, and of comforts against all kind of crosses and calamities to be fetched from the same; with an Exposition on Psal. 107. (8) Four Sermons. The first on Psal. 133. v. 2. 3. The sec. on Psal. 15. v. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. &c. After this Author Peter Baro had been removed from Cambridge, he went to London, lived and died in Crouched Friars, and was buried in the Church of St. Olaves in Hartstreet. At whose interment the Bishop of London ordered the most eminent Divines and Ministers in that City, to be present. The Baro's or Barons as they are by some called, who do now, or did lately live at Boston in Lincolnshire, and at Kings Lynn in Norfolk, are descended from him.

Jul. 11. Walt. Travers M. of A. of Cambridge, was then incorporated in the same Degree -- This Person had received his Academical education in Trin. Coll. in the said University, and afterwards travelled to Geneva, where he became acquainted with Beza; and at his return took the Degree of Bach. of Div. Soon after he went to Antwerp, where he was ordained Minister according to the Presbyterian way, and returning again into England, he became Lecturer in the Temple while Mr. Rich. Hooker was Master; between whom certain differences in Religion hapning, Travers was discharged of his place by the Archbishop: Whereupon by the endeavours of Dr. Adam Loftus Archb. of Dublin, he was made Provost of Trin. Coll. there an. 1594. But he keeping that place not long, he returned into England, and lived divers years, as 'tis said, very obscurely, but where I cannot tell. Sure I am that one Walt. Travers succeeded Joh. Salkeld in the Vicaridge of Wellington in Somersetshire, an. 1635, but whether the same, 'tis doubtful. Among several things that this W. Travers hath published, is Declaration of ecclesiastical discipline out of the word of God, and of the declining of the Church of England from the same. Genev. 1580. oct. It is also extant in latine, but that I have not yet seen. The other things that he hath written you may mostly, if not all, see in the Oxford or Bodleian Catalogue.

On the 4. of July was a supplicate made that Tho. Norton M. of A. of Cambridge might be incorporated, but whether he was, it appears not. Had this supplication been made in 1560, I should have taken him to be the same Tho. Norton, a famous Poet of his time, whom I have mention'd among these Writers in Tho. Sternbold, an. 1549, and in Tho. Sackville an. 1608.

June 12. George Peele of Ch. Ch. --- He was afterwards an eminent Poet.

25. Tertullian Pine of St. Johns Coll. --- Whether he took a higher Degree in this University, it appears not; for travelling beyond the Seas, he was made Doctor of the Laws in the University of Basil; whence returning, he was installed Archdeacon of Sudbury in the Dioc. of Norwiche 20. Jul. 9. Anthony Rudde Bach. of Div. of Cambr. was also then incorporated. — He was of *Trin. In 1594 June 9. he was consecrated Bishop of S. David (being then accounted a most admirable Preacher) and died 7 March 1614, having before published four, or more, Sermons. He had a Son of both his names, who was a Commoner of Magd. Coll. in this University in 1603.

Jul. 19. Nich. Bownde M. A. of the said University. — He was afterwards D. of D. beneficed at Norton in Suffolk, and famed for several things that he published in his life time. Among which are (1) Sabbatum veteris & novi Testamenti; or the true doctrine of the Sabbath, held and practised of the Church of England, both before and under the Law, &c. This book was first published, as one (*) observes, in 1595, and was the first of that nature which first saw light, and occasion'd the observation of the Lords day more solemnly to be kept, which before was not. Whereupon his Doctrine was opposed by several persons, of whom Tho. Rogers was one, as I have elsewhere told you. (2) The holy exercise of fasting, &c. in certain Homilies or Sermons, &c. Lond. 1604. oct. dedicated to his great Lord and Patron Dr. John Jegon B. of Nowych. (3) A storehouse of comfort for the afflicted in spirit set open in 21 Sermons. Lond. 1604. qu. Jun. 28. { Will. Wood } of Brasn. Coll.
 { Will. Wilkenfon }

See another Will. Wood in 1561. As for Will. Wilkenfon, I find one of both his names to be Author of A confutation of certain articles delivered to the family of Love, &c. Lond. 1579, oct. and of A godly treatise of the exercise of Fasteng, &c. Lond. 1580, oct. but him of Brasn. Coll. I take to be too young to be an Author, he being this year about 20 years of age. See another Will. Wilkenfon an. 1593.

Feb. 26. Thom. Gibson. — See among the Masters 1580.

Rich. Parks of Brasn. Coll. was admitted the same day.

Bach. of Law.

Jul. 2. Henry Dethick M. of A. was admitted Bach. of Law, being now Chancellour of the Diocess of Carlisle. — About this time also he succeeded one Edw. Threlkeld LL. D. in the Archdeaconry of Carlisle, who had been collated thereunto 10 Eliz. Dom. 1567-8. the same Threlkeld I mean who had been Fellow of Kings Coll. in Cambridge, and the same who was so much admired in that University, for his excellent Knowledge and Eloquence, that he was thought to use the help of some good Genius. When he gave up the Chancellourship of Carlisle he was Chancellour of the Diocess of Hereford, where he became highly valued for his profession. In the year 1581 I shall make farther mention of Hen. Dethick, who was a man of Learning also, but far beneath Threlkeld.

Beside Dethicke were six Bach. of Law adm. this year, among whom Job. Drenwy was one. See in 1584.

Doct. of Law.

Oct. 13. Rich. Percy of Ch. Ch. — He died 10 Nov. 1598, (after he had been 20 years Commissary to the Archbish. of York) and was buried in the Church of Settrington in Yorkshire, of which he became Rector in 1591, in the place of Ralph Tomson D. D.

Feb. 12. Giles Lawrence of Alls. Coll. and Greek Professor of the University. — He was a Glocestershire man born, was admitted Scholar of C. C. Coll. with his individual Friend John Jewell an. 1539, and in 1542 was elected prob. Fellow of that of Allsoules. On the 18 Sept. an. 1564 he became Archdeacon of Wiles, on the deprivation of one John Lawrence (whether his Father or Uncle I know not) being then in great esteem for his learning. A certain (*) Author of no mean fame, tells us, that this Dr. Lawrence was the light and ornament of this University, that he was brought up and nourished in the bosom of Pallas, and that into him, as also into Barthelmew Dodington, the ornaments of Cambridge, Nature, and unwearied Industry, had infused and placed all the Greek Treasures and Riches imaginable. I have been inform'd that he hath written and published several Books, but such I have not yet, in all my searches, seen; nor do I know any thing else of him, only that in the time of Queen Mary he was Tutor to the Children of Sir Arthur Darcey living near the Tower of London, and that he was in being in 1584.

Feb. 23. Robert Salisbury of Jesum Coll. — He was a younger Son of Sir John Salisbury of Lewen in Denbighshire Knight, and Uncle to Sir John Salisbury of the same place, who died 1613; which is all I know of him.

Doct. of Phys.

Nov. 12. Henry Buft of Magd. Coll. — He was afterwards superior Reader of Lynacre's Phys. Lecture, practised his Faculty many years in Oxon with great repute; and dying in his house in S. Aldates Parish, was buried in the Church belonging thereunto, 17 Feb. 1616.

Doct. of Div.

July 10. Edw. Chapman of Cambridge. — See among the Incorporations following.

12. Rich. Creke of Magd. Coll.

Jan. 19. John Barefoot of C. C. Coll. Chaplain to Ambrose Earl of Warwick. — In 1581 he became Archdeacon of Lincoln in the place of Dr. John Robinson (mention'd among the Incorporations an. 1566) and dying in 1595, was succeeded in that Dignity by Rich. Cleyton D. D. collated thereunto 29 August the same year. After Cleyton followed John Hills D. D. Master of S. Catherins Coll. or Hall in Cambridge, who was collated to it 21 Sept. 1612. He died in 1626, (about the month of Sept.) and was buried in the Chancel of the Church at Horsbeach in Cambridgeshire, where there was, if not still, a Monument in the Wall, over his grave.

Jan. 19. Barthelmew Chamberlayne of Trin. Coll.

Edmund Bumey of Mert. Coll. did supplicate for the said Degree in February, but was not admitted.

Incorporations.

July 7. Edward Chapman Bach. of Div. of Cambridge. — He was soon after admitted Doctor, as I have before told you.

14. William Whitaker or Whittaker Bach. of Divinity of the said University. — This famous Divine for Learning and Life, was born at Holme in the Parish of Burndey in Lancashire, initiated there in Grammar learning, taken thence by his Uncle Alexander Nowell Dean of Pauls, and by him maintained in his house, and put to the Free School there. At eighteen years of age he was sent to Trin. Coll. in Cambridge, took the Degrees in Arts, and the first thing that made him known for his excellency in the Gr. Tongue, was the turning his Uncles Catechism into that Language. Afterwards being famous for Theology, he was made the Kings Professor in that Faculty, and stood up in defence of the Protestant Religion and Church of England against Edmund Campian, Nicholas Saunders, William Rainolds, Robert Bellarmine, Thomas Stapleton, &c. At length having much impoverished his weak Body by continual study, even at that time, when the Question was so rife among the Divines (†) Whether a true and justifying faith may be lost, he was freed from this Body of flesh, and lost his life, having left behind him the desire and love of the present times, and the envy of Posterity, that cannot bring forth his parallel. He gave way to Fate 4 December an. 1595, aged 47, and was buried in the Chappel belonging to S. Johns Coll. in Cambridge, of which Coll. he had several years before been Matter. His Works are printed in Latin in two folios at Genev. 1610.

(*) Tu. Fuller in his Ch. History &c. lib. 9. sub an. 1595.

July 15. Gervase Babington M. of A. of the same University of Cambridge. — He was a Nottinghamshire man born, was Fellow of Trinity Coll. afterwards Chaplain to Henry Earl of Pembroke, Treasurer of Landaff, and successively Bishop of Landaff, Exeter, and Worcester. He published several Books of Div. which were all printed in one Volume in fol. Lond. 1615, and go under the name of his Works. He died in the year 1610, at which time he enriched the Library belonging to the Church at Worcester, with many choice Books.

Brute Babington B. of A. of this University, was incorporated the same day: so also was William Cotton M. A. — This person who was Son of John Cotton Citizen of Lond. n. third Son of Richard, eighth Son of John Cotton, or Cotton of Humpstable Ridware in Staffordshire, was partly educated in Guildford School in Surrey, afterwards in Queens Coll. in Cambridge, and took the usual Degrees. Some years after he became Archdeacon of Lewis, Canon residentiary of S. Pauls Cath. Church, and at length Bishop of Exeter. He died at Silverton in Devon. 26 August 1621, and was buried on the south side of the Choir or Presbytery of the Cath. Church at Exeter. One William Cotton Fellow of Magd. Coll. in Oxon, was admitted M. of A. in June 1577, but what relation there was between him and the Bishop, I cannot tell.

This year also, Sept. 1. Edward Stanhope Doct. of the Civ. Law of Trinity Coll. in the said University, did supplicate in a Convention called simile primum, that he might be incorporated in the said Degree, which, tho granted simpliciter, yet it appears not that he was incorporated. He was afterwards a Knight, Chancellour to the Bishop of London, and Vicar General to the Archb. of Canterbury. He paid his last debt to Nature on the sixteenth day of March an. 1608, and was buried near to the great north door within the Cathedral Church of S. Paul in London. He was Brother to John Lord Stanhope of Harrington.

now call'd, to the reading of any book of S. Paul's Epistles, that is, to the degree of Bach. of Divinity. — This the Members of the University did readily grant, not only because he was an honorable person, but also for that his Parents and Relations had suffered much in the Smalcaldic War for their zealous profession of the Gospel, and also that the Count had been trained up in good Arts, as well as in Divinity.

In the said Archdeaconry of Wells succeeded him one Steph. Nelson, but when, unless in the year 1610, I cannot tell, and in his Prebendary of Worcester John Hammer, an. 1614.

Bach. of Div.

June 21. Erasmus Webbe of Allf. Coll. --- In 1589, he was made Archdeacon of Buckingham, in the place of him, who if I mistake not, succeeded in that Dignity one Richard Porter, deceased about 1560, and on the 30. Sept. 1590, he was installed Canon of Windsor in the place of William King Bach. of Div. and Prebendary of Canterbury deceased. He died 24. March 1613, and was buried at Windsore; whereupon his Archdeaconry was bestowed bestowed on Rob. Newell Bac. (afterwards D.) of Div. and his Canonry on Dr. Tho. Sheafe of Cambridge.

Jun. 21. Thom. Pye of Merton Coll.

Doct. of Law.

July 13. Gabriel Harvey M. of A. of Cambridge (where he obtained his grace this year to proceed in the Civil Law) was then admitted Doctor of the Civ. Law here. -- He performed certain exercise in this University for the said Degree, and stood in the Act to compleat it, 11. Jul. 1586. This Person who made a great noise in his time, was born at Saffron-walden in Essex, and tho his Father was a Rope-maker as Thom. Nash a great Scoffer, and his Antagonist tells (a) us, yet he had rich kindred and was nearly allied to Sir Thom. Smith the great Statesman in Qu. Elizabeth's Reign. His first Academical breeding was in Christ's Coll. in Cambridge, where, in short time, he made great proficiency to the wonder and amazement of his Tutor. Afterwards he became Fellow of Trinity hall, and so excellent and learned an Orator and Poet, that books of those faculties were dedicated to him. Afterwards he was Proctor of that University, and at elder years he applied his studies to Astrologie, wherein he became eminent, and wrote, as 'tis said, Almanacks, much in esteem in the Reign of Qu. Elizabeth. His other works are (1) Rhetor, sive 2. dierum oratio de natura, arte & exercitatione Rhetorica. Lond. 1577. qu. (2) Ciceronianus, vel oratio post reditum, habita Cantabrigia ad suos auditores. Lond. 1577. qu. (3) XAIPE, vel gratulationum Valdenensium libri quatuor. Lond. 1578. qu. in Lat. vers. (4) Smithus, vel Musarum Lachrymæ, pro obitu honoratiss. viri, &c. Thomæ Smith Eq. auri. Majestatisq; regis Secretarii. Lond. 1578. qu. (5) A new letter of notable contents: with a strange sonnet entituled Gorgon. Lond. 1593. qu. (6) Pierces superarrogation: or, a new praise of the old asse. A preparative to certain larger discourses, entit. Nashes S. fame. Lond. 1593. qu. with Letters and Sonnets before and after the said book, made upon the Author Harvey by several Poets of that time (7) An advertisement for Pap-hatchet, and Martin Marprelate; printed with the former book, with other things, wherein he tramples much upon Rob. Green the Poet, which I have not yet seen. This Dr. Gab. Harvey was esteemed an ingenious Man and an excellent Scholar, but 'twas his, and his Brother Rich. Harvey's ill luck to fall into the hands of that noted and restless buffoon Tom. Nash in his Apologie of Pierce penniless, and Have with you to Saffron-walden. In both which books, they are loaden with all the scurrilities imaginable, as being according to Toms words, false prophets, weather-wizards, Fortune-tellers, Poets, Philosophers, Orators, Historiographers, Mountebanks, Ballad-makers, &c. The reader is to know that 'twas not this Gabriel Harvey that made a raised causey of three miles long near to Cambridge, as the learned Camden (b) tells us, but Henr. Harvey LL. D. Master of Trinity hall, Son of Rob. Harvey of Stradbroke in Suffolk; which Henry died in the Winter-time in 1584, leaving behind him a Nephew and Heir called Lewes Harvey of Eye in the said County, Father of Robert Harvey Fellow of the said hall of Trinity, Doctor of the Laws of Cambridge and Doct. of Physick of Padua. In my searches I find one Gabriel Harvey LL. D. of Saffron-walden in Essex to die unmarried in 1630 (6. Car. 1.) which, if the same with him before-mention'd, who was the Writer (as I think he was) then was he at least 85 years of age when he died, if not 90.

Doct. of Physick.

Jul. 8. Christopher Atkinson of Trin. Coll.

Richard Radcliff lately of Merton Coll. now Principal of St. Albans hall was admitted the same day. -- He died 18. Jan. 1599, after he had practised his faculty many years in this University, and was buried in the Church of St. Peter in the East, in Oxon.

Doct. of Div.

Jun. 21. Hen. Gervase of Merton Coll.

Jun. ... Rob. Condall or Cundall of Brasn. Coll. a Compounder. -- In 1577, he was made Archdeacon of Huntingdon in the place of Dr. Job. Bullyngham, but who succeeded him in that Dignity, I know not, unless Matthew Gifford M. A. who occurs Archdeacon 1612.

Jun. ... Daniel Bernard Canon of Ch. Ch. -- He was Son of Tho. Bernard mention'd among the Bach. of Divinity, an. 1566. and dying about the Month of Sept. 1588. was buried in the choir belonging to the Cathedral of Ch. Ch. I have seen a Lat. Sermon of his entit. De obedientia erga Principes & Presbiteros, in Tit. 2. 3. printed 1587. which is all, I presume, that he hath published.

Jun. ... John Rainolds of C. C. Coll.

Jun. ... Martin Heton Canon of Ch. Ch. -- He was afterwards Bishop of Ely.

Jun. ... Rob. Rowles of New Coll. a Compounder.

William Wilkes of Merton Coll. was admitted in the same month.

Jul. 14. Will. Powell of Magd. Coll. -- In 1578 he was made reader of Divinity in St. Pauls Cath. Ch. and was afterwards Archdeacon of Bathe, and Canon resident. of Wells. He died on the 12. of March, or thereabouts, an. 1612. and was buried in the choir of the Cath. Ch. at Wells; whereupon Tim. Rivett or Rever D. D. succeeded him in his Archdeaconry.

Incorporations.

Jul. 2. James Summers who was made M. of A. of St. Andrews University in Scotland, an. 1565, was incorporated in the same Degree. -- Tho. Dempster in his Scotorum scriptorum nomenclatura, at the end of his Apparatus ad Historiam Scoticam, doth make no mention of this Jam. Summers (born at Edinburgh) as a Writer, tho he was a learned Man; and therefore I can say no more of him only this, that he living many years in Oxon near to Magd. Coll. died there, and was buried in the Church of St. Peter in the East, 30. Aug. 1610.

Jul. 11. John Dod M. of A. of Cambridge -- He was a Cheshire Man born, educated in Jesus Coll. in that University, afterwards a learned and godly Divine, successively Minister of Hanwell in Oxfordshire, Fenny-Drayton in Leycestershire, Canons Ashby and Fausley in Northamptonshire, tho for a time (c) silenced in each of them. He is commonly called the Decalogist, as having, with Rob. Cleaver another Puritan, written An exposition on the ten commandments. He hath also published several Sermons, as the Oxford Catalogue informs you, and dying at Fausley in 1645 aged 86 was there buried.

Philemon Holland M. of A. of the said University, was incorporated on the same day -- He was now, or at least lately, of Trinity Coll. in that University, was afterwards Doct. of Physick and School-master for many years in the City of Coventry, and esteemed the Translator general of his age. He died 9. Febr. aged 85, an. Dom. 1636. and was buried in the choir of the great Church at Coventry. Among the translations which he made, Camdens Britannia was one, wherein he hath put many things that were not written by Camden.

John Harrison M. A. lately of Kings Coll. in the said University, was incorporated the same day -- In 1581 he became the chief Master of St. Pauls School, in London, being then a great Antiquary for Coines. One of both his names was made Archdeacon of Stow in the place of John Aylmer or Elmer depriv'd, an. 1554.

Rob. Williamson Bach. of Div. of the same Univ. was incorporated on the same day.

One John Nowell Doct. of Phys. of Leyden did supplicate to be incorporated, 27. June, but whether he had his option, it appears not.

Bach. of Musick.

July 9. John Bull who had practised the fac. of Musick for 14 years was then admitted Bach. of Musick. -- This Person who had a most prodigious hand on the Organ and was famous throughout the religious world for his Church Musick, (the words of some of which are (d) extant) had been trained up under an excellent Master named Blishman Organist of Qu. Elizabeths Chappel, who died much lamented in 1591. This Blishman perceiving that he had a natural genie to the faculty, spared neither time nor labour to advance it to the utmost. So that in short time he being more than Master of it, which he shew'd by his most admirable compositions, played and sung in many Churches beyond the Seas, as well as at home, he took occasion to go incognito into France and Germany. At length hearing of a famous Musician belonging to a certain Cathedral, (at St. Omer as I have heard) he applied himself as a Novice to him to learn something of his faculty, and to see and admire his works. This Musician, after some discourse had passed between them, conducted Bull to a Vestry, or Musick School joyn- ing to the Cathedral, and shew'd to him a Lesson or Song of forty parts, and then made a vaunting challenge to any Person in the world to add one more part to them, supposing it to be so compleat and full, that it was impossible for any mortal Man to correct, or add to, it. Bull thereupon desiring the use of Ink and rul'd paper, (such as we call Musical Paper) prayed the Musician to lock him up in the said School for 2 or 3 hours. Which being done, not without great disdain by the Musician, Bull in that time, or less, added forty more parts to the said Lesson or Song. The Musician thereupon being called in, he view'd it, tried it, and retri'd it. At length he burst out into a great extasie, and swore by the great God that he that added those 40 parts, must either be the Devil or Dr. Bull &c. Whereupon Bull making himself known, the Musician fell down and ador'd him. Afterwards continuing there and in those parts for a time, became so much admir'd, that he was courted to accept of any place or preferment suitable to his profession, either within the Dominions of the Emperour, King of France, or Spain. But the tidings of these transactions coming to the English Court, Qu. Elizabeth commanded him home. See more of him under the year 1592.

John Mundy another eminent Musician, now, or after, one of the Organists of her Majesties Chappel, was admitted Bachelaur also the same day. --- See more of him in 1614. One Will. Mundy was also a noted Musician and hath composed several divine Services and Anthems, but him I find not, to be graduated in this University, or elsewhere.

One Benjam. Hann a Student of Musick supplicated to be Bac. of that fac. in January; which was granted conditionally that he compose a choral hymn of eight parts before the Passover following. About the same time, he supplicated for the Degree of Bach. of Arts, which was denied.

Bach. of Arts.

Jun. 10. Charles Sonibanke of Ch. Ch. --- See among the Doct. of Div. 1607.

Jul. 13. Rich. Middleton of Jesus Coll. --- This Person who took no other Degree in this University, I take to be the same with Rich. Middleton, Son of Marmaduke Middleton Bishop of St. David, and about this time Archdeacon of Cardigan. One Rich. Middleton Chaplain to Charles Prince of Wales, hath written and published (1) The Key of David. Lond. 1619. in a thick tw. Before which is his picture with a ruff, and a great beard. (2) The heavenly progress. Lond. 1617. in tw. (3) The card and compass of life containing many passages fit for these times, &c. Lond. 1613. oct. Whether this Rich. Middleton the Writer, be the same with Rich. Middleton the Bach. of Arts and Archdeacon of Cardigan, I cannot well tell. Quere.

John Day of St. Alb. hall, afterwards of Oriel Coll. was admitted the same day.

17. Bernard Adams of Trin. Coll. --- He was afterwards Bishop of Limrick in Ireland.

23. Tho. Clerke of Broadgates hall --- Whether this Person, who was a Warwick hire Man born, was the same Tho. Clerke who was a Seminary Priest of the Coll. at Rheims, but afterwards returned to the Church of England, and recanted in a Sermon at Pauls Cross, 1. Jul. 1593 (which Sermon was printed at London 1594. in oct.) or the same Tho. Clerke who wrote The life and death of M. Pet. Kempe (printed about the same time) I know not. See another *Tho. Apr. 20. John Buckridge of St. Johns Coll.

Jun. 4. Rich. Parry of Ch. Ch.

Laur. Keimis of Ball. Coll. was adm. the same day. --- This Keimis who was a Wilts. Man born became afterwards companion in travel and counsellour in design to the renowned Knight Sir Walt. Raleigh; but whether he gave any assistance to the composure of his history, is very doubtful. In 1595 when that Knight undertook to gain a golden mine in Guiana, this Keimis was one of his chief Captains and Conductors in that expedition, but being unfortunate in his undertakings, and therefore very much blamed by Raleigh, he, out of a deep reluctancy, pistol'd (a) himself in his Cabin in Raleigh's Ship, in the Summer time in 1618, after he had view'd, and travell'd through, the remotest parts of the world.

Jul. 6. Henry Perry lately of Cambridge, now of St. Albans hall.

8. Hen. Jacob of St. Maries hall.

Jan. 27. Henry Bright of Ball. Coll. --- He was afterwards Master of the Kings School at Worcester (in which City he was born) for 40 years together, and Prebendary of the Church there for the last 7 years of his life. He had a most excellent faculty in instructing youths, in Lat. Gr. and Hebrew, most of which, were afterwards sent to the Universities, where they proved eminent to emulation. He was also an excellent Preacher, was resorted to far and near, and dying 4. March 1626 was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Worcester. The posterity of this Hen. Bright do live now in gentile fashion in Worcester.

Both which Dignities he resigning to the famous Mr. Rich. Hooker, he became Master of the Temple in the said Mr. Hooker's place 1591.

Incorporations.

Jul. 11. Lawrence Staunton M. of A. of Cambridge. --- In 1601 he succeeded Dr. Will. Cole in the Deanery of Lincoln, which dignity he keeping till 1613, was then succeeded by Roger Parker D.D. after he had been 14 years Chantor of the Church there. The said Dr. Parker died 29. Aug. 1629 aged 71, and was buried in the Cath. Ch. at Lincoln; whereupon his Deanery was bestowed on one Anth. Topham.

Simon Robson M. of A. of the said University, was incorporated on the same day --- In the year 1598 the said Robson being then D. D. succeeded Dr. Anth. Watson in the Deanery of Bristol, and dying in May or June 1617 was buried in St. Augustines Church there; whereupon Dr. Edw. Cbetwind was elected Dean in his place, 16. of June the same year.

Thom. Atkinson Bach. of Div. of Cambr. was incorporated also the same day --- He was afterwards D. of D. Subdean of St. Pauls Cathedral, and died in Apr. 1616.

Besides him, were 13 Bachelours of Div. of Cambr. incorporated, of whom I know nothing as yet.

There was also a supplicate made in the house of Congregation that Thom. Legg Doctor of the Civ. Law of Cambr. might be incorporated, but whether he was really so, I find not --- He was a Normich Man born, was first of Trinity, and afterwards of Jesus, College in Cambridge: in both which houses he had the name and repute of one of the best in England for composing Tragedies, witness his Destruition of Jerusalem, and Life of King Rich. 3. which last was acted with great applause in that University. He was afterwards made the second Master of Gonvill and Caius Coll. was a Doctor in the Court of Arches, one of the Masters of the Chancery, the Kings Law Professor, and twice Vicechanc. of Cambridge. He died in July 1607. aged 72, and was buried, as I conceive, in the Chap. belonging to the said Coll. to which he was a benefactor.

Feb. 12. Francis James of Allf. Coll. --- He was younger Brother to Dr. Will. James Bishop of Durham, was Chancellor of the Diocess of Wells and Bristol, and afterwards of London, one of the Masters of the Chancery, and Judge of the Court of Audience of Canterbury. He died in the beginning of 1616, and was buried, I presume, according to his Will, in the Parish Church of Barrow in Somersetshire, in the upper end of that Isle, which was formerly the Church or Oratory for the Nuns, sometimes living at that place, and is now belonging and appertaining to the Lord of the Mannour of Minchin-Barrow.

Will. Bird of Allf. Coll. was admitted, or licensed, the same day. --- This person who was Son of Will. Chanc. Robert Earl of Leycester, who dying 4 Sept. Sir Christop. Hatton Knight of the Garter and Lord Chancellor of England, was by the major part of the Academians elected into his place on the twentieth day of the same month. In the vacancy between Death and Election, there was no Cancellarius natus as formerly, only the Vicechanc. this year mention'd, who before had been nominated by the Earl of Leycester. It is to be noted, that at the Election of Hatton, Robert Earl of Essex a popular and ambitious person, was his Competitor, (having been incorporated M. of A. in April going before, as I shall anon tell you) thinking, that if he might have obtained the said place of Chancellor, he might be as powerful among the Gown-men, as among the Gentlemen of the Sword. But he being generally looked upon as a great Patron of the puritannical Party, and consequently, if he had obtained it, he might do as much mischief in his Office, as the Earl of Leycester had done before, he was therefore, (especially upon the commendations to the University of Hatton by Dr. Whigfist Archb. of Canterbury) laid aside.

July 8. Thomas Morley one of the Gentlemen of her Majesties Royal Chappel. --- This person, tho he had not so excellent a hand on the Organ as Bull had, yet his Compositions were admirable in their tune, as (1) Consentes or little short songs to three Voices, Lond. 1593. qu. (2) The first book of Madrigalls to four Voices, Lond. 1594. qu. (3) The first book of Ballets to five Voices, Lond. 1595. in a large qu. (4) Madrigalls to five Voices, Lond. 1595, in a large qu. (5) Introduction to musick, Lond. 1597, &c. in a thin fol. This last Book, which shews the Authour to have been admirably well skill'd in the theoretick part of Musick, hath afforded some matter to Christop. Simpson when he composed his Compendium of Musick, but more to the Author of An introduction to musick, Lond. 1655, &c. oct. published by John Playford a Seller of musical Books and Paper, near the Inner Temple Gate, Lond. and a practitioner in Musick, who, as I have been informed, had the assistance of Charles Pidgeon of Greys Inn in the drawing it up. The said Morley also hath composed Divine Services and Anthems, the words of some of which are (a) published; and also collected and published Madrigalls, the triumphs of Oriana, to five and six Voices, composed by divers Authors. Lond. 1601, qu. Among which Authors Tho. Morley is one, Michael Est, Job. Mundy, Job. Hilton, Rich. Carlton, Tho. Hunt, Edw. Johnson, George Marson, &c. all Bachelours of Musick, were others; which last was nearly related to Simon Marson a Servant to Sir Thom. Mounson in the time of K. Jam. 1. and a good Musitian, as you may see (b) elsewhere. The said Thomas Morley had been bred up under the most famous Musitian Mr. Will. Byrde, one of the Organists belonging to Queen Elizab. I mean the same Byrde who was Author and Composer of Gradualia, seu cantionum sacrarum: quarum alia ad quatuor, alia vero ad quinque & sex voces edita sunt. Lond. 1610. qu. in 6 Vol. Also of several Divine Services and Anthems in English, the words of which are extant, and of a most admired Composition of forty parts; but this last is not yet extant. I say by this Byrde's endeavours the said Morley became not only excellent in Musick, as well in the theoretical as practical part, but also well seen in the Mathematicks, in which Byrde was excellent.

July 3. John Dowland one of the Gent. of her Majesties Royal Chappel, was then also with Tho. Morley adm. Bach. of Musick. --- He enjoyed the same place also when King James 1. came to the Crown, being then esteemed a most admirable Lutiniit; about which time an Anagram was made on his name (Johannes Doulandus) running thus, annos ludendi hausi. He was the rarest Musitian that his Age did behold, and therefore admired by foreign Princes, among whom the King of Denmark was one, who being infinitely taken with his playing, when he was in England to visit his Sister the Queen, an 1606, took him with him at his return to Denmark; where, as 'tis supposed, he died. He hath among other things written Necessary observations belonging to Lute-playing. Lond. 1610, in a thin fol. printed with Variety of Lute lessons, published by his Son Rob. Dowland, a most excellent Lutiniit also; who, before (while his Father was absent) had been trained up to the Lute by excellent Masters at the care and charge of Sir Tho. Mounson before-mentioned. The said Rob. Dowland published also of his own composition A musical banquet. Lond. 1610. in a thin fol. and The pilgrims solace for three and four parts, &c. which was composed by him, as it seems, and not by his Father.

Here you see is mention made that he was Bach. of Arts; which, if true, (for no such matter occurs in the Register of that time) then must that Will. Incorporations.

Apr. 11. Rob. Devereux Earl of Essex and Master of the Horse to Queen Elizabeth, was incorporated M. of A. as he had stood at Cambridge, being then accounted one of the best Poets among the Nobility of England, and a person adorned with singular gifts of Nature. --- This Incorporation was the better to capacitate him to be Chancellour of this University, when that honourable Office should become void, as it shortly after did. He had received his Academical Education in Trinity Coll. in Cambridge, under the tuition of Dr. John Whitgift, afterwards Archb. of Canterbury, and hath written (1) Advice to Roger Earl of Rutland in his travels, MS. the beginning of which is, My Lord, I hold it a principle in the course, &c. This MS. which I have in my Library, was, if I am not mistaken, printed in a Book entit. Profitable instructions, describing what special observations are to be taken by Travellers in all Nations. Lond. 1633. oct. said in the title to be written by Robert Earl of Essex, Sir Philip Sidney, &c. (2) His apology against those which falsely and maliciously tax him to be the only hinderer of the peace and quiet of his Country, written to Sir Anth. Bacon; which piece had such esteem among men, that they thought that nothing could be more honourably utter'd, nor more to the Writers praise, so far as belongs to a noble Orator, than it. (3) Letters to Qu. Elizabeth and Lord Howard, &c. MS. in bib. Bod. (4) His speech and prayer at the time of his Execution, printed at the end of Dr. Will. Barlow's Sermon preached at Pauls Crois, 1 Mar. 1600. Lond. 1601. oct. with other things which I have not yet seen. He left behind him (when beheaded in 1600) a Son of both his names, educated in this University, whom I shall mention elsewhere.

Apr. 11. Abraham Hartwell M. of A. of Cambr. was also then incorporated. --- He was Fellow of Kings Coll. in that University, afterwards Amanuensis to John Archb. of Canterbury, a Traveller, and at length Rector of Tuddington in Bedfordshire. He hath written (1) Regina literata, seu narratio de regina Elizabetha, carmine. Lond. 1565, oct. (2) Report of the Kingdom of Congo a region in Africa, printed 1597, qu. and translated from French into English. (4) A true discourse upon the matter of Martha Bressier of Romantin, pretended to be possessed by a Devil. Lond. 1599, qu. See another Translation made by him in Walt. Haddon, mention'd in these Fasti, an. 1552.

July ... Robert Green M. A. of Cambridge, was also then incorporated. --- He was at this time a pastoral Sonnet-maker and Author of several things which were pleasing to Men and Women of his time. They made much sport, and were valued among Scholars, but since they have been mostly sold on Ballad-mongers stalls. The Titles of some of them are these, (1) Euphues his censure to Phylautus. Lond. 1587. qu. (2) A quip for an upstart Courtier: or, a dispute between Velvet breeches and cloth breeches. Lond. 1592. qu. (3) His mourning Garment given him by repentance at the funerals of Love. One Edition of this book was printed at Lond. 1616. qu. (4) His groats worth of wit bought with a million of repentance, &c. Lond. 1617. qu. second Edit. The first Edit. was printed after his death, and hath at the end of it his Epitaph in six Stanzaes. (5) Theeves falling out, true men come by their goods, or the Belman Lady Fitzwaters Nightingale. Several times printed. (7) His nufquam sera est: or, a treatise deciphering those particular vanities that hinder youthful Gentlemen from attaining to their intended perfections. Several times printed. (8) The history of Frier Bacon and Frier Bungay. (9) Greens Ghost haunting Cunny Catchers. One Ed. of which was printed at Lond. 1626. qu. Other trifles he hath extant, which he wrot to maintain his Wife, and that high and loose course of living which Poets generally follow. He assisted also Thom. Lodge in the compofure of several Plays, as I have told you in my discourse of that person among the Writers, under the year 1625. He wrot against, or at least reflected upon, Gabriel Harvey in several of his Writings; whereupon Harvey being not able to bear his Abuses, did inhumanely trample upon him when he lied full low in his grave, even as Achilles tortured the dead body of Hector. This R. Green died about 1592, of a Surfeit, taken by eating pickled Herrings, and drinking with them Rhenish Wine. At which fatal Banquet Tom. Nash his Contemporary in Cambridge was present, who in his Apology of Pierce Penniless doth make excellent sport with him and some of his Works. I have seen a witty Comedy called Greens Tu quoque, or the City Gallant, not pen'd by the said Green, but by one John Cook Gent. published by Thomas Heywood, an. 1622. and another entit. Planetomachia; or, The first part of the general opposition of the seven Planets, &c. Lond. 1585. qu. said in the Title to be written by R. Green, but whether the same R. Green the Poet, I cannot tell.

On the eleventh day of the said month of July supplicated to be incorporated one Job. Osbourne Doct. of Physick of Leyden; whose Grace being granted simpliciter, I therefore think that he obtained his Option.

In the beginning of 1617 he was sent Embassador to Bruxellis to question the Archduke in behalf of his Master the King of Great Britain concerning a late famous Libel writ and published, as 'twas supposed, by Erycius Puteanus, who neither (a) apprehended the Author, nor suppressed the Book, until he was solicited by the Kings Agent there, only interdicted it, and suffered the Author to fly his Dominions. Afterwards, in 1621, the said Sir Job. Bennet was, for bribery, corruption, and exaction in his place of Judge of the Prerogative, first committed to custody (b) to the Sheriff of London, then to prison, afterwards fined 20000 l. and at length deprived of his place of Judicature, till such time that he had restored what he had unjustly taken away. July 11. Thomas Crompton M. He was afterwards a Knight, Judge of the Court of Admiralty, and one of the first Burgesses that the Members of this University chose to sit in, after they had been impow'd to send them to Parliament. Lord Grandison*, the King, with his Court, having about that time left Oxon; to which place, he before had retired, to avoid the Plague raging in London.

In 1607, June 28, he received the honor of Knighthood at Richmond, was sent Embassador into the Low Countries soon after, made Secretary of State 29 Mar. 1614, being the very (c) day that *Sir Tho. July 9. Adrianus, or Hadrianus à Saravia, was then admitted among the Doct. of Div. — See in the Incorporations following.
14. Owen Glynn of Lincoln Coll.

Incorporations.

Jul. 9. Hadrianus à Saravia, D. D. of the University of Leyden, was then incorporated in that degree, and admitted among the Doctors of that Faculty. — He was born at Hedin in Arton, educated in all kind of literature in his younger years, especially in several Languages, which made him so famous, that he was invited to Leyden, where he began to profess Divinity, an. 1582, at which time he had studied and well consider'd the controverted points concerning Episcopacy and Sacrilege. Soon after he became Preacher to the French Church there, where he continued about five years, and then went into England, where, after he had exercised himself in some petite or pedagogical Employments for a time, he was made Prebendary of Canterbury, and became well known to the famous Mr. Rich. Hooker Parson of Bishopsbourne in Kent. In 1601, July 5. he was installed Canon of Westminster in the eleventh Stall or Prebendship, on the promotion of the learned Doct. Lanc. Andrews to the Deanery of the said Church; at which time Saravia was in great esteem for his learning. While he continued at Canterbury he had a just occasion given him to declare his judgment concerning Episcopacy and Sacrilege, unto his Brethren the Ministers of the Low Countries, which was excepted against by Theodore Beza and others: against whose Exceptions he rejoined, and thereby became the happy Author of several Tracts in Latin, especially three, viz. De diversis ministrorum Evangelii gradibus, &c. Lond. 1590, qu. and in the year following were printed at Lond. in English under these Titles, viz. (1) Of the divers degrees of the Ministers of the Gospel. (2) Of the honor which is due unto Priests and Prelates of the Church. (3) Of Sacrilege and the punishment thereof. He soon after also put out another concerning Christian Obedience to Princes; the writing of which was occasion'd by a certain Book published by a learned Jesuit called James Gretzer. All his Works were collected together, and printed in one Vol. by the Company of Stationers of London, an. 1611, most of which you may see in the Bodleian or Oxford Catalogue. It is now to be observed, that when in a time of Church Tumults, Beza gave his reasons to the Chancellour of Scotland for the abrogation of Episcopacy in that Nation, partly by Letters, and more fully in a Treatise of a threefold Episcopacy (which he calls divine, humane and satanical) this Doctor Saravia had by the help (*) of Dr. Job. Whitgift Archb. of Canterbury such an early discovery of their Intentions, that he had almost as soon answer'd that Treatise, as it became publick, and therein discovered how Beza's Opinion did contradict that of Calvin, and his Adherents, leaving them to interfere with themselves in point of Episcopacy. At length, after he had taken considerable pains in translating the Bible, appointed by K. James in the beginning of his Raigne, he died at Canterbury 15 Jan. 1612, aged 82. Whereupon his body was buried in the Cathedral Church there, near to that of Catherine Dallex his first Wife (who died 2 Feb. 1605 in the 45 year of her Marriage) and soon after had a Monument put over his Grave by Margaret Wiits his second Wife. In his Canonry of Westm. succeeded Gabr. Graunt Son of Edm. Graunt sometimes Master of the School there, but who in his Prebendship of Canterbury, or of Glocester, (where he was also Prebendary) I know not.

Feb. 12. Thom. Muriel M. of A. of Cambridge. — In the year 1621, Dec. 30. he was installed Archdeacon of Norfolk, as I have elsewhere told you; and dying about the beginning of Oct. 1629, was buried, as I presume, at Hilderham (of which he was Minister) in Cambridgeshire. Thomas Myricell sometimes Preacher of God's Word at Barnet in Middlesex (in the time of K. Jam. 1.) afterwards Rector of S. Stevens in Walbrook, London, and a publisher of certain Sermons between the year 1610 and 1625, must not be taken to be the same with Tho. Muriel.

Mar. 22. Fines Moryson M. A. of Cambr. — He was a Lincolnshire man born, was Fellow of Peter House in that University, and Brother to Sir Richard Moryson Vicepresident of Mounster. After he had taken his Masters degree he studied the Civil Law, and in 1589, being then 23 years of Age, he obtained license of the Master and Fellows of his House to travel. Presently after leaving the University, he went to London to follow such Studies that were fit to enable him in his course of Travels; and afterwards going to Oxon, was incorporated M. of A. as I have told you before. On the 1 May 1591, he took ship at Liegh distant from London 28 miles by land and 36 by water, and after he had rambled about many parts of the World for 8 years, returned, and went into Ireland 1598, and became Secretary to Sir Charles Blount Lord Lieutenant of that Realm. After his death, which hapned about 1614, were published his Travels, entit. An Itinerary containing his ten years Travels through the twelve Dominions of Germany, Bohmerland, Sweitzerland, Netherland, Denmark, Poland, England, Scotland, and Ireland. Divided in three parts. Lond. 1617, in a thick fol. It was first written in Latin, and afterwards translated by him into English.

Oct. 22. Will. Paddie of St. Johns Coll. in this University, lately made Doct. of Phys. in the University of Leyden, was incorporated in the same Degree. --- He was afterwards Physician to *K. Incorporations.

Jul. 7. Edw. Gibbons Bach. of Musick of Cambridge was then incorporated in the same Degree --- He was now, or about this time, the most admired Organist of the Cathedral Church at Bristol, was Brother to the incomparable Orlando Gibbons whom I shall mention elsewhere, and Brother also to Ellis Gibbons, who hath several compositions in The triumphs of Oriana, mention'd before in Tho. Morley. As for this Edward Gibbons, he made several compositions in his faculty, some of which I have seen in the Musical Library reposed in the publick School of that profession in Oxon.

John Bull Doct. of Musick of the said Univ. of Cambridge, and one of the Gentlemen of her Maj. Chappel, was incorporated the same day, Jul. 7. --- This is the same Person who was admitted Bach. of Musick of this University, an. 1586, as I have told you under that year, and would have proceeded in the same place, had he not met with clowns and rigid Puritans there that could not endure Church Musick. He was afterwards the first Musick lecturer of Gresham Coll. at London, and one of three (Will. Bird and Orlando Gibbons being the other two) that composed and published a book intit. Parthenia; or, The maidenhead of the first Musick that ever was printed for the Virginals. Printed at London in fol. but not said when, either in the title, or at the end. The book contains 21 lessons printed off from copper cuts, and was the prime book for many years that was used by Novices and others that exercised their hands on that Instrument. There is no doubt but that this Dr. Bull hath published other things, besides the making of very many compositions to be sung and play'd; which being thrown aside upon the coming out and publication of others by other hands, have been since in a manner lost, such is the fate of Musick, as well as of Poetry. After the death of Queen Elizab. he became chief Organist to K. James 1. was so much admired for his dexterous hand on the Organ, that many thought that there was more than Man in him. At length being posses'd with crotchets, as many Musicians are, he went beyond the Seas and died, as some say, at Hamborough; or rather, as others who remembred the Man, have said, at Lubeck. His picture hangs at this day, at the upper end of the publick Musick School in the University of Oxon.

Jul. 11. Nich. Gibbons M. A. of Cambridge --- One Nich. Gibbons or Gibbons hath published Questions and disputations on Genesis. printed 1602. qu. which some call An exposition on Genesis. Whether the same with him, who was incorporated, I cannot yet tell -- Quere.

William Alabaster M. A. of the same University, was incorporated on the said day. --- He was bred in Trin. Coll. in that University, was the rarest Poet and Grecian that any one age or nation hath produced. Afterwards he attended, as Chaplain, on Robert Earl of Essex in Cadiz voyage, where he changed his Religion and wrote Seven Motives for what he had done, answer'd by one John Rastler an. 1598 and by Roger Fenton the year following. But upon some discontent taken from the Rom. Party, he return'd to the Church of England, and was made Prebendary of St. Pauls Cath. in London, D. of D. and Rector of Tharfield in Hertfordshire. He hath written (1) Roxana, Tragedia; admirably well acted, more than once, in Trin. Coll. hall in Cambr. and was soon after published full of of faults contrary to the Authors mind: Whereupon he took great pains to correct and amend it. Which being done, 'twas printed to the Authors mind at Lond. 1632. Oct. (2) Lexicon Pentaglotton, Hebraicum, Chaldaicum, Syriacum, Talmudico Rabbinum. Lond. 1637. fol. The titles of other books of his writing, you may see in the Bodleian or Oxford Catalogue. He also began to describe in a Latin Poem, intit. (*) Eusebii, the chief transactions of Qu. Elizabeths Reign, but left unfinished at the time of his death, which hapning about the beginning of Apr. 1640. was buried according to the discretion of his dear friend Nich. Bacon of Greys Inn in Holbourn near London, whom he made his sole Executor. Rich. Herrick the Poet in his Hesperides doth highly celebrate Alabaster for his elaborate works.

Aug. 19. Hen. Wriothesley Earl of Southampton, M. of Arts of Cambridge. --- He was afterwards deeply engaged in the treasons of his entire friend Robert Earl of Essex, and therefore by his Peers he was condemned to dye, but by the favour of the Queen he was saved. When K. James 1. came to the Crown he was restored by Parliament, was made Knight of the Garter, and Captain of the Isle of Wight and of Carebrook Castle. He died in the Netherlands, an. 1624, and was buried at Titchfield in Hampshire by the bodies of his Ancestors.

Dec. 18. Thomas D'oulie of Magd. Coll. in Oxon. Doctor of Physick of the University of Basil in Germany.

Creations.

Aug. 19. Will. Somerset of Magd. Coll. in this University eldest Son of Edward Earl of Worcester, was actually created Mast. of Arts.

These Persons following were created Mast. of Arts 27 Sept. while the Queen was in Oxon, being then entertained by the University.

Edward Earl of Worcester. --- He was afterwards Master of the Horse to K. Jam. 1. and Knight of the Garter.

Geo. Clifford E. of Cumberl. --- He was an excellent Mathematician, a great Navigator, and one that did more prodigious things at Sea, (to the great impoverishment of his estate) than any Subject of this Realm had done before. He died 30. Oct. 1605, and was buried at Skipton in Craven in Yorkshire by his ancestors.

Hen. Herbert E. of Pembroke, Kt. of the most noble order of the Garter and President of the Council in the Marches of Wales. --- He died 1601, and was succeeded in the Earldom of Pembroke by his Son and Heir called William, afterwards the most noble Chancellor of this University.

A little before her death, she made him Clerk of her Signet; and after her death he was chosen by this State into that place to attend K. Jam. 1. from Barwick, who afterwards made use of his present service in some French affairs, and conferr'd upon him the honour of Knighthood. After Sir Rob. Cecills time, the place of Secretary, was joyned in two Principals; and not long after he was one of them, and so continued with honorable esteem of all Men; until that malice and revenge, two violent passions, over-ruling the weaker sex, concerning his (a) Wife and Daughter, involved (b) him into their quarrel, the chief and only cause of his ruine.

Anth. Ashley --- He made additions for the use of English Men to The mariners mirror, &c. written in Dutch by Luke Wagener of Einbusen; set forth in English by the said Ashley in two parts, adorned with variety of Sea-charts and Mapps --- printed at London in fol. 1588-89. and dedicated to Robert Earl of Leicester from St. James. One Sir Anth. Ashley Knight was a courtier in the Reign of K. Jam. 1. and tho then a hater of Women, yet he was induced to marry one of the Family and Relations of George Duke of Bucks, which administr'd mirth to the Courtiers. Whether this Sir Anthony be the same with the former I know not. Qu.

Hen. Noel Esq; --- He was younger Brother to Sir Andrew Noel of Leicestershire, was one of the Gentlemen Pensioners to Queen Elizabeth, a Man of excellent parts, and well skill'd in Musick. He died in the latter end of Feb. 1596, and was by the command of Qu. Elizabeth (who had an especial respect for him,) buried in St. Andrews Chappel within the Precincts of the Abbey Church at Westminster.

Jan. 30. Sam. Slade of Mert. Coll. --- This Person who was a Dorsetsh. Man born and Fellow of the said Coll. became afterwards a famous Traveller throughout most parts of the World, was employed by Sir Hen. Savile to procure what fragments he could of St. Chrysostome, in order to have them compared and published: And while he was at Venice, he became acquainted with that noted Person (famous for his speaking and writing pure Greek) called Gabriel, Archb. of Philadelphia, who finding Slade to be admirably well skill'd in the said Language, he communicated to him some rare manuscript Fragments of St. Chrysostoms Greek works. Which being by him well approved, were conveyed into England to Sir Henry. In his further travels also (for he was in Greece a considerable while) he met with other fragments; and was so useful in bringing to light a true copie of the works of the said Author, that the said Sir Henry could not but acknowledge with due commendations, what he had done in that matter. See in the eighth vol. of St. Chrysost. works published by Sir Henry, pag. 215. 216, &c. This Mr. Slade, who was elder Brother to Matthew Slade, whom I have mention'd among the Writers an. 1614, died in the Isle of Zant near Peloponessus, in his return from his travels, before the publication of St. Chrysostomes works, and was there buried.

Jul. 10. Gilbert Bourne Doct. of the Laws of the University of Orleanse --- He was Nephew to Gilb. Bourne sometimes Bishop of B. and Wells, being Son of his Brother *Rich. In July this year was a supplicate made in the ven. congregation for one W. Lisle M. of A. of Cambridge to be incorporated in the said Degree, but whether he was really incorporated, it appears not. I take him to be the same with *Will. A proposal was made in the ven. house of Convocation this year, that the Degree of M. of A. should be bestowed on the honorable Sir Will. Russel Knight, the design'd Lord Deputy of Ireland, but whether it was accordingly confer'd upon him, it appears not, because it standeth not in the register --- He was the fourth Son of Francis Earl of Bedford, and was with his brethren brought up in Magd. Coll. Oxon at the feet of Dr. Lawr. Humphrey. Afterwards he travelled through France, Germany, Italy, Hungary, and other Countries; and upon his return he spent not his time idly in the Court, but painfully in the labours of the Camp, following the wars in Hungary, in France, Ireland and the Low Countries, where he left many notable proofs of his valour and wisdom, being strenuous miles and prudens imperator. In Aug. this year he was made L. Deputy of Ireland; which place he executed with great valour and wisdom for 3 years. Afterwards he was made Lord Russel of Thornhaw in Bucks. and dying in Sept. was buried 16. of the same month at Thornhaw, an. 1613.

This Person who was a Gloucestershire Man born and well skill'd in Musick, did instruct divers young Men of his Parish in that faculty, till they could either play or sing their parts. In the year 1613 Qu. Anne the royal Consort of K. Jam. 1. made her abode for some weeks within the City of Bathe, purposely for the use of the waters there. In which time he composed a long of four parts, and instructed his Scholars to sing it very perfectly, as also to play a lesson or two, (which he had composed) on their wind-instruments. On the eleventh of June the same year, the Queen in her return from Bathe did intend to pass over the Downes at Wensdyke within the Parish of Bishops-Cannings: Of which Ferebe having timely notice, he dressed himself in the habit of an old Bard, and caused his Scholars (whom he had instructed) to be clothed in Shepherds weeds. The Queen having received notice of these People, she with her retinue made a stand at Wensdyke; whereupon these Musicians drawing up to her, played a most admirable lesson on their wind-instruments. Which being done, they sang their lesson of four parts with double voices, the beginning of which was this.

Shine, O thou sacred Shepherds Star

On silly Shepherd swaines, &c.

Which being well performed also, the Bard concluded with an Epilogue, to the great liking and content of the Queen and her company. Afterwards he was sworn Chaplain to his Majesty, and was ever after much valued for his ingenuity.

On the twelfth of July, being the next day after the Aⁿ had been celebrated, were about twenty Camabrigians incorporated in several Faculties, among whom were these following.

Job. Bridgman Bach. of Arts. — See in the Incorporations, an. 1600.

Job. Boys M. of A. — I find two of both his names who were at this time Masters of Arts, viz. Job. Boys fourth Son of Tho. Boys of Eythorne in Kent, by Christiana his Wife, Dau. and Coheire of Job. Searle; who being educated in Clare Hall, was afterwards Doct. of Div. and Dean of Canterbury in the place of Dr. Charles Fotherby who died 29 Mar. 1619. This J. Boys who died at Eythorne before mention'd (the place of his Nativity) a little after K. Charles 1. came to the Crown, was famous for his Sermons, Expositions, and Postills written by him; the Titles of which you may see in the Bodleian or Oxford Catalogue. The other J. Boys who was a Suffolk man born, and Andr. Donne's Scholar, was Fellow of S. Job. Coll. in the said University, afterwards Prebendary of Ely, and Parson of Boxworth in Cambridgeshire, an excellent Grecian, Divine, and one of the Translators of the Bible, an. 1604. He wrote certain notes upon Chrysostome, put out by Sir Hen. Savile, who styles him ingeniosissimus & doctissimus Boysius, and his Notes doctissimas ejus observationes; and other things, by some taken to be written by the former J. Boys. Which of these two was incorporated M. of A. this year, I know not. We have had one Job. Boys, an Esquires Son of Kent, a Student in University Coll. 1594. Another elected Fellow of Alls. Coll. 1604, who was afterwards Bach. of Law; and a third who took the degree of Bach. of Arts as a Member of Qu. Coll. an. 1606, but not one of these can I yet find was a Writer.

Roger Gostwyke M. A. of Kings Coll. in Cambr. — He was afterwards Bach. of Div. Chaplain to Dr. Martin Heton Bishop of Ely and Rector of Sampford Courtney in Devonshire. Among several things that he hath published I have seen these, (1) The anatomy of Ananias; or, God's censure against Sacrilege. Cambr. 1616. (2) Brief commentary upon Psal. 83 concerning the same Subject. Printed there the same year. (3) The truth of tithes discovered, or the Churches right maintained and defended, &c. Lond. 1618, &c. One Roger Gostwick Rector of Sampford Courtney before mention'd lived to about the year 1655, whether the same with the former, I cannot tell.

James Speght Bach. of Div. — He hath one or more sermons in print.

Benjamin Carier Bach. of Div. — He was the son of Anthony Carier a learned and devout Preacher, who caused this his son to be strictly educated in the Protestant Religion, and afterwards in Academical literature in the said University of Cambr. where he became Fellow of C. C. Coll. and a noted Scholar and Preacher. About the time that K. James 1. came to the Crown, he proceeded in his Faculty, published one or more Sermons, became Chaplain to him, and one of the first Fellows of Chelsey College, founded by Dr. Mathew Sutcliffe. But being then very unsettled in his Religion, he changed it for that of Rome, left the Nation and went to Liege in Germany; where, after some time of continuance, he wrote A missive to his Maj. of Great Britain K. Jam. containing the motives of his conversion to Cath. Religion, &c. Leige 1614. oct. and at the same time A letter of the miserable ends of such as impugn the Cath. Ch. print. 1615. qu. But before Midsummer day in the said year 1614 (12 Jam. 1.) he concluded his last day, putting thereby a period to the great imaginations that men of Learning had of him and his worth, and to the expectation of other Books to be published. In 1649 were printed two Impressions of the said Missive in oct. said in the Title to be printed at Paris, but in truth at London, with a large Preface, and marginal Notes, to it by N. Strange a Rom. Cath. At the end of the said Preface are the names of some who had lately then been Ministers, or University men, in England and Scotland that had been converted to the Church of Rome. 1 hole of Oxon are these, Hugh Paulin de Cressy of Mert. Coll. Hen. Janson LL. D. of Alls. Coll. afterwards a Baronet, but a poor one God wot, Tho. Read LL. D. of New Coll. Will. Rowlands sometimes of Ex. Coll. afterwards Minister of S. Margarets in Westminster, Will. Joyner alias Lyde M. A. of Magd. Coll. Pet. Glue of Ball. Coll. &c.

The last of these two Doctors of Div. was one who passed through all Degrees and Orders in the Church of England, and thereby made acquainted with the conveniences and distresses, incident to all conditions. He served the Church as Schoolmaster, Curate, Vicar, Parson, Master of the Savoy, Dean of Westminster in the place of Lanc. Andrews promoted to the See of Chichester, (in which Dignity he was install'd 5. Nov. 1605.) Clerk of the Closet to both Kings (Jam. 1. and Ch. 1.) successively, Bishop of Rocheſter 1608, (with which he kept his Deanery in Commendam) Lichfield and Cow. two years after, Lincolne 1613, Durham 1617. Wincheſter 1628, and lastly in 1631 Archbishop of York, in which honor he died 31. Oct. 1640 (being but three days before the Long Parliament began) and was buried in St. Peters Church in Westminſte. He was born of honest Parents in Kingſtreet in the City of Westminster (his Father being a Tallow Chandler) and educated in the College School there; whence being elected into St. Johns Coll. in Cambridge, made great proficiency in Academical learning. Afterwards entering into Orders, he became, after some petite employments, Chaplain to Sir Will. Cecill L. Burghley and to Rob. his Son afterwards Earl of Saisbury, who put him into the road of preferment. Many good offices he had done to the Church and Church-men in his attendance at the Court, crossing (a) the Scots in most of their suites for Ecclesiastical preferments, which greedily and ambitiously they hunted after, whereby he drew on himself the general hatred not only of the Scots, but ſcotizing Engliſh. He died as full of years, as he was of honours, an affectionate Subject to his Prince, an indulgent Father to his Clergy, a bountiful Patron to his Chaplains, and a true friend to all who relied upon him. These things tho' generally known, yet inveterate Prynne spares not to (b) call him a Papiſh and Arminian Prelate, a persecutor of all Orthodox and Godly Ministers, a preferer of papiſh Arminian Clergy men, with a great deal of such stuff, not here to be mentioned. He is supposed to be Author of a book intit. Spalato's ſhiftings in Religion, written against Marc. Aur. de Dominu Archb. of Spalato, and of other matters. Quere.

Jul. 16. Randolph Barlow M. of A. of Cambridge — I take him to be the same with Ranulph Barlow Master of Arts of Pembroke hall in that University, afterwards Doct. of Divinity, Archdeacon of Wincheſter in the place of Mich. Renniger deceased, 1609. and Archb. of Tuam in Ireland, 1629.

Rich. Senhouse M. A. of the same University, was incorporated the same day — He was the Son of Rich. Senhouse of Alnborough hall in Cumberland, was Fellow of St. Johns Coll. in the said University, installed Dean of Gloceſter in the place of Dr. Laud, promoted to the See of St. David, 13. Dec. 1621, and shortly after became Bishop of Carlisle. He died in the beginning of the year 1626. (2. Car. 1.) leaving then behind him the character of an excellent Preacher.

Theophilus Field M. A. of the same University, was also incorporated with Senhouse — He was Son of John Field mentioned among the Writers, under the year 1587, was educated in Pemb.

hall, consecrated Bishop of Landaff 10. Oct. 1619, and thence was translated to Hereford and soon after died. He hath written A Christian preparation to the Lords Supper, printed 1624. in oct. besides several Sermons and other things.

Rob. Newell M. A. of the same Univerſ. was also then incorporated with Senhouse — This Person who was half Brother to Dr. Rich. Neile beforementioned, became Archd. of Buckingham in the beginning of the year 1614, Prebendary of the ninth stall in the collegiate Church of St. Peter at Westminster, in the place of one Cutbb. Bellot, an. 1620, and was afterwards, or about the same time, Treasurer of Chicheſter, Canon of Lichfield, Subdean of Linc. and Preb. of Durham. He died (at Wincheſter I think) in 1643 and was succeeded in his Prebendship of Westminster by Gilb. Wimberley D. D. and in his Archdeaconry by Giles Thorne D. D. but who in his other Dignities I cannot yet tell.

At the same time was incorporated M. of A. one John Owen, whom I take to be the same with John Owen, who was bred in Jeſus Coll. in Cambridge, and afterwards Bishop of St. Aſaph — Besides the said four Masters of Arts who were incorporated 16. July, were incorporated one and twenty more.

This year also was incorporated Job. Hone Doct. of the Civil Law of Cambridge, but the month or day when, appears not, neither for John Cowell Dr. of the same faculty for whom there was a supplicate made, which being granted ſimpliciter, there's no doubt but that he was incorporated. Of him I desire the reader to know that he was a Devonian born, was elected from Eaton School to be Scholar of Kings Coll. in Cambridge an. 1570. and was made Proctor of the said University an. 1586. Afterwards he became Master of Trinity hall there, the Kings Professor of the Civil Law, Vicechancellor, Doctor, as 'tis (a) said, of the Arches, and Vicar-general to Dr. Bancroft Archb. of Canterbury. His writings are (1) Institutiones juris Anglicani ad methodum institutionum Justiniani composite. Cantab. 1605. oct. &c. (2) The Interpreter: or book, containing the ſignification of words, &c. Cambr. 1607. qu. &c. afterwards printed in fol. But several passages therein, relating to the Kings Prerogative, giving offence, because in some cases, he saith it is limited, the said book was called in, and on the 26. March 1610. there was published an (b) edit against it. This being the reason, as most Scholars think, I cannot be of the same opinion with one (c), (no friend to the memory of King Jam. 1.) who tells us that in the said Interpreter, 'tis said that that King took not the usual Oath all Kings are bound unto, at their coronation, &c. One John Cowell or Cowell LL. D. became Prebendary of Timbreſcombe in the Church of Wells, upon the deprivation of Job. Faber, an. 1554. temp. Marie 1. but what relation there was between him and the former I know not.

Laud* while he studied in the said Coll. of St. John; by whose endeavours, when Biſh. of London, he obtained for him of his gracious Master K. Ch. 1. the secretaryship of State, in the place of Sir Dudley Carleton Viscount Dorcheſter deceased; to which office he was sworn 15. June 1632, and about that time received the honour of Knighthood. Afterwards he became (d) ungrateful to his promoter, and much hated by the Puritan for his high acting in his office. Which being by that Party made notorious, several articles were drawn up against him, and presented to that unhappy Parliament which began at Westminster 3. Nov. 1640. Whereupon flying beyond the Seas, wrote a Letter to the Lord Chamberlain in his own defence, dat. at Calais x1. Jan. 1640, which was soon after printed. When K. Ch. 1. retired to Oxon, after Edghill battle, Sir Francis returned into England, went to, and endeavoured to speak with, his Majesty, but his Maj. refusing to have any communication with him, he went beyond the Seas again, and died at Paris 1. Apr. 6. Rob. Dallyngton M. of A. of Cambridge --- He was born in Northamptonshire, educated in Pembroke hall, of which he was Greek-Scholar, and after became (b) a Schoolmaster in Norfolk: where having gained some money, he travelled all over France and Italy, was exact in his observations, and after his return, became first Secretary to the Earl of Rutland, then one of the Privy Chamber to Prince Charles, Master of the Charter-house (into the School at which place he brought the custome of Chapter verses or versifying on passages of Holy Scripture) and at length a Knight. He hath written (1) A survey of the great Dukes state in Tuscany, an. 1596. Lond. 1605. qu. (2) A method for travel, shewed by taking view of France, as it stood in the year 1598. printed at Lond. in qu. (3) Aphorismes Civil and Military; amplified with authorities, and exemplified with history, out of the first quarterne of Fr. Guicciardine. Lond. 1615. fol. and other things, as 'tis probable, which I have not yet seen. He died in the latter end of the year 1637, and was buried in the Church or Chappel belonging to the Charter house. By his will (c) dated 25. Apr. 1636 and proved 1. March 1637 he gave to the poor People of Geddington in Northamptonshire (the place of his nativity) 300 l. for the buying of an annual pension of 15 l. per an. for their relief. At which place in his life time, he built a Free-school, and was a benefactor in other respects.

July 16. Walt. Curle M. of A. of Cambridge --- This Person who was born at Hatfield in Hertfordshire, was now Fellow of Peter house in the said University, was promoted first in the Church by the Cecilian Family, afterwards he became Chaplain to His Majesty, Doctor of Divinity, Dean of Lichfield in June 1621, upon the death of Dr. Will. Tooker, Bishop of Rochester in 1627. upon the translation of Buckridge to Ely, translated thence to B. and Wells in 1629, upon the death of Dr. Maw, and thence to Winchester upon the removal of his Patron Dr. Neile to York, being about that time made Lord Almoner. Afterwards he suffered much for the Kings, and his own cause, was among the Royalists when they were besieged in Winchester, whence marching in safety after its surrender for the use of the Parliament, lived retiredly at Subberton in (Hampshire) till the time of his death, which hapned in the Spring or Summer time, an. 1647 leaving then behind him a Widow named Elizabeth and certain Children. All that I have yet seen, which goes under his name is A Sermon preached at Whitehall, 28. Apr. 1622, on Heb. 12. 14. --- printed in qu.

Rich. Boyle M. A. of the same University, was incorporated on the same day --- He was afterwards Archbishop of Tuam in Ireland.

Richard Parker another M. of A. of that University, was also then incorporated --- Whether he be the same R. Parker who was bred in, and became Fellow of, Caius College, and Author of Sceletos Cantabrigiensis, MS. I cannot justly say, or the same Richard Parker who was second Son of John Parker, first Son of Matthew Parker Archb. of Canterbury, (which Richard was born at Cambridge 20. May 1577) I cannot also tell. Quere.

On the same day also were 13 more Masters of that University incorporated, among whom Miles Spencer (*) was one, and Andrew Perne another, the same, I suppose, who was Proctor of Cambridge 1616. See before in these Fasti, an. 1553.

Aug. 7. Will. Barlow Doct. of Div. of the said University, was also then incorporated in the said Degree --- He was born of, and descended from, the antient and gentile family of the Barlows of Barlow in Lancashire, was about this time Fellow of Trinity hall in the said University, became Prebendary of Westminster in the place of Dr. Edm. Grant deceased, Dean of Chester in 1603, upon the death of Job. Nuttall, and in 1605 Bishop of Rochester; from whence being translated to Lincoln, sate there to the time of his death, and kept his Prebendship in Commendam with it. He hath written and published several things, the Catalogue of all, or most of which, you may see in the Bodleian or Oxford Catalogue. By his will (d) which I have seen, proved 13. Oct. 1613 (for in that year he died) he desires to be buried in the Cathedral Church of Lincoln, if he dye near it, or in the collegiat Church at Westminster if he dye there, and to have such a tomb over his grave that may resemble that which Dr. Good (Goodman) Dean thereof set up for himself in the Church of Westminster. He was a considerable benefactor to St. Johns Coll. in Cambridge, as it there appears, being Founder of the London Fellows and Scholars of that house. I have made mention of another Will. Barlow and his works among the Writers, an. 1568. and of a third an. 1625.

Casparus Thomamius one of the Pastors or Teachers of the School at Zurich (of which City his Grandfather by the male line had born the office of Pretor) having been recommended by the Professors, Teachers, and Ministers of the Church and School there, to live among, and receive an exhibition from, the Oxonians, an. 1599, did spend several years there, and occurs one of the first Persons that was entred a Student in the publick Library, when first opened for use. He was a learned Man, and read a Lecture in the University, but his education having been mostly at Geneva, did, with other strangers of the like breeding, so corrupt the Students with their calvinistical Doctrine that it was many years before it could be rooted out.

May 2. John Childerley of St. Johns Coll. --- While he was a junior Fellow of that house he became Preacher to the English Merchants trading at Stode, and after his return became successively Chaplain to Richard Archb. of Canterbury, and afterwards to George his successor, Rector of St. Mary de Wolnoth in London, of S. Dunstons in the East, and of Sheinfeld or Shernfield in Essex. He was in his time a very eminent and frequent Preacher and learned Divine, but blind by age and continual labour several years before his death: Notwithstanding which, he suffered much in the time of the rebellion, and was outed of St. Dunstons by the restless Presbyterian, and whether he kept Sheinfeld to his last I cannot tell. He died very aged in 1645 (being then 66 years since his first coming to St. Johns Coll.) and was buried either in the Chancel of St. Dunstan, or in that of Sheinfeld, beforemention'd.

July 7. Nich. Higgs of Ball. Coll. --- He was about this time Rector of Higham in Somersetsshire; where, or near it, he dyed 1631.

Incorporations.

May 23. Laurence Whittaker M. A. of Cambridge --- This Person who was a Somersetsshire Man born and an ingenious Poet, was afterwards Secretary to Sir Edw. Philippi Master of the Rolls, and a Burgess in several Parliaments, particularly in that which began 3. Nov. 1640, being then a Burgess for Okehampton in Devonshire. He died 15. Apr. 1654 aged 76, and was buried in the Church of St. Giles in the fields near to London. He was much admired by Tho. Coryat the traveller; in the dishing out of whole Odcornian banquet, he had a considerable hand, an. 1611. being numbred among the Poets of that age.

Jul. 12. Will. Knight M. A. of the same University --- I take him to be the same with Will. Knight of Arington in Suffex a Divine, who wrot A concordance Axiomatical; containing a survey of Theological propositions with their reasons and uses in holy Scripture. Lond. 1610. fol. and the same perhaps who published, Mundus alter & idem, five terra australis, &c. written by Joseph Hall, who was afterwards Bishop of Norwich.

Francis Dee M. A. and Fellow of St. Johns Coll. in Cambr. was incorporated the same day --- He was the Son of David Dee of Shropshire, (who is said to be Rector of Great St. Bartholomews Church in London) and he the great Grandson of the Great Bede Dee, of an antient Family in those parts. Afterwards, he took the Degree of D. of D. being then Minister of Allhallows in Lombard-street in London, was Chancellour of the Church of Salisbury, and in 1630 was made Dean of Chichester. In 1634 Apr. 9. he was elected Bishop of Peterborough, and on the 28. May following he was installed by proxy, being then esteemed a Person of a pious life and conversation, and of very affable behavior. He died (after he had been twice married) on the eighth day of Octob. 1638, and was buried at the upper end of the choir belonging to the Cathedral Church at Peterborough, near to the Episcopal seat. A little before his death, he gave to the Master and Seniors of St. Johns Coll. beforemention'd, the impropriat Parsonage of Pagham in Suffex, (held by lease of the Cathedral Church of Canterbury) for the maintaining of two Fellows and two Scholars therein for ever, the Scholars to be elected out of Peterborough School.

John Pocklington M. A. and Fellow of Pembr. hall in Cambr. was also then (Jul. 12.) incorporated --- He was afterwards D. of D. Rector of Teldon alias Tevelde in Bedfordshire, Vicar of Wareley in Huntingdonshire, Prebendary of Peterborough, and in 1639 Canon of Windsor in the place of Tho. Sheafe deceased, being also about that time Chaplain to His Maj. Ch. 1. This is the Person who among other books, published Altare Christianum, &c. Lond. 1636. and Sunday no Sabbath, &c. Lond. 1637. Which last, being no other than a Sermon preached at Ampthill in Bedfordshire at the B. of Lincolns Visitation, 17. Aug. 1635, was much brought up by, and taken into the hands of, young Students, who usually read it at their common fires, and according to their dispositions it was liked or disliked. But both being in an high manner disgusted by the Puritans, they, who had the chief sway in the long Parliament that began 3. Nov. 1640, ordered them both on the tenth of March following to be publicly burnt by the common executioner in both the Universities, and in the City of London. About that time they deprived the Author of all his spiritualities beforemention'd, and would have proceeded farther as to other punishment, but he being in a manner heart-broken, prevented their fury by death, which hapned (at Peterborough I think) in the Winter time 1642.

Josephus Barbatu a Native of Memphis in Egypt was conversant about this time with the Oxonian Muses. He could speak French and Ital. very readily, but most of all the Arabian tongue, which was natural to him, and therefore recommended by the Archb. of Canterbury to the Vicechanc. to read a lecture of it to the Academicians. He hath written one or more things in that language, which were acceptable to the learners of it.

In 1640 Isaac Singleton occurs by the title of Archdeacon of Brecknock, but afterwards was deprived of that and other spiritualities, which is all I know of him, only that he was a Londoner born.

Parry Bishop of Worcester, was originally of S. Maries Hall, afterwards for a time of C. C. Coll. but now of S. Albans Hall before mention'd, and as a Member thereof did compleat his degree of Master in an Act celebrated 8 Jul. 1605. Afterwards he travelled and became Doct. of Phys. of an University beyond the Seas; and whether after his Return he practised that Faculty in Dorsetshire, I am not certain. Sure it is, that he was several times chosen by the men of Shaftsbury in that County to serve as a Burgess for them in several Parliaments, particularly in that called 1625, wherein he shew'd himself what he was, of a bold Spirit and able Elocution in assaulting the Kings great Minion George Duke of Bucks, as the main cause of divers infirmities in the State, being very uncouth Language to a Princes ears; the particulars of which you may (*) see elsewhere. For the Parliament which began at Westminster 3 Nov. 1640, he was elected again for the same place, but being soon after fully satisfied what desperate courses the Members thereof took, he left them, and retiring to his Majesty at Oxon, sat in the Parliament there, 1643, and so consequently was a sharer of Sufferings then incident to Royalists. I have seen divers of his Speeches in MS. but whether made publick I cannot tell. He died in 1647, or thereabouts, leaving then behind a natural Son of both his names, and the character of a man of very loose principles.

July 10. Rob. Hill Bach. of Div. of Christs Coll. in Cambr. — He was about this time Parson of S. Barthelmew near to the Exchange in London, was afterwards D. of D. and always esteemed a learned man and a good and painful Preacher. He hath written (1) Life everlasting: or the true knowledge of one Jehovah. Cambr. 1601. oct. (2) The path way to prayer and piety, &c. Lond. 1613. oct. (3) A Communicant instructed, &c. printed 1617. oct. with an Exposition on the Lords Prayer, and other things which I have not yet seen. See more among the Incorporations an. 1598. This Dr. Hill died in 1623, and was buried near to the Body of his Wife in the Chancel of the Church of S. Barthelmew before mention'd. One Rob. Hill was Parson of Tredington in the Dioc. of Worcester, an. 1604, but him I take to be different from the former.

I find only five Masters of Arts of Cambridge to be incorporated this year, and two Bach. of Div. of whom Rob. Hill the Writer before mention'd was one.

Daniel Plancius a Belgian born, was this year a Sojourner in the Univ. for the sake of the publ. Library, and did soon after publish several Books which shew'd him a learned man; one of which was answer'd and animadverted upon by Heribert Rossweldus and Rob. Swertius.

Joh. Drusius also was a Sojourner, not in a private House, but in Gloc. Hall; who being admirably well skill'd in the Hebrew, Chaldæan, and Syriack Tongue, was recommended to the chief Heads of the University to read those Tongues either privately or publickly. He soon after removed to Ch. Ch. and, as a Member thereof, took a degree in Arts, as I shall tell you in the year following.

Patrick Young (Patricius Junius) M. of A. of the University of St. Andrew in Scotland, was incorporated the same day, and was afterwards a Sojourner in this University. --- He was a Scotch Man born, and the most eminent Grecian of his time. --- Homo ad literaturæ omnium, duntaxat Græcæ, beneficium natus, as a most learned (a) Critick saith. He was about this time keeper of His Majesties Library at St. James; with the help of which he published Verſio & notæ in Clementis epistolam ad Romanos. Oxon. 1633. qu. and Catena Græcorum Patrum in Librum Job. Lond. 1637. in Gr. and Lat. written by Nicetas Heracleus. It must be now known that an Alexandrian Copy of the whole Bible in a Greek MS. was sent by Cyril Patriarch of Constantinople to K. Ch. 1. about 1628, containing the Septuagint translation of the Old Testament, and the Greek text of the New, together with St. Clements two Epistles to the Corinthians, joyned at the end. Which two were somewhat imperfect, as being in shatter'd and torn parchments, and the first had been in vain sought after near a thousand years in the West, as a late (b) Author saith. This Alexandrian Copy of the Bible was wrot about the time of the first Nicene Council (saith the said late Author, tho another (c) tells you about 1200 years ago) in great characters by the hand of Thecla a noble Egyptian Woman; who, as some say, had been a Scholar of the Apostles and afterwards a Martyr. Which, with the help of other antient copies, particularly with a MS. in University Coll. Library, entit. Octateuchus, two Greek MSS. translated into Arabick, in the Bodleian Library, and an antient MS. formerly in that of Sir Robert Cotton, (but lost in the hands of a French Man, to whom it was lent) the said Pat. Young did promise to publish, with notes added thereto, and accordingly had compared the said copy with the others above named to the 15. Chapt. of Numbers, and no farther, if Dr. Br. Walton saith (d) right. The effect of this undertaking being much expected, and desired by learned Men, especially beyond the Seas, certain Brethren of the Presbyterian persuasion were very zealous with the Assembly of Divines at Westminster, to have the business encouraged. Whereupon, in the latter end of the year 1645, they sent to the house of Mr. Pat. Young to desire him to go forward with the work, and an ordinance was read for printing and publishing of the said Testament of the Septuagint translation. At which time also John Selden and Bulstrode Whitlock did undertake the printing of it, but what hindered them in going on with the work, I find not. In 1649 P. Young (who had sided with the Presbyterians) left his place of Library keeper to the King, the books there being mostly embezzell'd; whereupon the said Whitlock succeeding, Young continued still a sojourner at Bromfield in (Essex) where, I think, he died, an. 1652, for in Sept. that year his next relation administer'd. Afterwards Dr. Walton beforemention'd printed Youngs notes and annotations, with his own continuation of collations in the sixth vol. of his Polyglot Bible, and Dr. Jo. Fell the first Epistle of St. Clement from Youngs edition, and Latine translation, with some short running notes added thereunto. --- Oxon. 1669. in tw. In 1638. Young put out Expositio in Cant. Canticum, in qu. written by Gilb. Foor Bishop of London in the time of Hen. 2. and was one of the three (Gottfriedus Vendelinus and Job. Bapt. Corelerius being the other two) who interpreted St. Clements two Epistles to the Corinthians --- Lond. 1687. oct. Lord Burleigh* was now Chancellor of the Univ. of Cambridge, afterwards Lord Treasurer of England, and Knight of the most noble order of the Garter. He died in 1612, and was buried at Hatfield in Hertfordshire.

George Thomson M. A. of St. Andrew in Scotland --- He was born in that City, and afterwards became Pastor of the reformed Church at Chastegnery in France. He hath written several books, among which are (1) De pompa in Jac. 1. introitu in Londinum Sylva. Lond. 1604. oct. (2) Vindex veritatis adversus Lipsium, lib. 2. Lond. 1606. oct. (3) Quatre harmonies sur la Revelation. print. 1607. oct. (4) La Chasse de la Bête Romaine, &c. Rochel 1611. oct. &c. Tho. Dempster in his Apparatus ad Historiam Scoticam, hath two George Thomsons that were Writers, viz. George Thomson a Priest, an. 1595, and George Thomson a Heretick, (as he calls him) an. 1599, which last, I presume is our Author, who was incorporated at Oxon. and the same whom Job. Dunbar a Scot doth celebrate for his learning in his book (*) of Epigrams.

George Ruggle M. of A. and Fellow of Clare hall in Cambridge --- One Ruggle of the said hall was Author of that celebrated Comedy called Ignoramus, acted before K. Jam. 1. at Camb. 8. Mar. 1614. Whether the same with George, I cannot yet affirm.

... Craig a Scot, Doctor of Phys. of the University of Basil --- This is all that appears of him in the publick register. So that whether he be the same with Dr. ... Craig the Kings Physician, who died in Apr. 1620 I know not; or whether he be Job. Cragg Dr. of Phys. Author of a MS. intit. Capnuranie seu Comet. in athera sublimationis refutatio, written in qu. to Tycho Brahe a Dane, I am altogether ignorant. One Dr. Job. Cragg was buried in the Church of St. Martins in the Fields near London, about 1653.

Barnab. Gooche, Goch or Gooche Doct. of the Civ. Law of Cambr. --- He was about this time Master of Magd. Coll. in that University, afterwards Chanc. of the Dioc. of Worcester, and died at Exeter, where he had an office or dignity, in the latter end of 1625. One of both his names translated into English The p pish Kingdom, or Reign of Antichrist. Lond. 1570. qu. written in Latine verse by Tho. Naogeorgius, and Four books of husbandry, Lond. 1586. qu. written in Lat. by Conr. Heresbachius, and something of Palengenius. But this translator, if I mistake not, was Barnab. Gooche of Albin ham or Alvingham in Lincolnshire, Grandfather to Barnab. Gooche, living there in 1634 and after.

John Hammond Doct. of Phys. of Cambridge --- He was now Physician to Prince Henry, and Father to Henr. Hammond, afterwards the learned and celebrated Theologist.

Creations.

Jun. 28. Henry Rowlands Bach. of Div. and Bishop of Bangor was actually created Doctor of that faculty.

Aug. 13. } Hen. Ashworth of Oriel } Coll.
} John Cheynell of C. C. }

These two who were eminent and learned Physicians, were then actually created Doctors of Physick, because they were designed by the Delegates, appointed by Convocation, to be Opponents in the disputations to be had before the King at his entertainment by the Mules in the latter end of the said month of Aug.

John Gourden (Gordonius) of Balliol Coll. was created D. of D. the same day, (Aug. 13.) because he was to dispute before the King his kinsman. --- After his disputation was ended he had his Degree completed by the Kings Professor of Divinity, purposely (not that there was a necessity of it) to shew unto His Majesty the form of that Ceremony. This noble Person was born in Scotland of the house of Huntley, was instructed in his youth in the Schools and Colleges, as well in Scotland as in France, in liberal Arts and Sciences, and in the knowledge of the Greek and Hebrew Languages and other Orientals. Afterwards he was Gentleman of three Kings Chambers in France, viz. Charles 9. Hen. 3. and 4. and while he was in the flower of his age, he was there assailed with many corruptions, as well spiritual as temporal, and in many dangers of his life, which God did miraculously deliver him from. At length K. James the first of England did call him into England, and to the holy Ministry, he being then 58 years of age, and upon the promotion of Dr. John Bridges to the See of Oxon in the latter end of 1603 he made him Dean of Salisbury in Febr. 1604. He hath written (1) Affertiones Theologicae pro vera vera Ecclesiae nota, quae est solius dei adoratio; contra falsa ecclesiae creaturarum adorationem. Rupell. 1603. oct. (2) England and Scotlands happiness in being reduced to unity of Religion under K. James. Lond. 1604. qu. (3) Orthodoxo-Jacobus & Papa apostaticus, &c. Lond. 1611. qu. (4) Anti-Bellarmino-tortur, sive Tortus retortus & Juliano papismu, &c. Lond. 1612. qu. (5) Of the ceremonies of the Church of England. Lond. 1612. qu. besides Sermons and other things. He departed this mortal life in (Aug.) 1619, and was, I suppose, buried in the Cathed. Ch. at Salisbury; whereupon Dr. John Williams succeeded him in the Deanery of that place about the 10. of Sept. and installed in the middle of Oct. following. To Sir Rob. Gourden of Sunderland, who married his only Daughter and Heir named Lucy, he left his MSS. of his own composition, written in Latine and English, desiring him that the English may be published in Scotland, and the Latine beyond the Seas, to the end that the great pains that he had taken about them may not be lost.

These Noble Men, Knights and Esquires following were actually created Masters of Arts, on the 30. of August, the King being then in Oxford.

The illustrious Prince Esmé Stuart Duke of Lenox, near of kin to the King James 1. of England --- He was Father to Lodowick the first Duke of Richmond of his name.

Henry de Vere Earl of Oxford. --- He was Son of Edw. de Vere called by some the Poetical Earl of Oxford, and died at the Siege of Breda in the Netherlands, an. 1625.

Henry Percy the most generous Count of Northumberland, a great encourager of learning and learned Men, especially Mathematicians; who, as others, have in a high manner celebrated his worth. --- He died 5. of Nov. 1632, and was buried in the Church at Petworth in Suffex.

Robert D'Evereux Earl of Essex, now a young Noblemans of Merton Coll. --- See more in the year 1636.

Will. Herbert Earl of Pembroke, the very picture and Viva effigies of Nobility, a Person truly generous, a singular lover of learning and the professors thereof, and therefore by the Academians elected their Chancellour some years after this. --- His Person was rather Majestick than elegant, and his presence, whether quiet or in motion, was full of stately gravity. His mind was purely heroick, often stout, but never disloyal, and so vehement an opponent of the Spaniard, that when that match fell under consideration in the latter end of the Reign of K. Jam. 1. he would sometimes rouze to the trepidation (*) of that King, yet kept in favour still; for His Majesty knew plain dealing (as a jewell in all Men so) was in a Privy Counsellour an ornamental duty; and the same true heartedness commended him to K. Ch. 1.

Philip Herbert his younger Brother, now Earl of Montgomery --- He was quite different in nature from the aforesaid William, being a Person esteemed a very frequent swearer, and one so intolerably choleric, quarrellsome, and offensive while he was Lord Chamberlain to K. Ch. 1. that he did not refrain to break many wiser heads than his own. Mr. Thomas May the translator of Lucan, and afterwards Historian to the Long Parliament, felt the weight of his staff; which, had not his office, and the place (being the Banqueting-house) protected, it might have been a question, whether ever he would have struck again. See more of him in Will. Herbert among the writers, under the year 1630.

William Cecil Viscount Cranbourne, Son of Robert Earl of Salisbury. --- He was, after the death of his Father, Earl of Salisbury and Knight of the Garter, and lived to 1668.

John Bridges Bishop of Oxon, sometimes of Pembroke hall in Cambridge, and lately Dean of Salisbury, upon the promotion of Dr. John Piers to the See of Rocheester, was then also created --- He was now famous for the several books that he had published, the titles of some of which you may see in Bodlies or Oxford Catalogue. He died on the 26. March 1618, and was buried in the Church of Marsh-Balden, or Balden in the Marsh near to, and in the County of, Oxford, as I have (a) elsewhere told you. He was Doctor of Divinity, and therefore, I presume, the Registry of the University, should have put him among such that were incorporated this year, and not among the Creations of Masters of Arts.

Theophilus Howard Baron of Walden, Son and Heir of Thomas Earl of Suffolk --- He was afterwards Earl of Suffolk and Knight of the honourable Order of the Garter. He died 3. June 1640, and was buried in the Church at Walden beforementioned.

Charles Howard Baron of Effingham Son of Charles Earl of Nottingham. --- He was afterwards Earl of Nottingham.

Thomas West Lord La Warr, commonly called Lord de la Ware.

Grey Brugges or Bridges Lord Chandois --- He was commonly called King of Cotswold, because of his numerous attendants when he went to Court. He died at the Span in Italy 1621.

Will. Compton Lord Compton --- He was afterwards the first Earl of Northampton of his name, and dying 14. Jun. 1630, was buried by his ancestors in the Church at Compton in the hole in Warwickshire.

Edward Bruce Master of the Rolls, and Baron of Kintess in Scotland. --- He died 14. Jan. 1610 aged 62 years, and was buried in the Chappel of the Rolls in Chancery-lane, London. He was Father to Thomas Earl of Elgin in Scotland and Baron of Whorlton in Yorkshire; as I shall tell you elsewhere.

... Erskeine a noble Man of Scotland --- Perhaps he was the same with Sir James Erskeine Knight of the Bath, Son to the Earl of Marre, or with Alex. Erskeine, who was after his Fathers death Viscount Fenton in Scotland, and died in the beginning of the year, 1633.

Sir Hen. Nevill Knight --- He was afterwards Leiger Embassador at Paris, being the same, I think, of Billingbere in Berke, who died about the latter end of June 1629.

Sir Tho. Chaloner Knight, sometimes a Commoner of Magd. Coll. now Tutor to Prince Henry.

William Herbert

John Egerton (afterwards

Earl of Bridgewater)

Valentine Knightley

John Ramsey a Scot

} Knights.

Sir Roger Aston Knight. --- He was the natural Son of John Aston Gentleman, second Son of Rich. Aston of Aston in Cheshire, had all his breeding in Scotland, which made some to take him to be a Scot born, was originally the Barber to K. James 1. while he was King of the Scots, as a libellous (b) Author tells you, though from record it appears, that he was Groom of the Bede-chamber to him, and belonged to it in the time of that Kings Father and Grandfather. He was a plain honest Man, and therefore beloved by that King, who often intrusted him as a Messenger to carry letters from him to Qu. Elizabeth. At length being made Master of the Great Wardrobe to K. Jam. 1. while King of England, departed this mortal life 23. May 1612, and was buried 28. of the said month in the Church at Cranford in Middlesex.

Sir Patrick Murray a Scot --- The same, I think, who was of Elibanke in Scotland, and afterwards Knight and Baronet of that Kingdom.

Sir Thomas Mounson Knight and Baronet. --- He was of the antient Family of those of his name in Lincolnshire, had been Commoner of Magd. Coll. and was about this time Master of the Armory, and Master Falconer to His Majesty, and in truth such an one, as no Prince in Christendom had the like. Afterwards he was twice brought to his trial, upon deep suspicion of having an hand in the poisoning of Sir Thomas Overbury, but at length, with much ado, came off clear. He was a Person of excellent breeding, was a great lover of ingenuity, especially of Musick (having himself good skill in it) and a Patron to the Professors thereof.

Esquires.

While the said Nobles, Knights and Esquires were created, Roger Earl of Rutland, Edward Earl of Somerset and Henry Howard E. of Northampton, who had formerly been created and incorporated Masters of Arts, did sit among the venerable Masters in Convocation and gave their suffrages.

This year in the month of Aug. Henry Prince of Wales, the Peoples darling and the delight of mankind, eldest Son of K. James 1. was matriculated a member of this University, as a member of Magd. Coll. at which time John Wilkinson Bach. of Div. and Fellow of the said Coll. had the honour to be nominated his Tutor: I mean that Wilkinson, who most ungratefully sided with the Rebels, that took up arms against the younger Brother of the said Prince, K. Charles 1. of ever blessed memory.

Incorporations.

Apr. 8. Theodore de Mayerne, or Mayernius Turquetus, or Theodore Turquetus de Mayerne, born of Protestant Parents at Geneva, (who hardly escaped the Parisian Massacre) Doctor of Physick of the University of Montpellier, lately of the Council to the K. of France, as to matters of Physick, now Physician to the Queen of England, was incorporated with more than ordinary solemnity Doctor of the said faculty. --- He was Baron of Aubon or Aibon in France, (being Son of Lewis de Mayerne a French Writer) was afterwards chief Physician to K. Jam. 1. by whom he was sent in the beginning of the Year 1618 into France, about matters of concern, but being suspected to come there purposely to disturb affairs, was commanded (*) by the Councillours belonging to the King of that Country, to depart the Kingdom forthwith. In 1624 Jul. 14. he received the honor of knighthood at Theobalds, and was afterwards Physician to K. Ch. 1. and his royal Consort Henrietta Maria. He hath written in French (1) Medicinal counsels and advices. (2) A Treatise of the Gout. Both put into Latine and published by Theoph. Bonet Doct. of Physick. See more in Dr. Thom. Sherley in my discourse of Ant. Sherley among the Writers, under the year 1630. and in Dr. Tho. Mousset, an. 1590. (3) Excellent and well approved receipts and experiments in Cookery, with the best way of preserving, &c. printed 1658. in tw. (4) Praxios in morbis internis precipue gravioribus & chronicis Syntagma, &c. Lond. 1690. oct. with his picture before it, aged 82, published by his Godson Theod. de Vaux. From the experiences also of the said Sir Theod. Mayerne, and from those of Dr. Chamberlaine and others, was written a book intit. The compleat Midwife's practice, &c. printed several times in oct. Before he came into England he wrote Apologia, &c. Rupel. 1603. oct. and perhaps other things. He paid his last debt to nature in the beginning of the year (about 26. March) 1655, and was buried 30. of the same month in the Chancel of the Church of St. Martin in the Fields near to London, by the bodies of his mother, first Wife, and five of his Children; at which time, Thom. Hodges a Presbyterian Divine and Minister of Kensington in Middlesex, preached his funeral Sermon; in the conclusion of which, he spoke much in praise of Sir Theodore, who left behind him a Widow named Isabella, and a rich Daughter called Adriana de Mayerne Baroness of Aubon, afterwards married to a French Marquels of Montpellier. Over his grave was soon after a fair Monument put, with a flourishing, and high flown Epitaph thereon, which for brevity sake I shall now pass by, and only tell you, that Quercitan and several famous Men of France and Germany did make honorable mention of him near 60 years before his death.

Jul. 10. Sam. Walsall Bach. of Div. of Cambridge --- He was afterwards Doct. of that faculty and Master of C. C. C. commonly called Benet Coll. in that University on the death of Tho. Jegen. He hath published The life and death of Jesus Christ, Sermon before the King at Roxton in Essex 53. 4. Lond. 1615. in oct. and other things as 'tis probable, but such I have not yet seen. He died in the Summer time, an. 1626, and was buried in the Chap. of that Coll.

12. Thom. Morton D. D. of the same University --- He was of St. Johns Coll. and through various promotions became at length the most learned and religious Bishop of Durham. His life is at large written by John Barwick D. D. printed at London 1660. qu. to which I refer the reader.

14. Tho. Sheafe D. D. of Cambridge --- He was Son of Tho. Sheafe of Cranbroke in Kent, was bred Fellow of Kings Coll. in that University, where he had the repute of a good Scholar, was installed Canon of Windsore 29. March 1614, being about that time Rector of Welford in Berkshire, and beneficed at another place in that County. When he was about 80 years of age, he wrote Vindicia senectutis, or, a plea for old age, &c. Lond. 1639. oct. Which being published, the Author soon after died, viz. 12. Dec. 1639. Whereupon his body was buried in St. Georges Chap. at Windsore. He left behind him a Son named Grindall Sheafe, sometimes Fellow of Kings Coll. beforementioned, afterwards D. of D. Vicar of Coleshall and Horstead in Norfolk, Archdeacon, Canon and Prebendary of Wells, and had other preferments in the Church. From which, raking and scraping a great deal of wealth together, (for he troubled himself not with learning or the encouragement thereof) it had redounded much to his honour and name to have left it to the Church, which he did not, but to Lay-people and Servants, who cared not for him, only for pelf-sake. He died 28. Apr. 1680, and was buried in the Cathedral Church at Wells: Whereupon his Archdeaconry was bestowed by the Bishop on Charles Thirby Vicar of St. Cuthberts Church in Wells, his Canonry on Henry Dutton Bachelaur of Divinity, sometimes of Corp. Chr. Coll. in Oxon. and his Prebendary, commonly called the Golden Prebendary on Edward Waple Bachelaur of Divinity of St. Johns Coll. in the said University.

Thomas Erpenius born at Gorcome in Holland studied in this University in the condition of a Sojourner about this time, but how long his stay was here, I cannot tell. He was admirably well skill'd in the Oriental tongues, the Hebrew, Chaldee, Arabick, Syriack, Ethiopick, Persian and Turkish. He is celebrated throughout the whole Christian World, as the restorer of the Arabick tongue, and died at Leyden in the flower of his Age, an. 1624.

Byrd*, and afterwards for his merits was made Gentleman of his Majesties Chappel Royal, and at length Organist, as also Organist of the Cath. Church at Worcester. Tomkins* Bach. of Div. of Oxon, who was Prebendary of Worcester from the Month of May 1629 to the 21 of Oct. (on which day he died) an. 1681, as also several Brethren, among whom were (1) Giles Tomkins a most excellent Organist, and Organist of the Cath. Ch. at Salisbury, who died about 1662. (2) Job. Tomkins Bach. of Musick, who was one of the Organists of S. Pauls Cathedral, and afterwards Gentleman of the Chappel Royal, being then in high esteem for his admirable knowledge in the theoretical and practical part of his Faculty. At length being translated to the celestial choir of Angels on the 27 Sept. an. 1626, aged 52, was buried in the said Cathedral. (3) Nich. Tomkins one of the Gentlemen of the privy Chamber to his Majesty Charles 1. who was also well skill'd in the practical part of Musick, and others, but their order according to seniority I cannot tell.

Incorporations.

May 30. Rich. Butler Bach. of Div. of Cambr. --- He was formerly of S. Job. Coll. in Oxon, and now Chaplain in Ordinary to his Majesty, which is all I yet know of him.

Jun. 14. Christop. Musgrave Bach. of Arts of Cambr. --- One of both his names was about this time a Carthusian at Leige in Germany, and afterwards wrote Motives and reasons for his secession and disavowing from the Church of Rome. Lond. 1621. qu. But this last I cannot affirm to be the same with him who was Bach. of Arts, because he saith, that before he seceded from the Church of Rome he had been a Carthusian Monk for the space of twenty years.

David Owen M. of A. of Clare Hall in the same University, was incorporated the same day. --- He was afterwards Bach. of Div. and Chaplain to John Ramsey Lord Viscount Haddington, afterwards D. of D. and Chaplain to the said person when he was Earl of Holderness. What other things he hath published I know not, nor any thing else of him, only that he was born in the Isle of Anglesey.

July 8. Will. Eire (Eierus) Doct. of Phys. of Leyden.

Will. Cavendish M. of A. of Cambr. Son and Heir of Will. Lord Cavendish, was incorporated the same day, in the house of Convocation. --- He was afterwards the second Earl of Devonshire of his name.

12. Walt. Curle M. A. of Cambr. was incorporated again. --- See among the Incorporations an. 1601, and in 1636.

Eliaser Hodson M. A. of the same University, was incorporated the same day. --- See among the Incorporations 1615.

Joh. Williams M. A. of Cambr. was also then incorporated. --- This noted person, who was the Son of Edmund Williams of Conway, commonly called Aberconway, in Caernarvonshire (by his Wife Mary Daughter of Owen Wynn of Eglafsnache) the sixth Son of William Williams of Cogh-Williams, was educated in S. Job. Coll. in the said University, of which he was Fellow. Afterwards he became Chaplain to Thomas Lord Egerton Lord Chanc. of England, and in 1611--12, one of the Proctors of the University of Cambridge, in which Office he gave so noble and generous Entertainment as well in scholastical Exercises as in edibles and potables, to the Spanish Embassadors, conducted thither by his Patron the Lord Chancellor, that when they took their leaves of him, the Chancellor, with the approbation of the Embassador, told him that he had behaved himself so well in his Entertainment, that he was fit to serve a King, and that he would be glad to see him as welcome at the Court, as they were in the University. About that time he had several Benefices conferred upon him, of which the Rectory of Waldgrave in Northamptonshire was one, Dinam and Grafton two more, a Residentiaryship in the Church of Lincoln, one or more Prebendships therein, and the Office of Chauntor; besides a Prebendship in the Church of Peterborough, and a Donative in Wales. Afterwards he was made sacerdotal Rector of the Savoy, Chaplain in ordinary to his Majesty, and on Sept. 10, an. 1619, Dean of Salisbury in the place of Dr. Joh. Gourdon deceased: Whereupon giving up the Savoy, upon his Majesties desire, it was by him conferred on (*) M. Ant. de Dominis Archbishop of Spalato; and at the same time 'twas ordered that an yearly pension should be by him (Williams) paid to the famous Pet. du Moulin a French Protestant, who a little before had fled into England upon account of Religion. About that time, he, by the favour of George Duke of Buckingham, was made a privy Counsellor to his Majesty, and upon the promotion of Doct. Rob. Tounson to the See of Salisbury had the Deanery of Westminster conferred upon him, in which he was installed 10 July 1620: Afterwards the Deanery of Salisbury was conferred upon Dr. Joh. Bowles of Cambridge, as I shall elsewhere tell you. In the month of July 1621, he was nominated Bishop of Lincoln on the Translation of Dr. George Mountaigne to the See of London, and about the same time was made L. Keeper of the great Seal by Buckingham's Endeavours. On the 9 Oct. following he proceeded to Westminster Hall, as L. Keeper, but without (a) pomp, and on the 11 of Nov. was consecrated Bishop of Lincoln in the collegiate Church of S. Peter at Westminster, by the Bishops of London, Worcester, Ely, Oxford, and Landaff; and about that time his Majesty gave him leave to keep Westminster in commendam. It was then observed by many, that as Sir Nich. Bacon had before received the Great Seal from a Clergyman, (Nich. Heath Archb. of Tork) so a Bishop again received them from his Son Sir Francis, at which the Lawyers did fret, to have such a Flower pulled out of their garden. But as for the further addition to the story, that Williams was brought in by Buckingham to serve such turns as none of the Laity could be found bad enough to undertake, as a libellous (b) Author reports, we must leave it to knowing men to be Judges of it. After K. Ch. 1. came to the Crown, he was continued a privy Counsellor for a time, but Buckingham being then in great favour with that Prince, caused the Seal to be taken from him in Oct. 1625, as having neglected, and been very ungrateful to him; and in the beginning of Feb. following, when that King was crowned, he was set aside from administering Service at that Ceremony, as Dean of Westminster, and Dr. Laud Bishop of S. Davids, and Preb. of Westm. (who before had received several schoolings and affronts from Williams while L. Keeper) officiated in his place. Further also, lest he should seek revenge against Buckingham for what he had done unto him, he, with the Earls of Somerset, Middlesex, and Bristol, (all of an inclination, tho not all of a plume) were interdicted the Parliament House. Hereupon Williams grew highly discontented, sided with the Puritan, and finding the King to decline in the affection of his People, he fomented (c) popular discourses tending to his Majesties dishonour, so long, until at length the incontinence of his Tongue betrayed him into Speeches, which trespassed upon Loyalty: for which words, they having taken vent, he was questioned by a Bill in the Star-Chamber, 4 Car. 1. dom. 1628. But the information being somewhat lame and taken up with second-hand Reports, the Accusation lay dormant till about 1632, when it was revived again. And the purgation of B. Williams depending principally upon the testimony of one John Pregian Registrary of Lincoln, it hapned that the Febr. after, one Elizab. Hodson was delivered of a base Child, and laid it to this Pregian. The Bishop finding his great Witness charged with such Infamy, conceived it would invalidate all his Testimony, and that once rendred invalid, the Bishop could easily prognosticate his own ruin. Therefore he bestirs himself again, and tho by order of the Justices at the publick Session at Lincoln, Pregian was charged as the reputed Father, the Bishop by his Agents, Pawel and Owen, procured that Order suppressed, and by subornation and menacing of, and tampering with Witnesses, did at length in May 10 Car. 1. procure the Child to be fathered upon one Babun, and Pregian to be acquitted. After this he being accriminated in the Star-Chamber for corrupting of Witnesses, and being convicted by full proof on the 11 of July 1637 he received this censure, that he was to pay ten thousand pounds fine to the King, to be imprisoned in the Tower of London during his Majesties pleasure, and to be suspended ab officiis & beneficiis. In 1640, Nov. 16. he was released from the Tower, and became the Idol for a time of both Houses, (having since his fall closed with the Puritan) and who then should be in daily conference with him but Edward Bagshaw a Parliament man for Southwark, and afterwards Will. Pryme, two zealous and bigoted Puritans; whose Counsels were chiefly to pull down Laud Archbishop of Canterbury, Wentworth Earl of Stratford, Heylyn of Westminster, and other Royalists. On the 12 Jan. following, he preached before the King, and pleased the Puritan very much, as being zealous for the Sabbath, and against the Book for Sports; yet towards the conclusion said that the discipline of Geneva, and Cornaries Diet, were fit for none but Beggars and Tradesmen. Afterwards, it was observed by many, that he declined daily in the peoples favour, who took him then not to be the same man as they did before. In 1641 he was by his Maj. favour, purposely to please the Puritan then dominant, translated from Lincoln to Tork, and soon after was in the head of the Bishops when they made their Protestation against the House of Lords in behalf of themselves; for which being imprisoned in the Tower again, continued there eighteen weeks. At length being with much ado released, he retired to the King at Oxon, where he provided himself with a Commission, and Instructions what to do when he went farther. Afterwards he went into his own Country, repaired his Castle at Aberconway, fortified it, and spared not any cost or labour to make it tenable for his Majesties Service. But then his Majesty and privy Council suspecting that he would not be faithful to him, they put a Commander therein, and in a manner thrust the Archb. out. Whereupon taking these matters in high disdain, he retired to his house at Pentryn or Penryn, not far from Aberconway, which he fortified; and having gained the favour of the Parliament, put a Garrison therein, and declared for them. Afterwards obtaining some Forces from one Mistoun a Parliamentarian Colonel in thole Parts, went forthwith and set upon Aberconway Castle, took it and kept it to his dying day in his own possession. This was in the latter end of 1645, at which time the Kings Cause did daily decline, as the Archbishop did in the minds of the Royalists, who, for these his Actions, spared not to stile him a perfidious Prelate, the Shame of the Clergy, and the Apostate Archbishop of York, whereas while he was in his greatness, he was characterized to be a person of a generous mind, a lover and encourager of learning and learned men (he himself being very learned) hospitable, and a great Benefactor to the publick, yet always high and proud, and sometimes insolent, and to have pharisaical Leaven in him. His works are (1) A sermon of apparel before the King and Pr. at Theobalds, 22 Feb. 1619, on Math. 11. 8. Lond. 1620. qu. (2) Serm. before the Lords, Lond. 1623. qu. Testam. & in Ephesios*. Cantab. 1653, oct. published under the name of Johan. Eboracensis, by which, I presume, is meant John Williams. He hath also published one or more Sermons which I have not seen, and hath also extant Parliamentary Speeches and Letters of State. In 1671 was printed at London in octavo, A manual: or, three small and plain Treatises, viz. 1. of Prayer, or active, 2. of Principles, or passive, 3. of Resolution, or opposite, Divinity. Translated and collected out of ancient Writers for the private use of a most noble Lady, to preserve her from the danger of Popery. In the Title page 'tis said to have been written by John Archbishop of York, yet certain Authors who lived and wrote after his death, are therein quoted; which are unadvisedly done by another hand. At length this Archb. dying in the house of the Lady Mostyn at Glodedd near Aberconway, on the 25 of Mar. 1649 was buried, I presume, at Aberconway. There is extant a Latin Apology for this Dr. Williams Archb. of York, written in good Latin by John Harmer M. A. sometimes of Magd. Coll. in Oxon, to Lambert Osbaldeston a great Creature of the said Archb. in which are many things, that are true, inserted. But the Reader is to know, that the said Harmer, who sometimes taught in the College School at Westminster, had often participated of the generosity of Archb. Williams; and when afterwards he became Greek Professor of the Univ. of Oxford, he was esteemed a Parasite, and one that would do any thing below him to gain a little money or a meals-meat.

Jul. 12. Math. Wren M. of A. of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, was then incorporated in the same degree. — I have spoken largely of him elsewhere.

Will. Boswell M. A. of Jesus Coll. in the said University, was incorporated the same day. — He was afterwards Proctor of that University, Secretary to Sir Dudl. Carleton while ordinary Ambassador to the States of the United Provinces, and afterwards Resident or Leiger Ambassador there himself; in which capacity he was knighted by the Lord Hor. Vere of Tilbury, and other Commissioners, named in his Majesty's Letters Patents, in the Army of the said States at Bockstal near Baldwick in Brabant, 25 July 1633. He was a learned man, a great encourager of Learning, zealous for the Church of England, faithful in the execution of his Embassy, and highly valued by eminent persons. He died much lamented in 1647.

Job. Squire M. A. of Jesus Coll. in the same University, was also then incorporated. — He was afterwards Vicar of S. Leonards Shoreditch in Middlesex, a zealous and orthodox Preacher, and therefore respected by Dr. Laud Archb. of Canterbury. But when the Puritan or Presbyterian brake into an open Rebellion, he was one of those many godly Ministers that suffered by Imprisonment, Sequestration, Plundering, and I know not what. He hath written Lectures, being an Exposition of the first part of the second Chapter to the Thessalonians, proving the Pope to be Antichrist. Lond. 1630, qu. and also published several Sermons, the Titles of most of which you may see in the Bodleian or Oxford Catalogue. Pray be pleased to see more of him in that vile Pamphlet called A century of scandalous, malignant, Priests, &c. printed 1643, qu. pag. 23.

Job Preston M. A. of Queens Coll. in Camb. was also then incorporated. — He was afterwards Doct. of Div. Master of Emanuel Coll. in the said University, a perfect Polititian, and the Patriarch of the Presbyterian Party. The Titles of most of the Sermons and Treatises which he hath written and published, you may see in the said Catalogue, and the actions of his life, written and published by one that was his Pupil, named Tho. Ball of Northampton, who tells you, that he died 20 Jul. 1628, and that he was buried in the Church at Fawsley in Northamptonshire.

Jul. 11. Will. Gouge M. A. of Cambridge --- He was a Native of Stratford bow in Middlesex, was educated in Kings Coll. of which he was Fellow, afterwards he was Doct. of Div. and the pious and learned Preacher of the Church in the Blackfriars in London, where in his time he was accounted the Father of the London Ministers, that is, of such, who were put in by the Authority of the rebellious Parliament in 1641, 42. &c. He was one of the Assembly of Divines, was a good Text-man, as his Whole armour of God, Exposition (1) of the Hebrews, Exposition of the Lords Prayer, and other learned works (the titles of some of which you may see in Oxf. Cat.) shew. He is often honorably mention'd by Voetius, Streso and other outlandish Divines; and was always accounted by the Puritan eminent for his humility, patience, and faith: He died 12. of Dec. 1653 and was buried in the said Church of the Blackfriars on the 16 of the said month, aged 79 or thereabouts.

John Richardson M. A. of the same University was incorporated the same day --- One Job. Richardson was educated in Eman. Coll. was afterwards D. D. Master first of Peter house, then of Trin. Whether any of these three, were the same with John Richardson the incorporated Master of Arts, I cannot now justly tell.

July 11. Thomas Bartlet of Magd. Coll. --- He hath several compositions in Musick in MS. but whether extant I cannot tell.

On the 26. of Apr. Richard Deering, did, as a member of Christ Church supplicate for the Degree of Bach. of Musick, and had his desire, as it seems, granted (tho not registred) because in matters of his composition which were soon after by him made extant, he entitles himself Bach. of Musick. --- This Person who was born of, and descended from, a right antient Family of his name living in Kent, was bred up in Italy, where he obtained the name of a most admirable Musician. After his return he practised his faculty for some time in England, where his name being highly cried up, became, after many intreaties, Organist to the English Nuns living in the Monastery of the blessed Virgin Mary at Bruxells. At length after the Marriage of K. Ch. 1. he was made Organist to his Royal Consort Henrietta Maria, with whom he continued till she was forced to leave England by the Presbyterian outrages in the time of the grand rebellion. He hath written (1) Cantica sacra ad melodiam Madrigalium elaborata senis vocibus. Antwerp 1618. qu. divided in six volumes, according to the voices. In the title of this book he writes himself Ricardus Deringus Bac. Mus. (2) Cantica sacra ad duas & tres voces composita, cum Basso continuo ad Organum. Jul. 4. Job. Wyld of Ball. Coll. --- This Person who was the eldest Son of Serj. Geo. Wyld of Droitwich in Worcestershire, was about this time a Student in the Inner Temple, of which he became Lent reader 6. Car. 1. afterwards Serjeant at Law, and Lord chief Baron of the Exchequer in the time of the rebellion. This was the Person who drew up the Impeachment against the Bishops, and by him sent to the H. of Lords, an. 1641. being the prime manager in that affair, and what he wrote as to that matter, was afterwards printed. He was the same also who, upon the command, or rather desire, of the great Men sitting at Westminster, did condemn to death at Winchester one Capt. John Burley for causing a drum to be beat up for God and K. Ch. at Newport in the Isle of Wight, in order to rescue his captiv'd King, an. 1647. For which act, (after Burley had been executed at Winton, on the 10. Feb. the same year) he received 1000 l. out of the privy purse of Derby-house. About the same time also he received another 1000 l. (as 'twas then confidently affirmed) for the acquittance of Major Rolph who had a design to murder or poyson the said King; so 'twas all one to him whether he hung or hung not, so he got the beloved self. After Oliver came to the Protectorship, he retired and acted not, but when the Rump Parliament was restored after Richards deprivation, then was he restored to the Exchequer, and after K. Charles 2. returned, lived about 9 years in a retired condition. At length giving way to fate at Hamstede near London, his body was buried at Wberwell in Hampshire, which is a Lordship belonging to Charles Lord de la Warr, who married Anne Dau. and Heir of the said John Wyld.

Jul. 5. Job. Seller or Sellar of Oriel Coll. --- One of both his names hath published Five Sermons --- Lond. 1636. oct. and other things. Whether the same with him of Oriel, who was a Ministers Son of Gloucestershire, I cannot tell, unless I could see the said Sermons. Nor do I know any thing to the contrary, but that he may be the same with John Seller of C. C. Coll. a Ministers Son of Kent, who was admitted Bach. of Arts 18. Feb. 1611. and Master 2. Jul. 1614. This last John Seller being a learned Man, Mr. Rich. James, (whom I have mentioned among the Writers 1638.) numbered him among his learned acquaintance, and therefore wrote divers Epistles to him.

Incorporations.

Apr. 18. John Donne sometimes of Hart hall, now M. of A. of Cambridge, was then incorporated in that Degree --- On the 17. of the same month, he supplicated to proceed in the faculty of Arts, and to have all exercises requisite to perform for that Degree, be omitted. The reason was, as 'tis laid in the publick register, quod huic Academiae maxime ornamento sit, ut ejusmodi viri optime de reipublica & ecclesia meriti gradibus Academicis insigniantur, &c. The next day, he, with one John Porje M. A. of Cambridge were incorporated, as the said register tells us, tho in another place therein, 'tis laid he was admitted to proceed, yet stood not in the Art following to compleat that Degree.

24. Ralph Cudworth Bach. of Div. of Cambridge --- He was afterwards D. of D. Rector of Ailer in the Dioc. of B. and Wells &c. where he died (as it seems) either in Aug. or Sept. 1624. Jam. 1. What he hath written I cannot justly say: Sure I am that he hath translated from high Dutch into English, A Sermon preached before Frederick 5. Prince Elector of Palatine and the Princess Lady Elizabeth, by Abrah. Scultetus Chaplain to his Highness, on Psal. 147. 1, 2, 3. &c. Lond. 1613. oct. and perhaps other things, but such I have not yet seen.

10. John Norton Bach. of Arts of Cambridge --- The two names of this Person being common, I cannot therefore say that he was the same John Norton who was Minister of the Church of New England, Author of Responsio ad Guliel. Apollonii Syllogem, ad componendas controversias in Anglia. Lond. 1648. oct. and other things. One John Norton was Proctor of Cambridge after this time.

Griffin Williams M. of A. of the same University, was incorporated the same day --- He was sometimes of Ch. Ch. in this University, was afterwards a frequent Writer, and Bishop of Ossorie in Ireland, and therefore is to be remembered at large in the next vol.

Henry Thurocroft M. of A. of the said University also, was then (Jul. 10.) incorporated --- He was collated to the Archdeaconry of Cleveland in the Dioc. of York, in the place of John Philipps promoted to the See of Sodor or the Isle of Man, on the second day of Aug. 1619. Which Dignity he resigning 1635 was succeeded by Timothy Thurocroft Bach. of Divinity.

Jan. 22. David Foulis M. A. of Glascoe in Scotland --- He is stiled in one of the registers Colintoni Comarchi filius. See another of both his names in these Fasti, an. 1605.

Ludovicus Capellus or Cappellus a young French Man of great hopes, became a Sojourner in the University in the beginning of this year, and in the month of Feb. did answer publicly in Disputations in Divinity, in the School allotted for that faculty, and about the same time gave books to the publick Library. He was afterwards an eminent Hebrician, Tutor to the famous Sam. Bochartus, and Author of divers most excellent books, as you may see in the Oxford Catalogue: Among which are his Critica Sacra, much commended by Hug. Grotius. This Lud. Char. when a Child) sole officer (which some call Clerk) in the Closet of Pr. Henry; and after his death to the said Prince Charles, removed from his Service when that Prince became King for his pragmatism and impudence in demonstrating by a letter, which he presented to the said King, how popishly affected were Dr. Neile and Dr. Laud his continual attendants. About that time he being made Minister of St. Matthews Church in Friday-street in London, his Sermons which he preached there (some of which he afterwards published) favouring of nothing else but of schisme, sedition, and altogether against His Majesties Declaration, he was for so doing, and especially for publishing two virulent Pamphlets not only brought before the Council-board, but several times into the High Commission Court, for what he had said and done, and afterwards imprison'd, fin'd, degraded, deprived of his benefice, pillorized with Pryme and Bastwicke, lost his ears, condemn'd to perpetual imprisonment in Lancaster Goal first, and afterwards in the Castle in the Isle of Guernsey. From which last place being released by the members of that Parliament which began at Westminster 3. (6) Conformities deformity, &c. pr. 1646. the Author being then 67 years of age. Afterwards seeing what strange courses the great Men at Westminster took, he grew more moderate, notwithstanding he was an Independent, and lived, as I conceive, till they took off his old Masters Head.

Wright*, (who, when he was M. of A. succeeded Edmund Bummy in that Dignity, an. 1575.) and on the 13 Apr. 1618, he was installed Archdeacon of Norwyck in the place of Tho. Jegon D. D. who died in the latter end of 1617, being then Master of C. C. Coll. in Cambridge and Patron of the Parsonage of Sibell Henningham in Essex; where, if I mistake not, he the said Jegon was buried.

Jam. 1.*) came to visit the University, where being sumptuously entertained, was pleas'd with his own hand writing to matriculate himself a member of the University (*sub tit. Ed. { Job. Wilkinson of Magd. Hall. }

The last of the said two Doctors was now Principal of the said Hall of S. M. Magd. and afterwards was President of Magd. Coll. but hath published nothing. One John Wilkinson hath written An Exposition of the 13 chaps. of the Revelations of Jesus Christ. Printed privately in 1619. qu. The publisher of which tells us, that it was the purpose and desire of the Author of the said Book to have published his judgment of the whole Book of the Revelation, but through the malice of the Prelates, (as he adds) who divers times spoiled him of his goods and kept him many years in prison, he was prevented of his purpose. He tells us also, that after his death some of his Labours coming into the hands of his Friends in scatter'd and imperfect papers, they laboured with the help of others, that heard him declare his judgment therein, to set forth the said little Book or Treatise. Whether this Job. Wilkinson was of Oxon. I cannot yet tell, neither whether he was the same Job. Wilkinson M. of A. who became Rector of Babery in Somersetshire, in Apr. 1587. Another Job. Wilkinson was a Lawyer of Bernards Inn near London.

London, who hath published A treatise collected out of the Statutes of this Kingdom concerning the Office and Authority of Coroners and Sheriffs. And another entit. An easie and plain method for the keeping of a Court Leet. Both printed in 1620, &c. in oct. Whether he was ever bred in any University, I know not: sure I am, one Rob. Wilkinson was, who applying his study to Divinity, proceeded in that Faculty, (at Cambr. I think) was Rector of S. Olaves in Southwark, and a publisher of several Sermons, as the Oxford Catalogue will tell you. He died in the year 1617.

It was then granted by the ven. Convocation, that Will. Camden Clarenceaux King of Arms, who had served as an Herald at the burial of the said Sir Tho. Bodley, might be created M. of A. but for what reason he was not, unless his refusal, as I have elsewhere told you, I cannot tell.

The most learned also Isaac Casaubon was entred a Student in Bodlies Library as a Member of Ch. Ch. in the month of May this year, but died soon after to the great loss of learning. He was a great Linguist, a singular Grecian, and an exact Philologer.

June 8. } Will. Westerman of Oriel } Coll.
 } Adam Wilson of Qu. }

The last of which two, died at Nutfield in Surrey (of which place I think he was Rector) in the beginning of 1634.

27. Will. Piers of Ch. Ch.

July 5. Nich. Love of New Coll. --- He was at this time Chaplain to his Majesty, Warden of Wykeham's Coll. near to, and Prebendary of Winchester; where dying about 1630 was buried in the Chappel belonging to the said Coll.

Rob. Moor of New Coll. who accumulated, was admitted the same day.

John Charlet of Oriel Coll. was also admitted the same day --- He was now Prebendary of Worcester, and dying in 1640, Herb. Croft D. D. succeeded him in that Dignity.

Theodore Price was admitted as a member of New Coll. on the same day also --- He was originally Chorister of Alls. Coll. afterwards Fellow of Jesus, now Principal of Hart hall and about this time Subdean of Westminster, Prebendary of Winchester; and afterwards (as 'tis said by some) Master of the Hospital of St. Cross. He gave way to fate 15. Dec. 1631, and was buried at Westminster; whereupon Dr. John Williams Dean of that place called together the Prebendaries of the Church, and took great pains to make the World suspect that he died a Rom. Catholick, only to raise a scandal on his enemy Bishop Laud who had commended him to the King for a Bishoprick in Wales. A rigid and inveterate Presbyterian tells (a) us, that the said Dr. Laud did endeavour to promote him to a Welsh Bishoprick, but was opposed by Philip Earl of Pembroke, so Dr. Morg. Owen (b) was preferred in his stead. This Price lived a professed, unpreaching Epicure and Arminian, and died a reconciled Papist to the Church of Rome, having received extreme unction from a popish Priest, &c. Thus Prynn; yet the Church (c) Historian tells us that Dr. Williams beforementioned did much endeavour to make him Archb. of Armagh, but denied by the Duke of Buckingham, without any mention made of Dr. Laud his endeavours. But so it was that Dr. Williams being a great favourer of the Puritan or Presbyterian, Prynn therefore made no mention of him, but laid all upon the score of Laud.

6. Thom. Anyan President of C. C. Coll. who accumulated --- This Doctor who was born at Sandwyck in Kent, and had lately been Chaplain to Egerton Lord Keeper, published (1) A Sermon preached at St. Maries Church in Oxon. 12. Jul. 1612; being the Act Sunday, on Psal. 1. 3. Lond. 1612. qu. (2) Sermon preached at St. Mary Spittle 10. Apr. 1615, on Acts 10. 34. 35. Oxon. 1615. qu. In the year 1619, he being then one of his Majesties Chaplains, he was made Prebendary of Gloucester, and afterwards being found unfit to govern a College, because he was a fosterer of faction, he resign'd his Presidentship and was made Prebendary of Canterbury; where dying 1632, was buried in the Cath. Ch. there.

Francis James of Ch. Ch. stood in the Act this year to compleat his Doctorship in Divinity, but when he was admitted, it appears not in the publick register. --- He was now in great esteem for several Specimens of Latin Poetry which he before had made, especially for his Poem, published in 1612, entit. Trenodia Henricianarum Exequiarum. Sive Panegyrica Anglicana, &c. He was near of kin to Dr. Tho. James mention'd before, and among the Writers under the year 1619, was about this time Preacher or Read. at the Savoy in the Strand near London, and, as it seems, a Preacher at St. Marthe's in Friday Street. At length departing this mortal life in 1621, was buried, (I think) at Ewbury in Surrey.

Incorporations.

July 7. Franc. Barrough lately of Eman. Coll. in Cambridge, now of St. Johns in Oxon, was incorporated either Bach. or Master of Arts.

9. Augustin Lindfoll M. of A. and Fellow of Clare hall in Cambridge --- He was born at Bumsted in Essex, was bred (d) Scholar and Fellow in the said Hall, where he became well studied in Greek, Hebrew and all antiquity. Afterwards he succeeded Dr. Walt. Curle in the Deanery of Lichfield 1628, Dr. Will. Piers in the Episcopal See of Peterborough, (to which he was elected 22. Dec. 1632) and being translated thence to Hereford, in (December) 1633 upon the translation of Dr. Fuxon to London, died at his Palace in Hereford 6. Nov. 1634. whereupon his body was buried in the Cath. Church there. He was a Man of very great learning, of which he gave sufficient evidence to the Church by setting forth that excellent edition of Theophylast upon St. Pauls Epistles.

Thomas Goodwin M. A. of the said University, was also then (July 9.) incorporated as it is said in the publick register; but if he be the same Person whom I shall mention among the creations an. 1653. I should rather think that he was incorporated Bach. of Arts.

Sam. Buggs was incorporated M. of A. the same day --- See more of him among the Writers in John King, an. 1638.

July 12. Edmund Wilson Doctor of Phys. of Kings Coll. in Cambridge and Fellow of the Coll. of Physicians in London --- On the 18. Dec. 1616. he was installed Canon of Windsor on the death of Dr. Rich. Field, but because he was not ordained Priest within a year following, he was deprived of his Canonry and Dr. Godfrey Goodman succeeded, being installed 20. Dec. 1617. This Dr. Wilson who was Son of Will. Wilson mention'd among the Doctors of Divinity, under the year 1607, and had practised his faculty several years in Windsor, died in the Parish of St. Mary le Bow in London about the beginning of Oct. 1633, at which time, or before, he gave many books to Lincoln Coll. Library in Oxon.

Thomas Horsmanden D. D. of the said University of Cambridge, was incorporated the same day.

July 14. Lancelot Langborne Bach. of Div. of Cambridge --- He was now Parson of St. Martins Church within Ludgate, London, and had published Mary sitting at Christs feet; Sermon at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Swaine, the Wife of Mr. Will. Swaine, at St. Botolphs without Aldersgate, on Luke 10. 42. Lond. 1611. oct. and perhaps other things. He died about the beginning of November this year (1614) and was buried, I presume, in his Church of St. Martin beforementioned.

Mar. 23. Philip King M. A. of the same University --- Another of both his names was of this University, as I shall tell you in these Fasti an. 1618. and 1645.

This year Charles de Beauvais of the Isle of Guernsey, a young Man most conversant in the study of learned arts, was entred a Student in Bodleys Library, but whether he was matriculated as a member of any Coll. or Hall, it appears not. He is the same Ch. de Beauvais without doubt, who was afterwards Author of (1) De disciplinis & scientiis in genere; & de recto ordine quo sunt in Scholis & Academiis docende, &c. (2) Recta delineatio discipline Universalis, seu prime Philosophie; itemque Logica: Which two were printed at Lond. 1648. in oct. (3) Exercitationes concerning the pure and true, and the impure and false religion. Lond. 1665. oct. at which time the Author was Rector of Wisbeham in Suffex.

Another of both his names was a Writer of Wadham Coll. as you may see among the Writers, an. 1617, and a third, who was a Devonian born, and Son, or at least near of kin to him of Tallaton, hath published several things, (some of which are mention'd in *Job. Incorporations.

Apr. 14. Tho. Farnabie M. A. of Cambr. sometimes of Merton Coll. in this University, and afterwards the eminent Schoolmaster of Kent. --- I shall mention him at large in the second Volume of this work.

Jul. 2. Ralph Rand M. A. of S. Andrew in Scotland.

9. Job. Hacket M. A. of Trin. Coll. in Cambr. --- About this time he wrote a Latin Comedy called Loiola, --- printed at Lond. 1648, in oct. was afterwards D. of D. Parson of S. Andrews Church in Holbourn near London, Chaplain to K. Charles 1. Residentiary of S. Pauls, and a great sufferer in the time of the Rebellion. At length after the Restoration of K. Ch. 2. to whom he was Chaplain in ordinary, he became Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, to which being consecrated at Lambeth 28 Dec. 1661, fate there to the time of his death, 28 Oct. 1670, aged 79. Afterwards came out under his name Christian Consolations, taught from five heads in Religion, printed 1671 in tw. and A century of Sermons &c. Lond. 1675, fol.

Rob. Farfereus or Faisereus M. A. of Lovaine, was incorporated the same day.

Jan. 14. Edw. Kellier M. A. of Kings Coll. in Cambr. --- He was at this time Rector of Ragborough and Crocombe in Somersetshire, and afterwards Canon residentiary of Exeter. His Writings speak him a learned man, some of which are (1) Miscellanies in Divinity, in 3 books, &c. Camb. 1633, fol. (2) The threefold supper of Christ in the night that he was betrayed. Lond. 1641, fol. besides Sermons, of which one is entit. A return from Argier, preached at Minhead in Somersetshire 16 Mar. 1627, at the readmission of a relapsed Christian into our Church, on Gal. 5. 2. Lond. 1628, qu. This was preached in the morning of the third Sunday in Lent, and in the Afternoon preached Dr. Hen. Byam on the same occasion, but not on the same subject. He the said Kellier was a sufferer, if I mistake not, in the time of the Rebellion, which began 1642.

Febr. 20. Job. Foxcroft Bach. of Arts of Cambr. --- See more among the Masters in the year following.

This year was a Supplicate made for one John Hayward LL. D. and Historiographer of Chelsey Coll. near to London, to be incorporated in the same Faculty, but whether he was really so, I cannot tell. --- In the year 1619 he received the honour of Knighthood from his Majesty at Whitehall, being then accounted a learned and godly man, and one better read in Theological Authors than in those belonging to his own profession. The Titles of all or of most of the Books that he published, you may see in the Oxford Catalogue. As for those of History which he hath published, the phrase and words in them were in their time esteemed very good; only some have wish'd that in his History of Hen. 4. he had not called Sir Hugh Lyme by so light a word as Mad-cap, tho he were such; and that he had not changed his Historical stile into a Drammatical, where he induceth a Mother uttering a Womans passion, in the case of her Son. This Sir Job. Hayward ended his days in his house in the Parish of Great S. Barthelmeu in London, on Wednesday 27 June 1627, and was buried in the Church belonging to that Parish. You may see more of him in Camdens Annals of Qu. Elizabeth under the year 1601, where you'll find him punished by a tedious Imprisonment for an unreasonable Edition of one of his books.

Creations.

Jul. 9. Francis Stewart of Ch. Ch. (Knight of the Bath) one of the Sons of the Earl of Murrey, was actually created Master of Arts. --- He was a learned Gentleman, was one of Sir Wals. Raleigh's Club at the Mermaid Tavern in Friday street in London, and much venerated by Ben. Johnson, who dedicated to him his Comedy called The silent Woman. He was a person also well seen in marine Affairs, was a Captain of a Ship, and, as I have been informed by those who remember him, did bear the office for some time of a Vice, or Reer, Admiral.

Nov. 13. John Hammer of Alls. Coll. was then actually created D. of D. as the Register saith; which was, as I suppose, no more than the completion of that degree, which should have been done in the Act preceeding, had he not been absent.

In the latter end of Aug. this year, Prince Charles came honorably attended to the University, and after he had been entertained with Ceremonies and Feasting suitable to his Dignity and Merit, he was pleased with his own hand writing to matriculate himself a Member of the said University, Aug. 28. with this Symbole or Sentence, Si vis omnia subicere, subice te rationi. To say no more, he was afterwards a King of great Religion and Learning, but unfortunate.

Feb. 10. Robert Blake of Wadham Coll. --- This right valiant person having taken no higher degree in this University, I must therefore make mention of him in this place. Born therefore he was at Bridgewater in Somersetshire, being the Son and Heir of Humphrey Blake of that place Gent. but descended of the antient Family of the Blakes of Blanchfield in the said County. In the beginning of Lent Term an. 1615, he being then about 15 years of age, he was matriculated in the University as a Member of S. Albans Hall, about which time standing for a Scholarship of C. C. Coll. with Rob. Hegge and Rob. Newin, was put aside, whether for want of merit or friends, I cannot tell. While he continued in the said Hall, he was observed by his Contemporaries to be an early riser and studious, but withal he did take his pleasure in Fishing, Fowling, &c. and sometimes in stealing of Swans. Before the time came when he was to take a degree in Arts, he translated himself to his Country men in Wadham Coll. and as a Member of that House, he did stand for a Fellowship of Merton Coll. with Alex. Fisher, John Doughtie, Edw. Reynolds, John Earle, &c. an. 1619, but whether it was for want of Scholarship, or that his person was not handiome or proper, (being but of stature little) which Sir Hen. Savile then Warden of that Coll. did much respect, he lost it, continued in Wadham Coll. without the taking of any other degree, and in 1623 wrote a Copy of Verses (*) on the death of the learned Camden. Afterwards he went into his own Country, where he lived in the condition of a Gentleman, but always observed to be puritanically inclin'd. In 1640 he was chosen a Burgess for Bridgewater to serve in that Parliament which began at Westminster 13 Apr. 1640, but minding that Office in the same year when the Long Parliament began on the 3 Nov. following, he sided with the Presbyterian, took up arms for the Parliament soon after, received a Commission from the Members thereof to be a Captain of Dragoons; and afterwards being made Governour of Taunton, was made a Colonel. Which Town, as also afterwards Lyme, he defended with great Valour against several famous and forcible Sieges of the Kings Army under the command of Prince Maurice and George Lord Goring. At length the War being in a manner terminated, the worth of this inestimable great Commander (being so esteemed by those of his party) was taken notice of by the Parliament: whereupon they resolved that it should not lye hid at home, but shew it self abroad, and therefore he was made first one of the Commissioners of the Navy, then one of the Lord Wardens of the Cinque Ports, and at length about 1649 one of the Generals at Sea: At his entrance into which office, he pent up Prince Rupert in the chief Port of Portugal, and hunted him from Sea to Sea, till he had reduced those Ships with him, which before had revolted from the Parliament. In the beginning of the year 1651 he reduced the Isle of Scilly to the Parliament Service, and on the 25 Nov. following, he was elected one of the Council of State, being then in great repute with Oliver. In 1652, Sept. 5. he sorely beat the French Fleet, and at that time, there being a Quarrel between the two Republicks, England and the United Provinces, he and his Fleet were worried in the Downes by Van Tromp the Dutch Admiral and his Fleet, 29 of Nov. following; but on the 18 of Febr. following that, on which day hapned a most terrible Sea-fight betwixt them again, near to the Isles of Hight and Portland, the Dutch were in a woful manner worried. Ever after, Blake continued a fortunate Vindicator of his Countries Privileges, from the encroachments of insulting Neighbours, a victorious Enemy of the Spaniard, and was highly valued of all, even the Royalist. The last part, and the most desperate attempt that he ever acted in a Sea-blood, (not that I shall now take notice of his daring piece of service at Tunis against the Turks, an. 1655) was against the Spaniards at Sancta Cruz, in Apr. 1657, which made him as terrible as Drake had been before to them, there being less difference betwixt the fame and report of their actions and exploits, than in the sound of their names: For there, with 25 sail, he fought (as 'twere in a ring) with seven Forts, a Cattle, and 16 Ships, many of them being of greater force than most of those Ships Blake carried in against them: yet in spite of opposition, he soon calcined the Enemy, and brought his Fleet back again to the Coast of Spain full fraught with honour. But what Commander is able to repel the stroke of death? This is he that doth conquer the Conquerours, and level the honours of the mightiest Monarchs with the meanest Captains: there is no withstanding his force, for all must fall: Blake himself was compell'd to strike the top-sail and yield, for in his return home, he gave up the Ghost in the Ship called the George the Admiral, as it entred into Plymouth Sound, on Friday the seventeenth of August, an. 1657, aged 59, occasioned by the Scurvy and Dropfie which he had contracted by his seafaring. The next day his body was imbowelled, and closed in a sheet of lead, and the bowels were interred in the great Church at Plymouth. He was a man wholly devoted to his Countries Service, resolute in his undertakings, and most faithful in the performance of them. With him, Valour seldom mist its reward, nor Cowardize its punishment. When news was brought him of a metamorphosis in the State at home, he would then encourage the Seamen to be most vigilant abroad; for (said (+) he) 'Tis not our duty to mind State-affairs, but to keep foreigners from fooling us. In all his expeditions, the Wind seldom deceived him, but most an end stood his friend, especially in his last undertaking at S. Cruze in the Canary Islands. To the last, he lived a single life, never being espoused to any, but his Countries, Quarrels. Soon after his death and embalming, the body was conveyed by Sea to Greenwich House, where it remained for some time. From thence it was conveyed by Water on the 4 of Sept. following with all due solemnity and honour in a barge of state covered with Velvet, adorned with Escalloons and Pencils, accompanied with his brothers and divers of his kindred, relations and servants in mourning, together with Oliver's Privy Council, the Commissioners of the Admiralty and Navy, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, the Field Officers of the Army, and divers other persons of honour and quality, in a great number of barges and wherries covered with mourning, marshall'd and order'd by the Officers of Arms, who directed and attended the solemnity. In that order they pass'd to Westminster bridge, and at their landing proceeded in the same manner thro a Guard of several Regiments of foot Soldiers of the Army, wherein he had been a Colonel in many eminent Services. And so proceeding from the New Palace Yard at Westminster to the Abbey, was interr'd in a Vault, made on purpose, in the Chappel of King Hen. 7. In that place it rested till the 12 Sept. 1661, and then by vertue of his Majesties express Command sent to the Dean of Westminster, to take up the bodies of all such persons which had been unwarrantably buried in the Chap. of Hen. 7. and in other Chappels and places within the collegiate Church of S. Peter in Westminster since the year 1641, and to bury them in some place in the Churchyard adjacent: His body, I say, was then (Sept. 12.) taken up, and with others, buried in a pit in S. Margarets Church yard adjoining, near to the back-door of one of the Prebendaries of Westminster; in which place it now remaineth, enjoying no other monument, but what is reared by his Valour, which time it self can hardly deface. At the same time were removed the bodies of (1) Col. Rich. Deane sometimes one of the Admirals at Sea for the Republick of England, who was killed in a Sea-fight between the English and Dutch (which last were worsted) that hapned the 2 and 3 of June 1653. (2) Col. Humph. Mackworth one of Oliver's Council, who was interr'd in Hen. 7. Chappel with great solemnity 26 Dec. 1654. (3) Dr. Isaac Dorislaus. (4) Sir Will. Constable of Flamburgh in Yorkshire, one of the Judges of K. Ch. 1. sometimes Governour of Glocester, and Colonel of a Regiment of Foot; who dying 15 June, was buried in K. Hen. 7. Chap. 21 of the same month an. 1655. (5) Col. Job. Meldrom a Scot who received his death's wound at Aldersford in Hampshire. (6) Col. . . . Buscawen a Cornish man. (7) Col. Edw. Popham one of the Admirals of the Fleet belonging to the Parliament; who dying of a Fever at Dover 19 Aug. 1651, was buried the 24 of Sept. following, in S. Job. Bapt. Chappel. His body, after it was taken up, was not buried in the said pit, but carried elsewhere (into the Country I think) by some of his Relations, yet his monument was permitted to stand by the intercession of some of his Ladies friends, with the stone, wherein the Epitaph was insculpt'd, to be turn'd. (8) Will. Stroude or Strode a Parliament man, and one of the five Members demanded by K. Ch. 1. (9) Thom. May the Parliamentary Historian. These with the bodies of Will. Strong and Steph. Marshall sometimes Members of the Assembly of Divines (the last of which was buried in the south Isle of the Church 23 Nov. 1655) and of several Women also, and others, were re-buried in the pit before mentioned, on the 12 and 14 of Sept. 1661. But after this long digression let's return to the remaining part of the Admissions.

Mar. 22. Jonas Mountague of Mert. Savile to drudge for him in his Edition of S. Chrysostom's Works. Afterwards Sir Henry procured for him the Uther's place in Eaton School, and afterwards the degree of Bach. of Arts. One Rich. Mountague Fellow of Kings Coll. in Cambridge (who became Bishop of Norwich in 1638) was employed by the said Sir Henry to correct Chrysostome in Greek before it went to the Press at Eaton, (about which time Mountague was Fellow of the said Coll.) but how nearly related Jonas was to this Richard Mountague, who was a Ministers Son, I know not.

July 7. } Rich. Tillestey of S. Job. } Coll.

July 7. } Job. Tapfell of Mert. }

This Job. Tapfell who was the Son of Rob. Tapfell, was born at Garfingdon near to, and in the County of, Oxon, about the beginning of Febr. 1571, admitted prob. Fellow of the said house of Merton, an. 1593, took the degrees in Arts, being then accounted a most excellent Disputant and Orator, and a person of prodigious memory. In 1599, Jul. 9, he according to the Statute of his Coll. did publicly dispute and speak speeches against the opinion of Aristotle (which the said Statute files varying) in the common Refectory of that house, on these three Theses, (1) Juvenis est idoneus auditor moralis philosophiæ. (2) Probanda est in fene verecundia. (3) Bonus à malo per dimidiam vitæ partem differt. Which Speeches being esteemed most admirable in their kind, and of a Ciceronian stile, were upon the desire of many of the Auditors, printed in an octavo vol. but in what year I know not; for few Copies being printed, I could never see one. He was afterwards a Lecturer in the City of York, and at length in London, where he died about 1630.

The first of these last two, was Prebendary of Westminster, and afterwards President of the said Coll. of C. C. He died 10 Jan. 1630, and was buried in the Church of S. Peter at Westminster: whereupon Dr. Lodowick Weems or Wemmys succeeded him in his Prebendship. As for the other, Dr. Featley alias Fairclough, will be large mention made of him in the second vol.

Dec. 16. Francis Gibbons of Ch. Ch.—He died in the Parish of S. Crofs (of which he was Parson) near to Shrewsbury, in 1639, or thereabouts.

Incorporations.

July 14. Arthur Lake M. A. of Cambridge.—He was Son, if I mistake not, to Sir Tho. Lake one of the Secretaries of State.

These following Masters of Cambr. were incorporated on the 15 July, being the next day after the Act had been concluded.

Thomas Goad Mast. of Arts of Kings Coll.—He was afterwards Chaplain to Archb. Abbot, Rector of Hadley in Suffolk, Doct. of Div. Prebendary of Canterbury, &c. a great and general Scholar, exact Critick and Historian, a Poet, Schoolman and Divine. This person who was Son of Dr. Roger Goad Provost of Kings Coll. before mention'd, died in the year 1636, or thereabouts. Another Tho. Goad was Doctor of the Laws, and the Kings Professor of that Faculty in Cambridge, who died about the beginning of 1666. Of one Tho. Goad see in the Pamphlet entit. A Century of scandalous, malignant Priests, &c. p. 27.

Benj. Laney M. of Arts. — He was the fourth Son of a wealthy Merchant of Ipswich named Job. Laney Esq; who sparing nothing that might advance his education, took him from School, and caused him to be admitted a Student in Christ's Coll. in Cambr. Where making great proficiency in his studies, was removed to Pembroke Hall, of which he became Fellow, and contemporary there with Ralph Brownrig. Afterwards he was made Master of that house, Doct. of Div. Vicechancellor of the University, Chaplain in ordinary to K. Ch. 1. Prebendary of Winchester, and about the same time of Westminster, in the place of Lambert Osbaldeston deprived an. 1638, and afterwards (upon the restauration of Osbaldeston by the Long Parliament) in the place of Griffith Williams, an. 1641. Soon after, he was outed of his Mastership of Pembroke Hall for his Loyalty, and about that time did attend in his Majesties Service in the Treaty at Oxbridge, being then esteemed a learned Divine. Afterwards when his Majesty Ch. 2. was in exile, he did in a most dutiful manner attend him, and for several years after suffer'd great calamity, as innumerable Royalists did. Upon his Majesty's return to his Kingdoms, he was restored to his Headship, and in recompence of his sufferings, he was first made Dean of Rocheſter, in the place of Dr. Tho. Turner, in which Dignity he was intitled 24 of July 1660, and soon after had the Bishoprick of Peterborough confer'd upon him, (with liberty to keep his Mastership in commendam) to which he received Consecration in the Abbey Church of S. Peter at Westminster, on Sunday Decemb. 2. an. 1660. Afterwards, upon the death of Dr. Rob. Sanderſon, he was translated to Lincoln, and on the death of Dr. M. Wienn, to Ely; where he fate to the time of his death, in the latter end of 1674. Five of his Sermons preached before the King, were printed in 1668--9. And after his death were published his Observations on a letter about liberty and necessity, &c. Lond. 1676, in tw. which Letter was written to the Duke of Newcastle by Tho. Hobbes of Malmſbury.

Rich. Holdsworth M. A. of S. Johns Coll.—This most eminent and loyal person was a Native of Newcastle upon Tyne in Northumberland, where, for some time, he was educated in Grammaticals; afterwards being sent to the said Coll. he made wonderful proficiency in Arts and Theology, became successively Divinity Professor of Gresham Coll. (being about that time D. of D.) Master of Emanuel Coll. several times Vicechancellor of Cambridge, Archdeacon of Huntingdon in the place of Dr. Owen Gwynn Master of S. John's Coll. before mention'd deceased, an. 1633, (which Dignity Gwynn had confer'd upon him in 1622 upon the resignation of Dr. Laud) and at length upon the grant of the Deanery of Durham to Dr. Christopher Potter in the latter end of 1645, had the grant of the Deanery of Worcester made unto him, having in the beginning of the grand Rebellion refused the Bishoprick of Bristol. But the principles of this reverend Doctor being wholly orthodox, he suffered therefore very much during the miserable condition which the Members of the Long Parliament had brought this Kingdom to, lost most, if not all, his Spiritualities, was several times imprison'd, yet afterwards being at liberty he attended his Majesty in his disconsolate and afflicted condition at Hampton Court and in the Isle of Wight. At length, after he had seen him crown'd with Martyrdom, he surrendered up his pious soul to him that gave it on the 22 Aug. 1649. Whereupon his body was buried in the Church of S. Peter le poore in London; of which Church he had been Minister till the violence of the Presbyterians forced him thence, an. 1642. After his death were published some of his Works, viz. (1) Valley of vision in 21 Sermons. — printed 1651. qu. (2) Praelectiones Theologicae habitae in Collegio Greshamensi apud Londinenses. Lond. 1661. fol. which last book was published by Dr. Pearson his Nephew, who hath set an account of his life before that book.

Henry Burton.

Abraham Gibson.

Of these two, who were incorporated Masters again, I have made mention among the Incorporations, in an. 1612 and 1615.

Will. Isaacson M. A. — He was afterwards D. of D. Rector of S. Andrews Church in the Wardrobe in London, and of Wodford in Essex; but whether he hath published any thing, I know not. He was younger Brother to Henry Isaacson the Chronologer, sometimes Amanuensis to Dr. Andrews Bishop of Winchester, Son of Rich. Isaacson Sheriff elect of London, who died 19 Jan. 1620, and he the Son of Will. Isaacson of Sheffield in Yorkshire, by Isabel his first Wife. This Hen. Isaacson, by the way I must let the Reader know, was born in the Parish of S. Catherine Coleman in London, in Sept. 1581, but what Academical Education he received, I cannot yet tell. Sure it is, that he arrived to great knowledge in Chronology, as his large book of that subject, doth sufficiently attest; and dying about the 7 of Decemb. 1654, was buried in the Church of S. Catherine Coleman before mention'd, having before been a considerable benefactor to the poor of that Parish.

Will. Beale M. A. of Pemb. Hall. — See among the Incorporations, an. 1645.

Dan. Horsmanden M. A. — He was afterwards D. of D. and Rector of Ulcumb in Kent, and accounted by his Contemporaries a learned man; but he being a zealous person for the Church of England, and a high Loyalist, was thrown out of his Living by the Committee of Religion, an. 1643, as you may see in the Pamph. entit. The first century of scandalous, malignant priests, &c. p. 36, 37. He lost other Spiritualities, and suffer'd much for the Kings Cause during the time of the Rebellion. T t t Hum.

Humphrey Hinchman M. A. — This loyal and religious person who was Son of Tho. Hinchman of London Skinner, and he the Son of another Thomas of Willingborough in Northamptonshire, (in which County his name and family had for several generations before lived) was afterwards D. of D. Chauntor of Salisbury, on the death of Hen. Cotton, in January 1622, and Preb. of South Grantham in the same Church, an. 1628. After the Restauration of K. Ch. 2. he was nominated Bishop of that place, upon the translation of Dr. Duppa to Winchester. Whereupon being consecrated in the Chappel of K. Hen. 7. within the Abbey Church of S. Peter in Westminster 28 Oct. 1660, late there three years, and then upon the translation of Dr. Sheldon to Canterbury, he was translated to London in Sept. 1663. About that time he was made Bishop Almoner, and died, as it seems, in the month of Octob. an. 1675. He was for his wisdom and prudence much valued by K. Ch. 2. whose happy escape from the battel at Worcester, this pious Prelate did admirably well manage, especially when his Majesty came in a disguise near Salisbury. He was born, as I have been informed, within the Parish of S. Giles Cripplegate, London, and educated in Clare Hall in Cambridge, of which he was Fellow.

Arthur Jackson M. A. — Afterwards he was a frequent and puritanical Preacher, and sided with the Presbyterians when the Rebellion began, an. 1642. About which time he was Minister of S. Michael Woodstreet in London, where I find him in 1649. He hath written Expositions on various parts of the Scripture, as (1) An help for understanding the holy Scriptures, the first part, being an exposition upon the five books of Moses, viz. Gen. Levit. Numb. Deut. &c. Camb. 1643. qu. (2) Annotations on the remaining part of the O. d Testament, viz. Jesh. Judges, Sam. Kings, Chron. Ezra, Nehem. Esther, the second part. (3) Annotations on the five poetical books of holy Scripture, viz. Job, Psalms, Prov. Ecclef. and Cant. Lond. 1658. Besides several other things, which for brevity sake I now omit. See more of him in Ch. Love among the Writers an. 1651.

The said Masters of Arts, viz. Th. Goad, Ben. Laney, R. Holdsworth, Hen. Burton, Ab. Gibson, W. Isaacson, W. Beale, Dan. Horsmanden, H. Hinchman, and A. Jackson, were incorporated, as I have before told you, 15 July, as they had stood before at Cambridge. Besides them were about 27 more incorporated, (of whom Sam Carter was one) but not one of them being then, or after, men of note, as I can yet find, are here omitted. On the same day also, one Rob. Newton M. A. of the Univ. of S. Andrew in Scotland, was incorporated, of whom I know no more.

Ch.* was actually created Master of Arts in the Congregation house by vertue of a dispensation obtained in that of Convocation, on the second day of the said month. — This person who was a Norfolk man born, and nobly descended, was a Member of the House of Commons for a time, and wrote a little thing (as I have been informed by those that knew him) entit. Reasons of the War &c. which I suppose is the same with a Pamphlet entit. An orderly and plain narration of the beginning and causes of this War; with a conscientious resolution against the Parliament side, printed 1644, in 3 sheets in qu. He died at Thornborough in Glostershire (where he had a plentiful Estate) about the year 1683, and in the ninetieth year of his age, leaving behind him a Son named John, Father of *Rich. Ch. 2. he was ejected, and living many years after in Oxon in a retired and studious condition, died 2 Jan. 1683, aged 84 or thereabouts; whereupon his body was buried at the lower end of the north Isle joyning to the Church of *S. June 18. James Wats M. A. and Fellow of Magd. Coll. in Cambridge --- He was afterwards Minister of Wodnesborough in Kent, and published The controversie debated about the reverend gesture of kneeling in the act of receivng the holy communion. Lond. 1621. qu. and perhaps other things. Quære.

July 1. Sam. Balcanqual M. A. of Edinburgh in Scotland.

On the 14. of the said month, being the next day after the conclusion of the Act, these Cantabrigians following were incorporated.

Will. Wats M. A. of Cains Coll. --- This admirable Critick and Divine, who was born near to Lyn in Norfolk, did afterwards travel into several Countries and became Master of divers Languages. At his return he was made Chaplain to King Ch. the first, Doct. of Divinity, Minister of St. Albans in Woodstreet within the City of London, afterwards Chaplain under the Earl of Arundel General of the Forces in the Scotch expedition, an. 1639 and Prebendary of Wells. But being sequestered from his Benefice in London, plundered, and his Wife and Children turn'd out of doors, and himself forced to fly when that City was in the height of its rebellion 1642. he retired to His Majesty, served under Prince Rupert when his Majesty raised Forces in his own defence, and was present with him in all the battels that he fought with the Parliamenters, and many times when that Prince made his desperate attempts on that Party. Upon the declining of the Kings cause, (a little before which time he was made Archdeacon and Residentiary of Wells, as I have been informed) he stuck to the said Prince when he served his Majesty on the Seas, upon the revolt of certain English Ships from the Parliament, and was with him when he was blocked up in the harbour at Kingsale in Ireland, where being overtaken with a distemper which no Physick could cure, surrendered up his Soul to the Almighty, and was buried there in the latter end of the year 1649, as I was many years since informed by his Widow, the Daughter of Mr. ... Vaughan Minister of Ashford in Surrey, Brother to Dr. Rich. Vaughan sometimes B. of London. This Dr. Wats, who is several times honorably mention'd by Vossius (*) by the title of doctissimus and clarissimus Watsius, and qui optime de Historia meruit, &c. had an especial hand in Sir Hen. Spelmans Glossary; corrected, added considerable notes to, and published, Matthew Paris his Historia Major, an. 1640. He writ also (1) The History of Gustavus Adolphus (2) Mortification Apostolical, &c. Lond. 1637. wherein justifying the use of canonical hours, gave great offence to the Puritan. (3) Treatise of the passions (4) Treatise of the surplice, not extant; besides several Sermons. He also translated into English. St. Augustines confessions. Lond. 1631. in a thick oct. illustrated by him with certain marginal notes; and from French into English The Catholick Moderator, which I have not yet seen. He also published the several numbers of News-books in the English tongue (more than 40) containing the occurrences done in the Wars between the King of Sweden and the German. All published before the Civil Wars of England began.

John Lynch M. A. --- He was afterwards Chaplain to the Bishop of Salisbury, Parson of Herietsham in Kent and the writer and publisher of The Christian Passover, Sermon at St. Pauls, on Wednesday in Easter Week, 1637. on 1. Cor. 5. 7. 8. Lond. 1637. qu. and perhaps of other things. Quære.

Walter Balcanqual Bach. of Div. of Pembroke hall. --- This learned Scot who was now Chaplain to His Majesty, became (a) Master of the Hospital called the Savoy in the Strand near London on the 16. Dec. 1617, which place he giving up soon after, it was conferr'd (b) on Marc. Ant. de Dominis Archb. of Spalato (who came into England upon account of Religion 16. Dec. 1616.) on the 23. of April 1618. in which year the said Balcanqual was sent to the Synod of Dort to represent the Church of Scotland, and with him went Th. Goad of Cambridge in the place of Dr. Joseph Hall Dean of Worcester, indisposed. In Feb. 1621. the said Marc. Ant. being weary of the Kings favour and benevolence extended to him, left England; whereupon Balcanqual was restored to the Savoy again, and on the 12. March 1624. he was installed Dean of Rochester, (being then D. of D.) in the place of Godfrey Goodman promoted to the See of Gloucester. In 1639 May 14. he was installed Dean of Durham in the place of Dr. Rich. Hunt, who had succeeded in that rich Dignity Sir Adam Newton Knight and Baronet a Lay-man. Soon after the grand rebellion breaking out, Balcanqual was forced from his Mastership of the Savoy, plundered, sequestered and forced to fly by the impetuous Presbyterians, an. 1642. so that retiring to His Majesty at Oxon, did afterwards shift from place to place for security. At length flying for the safety of his life to Chirk Castle in Denbighshire, died there in a very cold season, on the day of the Nativity of our Saviour, an. 1645. The next day his body was buried in the Parish Church of Chirk, and some years after had a noble monument set over his grave (the inscription on which was made by Dr. John Pearson) by a most worthy Royalist named Sir Tho. Middleton of Chirk Castle, who dying in 1660 aged 79 was also buried in the said Church. In Jan. following (1645) Dr. Christoph. Potter Provost of Qu. Coll. in Oxon obtained of his Majesty the grant of the said Deanery of Durham, but he dying in the beginning of March following, without installation, his Maj. conferr'd it upon Will. Fuller D. D. of Cambridge, who dying in 1659 Dr. John Barwick of Camb. was installed in that Dignity 1. Nov. 1660. Dr. Balcanqual hath written and published (1) The honour of Christian Churches, Sermon at Whitehall before the King, on Matth. 21. 13. Lond. 1633. qu. Together with the Popes new Creed*, &c. in two Dialogues. --- Lond. 1623. qu. He hath also published Certain Sermons, of which one is on 1. Kings 10. ver. 9. --- printed in oct. 1603. Bach. of Musick.

Richard Emot of Brasn. Coll. who had been a Student in the faculty of Musick for 20 years, supplicated for the Degree of Bachelaur in that faculty; but whether he was admitted, it appears not (perhaps upon neglect) in the register. --- This Person, who was Son, or near related to Will. Emot sometimes Fellow of Brasn. Coll. and afterwards Vicar of Einsham near Oxon (where he died and was buried in Feb. 1584) lived mostly in the City of Wells, and had, as I conceive, some place in the Cathedral there. He hath made several compositions in Musick for voices and instruments, but whether any of them were ever made publick I cannot tell. One Richard Browne was admitted Vicar Choral and Organist of Wells an. 1614. which place he keeping till 1619. one John Okever succeeded, and therefore, I presume the said Emot was never Organist of Wells in his own right.

Apr. 8. Job. Ryves of New Coll. --- He was afterwards Prebendary of Winchester, became Prebendary of Gillingham Major in the Church of Salisbury, on the death of John Jessop, 1. March 1625. and Archdeacon of Berks. on the resignation of Edw. Davenant, 20. Nov. 1634. He died 19 Aug. 1665 and was succeeded in his Archdeaconry by Dr. Peter Menz of St. Johns Coll. in Oxon.

Besides this Job. Ryves, were but two admitted Bach. of Law this year.

Apr. 24. Job. Langley of Magd. hall.

27. Lambert Osbaldeston of Ch. Ch. --- He was afterwards made Master of the College School at Westminster, in the place of Dr. John Wilson, and Prebendary of the tenth stall in the Church there, in the place of Dr. Christoph. Sutton deceased. By his industry he did improve his Scholars to as great eminency of learning, as any of his predecessors did: Inasmuch that he had, as 'tis (c) reported, above 80 Doctors in the three great faculties, in the two Universities, that did gratefully acknowledge their education under him, before the grand Rebellion broke out. But so it was, that he having been much favoured and patroniz'd by Dr. Williams Dean of Westm. and B. of Lin. did always stick close to, in his controversies had between, him and Dr. Laud Archb. of Canterbury, for which he suffered in some measure, especially after he had been found guilty of certain libellous passages in a letter written by him to the said Williams, wherein he styles Laud, the little Vermin, the Urchin and Hocum pocius. For which being called into question in the Star-chamber, and found guilty, he lost his Spiritualities, was fined 5000 l. and sentenced to have his ears tack'd to the Pillory in the presence of his Scholars. Which last sentence he avoided by a feignable withdrawing himself from Westminster, an. 1638. Afterwards he was restored by the Long Parliament, and suffered for a time to keep his Prebendship, when all the rest of the Prebendaries were turn'd out. But then seeing what mad courses the members of the said Parliament took, favoured His Majesties cause, and in some measure suffered for it, lived retiredly during the interval, and dying in the beginning of Octob. 1659 was buried on the 7 of the said month, in the large South isle of St. Peters Church in Westm. He was a learned Man, but whether he hath published any book or books, I know not, nor any thing else of him, only that he was the Son of Lambert Osbaldeston of the Parish of St. Olaves in Southwark near London, who died an. 1622.

June 9. Rob. Grebby of New Coll. --- This Person who was a Lincolnsire Man born, was one of the Chaplains of the said Coll. and afterwards, as it became a true Scholar, spent all his time in reading and writing, especially in Divinity and Philosophy, in which last he was a great Sceptick. He wrōt much in both, and had his labours perused by his learned acquaintance, yet none of them, tho thought fit, were ever published. I find it reported by a certain Author (*) that one Master Silo (whom Mr. Edo de Ceriton or Seryton, who lived in 1181, stileth (†) Serlo) a Master of the University of Paris and Professor of Logic, had a Scholar there, with whom he was very familiar: Which Scholar being excellent in the art of Sophistry, spared not all occasions, whether on festival, or other, days, to study and improve it. This Sophister being very sick, and almost brought to death's door, Mr. Silo earnestly desired him, that after his death, he would return to, and give him information concerning his state, and how it fared with him. The Sophister dying, he returned soon after with his hood stuff'd with notes of Sophistry, and the inside loyned with flaming fire, and told him, that that was the reward which he had bestowed upon him for the renown that he had before obtained for his Sophistry. But Mr. Silo esteeming it a small punishment, he stretched out his hand towards him, on which a drop or spark of fire falling, 'twas pierced through with terrible pain. This passage the Defunct or Ghost beholding, told him with a faint voice, that he need not be amazed at that small matter, for he was burning in that manner all over. Is it so? saith Silo; then in very truth I know what I have to do. Whereupon resolving to leave the World, and enter himself into Religion, called his Scholars about him, and took his leave of, and dismiss'd, them with these metres.

Linguo coarx (d) vanis, cras (e) corvū, vanaque (f) vanis,

Ad Logicam pergo, que mortis non timet (g) ergo.

Sed quorsum hec? you'll say, or to what end do you tell this old story? Then give me leave to make answer thus. This Mr. Grebby having been always dubious of the immortality of the Soul of Man, did some years before his death, make a contract with two of his acquaintance of the same mind, that he that died first of the three, should make known to either of the other two, his then state or being. Grebby therefore dying first, his resemblance shortly after appeared in the night time in the Chamber of Job. Good Bach.

of Div. and Fellow of Ball. Coll. (commonly called Tutor Good) who was one of the other two that had made the contract; and opening his curtains, said to him with a trembling and faint voice, Sors tua mortalis, non est mortale quod opto.

Afterwards the resemblance vanished, and was, tho much wish'd for again, seen no more. At the same time the other Person, who was sometimes Chaplain of New Coll. but then living at his Benefice near Oxon, had a dream that the said resemblance did appear to Good, and that the doubt seem'd to be resolv'd, which I have heard him several times very confidently report; yet he being a reputed Banterer, I could never believe him in that, or any thing else. 'Tis true that Good who was a Scholastical, retired and melancholy Man would sometimes tell these passages, but with great shyness, unless to his Philosophical acquaintance; most of whom seemed to be well satisfied with, and some to believe, them. This Mr. Grebby (commonly called Father Grebby) who had read and written so much, till he was almost blind, yet always cheerful and in a contented condition, died in 1654 (in the spring time I think) aged 60 or more, and was buried in the North Cloister of New Coll. near to the door leading into the tower, and the monumental inscription of Pet. Woodgate. At which time being present a considerable number of his Philosophical acquaintance, (for he usually delighted in such, tho never so young or mean,) was an eloquent oration delivered from a Pew set near to his grave, by Rob. Mathew LL. B. (afterwards Doctor) a great admirer of the learning and virtues, of him the said Grebby. From this digression, which many will laugh at, let's proceed to the rest of the admissions.

June 9. Brumo Ryves of Magd. Coll.

21. Will. Price of Ch. Ch. --- He was afterwards the first moral Philosophy Reader after the Lecture had been founded by *Dr. Tho. 'Tis at the end of a book of verses intit. Schola Moralis Philosophiae Oxon in funere White pulata; mostly made by the Students of Magd. hall, of which house Dr. White was originally a member. Another Will. Price I find who was Bach. of Div. and a publisher of certain Sermons and Divinity tracts, in the time of *K. In Octob. 1623 he was installed Canon or Preb. of the third stall in the Church of Westm. in the place of Dr. John Fox, who in the year 1606 had succeeded one Percival Wyburne a Nonconformist, after he had enjoyed the said stall 44 years, without seldom or never wearing a hood and surplice. Afterwards Dr. Wilson became Prebendary of Rippon, and Dean thereof, (in the place of Anth. Higgins Bach. of Divinity) Prebendary of Lincoln, Vicar of Burston, and Rector of Bedall in Yorkshire. He died on the 19 Feb. 1634, and was buried in the Church of *S. Incorporations.

Many Cambridge Men were incorporated on the 13. of July, being the day after the conclusion of the Act, of which these following were some.

Andrew Agar Bach. of Law.

Theophilus Wodenote M. A. --- He was born at Lanknhorne about 6 miles distant from Launceston in Cornwall, being the Son of Thom. Wodenote descended from an ancient Family in Cheshire; educated in Grammaticals in Eaton School near Windfore, in Academicals in Kings Coll. in Cambridge, of which he became Scholar 1608. Afterwards he was M. of A. Bach. of Divinity, Rector of Lanknhorne beforementioned, (after the decease of his Father, who also had been Fellow of the said Coll.) and a writer of several books; among which are these (1) Observations upon the history of Nabal and Abigail, 1. Sam. 25. --- printed 1623. oct. (2) Good thoughts in bad times. 'Tis a manual, and 'twas written at Broad Chalke in Wilts. while he abided in the house of a near relation of his, (Vicar of that place) being then obnoxious to arrests. (3) Hermes Theologus: or, a divine Mercury, new descants upon old records. Lond. 1649. in tw. (4) Eremicus Theologus: Or, a sequestered Divine his aphorismes: or, breviats of speculation, in two centuries. Lond. 1654. oct. &c. When he died, or where he was buried, I know not; nor any thing to the contrary but that he did live to be restored in 1660 to what he had lost for his loyalty during the time of the grand rebellion.

Robert Sibthorpe M. A. --- He was afterwards Bishop of Kilfenore in Ireland, and at length of Limerick, an. 1642. He died in Apr. 1649, and was buried in the Parish Church of St. Werburge in Dublin.

Granado Chester M. A. --- He was afterwards D. D. and dignified in the Church.

Edward Davenant M. A. --- In Feb. 1623 he was collated to the Prebendship of Ifracomb in the Church of Salisbury, and upon the death of Lionel Sharp, to the Archdeaconry of Berkshire. In 1634 Nov. 19. he was collated to the Treasurership of the Church of Salisbury, upon the death of Job. Lee, which he kept to the time of his death 12. of March 1679. Afterwards succeeded Dr. Tho. James as I shall tell you in the next volume.

Richard Hunt M. A. --- One of both his names was installed Dean of Durham, in the place of Sir Adam Newton Knight and Baronet, 29. May 1626. Whether the same with him, who was incorporated M. of A. is doubtful.

Gilb. Wimberley M. A. --- I have made mention of him before.

Which seven Persons were, I say, incorporated 13. July.

Dec. 2. Patrick Saunders Doct. of Physf. of the University of Franeker in Westfriesen --- He afterwards practised his faculty in the Parish of Great St. Hellens in London, where he died about 1637.

A proposal was made much about the Act time for one Thomas Bateson Bach. of Musick, to be incorporated, but whether he was really so or no, I cannot tell. In the beginning of the Reign of K. Jam. 1. I find him Organist of the Cath. Church of Christ in the City of Chester, and now (1619) Organist and Master of the Children of the Cathedral Church of the blessed Trinity called Christ Church in Dublin; where, as I suppose he took the Degree of Bach. of Musick. He was a Person esteemed very eminent in his profession, especially after he had published The first and second part of English Madrigales to 3. 4. 5. and 6. voices. The first part was printed at Lond. 1604, and the second there, 1618, both in qu. One Randal Jewit Bach. of Musick of Dublin, who had been bred up under Orlando Gibbons, did succeed him in the Organists place of Ch. Ch. who enjoying it but a little while, Ben. Rogers of Windfore succeeded him, 1639. Soon after the rebellion breaking out in Ireland, Jewit went into England, and was made Organist of Winchester, where he lived in good esteem for his skill in his profession, and soon after died.

Coll. before he was Master of Arts, and crossing the seas became a Priest in the Church of Rome, and at present (1661) he is said to be the chief favourite of the Pope, and in likelihood to be the next Cardinal, as a Writer (x) of no great credit tells us, who calls him Elia Farley.

Otten* who was a Student in Physick in this University, for the sake of the publick Library an. 1604 and after.

May 11. Nathan. Carpenter of Exet. } Coll.
June 2. Christop. Wrenn of St. Johns }

This last Person who was younger Brother to Dr. Matthew Wrenn Bishop of Ely, was afterwards made domestick Chaplain in the Kings Family, Dean of Windfore, (in which Dignity he was installed 4. April 1635.) and on the 22. of the said month he was constituted and sworn Scribe or Registrary of the most noble order of the Garter. About that time he was made Dean of Wolverhampton in Staffordshire, and in Novemb. 1638, he was presented to the rich Rectory of Haseley in Oxfordshire, but whether he took the Degree of Doctor of Divinity in this University, it appears not. He died at Blechingdon in the said County, in the house of Mr. William Holder Rector thereof (who had married his Daughter) 29. May 1658. and was buried in the Chancel of the Church there. Dr. Edward Hyde of Cambridge succeeded him in the Deanery of Windfore, but died before His Majesties restoration, as I have told you elsewhere.

(x) H. N. Savage in his Balifergus, &c. printed at Oxm. 1668. p. 117.

June 28. John Conant lately Fellow of Exeter Coll. now Rector of Limington in Somersetshire. --- He was afterwards one of the Assembly of Divines and the writer and publisher of The weal and woe of Gods People: Fast Sermon before the House of Commons 26. Jul. 1643. on Jer. 30. 7. Lond. 1643. qu. and of another on Lament. 3. 31. 32. printed the same year in qu. but this last I have not yet seen or any thing else of his extant.

July 18. Caesar Calenderius of Exet. Coll. --- He was by birth a German, by profession a puritanical Theologist, and being a leached Man, was beloved of the famous Dr. Usher, who took him with him into Ireland, and there, as 'tis said, prefer'd him. In my searches I find one Caesar Calenderius of the Parish of St. Peter Le poor in London: who dying there in 1665, left behind him a Son named John: But whether this Caes. Cal. be the same with the former, who was Bach. of Div. I cannot tell. I find also one Caesar Calenderius to be Author of Dictionary sive Thesauri lingue latine, & omnium à vocibus latinis incipientium Dictionary compendium, &c. Venet. 1649. oct. but this Person must not be taken for the same with C. Calenderius, because their names differ, and that the last was born in the territory of Verona.

19. Christoph. White of Ch. Ch.

March 9. Christoph. Potter of Qu. Coll.

Admitted 20.

Not one Doctor of Law was admitted this year.

Doct. of Phys.

Incorporations.

May 28. Thomas Rhead (Rheadus) M. of A. of Aberdene in Scotland. --- He had before been a Student in this University, and this year published Paraphrasis Psalmi 104. Lond. 1620. in oct. and about the same time, as it should seem, Epist. ad Episcopum Rossensem in oct.

Alex. Rhead M. of A. of the same University was incorporated the same day. --- One Alex. Rhead was Proctor of the University of Cambr. four years before this time, whom I take to be the same Person who was afterwards Minister of Teatley in Hampshire, where he died about 1628. I shall make mention of another of both his names among the Creations following.

June 6. Festus Hommius D. D. of the University of Leyden was incorporated in that Degree, in a meeting called Simile primo, or Assimilatio parva, held at six of the Clock in the morning, Hommius then having on his legs a green pair of stockings, and a habit not altogether proper for his profession. He was at this time a Divine of great note in the Low Countries, and had lately been Scribe at the Synod of Dort. The occasion of his coming into England, with the Catalogue of the books he wrote, John Meursius will (*) tell you. He was born at Hittsem in the territory of Eecwerden in Westfriesen, and dying 5. July 1642 aged 66 years and six months, was buried at Leyden in the Church of St. Peter, (as I conceive) having been Pastor of that Church forty, and Rector of the College there twenty years.

June 26. Peter Chamberlayne Doct. of Phys. of the University of Padua. --- He hath written (1) The poor mans Advocate: or Englands Samaritan, &c. Lond. 1649. qu. (2) Vindication of publick artificial Bathes, and other things; and from his Papers was published The accomplished Midwife, &c. printed with cuts in 1673. in oct. Afterwards it was enlarged by others and several times published. One Tho. Chamberlayne who was called and written Doct. of Phys. did practise his faculty in the Parish of St. Gregory in London, and died, as I think, in Mark-lane 1666, but whether he was ever of the Univ. of Oxon. I cannot yet tell.

Jul. 7. { Henry Briggs M. A.
John Bainbridge Doct. of Phys. } of Cambr.

Of the first I have spoken largely among the Writers, under the year 1630, and of the other I shall (God willing) make mention in the 2. Vol. of this work.

July 11. Will. Jackson M. A. of the same University. --- Perhaps he may be the same Will. Jackson, who was now Term-Lecturer at Whittington Coll. in London, and who before had published The Celestial husbandry: or, the tillage of the Soul, Serim. at Pauls Cross 25. Feb. 1615, on Osea 10. 12. Lond. 1616. qu.

Thomas Whitfield M. of A. of the said University, was incorporated on the same day. --- I take this Person to be the same Tho. Whitfield who was afterwards Minister of Great Yarmouth in Norfolk, Author of (1) A refutation of the loose opinions and licentious tenets, wherewith those Lay-preachers which wander up and down the kingdom, labour to seduce the simple People. Or, an Examination of the erroneous Doctrines of Thomas More late a Weaver in Wells near Wisbich in his book [The Universality of Gods free grace to mankind] Lond. 1646. qu. (2) Full answer to the Arminian tenets concerning election, redemption, conversion and perseverance, printed there the same year. (3) Discourse of the Liberty of conscience, &c. Lond. 1649. qu. (4) The righteous mans rejoicing. Or, a treatise tending to shew the nature of true joy, whence it ariseth, and to whom it belongs, &c. Lond. 1649. in tw. (5) Extent of divine providence, &c. print. 1651. qu. (6) Doctrines of Arminianisme and Pelagianisme stated. print. 1652. qu. (7) Perswasive to peace amongst the sons of peace, &c. pr. 1655. in tw. and other things. This Thomas Whitfield being a Person that ran with the times of the interval, removed to the rectory of Bugbrook in Northamptonshire, where a neighbour of his named Tho. Pierce animadverted upon one or more of his books, as I shall hereafter tell you. He had a Son named John Whitfield M. A. and sometimes Fellow of Jesus Coll. in Cambridge, afterwards Rector of Bugbrook beforementioned, and a publisher of one or more Sermons. I find one Thomas Whitfield admitted Bach. of Arts, as a member of Magd. hall 4. May 1631, and another of Hart hall 9. February the same year, but what relation they had to the former Thomas, I know not.

July 11. John Johnson D. D. of Cambr. --- One of both his names and D. of D. also, was admitted Archdeacon of Worcester 24. Nov. 1598. in the place of Godf. Goldsborough promoted to the See of Gloucester. Which Archdeaconry the said Johnson resigned an. 1610. Qu. whether the same.

July 12. Rich. Evans D. D. of the University of St. Andrew of Scotland.

Creations.

May 18. Thom. Grent of New Coll. was actually created Doctor of Phys. --- He was afterwards famous for the making of artificial Bathes, and discovering thole that were natural, but wanted money to make them fit for use.

29. Alexander Rhead or Read (Reidus) a Scotch Man was actually created Doctor of Phys. in the house of Convocation by virtue of the Letters from K. James 1. for that purpose --- This learned Scot who was afterwards one of the Coll. of Physicians in London, and a Brother of the Company of Barber-chirurgions, hath written and published (1) A description of the body of Man by artificial figures, representing the members, &c. Lond. 1616. oct. (2) Chirurgical Lectures of tumours and ulcers. Lond. 1635. qu. (3) Treatise of the first part of Chirurgery, which teacheth re-union of the parts of the body disjointed. Lond. 1638. qu. (4) Treatise of the muscles of the body of Man. Lond. 1637. qu. All which, except the first, were reprinted in 1650. qu. the Author being then dead, after he had practised his faculty about 50 years. (5) The manual of Anatomy; or, the dissection of the body of Man, &c. in 6. books -- Lond. 1638. in tw. I think it is the same which some call his Epitome of Crookes Anatomy. (6) Approved Medicines and Remedies for the diseases of the body of Man. when printed I know not. In his last Will he bequeathed 200 l. to the Marischal College in Aberdene, in which house, I presume, he had been educated, and all his books to the Library there.

Nov. 4. A young Man named Will. Moyle, the eldest Son of an Esquire was created M. of A. in Convocation --- He was then sent to the chief members of this University by Francis Viscount Verulam with his learned book (Instauratio magna, I think) to be presented from the Author to the publick Library.

In the month of September this year came into England the famous Theologist named Daniel Tilenus, and published at London his Paraneis ad Scotos Genevensis discipline Zelotas. He settled in Oxon for a time for the sake of the publick Library, but whether he was incorporated in any Degree, or created (which some have avouched) it appears not, in the publick register.

Jun. 16. George Snell D. of D. of the University of S. Andrew in Scotland.

These Cambridge men following were incorporated on the 10 of July, being the next day after the conclusion of the AS.

Michael Honywood M. of A. --- He was afterwards D. of D. and in 1660 was made Dean of Lincoln in the place of Anthony Topham who died in the rebellious times. This Dr. Honywood died about 12 Sept. 1681, and was, as I suppose, buried in the Cathedral there.

Whereupon Dr. Dan. Brevint succeeded him in his Dignity.

Will. Brough M. A. of Christ's Coll. --- I shall speak at large of him among the Incorporations of Doctors of Div. an. 1645.

Christopher Dow M. of A. --- He was afterwards Bach. and Doct. of Div. much favoured by Dr. Laud Archb. of Canterbury, (whose Creature and Champion he was) and by him promoted to several ecclesiastical Benefices. He hath written (1) A discourse of the Sabbath and Lords day, wherein &c. Lond. 1636. qu. second Edit.
 (2) Innovations unjustly charged upon the present Church and State, or an answer to the most material passages made by Mr. Hen. Burton in his book entit. An Apology of an Appeal, &c. Lond. 1637. qu. with other things very offensive to the Puritan, who held the Author to be a rank Arminian.

George Walker Bach. of Div. --- This learned person was born at Hawkehead in Furnifalls in Lancashire, educated in S. Job. Coll.
 in the said Univ. of Cambr. where he was esteemed an excellent Logician, Orientalian and Divine. He was about this time Chaplain to Dr. Felton Bishop of Ely, and Minister of S. John the Evan- gelist in Watlingstreet in London, where he was ready upon all occasions to encounter with any learned Cath. Priest. On the last of May 1623, was a set and solemn disputation between him and one that went by the name of Smith; at which being present a great Auditory, it was published for the satisfaction of both parties, with this Title, The sum of a disputation between Mr. Walker Pastor of S. Job. the Evang. &c. and a popish priest calling himself Mr. Smith but indeed Norris. printed 1623. qu. Which Norris was a D. of D. and a publisher of several little popish Pamphlets about the same time. In the year following he the said Walker had to do with Fath. Job. Fisher the Jesuit, as being Dr. Dan. Featley's second, and thereupon published Fishers folly unfolded; or, the vaunting Jesuits challenge answered. Lond. 1624. Afterwards when our Author Walker, who was a severe Puritan, beheld the profanation of the Lords day, he preached against it, and other Practices and Opinions, which procured him trouble, and two years imprisonment, as 'tis said. After the Long Parliament began, he preached against the King and his Followers, and published several things, which before he was not permitted to do, among which were (1) Socini- anism in the fundamental point of justification discovered and confu-ted, &c. Lond. 1641. oct. (2) The doctrine of the holy weekly sab- bath, &c. Lond. 1641. &c. In the year 1643 he was chosen one of the Assembly of Divines, preached sometimes before the Members of Parliament, and had his Sermons made publick, one of which is ent. Fast-sermon before the House of Commons 9 Jan. 1644, on Psalm 58. 9. Lond. 1645. qu. He hath also other things extant, as, God made visible in all his works, &c. pr. 1641. qu. &c. which for brevity sake I now pass by, and only tell you, that he died in 1651, aged about 70, and was buried in his Church of
S. John before mention'd.

Edw. Martin Bach. of Div. --- He was afterwards Doctor of that Faculty, domestick Chaplain to Archb. Laud, and Rector of Houghton Conquest in Bedfordshire, and of Dunnington in Cambridg- shire; but being a zealous man for the Church of England, was turned out of those livings by the Committee of Religion, as you may largely see in that infamous libel ent. The first Century of scan- dalous malignant Priests, &c. p. 41. He lost other spiritualities, and suffer'd much for the Kings Cause, notwithstanding he was a godly and learned man. All that seems bad of him, you may see in Canterburies Doom, published by Will. Pryme, an inveterate enemy to Prelacy, good order in the Church, Arminianism, or any thing that look'd that way.

Fouk Roberts Bach. of Div. --- In Feb. 1616 he became Preben-dary of Norwich on the death of Hugh Cusleton, which he held to the time of his death in the interval or broken times. He hath written (1) The renew of the Gospel is tithes due to Ministry of the word, by that word in Tim. 1. 5. 18. Cambr. 1613. qu. (2) Gods holy house and service described according to the primitive form thereof.
Lond. 1639. qu. and other things as 'tis probable. In 1660, Aug. 21. one George Kent M. of A. was installed Prebendary of Norwich in the place of the said Fouk Roberts, who had been dead some years before.

Samuel Broke or Brooke D. D. and about this time Master of Tri- nity Coll. --- He was afterwards Archd. of Coventry, and wrot an Arminian Treatise of predestination, which he communicated to Dr.
Laud Bishop of London, an. 1630, (so saith Pryme in Canterburies () Doom*) and about the 16 of Sept. in the year following, he departed this mortal life. He had an ingenious Brother named Christop. Brooke, a Yorkshire man born, who after he had left the University (whether this, or Cambridge, I cannot yet tell, notwithstanding several of his Sirname and time have studied in University

Coll.) he settled in Lincolns Inn, purposely to advance himself in the municipal Law, where he became known to, and admired by, Job. Selden, Ben. Johnson, Mich. Drayton, Will. Browne, George Withers and Job. Davies of Hereford, especially after he had published An Elegy consecrated to the never dying memory of Henry Prince of Wales. Lond. 1613. qu. In the year following, he being then a Bench, was elected Summer Reader of his House, became a Benefactor to the Chappel there, and wrote another book ent. Eglogues; dedicated to his much loved friend Mr. Will. Browne of the Inner Temple. Lond. 1614. oct. He hath also Verses put before the first part of Britannia's pastorals, pen'd by the said Browne, also before a poetical piece called The legend of Great Cromwell, written by Mich. Drayton, and had a considerable hand in dishing out The Odombian Banquet, an. 1611. Later in time than the former (give me leave to divert my self) I find another Christop. Brooke who married a daughter of the famous Mathematician Will. Oughtred, having been by him before initiated in Mathematicks. Afterwards he became a maker and framer of mathematical Instruments, and the publisher of (1) A new Quadrant of more natural, easie, and manifold performance, than any one heretofore extant. pr. in 1649, in 2 sheets in oct. having been the invention of Oughtred. (2) The solution of all spherical Triangles, both right and oblique, by the planisphere, &c. Oxon. 1651. oct. This Chr. Brooke being known to the ingenious and learned Dr. Job. Wilkins Warden of Wadham Coll. had a Servants place of that House worth 30 l. per an. confer'd upon him by that Doctor purposely to encourage his Ingenuity. What else he hath published I know not, nor any thing of him besides, only that dying in his house near Wadham Coll. was buried in the Cloyster belonging thereunto, situated and being between the Chappel and the Library, an. 1665.

Edward Kellie D. D. of Kings Coll. --- See before, among the Incorporations an. 1616. where you'll find the Titles of some of the books that he hath published.

All which Cantabrigians, were, I say, incorporated on the 10 of July.

Aug. 30. Andrew Rivet D. D. of the University of Leyden in Holland, was solemnly incorporated in that degree, and taken into the bottom of the University, in a Convocation then held: at which time he gave several Books to the University Library. --- This Rivet who received his first breath at St. Maixent in the Province of Poitou, was a learned and godly Divine, hath very well expounded Genesis, the Prophetical Psalms and Hosea; and hath written learnedly against the Papists in his Catholicus Orthodoxus, and against Grotius. He is styled by a learned (*) Author Vir clarissimus, & nunquam satis laudatus, Gallice Belgicæque ecclesiæ micantissimum lumen, &c. The Titles of most of his books are in Oxford or Bodley's Catalogue. See more of him in Athene Batave, written by John Meursius, lib. 2. p. 320.

Creations.

Aug. 1. Job. Keeling a Counsellour of the Inner Temple, and a person well read in the municipal Laws of England, was then actually created M. of A. in the house of Convocation. Whether he was the same with John Keeling a Staffordshire man, who was matriculated as a Member of Brasn. Coll. an. 1593 aged 17, I know not. One of both his names was after the Restoration of King Ch. 2. made Knight, one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, and at length L. Chief Justice. He died in the beginning of the year 1671.

Nov. 24. Richard Wats of Oriel, filed in the common Register Vir omni humana literatura & bonarum artium cognitione feliciter instructus, was actually created M. of Arts. --- He was entered in the publick Library as a Student in the municipal Laws.

Feb. James Baylie a Scot, now of Exeter Coll. who 14 years before this time was made M. of A. of the University of Glasgow, and 8 years since, Bachelaur of the Laws of the University of Angou in France (where he performed not only his exercise for that degree, but also for the degree of Doctor of that Faculty) was actually created Doctor of the Laws of this University, Dr. Touch the Kings Professor of that Faculty then executing his office in the solemnity. --- He was now Tutor to James Earl of Arran a Noble man of Exet. Coll. afterwards Duke of Hamilton. I find one James Bailie M. of A. and a Scot born, to have published Spiritual Marriage; or, the Union between Christ and his Church, Sermon at Westminster on Hosea 2. 19. Lond. 1627. qu. But his name being written different from the former, I cannot say he had any relation to him.

Baldwinus Hamius a learned German, was admitted a Student into the publick Library. --- See among the Incorporations an. 1629. So also was Tho. Gardiner of the Inner Temple Esq; afterwards Recorder of London, a Knight, his Majesties Solicitor General, and eminent for his knowledge in the Municipal Law. He died in Octob. 1652, and was buried, as I conceive, in the Church at Cudeston near Oxford, in which Town he had an Estate. Qu.

Doct. of Musick.

May 17. Will. Heather or Heyther, who accumulated the degrees in Musick. --- This person who was born at Harmsworth in Middlesex, near Colebrook in Bucks. was now one of the Gentlemen belonging to his Majesties Chappel, and so great an encourager of his Faculty, that soon after he founded the Musick Lectures (Theory and practick) in this University, as I have (†) elsewhere told you. He died in the latter end of July 1627, and was buried on the first of Aug. in the broad or south Isle joyning to the Choir of S. Peter's Church in Westminster. See more of him in Nath. Giles following.

Jul. 5. Nathaniel Giles Bach. of Musick, was then licensed to proceed in that Faculty. --- In 1607 he supplicated the venerable Congregation of Regents to be admitted Doctor; which desire of his was granted conditionally that he compose a choral Hymn of 8 parts to be publicly sung in the Aet wherein he should proceed; but for what reason he did not perform that obligation, I cannot justly say. Sure I am, that in the Aet this year, wherein he proceeded, were certain Questions appointed to be discussed between him and Dr. Heather before mention'd, which being pro forma only, and not customarily to be done, were omitted. The Questions were (1) Whether discords may be allowed in musick? Affirm. (2) Whether any artificial Instrument can so fully and truly express musick as the natural Voice? Negat. (3) Whether the practick be the more useful part of musick or the theory? Affirm. This Dr. Giles who was noted as well for his religious life and conversation (a rarity in Musicians) as for the excellency of his Faculty, was born in, or near to, the City of Worcester, was one of the Organists of S. George's Chap. at Windfore and Master of the Boys there; afterwards one of the Organists of the Chappel Royal to K. Ch. 1. and Master of the Boys thereof, was famous for his compositions of Divine Hymns and Anthems; the words of some of which, are remitted into a Book entit. Divine Services and Anthems sung in the Cathedrals and collegiate Choirs in the Church of England, published by Jam. Clifford an. 1663, oct. He the said Dr. Giles died about the year 1635, and was buried in one of the Isles joyning to S. George's Chap. before mention'd.

On the 17 of May Orlando Gibbons one of the Organists of his Majesties Chappel, did supplicate the venerable Congregation that he might accumulate the degrees in Musick; but whether he was admitted to the one, or licensed to proceed in the other, it appears not. However the Song of 6 parts or more, which was performed in the Aet for Will. Heather, was composed by him, as one or more eminent Musicians then living have several times told me. This Orlando who was accounted one of the rarest Musicians and Organists of his time, hath extant A set of Madrigals of five parts for voices and viols, had also a hand in Parthenia, mention'd before, under the year 1592, and composed Several divine Services and Anthems; the words of which are in Jam. Clifford's Book before mention'd, besides admirable Compositions that are printed in several Books of Musick. At length being commanded to Canterbury to attend the solemnity of the Nuptials between K. Ch. 1. and Henrietta Maria a Daughter of the King of France (in order to which he had made vocal and instrumental Compositions) died there of the Small-pox to the great reluctance of the Court, on the day of Pentecost, an. 1625. Afterwards was a monument erected over his grave in the body of the Cathedral there, with an Inscription thereon, beginning thus: Orlando Gibbonio Cantabrigia inter musas & musica nato, sacre R. Capelle Organiste, sphaerarumque harmoniae digitorum pulsu æmulo, cantionum complurium quæque dum non canunt minus quam canuntur conditori, &c. From which monument, set up at the charge of Elizabeth his Widow, who gave instructions what to be inscrib'd thereon, but not the time of his age, we are given to understand that the said Orlando Gibbons was born at Cambridge, yet the Reader is to know that one Orlando Gibbons was baptized in S. Martins Parish in the City of Oxford 25 Decemb. 1583, which some have been pleased to take to be the same that was afterwards the famous Organist; who, as those that knew him have told me, was not quite 45 years of age when he died.

And afterwards resigning that dignity, Job. Neile Bach. of Div. was installed therein 27 Oct. 1638, I mean the same Neile who was made Dean of Rippon in the place of Dr. Job. Walkins promoted to the See of Chester. One Tim. Thurscros D. D. died in the Parish of S. Jul. 1. Job. Leigh of Brasen. Coll. was actually created M. of A. in the house of Congregation. — 'Twas four years since he took the degree of Bach. of Arts, in which time he had (†) studied in several transmarine Universities, and had obtained such admirable knowledge in all humane learning, and especially in Philosophy, and other Arts, that he was esteemed by the venerable Regents most worthy of the degree of M. of Arts.

Sam. Bochartus of Roan in Normandy became a Sojourner this year in the University, and was entred a Student in the publick Library in the beginning of Lent Term: with the help of which and other Libraries, he laid the foundation of most rare Books which he afterwards published. His Geographia sacra hath made him famous in the learned World, as also his Hieroglyphicon; for both which, eminent Authors do in an high manner celebrate his name. He was Pastor of the Protestant Church at Caen in Normandy, where he died in 1667. being ever esteemed a great lover of the Church of England.

He that was Bach. of Arts was an Oxfordshire Man born, and had been originally of St. Edm. hall.

Incorporations.

May 7. Samuel Baker M. of A. of Christs Coll. in Cambridge. --- He afterwards became a puritannical Preacher in London, and much followed; but being taken off from those courses, was made household Chaplain to Dr. Juxon Bishop of London and a creature of Dr. Land Archb. of Canterbury. About which time being Rector of St. Mary on the hill and of St. Christophers in Lond. where his preaching was much applauded by some, became Prebendary of St. Pauls Cathedral. On the 20. of Sept. 1638, he being then D. of D. was install'd Canon of Windsore, on the death of Dr. John King sometimes Fellow of Merton Coll. but he being soon after made Prebendary of Canterbury, he resigned his Canonry, and Tho. Browne Bach. of Div. of Ch. Ch. in Oxon was installed therein 28. May 1639. This Dr. Baker, who was a great Licencer of Books, but publisher I think of none, gained a great deal of Envy from the Puritan for his partiality in that office; for which and his great respect to the tenets of Arminius, he was in the beginning of the rebellion persecuted and imprisoned, and at length deprived of his Spiritualities.

Thomas Haste M. of A. of the said University was incorporated the same day. --- He was afterwards D. of D. Chaplain to K. Ch. I. and Minister of Lednam. (in Lincolnshire) He hath published The descent of authority: or, the Magistrates patent from Heaven, Sermon at Lincoln Affizes, 13 March 1636. on Gen. 9. 6. Lond. 1637. qu. and other things, as I conceive. Quere.

On the 14 of July, after the conclusion of the Act, these Cambridge Men following were incorporated, Job. Harding M. of A. --- One of both his names who had been a Dominican or Black fryer, did speak A recantation Sermon in the Gatchouse at Westminster 30. July 1620, on Plal. 119. 71. Lond. 1620. qu. containing Motives why he left the Church of Rome. Whether he be the same with the former who was M. of A. I know not.

Thomas Scot M. A. --- One of both his names also, who was Bach. of Div. of the said University, and a Preacher in the City of Norwich, hath several things extant, as the Oxford Catalogue tells you; but he is not to be taken for the same who was M. of A. because, if I mistake not, the Bach. of Div. died 1624. aged 45.

Thom. Edwards M. of A. --- He was afterwards a Minister of Gods word, a zealous Puritan and in the beginning of that rebellion raised by the Presbyterians, an. 1642, did, with his Wife, Children, Estate, and all that was dear to him, embark in the same Ship with them, shew'd himself most zealous for the cause by preaching, praying, and stirring up the People to stand for them: Also by going out in Person, and lending money to carry on the War. He hath written (1) Reasons against the Independent Government of particular congregations, &c. Lond. 1641. qu. Answer'd the same year by a Woman called Catherine Chidley. (2) Antipologia: or an answer to an Apologetical narration of Mr. Goodwin, Nye, Symphon, Burroughs and Bridge, members of the Ass. of Divines. Lond. 1644. qu. &c. (3) Gangrena: or, a catalogue and discovery of many of the errors, heresies, blasphemies, &c. acted in England in these four last years. As also a particular narration of divers stories, remarkable passages, letters, &c. Lond. 1645. qu. there again the second time 1646. qu. The second and third parts of the same book came out in 1646. qu. (4) Treatise against Toleration. Lond. 1647. qu. the first part. The other parts, if any, I have not yet seen. He hath also written, if I mistake not, Of the particular visibility of the Church. Also A Treatise of the Civil power in Ecclesiasticals, and of suspension from the Lords Supper, which three were published in qu. an. 1642. 44.

Will. Fairfax who had been incorporated M. A. in 1622 was incorporated again this year in the same Degree. --- He was afterwards D. of D. Rector of the Parish Church of St. Peter in Cornhill within the City of London, and Vicar of East-Ham in Middlesex. Of both which, he was deprived by a Committee of Parliament, (after he had been plundered, imprison'd in Ely-house and the Ships, and his Wife and Children turn'd out of doors) an. 1642 - 3. You may read more of him in that most scandalous Libell intit. The first century of scandalous and malignant Priests, &c. printed 1643. qu. p. 7.

Sam. Hildersham Bach. } of Div.

Anthony Shert Doct.

All which with many others were incorporated on the 14. July as 'tis before said.

Aug. 4. Ferdinando Texeda Bach. of Div. of the University of Salamanca in Spain. --- He had been a Monk in the said Country, but left it and his Religion, came over to the Church of England, and at length receding to Oxon was not only incorporated, but found relief among the Scholars thereof. He hath written, Texeda retextus: or, the Spanish Monk, his bill of divorce against the Church of Rome. Lond. 1623. qu. It contains the chief motives of his conversion, and 'tis probable it was an Usher to other of his labours.

Oct. 14. Nich. Vignier M. of A. of Saumur in France. --- He afterwards took the Degree of Bach. of Div. in the year following.

Creations.

July 18. George Berkley Baron of Berkley, Moulbray, Segrave and Bruce, Knight also of the Bath, was actually created Master of Arts. --- This most noble Person (who had been sometimes of Ch. Ch.) died in 1658, leaving then behind him a Son named George, created Earl of Berkley by K. Ch. 2.

Anthony Stafford sometimes a member of Oriel Coll. was created M. of A. the same day. --- I shall mention this Person among the writers under the year 1641. or elsewhere.

For the taking of the Suffrages, given partly by Country Parsons, Curats, Schoolmasters, &c. who were Masters of Arts of the University, and had been invited thereunto for a time, the scrutiny continued till after 9 of the clock at night. Incorporations.

June 5. Matthias Paser M. of A. of the University of Heidelberg.

On the 13. of Jul. being the next day after the conclusion of the Act, were these Cambridge Men following incorporated.

Thomas Campion M. of A. --- One of both his names was an admired Poet and Musician in the Reign of K. Jam. 1. and hath had the honor to be named by the Learned Camden with Spencer, Sydney, Drayton and other the chief of our English Poets. In Oxford Catalogue you may see the titles of some of his books, and among them Songs on the untimely death of Pr. Henry, prick'd out to the Lute or Viol by Job. Coprario. Which Coprario by the way, I would have the reader to understand, was not a foreigner, but an English Man, born, who having spent much of his time in Italy, changed his name from Cooper to Coprario (by which last he was so called in Italy) being in his time much admired for his composition of Fancies of various parts. As for the said Thomas Campion the Poet I take him to be too soon for Tho. Campion M. of A. of Cambridge.

Job. Farmery LL. D. --- He was about this time Chancellour of the Dioc. of Lincoln, was a Burgess for the City of Lincoln to sit in that Parliament which began at Westminster 13. Apr. 1640. and died in 1647. One Job. Farmery Bach. of Div. succeeded Dr. Tho. Sparke in the Archdeaconry of Stow in Apr. 1582, whom I take to be Uncle to the former, who was Son of Will. Farmery of Heapham in Lincolnshire.

All which, were, I say, incorporated 13. July, being of the number of 35. at least who were then taken into the bosome of this University.

wards sided with the Parliament in the time of the grand Rebellion, and was their Admiral at Sea for a time.

Sir Gaspard d'Algre Knight, Count of Beauvoir, Baron of Vivroux, La Croste, Baffie, St. Desje, S. Sir Lewis Lewknore Knight, Master of the Ceremonies to King Jam. 1. and M. of A. of Cambridge. — Whether he be the same Lew. Lewknore who translated from Spanish into English The resolved Gentleman, printed 1594 in qu. and other things, I know not. See more in these Fasti, among the Creations, an 1636.

Monfieur Jam. des Chempes, Orator of the most Christian King, was also incorporated M. of A. as he had formerly stood in the Univ. or Academy of Divison (Davidonensis.)

Creations.

Aug. 25. The honourable James de la Mariniere Baron of Montmartin, Gruchy, Borriver, le Vignies and Gubebert, Ordinary Prefect of the Horse belonging to the most Christian King, was actually created Matter of Arts.

Will. Brome of Exeter Coll. had leave then given to him to be actually created M. of A. but 'twas not put in execution till 16 Nov. following. — He is filed in the publick Register, Vir omni humana literatura & bonarum artium cognitione instructus. This person is the celebrated Poet whom I have mentioned among the Writers, under the year 1624. num. 516.

Peregrin Langford had then also the degree of M. of A. given to him, when he would be pleased to come to the University for it. — On the 11 of Dec. following, he supplicated the ven. Congregation (being then absent) that his Creation might be deferred till Trinity Term following; but whether he was then created, it appears not.

Jan. 18. Gilb. Primerose mention'd before among the Incorporations, was actually created D. of D. in the house of Convocation (just after he had been incorporated) by virtue of the (d) Letters of the Chancellor of this University, wherein is contained a large testimony of his singular probity and great learning, and that he had spent twenty years in the study of Theology, backed by recommendations from the King in consideration of his learning and worth. He was a Scotch man born, had been one of the French Preachers of the Protestant Church at Bourdeaux in France, but now of the French Church in London, and Chaplain in Ordinary to the King. In 1628, Jul. 21, he was installed Canon of Windsor in the place of Dr. John Buckridge, promoted to the See of Ely, (for he had kept that dignity several years in commendam with Rochester) which place he keeping till his death, Mr. Hugh Cressy sometimes of Merton Coll. was designed by his Majesty to succeed him, but was never installed because he afterwards changed his Religion. This Dr. Primerose hath written many things, as you may see in the Oxford Catalogue, among which are (1) Jacob's vow, opposed to the vows of Monks and Friars, Bergerac 1610. oct. in 4 Tomes or Vol. All which were written in good French, and the first Vol. containing two books, was translated into English by John Bulteel a Minister. — Lond. 1617. qu. (2) La Trompette de Sion, &c. Bergerac 1610. oct. in 18 Sermons; translated into Latin under this Title, Tuba Sion, seu Exhortatio ad penitentiam & jejuniū. Dantisc. 1631. oct. (3) The righteous mans evils and the Lords deliverances. Lond. 1625. qu. in 9 Sermons. (4) The Christian mans tears and Christs comforts: Fast-fermon 7 Oct. 1624 on Matth. 5. 4. and on Luke 6. 21. Lond. 1625, in two parts, in tw. (5) The table of the Lord; whereof 1. The whole service is the living bread, &c. Lond. 1626. oct. in 3 Sermon. &c. He paid his last debt to nature in his house in Chisell street near the Artillery Yard in the Suburbs of London, in Oct. or Nov. 1642, leaving then behind him several sons, viz. (1) James Primerose Doctor of Physick (2) David Primerose Minister of the French Church at Roan in Normandy. (3) Stephen, who was born 1606 Jan. 12 new stile: who after he came to age always rejected his Fathers counsel, and would never follow any calling. Afterwards he became a presumptuous and vain glorious person, tho very ignorant; did precipitate himself into divers and damnable Hereties, would abuse his Father at his own Table in the presence of his elder Brother and others, and would several times tell him that Jesus Christ was come to put division between Father and Child, &c. upon which account his Father left him nothing in his Will but six pence. (4) John Primerose born 24 Nov. 1608, who had spent so much money at Paris, London, and in the Low Countries, that he could give him no more in his Will.

Job. Durie a Scotch man became a sojourner in the University, in the month of July this year, for the sake of the publick Library, but how long he continued there, I cannot tell. He afterwards travelled into various Countries beyond the Seas, especially thro most parts of Germany, where he visited the chief recesses of the Muses, and by long continuance spoke the German Tongue so well and fluent, that many English men after his return took him to be a German Native. He was by profession a Divine, was in Orders and a Preacher; but whether he took them according to the way of the Church of England, which he always scrupled, it doth not appear. He was a great pretender towards the making of a reconciliation between the Calvinists and Lutherans beyond the Seas, or as he himself used to say, For the making and setting a Protestant union and peace in the Churches beyond the Seas, &c. In which work he received encouragement (†) from Archb. Laud, tho Pryne his inveterate Enemy saith (*) not, but found so small encouragement from him, that he oft complained thereof to his friends. You may be pleased to see more of these matters, and of various Transactions of the life of the said Durie in a Letter written by him to his ancient Acquaintance Sam. Hartlib Esq; who published it (when the said Durie fell into the displeasure of the Presbyterians for shewing himself false to them in several respects) with this Title, The unchanged, constant, and single-hearted Peace-maker drawn forth into the World: Or, a Vindication of Mr. Jo. Durie from the aspersions cast upon him in a nameless Pamphlet called The time-serving Proteus, and ambidexter Divine, uncated to the World; wherein &c. Lond. 1650, in three sheets in quarto. Upon the turn of the times occasion'd by the Presbyterians, an. 1641, he sided with them, was one of the Preachers before the Long Parliament, the members of which appointed him one of the Assembly of Divines, and took from them several places of Employment. Afterwards he sided with the Independents, took the Engagement, as he had the Covenant before, and all other Oaths that followed, till his Majesties Restauration 1660; at which time, and after, he was living. He hath written and published about twenty Books and Pamphlets; among which are (1) Consultatio Theologica super negotio pacis Ecclesiasticæ. Lond. 1641. qu. (2) Epistolary discourse to Tho. Goodwin, Ph. Nye and Sam. Hartlib. Lond. 1644. &c. qu. This being written against Toleration, was answer'd by H. Robinson. (3) Of Presbytery and Independency, &c. print. 1646. qu. (4) Model of Ch. government. print. 1647. qu. (5) Peace-maker the Gospel way. print. 1648. qu. (6) Seasonable discourse for reformation. Lond. 1649. qu. published by Sam. Hartlib. (7) Considerations concerning the Engagement. print. 1650. This being answer'd, Durie came out with a Reply. (8) The reformed School. Lond. 1650, in tw. published by S. Hartlib. (9) Supplement to the reform. School. Lond. 1651. in tw. published by the said Hartlib. (10) The reform. Library keeper. Lond. 1650. in tw. To which is added Bibliotheca Augusta sereniss. Princ. D. Augusti Duci Brunovicensis & Linceb. quæ est Wolfenbutti. (11) Earnest plea for Gospel-Communion. Lond. 1654. qu. (12) Summary platform of Divinity. pr. 1654. &c.

Jan. 26. In the letters commendatory of the Chancellour of this Univ. (Will. Earl of Pembroke) written to the members thereof, are these matters mention'd of the said Hassall. --- 'He hath been a diligent and faithful preacher of the word of God in the Low-countries, and hath gotten a singular good reputation with the English in those parts, having been particularly favoured and cherished by the Count Palatine and the Lady Elizabeth his most Royal spouse. --- 'He was, when my self was a Student in the University, a hopeful Scholar, and of special note in the same house with me, &c. The Letters also of Sir Horatio Vere written in his behalf to the University say also thus. --- He hath not only gained a singular good report for his abilities, but for his pious and sweet conversation and esteem among us; meaning his Soldiers and Volunteers in the Low countries, where the said Sir Horatio was a Commander of a Regiment, sent to joyn with the united Princes in Germany. The said Dr. Hassall was installed Dean of Norwich (in the place of Dr. Edm. Suckling) on the 15. July 1628; which Dignity he obtained by the endeavours of the Lady Elizabeth beforemention'd. He died and was buried at Creak in Norfolk in the times of Usurpation, and was succeeded in his Deanery, after the restauration of K. Charles 2. by Dr. Job. And if he be the same Layfield who had been Chaplain to Gear. Earl of Cumberland in his travels, he was Author of A large relation of Port Ricco voyage, which is inserted in the fourth Vol. of Sam. Purchas his Pilgrims, printed at Lond. 1625. p. 11. 55. One John Layfield D. D. had a hand in translating the Bible in the beginning of K. Jam. 1. but he, you must know, was Fellow of Trin. Edward Alston Doct. of Physf. of the said Univ. of Cambridge was incorporated on the same day. --- He was afterwards a Knight and President of the Coll. of Physicians at London. He died in the Parish of Great St. Helens in Lond. in the Winter time, 1669.

July 24. James Usher Archb. of Armagh and Primate of all Ireland, was incorporated Doct. of Div. as he had stood in the Univ. of Dublin. --- This was done while he lodged in Jesus Coll. purposely to peruse certain MSS. in the Publick Library and elsewhere. In a Convocation held 10. March 1644. certain Doctors and Masters were by the Vicechanc. and Proctors appointed to take care and see that his Effigies should be engraven on a copper plate, with an Elogium under it, to be prefix'd to his Annotations on Ignatius his Epistles, then printing in Oxon. It was also then order'd that the said plate should be engrav'd at the charge of the University, and in the name thereof. The Elogium which was afterwards by their appointment made, runs thus Jacobus Usherius, &c. 'James Usher' Archb. of Armagh, Primate of all Ireland, the most skilful of Primitive antiquity, the unanswerable defender of the Orthodox Religion, the maul of errors, in preaching frequent, eloquent, very powerful, a rare example of an unblameable life.

Rob. Pink Vicechanc.

But this inscription, with the Effigies, was not put before the said Book, but before that De Ro. Eccl. Symbolo Apost. Lond. 1647. and some others since.

Jan. 31. Nich. Andrews was, with Rich. Andrews, (both Masters of Arts of Cambridge, incorporated here, as they had stood there. --- Nich. Andrews was afterwards Doct. of Div. Rector of Guilford and Vicar of Godalme in Surrey; where shewing himself a zealous Man for the Church of England, and a great Loyalist, was turn'd out of his livings by the Committee of Religion, appointed by the Long Parliament, an. 1643. He is mention'd in The first Century of scandalous, malignant Priests, p. 8.

Feb. 1. Tobias Crispe Bach. of Arts of Cambridge, now of Ball. Coll. --- See before, among the Masters of Arts this year.

Creations.

July (22) Joh. Chudleigh Bach. of Arts of Wadham Coll. the eldest Son of Sir George Chudleigh of Alston in Devonshire Baronet, was created Master of Arts, he being a little before elected a Burgess to serve in Parliament.

Nov. 20. Leonard Digges Bach. of Arts of University Coll. in Academis transmarinis bonarum artium studiu diu versatus (as the publick register saith) earumq; cognitione optime excultus, was actually created Master of Arts.

On the 27. of Dec. this year Edward Michelbourne a Gentlemans Son of Hampshire, originally a Commoner of St. Maries hall, and afterwards for many years of that of Gloucester, was buried in the Parish Church of St. Thomas the Martyr in the W. Suburb of Oxford, aged 64 or thereabouts. --- The reasons why I set him down here are (1) Because he took no Degree, being a Rom. Catholick, otherwise I would have put him in that year wherein he took a Degree (2) Because he was the most noted Latine Poet of his time in the University, as divers copies of his composition printed in several books, shew; which if put together, would make a Manual. (3) That the Poets of his time did mostly submit their labours to his judgment before they were made publick, particularly Charles Fitz-Geffry, who dedicates his Affanie to him.

Rich. Broughton a Sojournour in Oxon. was entred a Student into the publick Library on the 19. of June this year, under the title of a Minister of Gods word. This Person who had formerly studied in Oxon. to gain materials for the publishing of certain books, was born of gentile Parents at Great Steukley in Huntingdonshire, (but descended of an antient Family of his name living at Broughton Tower in Lancashire,) Sent when young to Rheims in France, where passing his course among the English, became a good Philosopher and Theologist, and well skill'd in the Greek and Heb. tongues. Afterwards, he being made Priest, was sent into the Mission of England, continued there many years in good repute for his religion, learning, experience, and publick spirit: For which he was thought to be the fittest Person to be chosen Assistant to the Archpriest, that had been then lately appointed by his holiness the Pope. He hath written (1) Apologetical Epistle. (2) Moderate answer to a most calumniating Libel, which endeavours to prove that a Rom. Catholick cannot be a good Subject. (3) Continuations of the Cath. Apologie made up out of Protestant Authors. (4) Ecclesiastical History of Gr. Britain deduced by ages, or centuries, from the nativity of our Saviour, unto the happy conversion of the Saxons, &c. Doway 1633. fol. Tho' tis a raplodie, and a thing not well digested, yet there is a great deal of reading shew'd in it. 'Tis said in the title to be the first Tome, as if another was to follow. (5) True memorial of the antient, most holy and religious estate of Great Britain, flourishing with Apostles, Apostolical Men, Monasteries, religious Rules and Orders, in great number, in the time of the Britains, and Primitive Church of the Saxons, &c. printed 1650. oct. published by G. S. P. (6) Monasticon Britannicum: Or, a historical narration of the first founding and flourishing state of the antient Monasteries, religious Rules and Orders of Great Britain, in the times of the Britains and Primitive Church of the Saxons, &c. Lond. 1655. oct. This Book I have, the title of which running almost verbatim, as the former, (which I have not yet seen) makes me to guess, that it is in many things the same. Quere. This industrious Author, who probably hath written other matters died in a good old age, on the fifteenth of the Kal. of Febr. an. 1634, and was buried near to the bodies of his Father and Mother and other of his relations in the Church of Great Steukley beforemention'd. Over his grave was soon after a Mon. with an inscription thereon, put, wherein he is stiled Presbyter Anglus, innocentia morum Angelicus. Majorum prosapiam, quorum ipse nemini impar sacra functione longe superavit, & claro virtutum ingenitarum praeconio peremnavit, &c. Antiquariorum sui seculi exquisitissimus, Ecclesiasticorum Monumentum, aurifodinam, hereditatem omni thesauro pretiosiorum, raro scientiff. virorum, sed optabili exemplo, posteris reliquit, &c.

 I know any thing of him besides, only that he was a Hampshire Man

June ult. Matthew Nicholas of New Coll. — This Person who was afterwards Can. resident of Salisbury, became Dean of Bristol on the death of Dr. Edm. Chesmynd an. 1639. and in 1642 was made Canon of the fifth stall in the Collegiat Church of St. Peter in West- minster on the death of Dr. William Robinson, Brother, by the Mothers side, to Dr. Laud Archb. of Canterbury. Of which Dignities being deprived in the time of the rebellion, became after his Majesties restauration Dean of St. Pauls Cathedral in London. In Bristol succeeded Dr. Hen. Glemham of Oxon, an. 1660, and in St. Pauls, Dr. Job. Barwick of Cambridge, elected thereunto 11. Oct.
 1661. To this Dr. Nicholas his piety and moderation, the Church was as much beholding, as the State was to his elder Brother Sir Edw. Nicholas. The former died 15. Aug. 1661, the other on the first of Sept. 1669. aged 77, and was buried in Horley Church in Surrey, where there is a fair monument, with a large inscription thereon, over his grave. By the way I desire the reader to know that the said Sir Edward was born at Winterbourne-Earles in Wilt- shire, where his name is, or at least hath been, antient and gentle, that he had his education in this University, and afterwards in the Royal Court, where he became at length Secretary of State to K. Ch. 1. and afterwards a sufferer for his cause, and an Exile with his Son Ch. 2. After the restauration of the last, he continued in the office of Secretary, but then growing antient, he resigned it in Oct. 1662. At which time his Majesty in consideration of his fidelity, constancy, and affection to his and his Fathers service, did freely offer to make him a Baron, but Sir Edward, according to his wonted candor and modesty, (after he had most humbly return'd his thanks) besought his Majesty therein to spare him. A Gentleman of both his names wrote An apologie for the honorable nation of the Jews, and all the Sons of Israel. Lond. 1648. in qu. What relation he had to the said Sir Edward, I know not.

Jun. ult. } Will. Merick } of New Coll.
 } Will. Griffith }

The former was afterwards Judge of the Prebogatice Court for the Province of Canterbury, eminent for his great learning and abilities, as also for his loyalty and affection to his Majesty K. Ch. 2. and to his glorious Father, both at home and beyond the Seas. Upon which account he was sent for to the Court, 8. Nov. 1661.
 and had the honor of Knighthood confer'd upon him in his Majesties Bedchamber. He died in the Winter time an. 1668. and was succeeded in his Judgeship by Dr. Leolin Jenkins. The other, Will. Griffith was Chancellour of the Diocesses of St. Asaph and Bangor.

 Jan. 14. Gilb. Jones of Allsouls }

The first of these two last died at Abendon in Berks, an. 1660, the other was about this time Chancellour of the Dioc. of Bristol.

Not one Doctor of Physick was admitted this year.

27. George Byrom of Brafn.

July 4. Rich. Puliston of Wad. } Coll.

Feb. 21. Ant. Saunders of Univ. }

The first of these last three was now beneficed in Cheshire, and had for several years served K. Jam. 1. and K. Ch. 1. both as Commissioner of the Peace, and a Commissioner of the High Commission for causes Ecclesiastical.

Incorporations.

On the 10. of July being the next day after the conclusion of the Act, were 59 Cambrigiens incorporated in several faculties, the names of some of which follow.

Rob. Sterne Bach. of Div. of C. Christi Coll. — This most worthy and loyal Person who was Son of Sim. Sterne of Mansfield in Nottinghamshire, (descended from thole of his name in Suffolk) was afterwards D. of D. Master of Jesuw Coll. and Chaplaine to Archb. Laud; with whom he was present on the Scaffold, when he was to be beheaded, purposely to administer comfort to him.
 But before that time, he had been imprison'd by the endeavours of Oliver Cromwell a Burgess for the Town of Cambridge in the Long Parliament, for being very instrumental in conveying the plate belonging to several Colleges and Halls in Cambridge to his Majesty then at Tork, and thereabouts: I say being hurried up to London with other Doctors, was imprison'd in the Tower of London, where by permission he attended the said Archbishop. About that time he was ejected his Mastership of Jesuw Coll. lost all he had, suffer'd in an high manner for his loyalty, and lived obscurely during the interval. At length, upon his Majesties restauration, he was nominated by him Bishop of Carlisle; whereupon being consecrated thereunto in the Abby Church of St. Peter at Westminster, on the second day of Decemb. an. 1660, sat there till the death of Dr. Preben Atchb. of Tork, and then being elected to succeed him in that See 28. Apr. 1664 was enthronized on the 10. of June following, in the Person of Dr. Edmund Diggle a Dignitary of that Church. This Dr. Sterne hath written. (1) Sermons or a Comment.
on 103 Psalms. — Printed 1649. oct. (2) Summa Logica, partim ex optimis quibusq; autoribus tum antiquis tum recentioribus collecta; maxime autem ex usu & ad usum comparata, exemplis omnium generum abunde illustrata. Lond. 1686. oct. and, as 'tis probable, other things. This worthy Archb. died about 23. June 1683. and was buried in the Cath. Church of Tork. Afterwards succeeded Dr.
Job. Dobson, as I shall tell you elsewhere.

Job. Burges Doct. of Phys. and Parson of Sutton Colfield in War- wicksire, was also then incorporated. At which time liberty was allowed to him by the ven. congregation that he might study in the publick library, being then a conformist to the Ch of England. He paid his last debt to nature on the last day of Aug. 1635 aged 72. or thereabouts, and was buried in the Chancel of Sutton Colfield, in the same vault where the body of his then late Wife Dorothy was buried. He hath written An apology to the Bishop of Lincoln, &c. answer'd by Dr. Will. Covell, an. 1606. Also The Popes deadly wound resolving the controversies between us and them. pr. in qu. and other things, as the Oxford Catalogue will tell you. See more of him in Tho. Wilcocks among the writers, an. 1599.

George Stanhop } D.D.

John Partington }

As for the other Persons of Cambridge who were incorporated on the said day (July 10.) I know no great matter of them, and therefore I shall proceed to speak of others who were afterwards incorporated.

July 11. John Thorie, Thorius or Thoris Doct. of Phys. of the Univ. of Dublin. — He was Son of Ralph Thorius a Physician, and had formerly been Bach. of Arts of Magd. Coll.

Rich. Hawley Doct. of Phys. of Leyden in Holland was incorporated the same day. — He was now or lately Fellow of Merton College.

Octob. 25. Francis Glisson M. of A. of Conuil and Cates Coll. in Cambridge. — This learned Gentleman who was second Son of William Glisson of Rampisham in Dorsetshire; and he the second Son of Warr. Glisson of the City of Bristol, was afterwards Doct.
 of Physick, the Kings publick Professor of that faculty in the said University, Candidate of the Coll. of Physicians at London, an. 1634, Fellow the year after, Anatomy reader in the said Coll. 1639, practised Physick at Colchester during the time of the rebellion, where he was present when the generous Royalists of Kent were besieged 1648. and after. In 1655 he was chosen one of the Elects of the said College and afterwards was President thereof for several years. He hath written (1) Prolegomena Anatomica. (2) Anato- mia Hepatis. (3) De Lymphæ-ductibus. All which were several times printed, and once at Amsterdam 1659. in tw. (4) De natu- ra substantiæ energetica, seu de via vitæ, &c. Lond. 1672. qu. (5) De ventriculo & intestinis, &c. Lond. 1677. qu. and was one of the three (Geo. Bates and Abasnerus Regemorter being the other two) who wrote

wrot De Rachitide, sive morbo puerili, qui vulgo the Rickets dicitur. Lond. 1650. oct. The discovery also of the Capsula communis or Vagina Portæ is owing to him, who hath likewise given us certain notes for the more easie distinguishing of the Vena cava, Porta and Vasa fellea in excarnating the Liver. Further also he hath (*) given such an excellent account of Sanguification (discharging the Liver from that office) and proved it by so good arguments, and clear experiments, that few have since doubted the truth thereof. This worthy Doctor, to whose learned Lucubrations and deep disquisitions in Physick, not only Great Britain, but remoter Kingdoms owe a particular respect and veneration, died much lamented in the Parish of S. Bride alias S. Bridget in London in Oct. or Nov. 1677.

Dec. 15. Edward Lake lately Bach. of Arts of Catherine Hall in Cambridge, was incorporated in the same degree. — On the 24 Jan. following he was admitted Bach. of the Civil Law as a Member of S. Albans Hall.

This year was a supplicate made for one Hen. Jacie M. of A. to be incorporated, but whether he was so or not, I cannot find. I take him to be the same with Henry Jessie alias Jacie a Preachers Son, who was born at West Rowton in the north Riding of Yorkshire 3 Sept. 1601, and who in 1618 became Pensioner of S. Job. Coll. in the said University. Whence, after he had taken one degree in Arts, he was invited to live in the house of Brampton Gourdon of Affington in Suffolk Gent. Father to Job. Gourdon a Burgess in the Long Parliament that began 1640. (nominated one of the Judges to sit on K. Ch. 1. but was not present when Sentence was passed) and to two others of that name who were Recruiters in that Parliament. In which house being settled, he studied Physick as well as Divinity. After he had commenced M. of A. which was in 1626, he preached privately in the Neighbourhood, and distributed practical Books among the Brethren. Afterwards he removed to several places, but was not permitted to tarry long in any, because he was zealously averse to Conformity. At length in 1645 he repaired to London, where he joyned himself to the Congregation, of which Mr. Hen. Jacob and Mr. Job. Lathorp had been Pastors, where he continued 25 years, not without several disturbances, especially before the grand Rebellion broke out. He hath written (1) A catechism for Children. The Answers in which were wholly in the words of the Scripture. (2) The Scripture-Kalendar in use by the Prophets and Apostles, and by our Lord Jesus Christ, explaining the Accounts, Measures, &c. This was first printed in 1645 and afterwards came out with several Additions to the time of his Majesties Restauration 1660, and perhaps after. (3) The exceeding riches of grace advanced in the conversion of Mrs. Sarah Wight. Lond. 1647. oct. (4) Store-house of provision for resolving cases of conscience, &c. Lond. 1650. in tw. (5) Description and explanation of 268 places in Jerusalem and the suburbs thereof, with a large map. printed 1653. qu. (6) The lords loud call to England: being a true relation of some late, various and wonderful Judgments, or handy-works of God, by Earthquake, Lightning, &c. Lond. 1660. in six sheets in qu. This Book begins with certain matters relating to Oxon, which being very false, the Reader cannot otherwise but judge the rest so to be. In 1661 came out an imposture of a most damnable-design called Mirabilis annus, or the year of prodigies and wonders, &c. and in 1662 the first and second part of Annus mirabilis secundus, and probably other parts, but such I have not yet seen. When these came out, which were advanced by several hands, it was verily supposed that Henry Jessie had a principal share in them. (7) Miscellanea sacra: diversæ necessary truths seasonably published, &c. printed 1665, in oct. (8) A looking-glass for children: being a narrative of Gods gracious dealings with some little children. Lond. 1674. oct. He hath also written a Pref. or commendatory Epistle before Job. Grayles Modest vindication of the doctrine of conditions in the covenant of Grace, &c. and other little things beside his own Experiences, which I have not yet seen. At length paying his last debt to nature 4 Sept. 1663, being then accounted the Oracle and Idol of the faction, was on the 7 of the same month laid to sleep with his Fathers in a hole made in the Yard joyning to Old Bedlam near Morefields in the Suburbs of London, attended with a strange medley of Fanaticks (mostly Anabaptists) that met upon the very point of time, all at the same instant, to do honour to their departed Brother. Some years after came out a short account of his life and death &c. but full of ridiculous and absurd Cantings; to which is annex'd An Elegy on Mr. Will. Bridge. Which Bridge had been sometimes Fellow of Emanuel Coll. in Cambridge, was afterwards a Presbyterian, one of the Ass. of Divines, and the independent Minister of Yarmouth in Norfolk. He died a Nonconformist in 1670. See more of Hen. Jessie in Jos. Caryl, in the other Vol. of this work.

Creations.

May 25. Robert Lord Dormer of Wenge, lately of Exeter Coll. was actually created Mast. of Arts. — He was afterwards the first Earl of Caernarvan of his name, and taking up Arms in defence of his Majesty K. Ch. 1. had the hard fate to be killed near Newbury in Berkshire 20 Sept. 1643. See among the created Doctors of Law in 1642.

William Lewis M. of A. and lately Provost of Oriel Coll. was actually created Doct. of Div. on the same day, by virtue of his Majesties letters dated 9 of the same month, running partly thus — "William Lewis an ancient Master of Arts, who hath spent divers

"years both at home and abroad in the study of Divinity. — We, "out of our experience of his diligence and ability of some affairs "of weight, wherein we have in foreign parts employ'd him, be- "ing to use his person in some further service, wherein we think "him fit to be continued, and grac'd with the degree of Doct. of "Div. &c. we therefore require you to create and admit him "Doctor, &c. This person who was born in Merionethshire, was elected from Hart Hall (of which he was Commoner under the government of Theodore Price his Uncle) into the Society of Oriel College, an. 1608, being then Bachelaur of Arts. Afterwards proceeding in that faculty, he took holy Orders, and tho a junior Master in his College, yet by a faction, and majority of Walsingham men, got the Provostship of that place in 1617. But being too young for that office, and not able to conceal his amours (which were much aggravated (+) by the Puritans) he abruptly left it and went beyond the Seas in his Majesty's Service. After his return he became Chaplain to the Duke of Buckingham, with whom being to go beyond the Seas for the relief of Rochel, was actually created D. of D. as before 'tis told you. After his return from that unhappy Expedition, he drew up from his notes A general relation of a Voyage to Rbe under the command and conduct of the Duke of Buckingham. The beginning of which is, Though the variety of the occurrences of this action might furnish argument enough of a just story, &c. This I have seen in a folio MS. of 18 sheets or more, but whether ever printed, I know not. Afterwards he was made Master of the Hospital of S. Cross, and Prebendary of Winchester; which, with other preferments, losing in the time of the Rebellion, he fled beyond the Seas, and suffer'd much for the royal cause; while, in the mean time, his Sons were gained to the Church of Rome. After his Majesties return an. 1660, he was restored to what he had lost, and dying within the Hospital of S. Cross before mention'd, 7 July 1667, was buried in the Chappel there, under, or near, the high Altar.

Dec. 31. Richard Napier lately Bach. of Arts of Wadham Coll. was created Master of that Faculty in the House of Convocation, by virtue of the Chancellours Letters, which say that he is a kingsman of the Duches of Richmond, and a person well deserving in all that is necessary in a Gentleman and a Scholar.

I have made mention of him before, and shall again among the created Doctors of Physick, an. 1642.

Proct. { Rob. Williamson of Magd. Coll. } June 13.
{ Rob. Lloyd of Jesus Coll. }

Which Proctors were named by the King, as I have elsewhere told you: For certain new Ordinations being transmitted to the University by the Chanc. thereof in the month of Apr. for the election of the Proctors, the Academians could not after their usual way meet together for the election of them, many Parsons, Curats, and Schoolmasters having already resorted from several parts of the Nation, nay some from Wales, to elect Lloyd. Whereupon no small tumult arising in the University, the election of new Proctors was prorogued till such time that the Controversies therein were equally compos'd. At length after all parties were satisfied, it was reputed unlawful for the Masters to nominate any to the procuratorial office, but the aforesaid Candidates Williamson and Lloyd. Which being the sentence of the King and Chancellor, that antient custom of choosing Proctors by suffrages in a scrutiny vanish'd and came to nothing, and another new form of Election was introduced, as I shall the next year shew.

As for Layfield, he was afterwards Archdeacon of Essex, in the place, as I conceive, of Dr. Geor. Goulman, which Doctor dying on the first of Jan. 1633, was buried in the Chancel of the Church of Chestnute in Hertfordshire: About the same time Layfield became D. of D. but not by admission or creation of this University, and Vicar of Allhallows Barkin near to the Tower of London, where continuing till the grand Rebellion broke out in 1642, was then, for his Loyalty, and for his being favour'd by Dr. Laud, persecuted, imprison'd in Ely house and in the Ships, sequestred, plunder'd, and afterwards forced to fly. When K. Ch. 2. returned to his Dominions, he was restored to his Vicaridge and Archdeaconry, and had other preferments, as I conceive, bestowed on him, of which one was a Prebendship of S. Pauls Cath. Ch. He was buried in the said Church of Allhallows 10 Aug. 1680. Whereupon Mrs Tho. Turner of C. C. Coll. Oxon. one of the Sons of Dr. Th. Turner sometimes Dean of Canterbury, was installed in his Archdeaconry in January following.

 } Will. White of Wadham }

As for Rich. Browne who was Fellow of Mert. Coll. he was afterwards a Traveller and Doctor of the Laws, but of what University I cannot yet tell. After his return, he became one of the Gentlemen of the privy Chamber to K. Ch. 1. and Clerk of the Council. In 1640 he was employed by his Majesty to go to Henry Frederick Prince of Aurange or Orange, about the marriage of the Princess Mary to the Prince his Son; as also to the Queen of Bohemia and the Prince Elector, an. 1641, to hinder that Prince his coming over into England at the then juncture of affairs, with promise to take into his consideration the concern of the Palatinate and other matters of state. In the same year the said R. Browne was sent to Paris, where he continued Resident in the Court of France for K. Ch. 1. and Ch. 2. to the French King Lewis the 13, and his Son Lewis 14, till the Restauration of his Majesty an. 1660. In which time, which was 19 years, I find these things following to occur relating to him. (1) That divers important matters of state were transacted by him with those great Ministers Cardinal Richlieu and Mazarine. (2) That many advantages were offer'd him by the Usurpers of England to be false to his Masters, but he resisted them. (3) That he did to his great expence, but more to his everlasting glory, keep up in the large house which he hired at Paris, the publick Service and Liturgy of the Church of England, whither his Maj. Ch. 2. and the then Duke of York did constantly resort. From whence divers Ministers of the Church of England (Exiles for their Loyalty) had many disputes with the R. Catholics and others concerning the visibility of their Church, which they then kept up, while it was eclipsed in England. (4) That he was employed by his Maj. Ch. 1. to carry the George and Garter to Bernard Duke of Espernon. (5) That he did negotiate about the Queens portion; out of which, he had, I think, 1000 l. which, with 200 l. more, was all he touched in the said 19 years, whilst he spent of his paternal Estate much more than that yearly, during his abode at Paris. (6) That on the first of Sept. 1649 he was created a Baronet (being the first that K. Ch. 2. made) by virtue of a dormant Warrant sent to him by Ch. 1. dated 1 Febr. 1643; and on the 19 of the said Sept. he received the honour of Knighthood at St. Germaines from his said Maj. Ch. 2. he being then also Clerk of the Council to him. In 1660 he returned into England with his Majesty, and did execute the said Office for some time. But years then coming on, he resign'd it, and retired to Charlton in Kent, where he spent the remainder of his time in a pleasant retiredness and studious recess. At length giving way to fate in a good old Age on the 12 of Febr. 1681, was buried according to his desire in the Churchyard at Deptford, close to the Wall of the Church, where is a black Marble ballastred over his body. On the other side of the Wall in the Church lies buried his Father Christop. Browne Esq; who died in March 1645 aged 70 years, and his Grandfather Sir Rich. Browne Knight, a younger Son of an ancient Family at Hitcham in Suffolk, seated afterwards at Horsley in Essex; who being a Student in the Temple, was by Robert Dudley the great Earl of Leicester taken into the service of the Crown; when he went Governour of the United Netherlands, and was afterwards by Qu. Elizab. made Clerk of the Greencloth. In which honorable office he also continued under K. James 1. untill the time of his death; which hapned in May 1604 aged 65 years. The before mentioned Sir Rich. Browne Grandson to this last Sir Richard, left behind him a Daughter named Mary, who being his Heiress, was several years before married to the learned Vertuoso Joh. Evelyn of Says-cours in the Parish of Deptford Esq; in which house, or at least in that Parish, Sir Richard was born; as also three folio's of his dispatches, several Letters, some in cypher, &c. as well from his Maj. Ch. 1. at Oxon. as from his Royal Consort, and other great persons.

July 8. Oliver Thomas of Hart Hall. --- The time when he took the degree of Bach. of Arts, appears not, nor when, or of what house he was matriculated. And therefore all that I can say of him is, that he was afterwards, perhaps now, beneficed in Shropshire, that he wrote and published a book in Welsh entit. Caryny Cymru &c. printed 1630 or thereabouts, and that dying at Felton in that County (*) was there buried. In the year 1647, one Oliver Thomas Minister of Oswestry, did subscribe among other Ministers of Shropshire to the lawfulness of the Covenant; who, I suppose, is the same with the former.

so. Philip wrot De Rachitide, five morbo puerili, qui vulgo the Rickets dicitur. Lond. 1650. oct. The discovery also of the Capsula communis or Vagina Porta is owing to him, who hath likewise given us certain notes for the more easie distinguishing of the Vena cava, Porta and Vasa felled in excarnating the Liver. Further also he hath (*) given such an excellent account of Sanguification (discharging the Liver from that office) and proved it by so good arguments, and clear experiments, that few have since doubted the truth thereof. This worthy Doctor, to whose learned Lucubrations and deep disquisitions in Physick, not only Great Britain, but remoter Kingdoms owe a particular respect and veneration, died much lamented in the Parish of S. Bride alias S. Bridget in London in Oct. or Nov. 1677.

Dec. 15. Edward Lake lately Bach. of Arts of CAtherine Hall in Cambridge, was incorporated in the same degree. — On the 24 Jan. following he was admitted Bach. of the Civil Law as a Member of S. Albans Hall.

This year was a supplicate made for one Hen. Jacie M. of A. to be incorporated, but whether he was so or not, I cannot find. I take him to be the same with Henry Jessie alias Jacie a Preachers Son, who was born at West Rowton in the north Riding of Yorkshire 3 Sept. 1601, and who in 1618 became Pensioner of S. Joh. Coll. in the said University. Whence, after he had taken one degree in Arts, he was invited to live in the house of Brampton Gourdon of Affington in Suffolk Gent. Father to Joh. Gourdon a Burgess in the Long Parliament that began 1640, (nominated one of the Judges to sit on K. Ch. 1. but was not present when Sentence was passed) and to two others of that name who were Recruiters in that Parliament. In which house being settled, he studied Physick as well as Divinity. After he had commenced M. of A. which was in 1626, he preached privately in the Neighbourhood, and distributed practical Books among the Brethren. Afterwards he removed to several places, but was not permitted to tarry long in any, because he was zealously averse to Conformity. At length in 1645 he repaired to London, where he joyned himself to the Congregation, of which Mr. Hen. Jacob and Mr. Joh. Lathorp had been Pastors, where he continued 25 years, not without several disturbances, especially before the grand Rebellion broke out. He hath written (1) A catechism for Children. The Answers in which were wholly in the words of the Scripture. (2) The Scripture-Kalendar in use by the Prophets and Apostles, and by our Lord Jesus Christ, explaining the Accounts, Measures, &c. This was first printed in 1645 and afterwards came out with several Additions to the time of his Majesties Restauration 1660, and perhaps after. (3) The exceeding riches of grace advanced in the conversion of Mrs. Sarah Wight. Lond. 1647. oct. (4) Store-house of provision for resolving cases of conscience, &c. Lond. 1650, in tw. (5) Description and explanation of 268 places in Jerusalem and the suburbs thereof, with a large map. printed 1653, qu. (6) The lords loud call to England: being a true relation of some late, various and wonderful Judgments, or handy-works of God, by Earthquake, Lightning, &c. Lond. 1660. in six sheets in qu. This Book begins with certain matters relating to Oxon, which being very false, the Reader cannot otherwise but judge the rest so to be. In 1661 came out an impolture of a most damnable design called Mirabilis annus, or the year of prodigies and wonders, &c. and in 1662 the first and second part of Annus mirabilis secundus, and probably other parts, but such I have not yet seen. When these came out, which were advanced by several hands, it was verily supposed that Henry Jessie had a principal share in them. (7) Miscellanea sacra: divers necessary truths seasonably published, &c. printed 1665, in oct. (8) A looking-glass for children: being a narrative of Gods gracious dealings with some little children. Lond. 1674, oct. He hath also written a Pref. or commendatory Epistle before Joh. Grayles Modest vindication of the doctrine of conditions in the covenant of Grace, &c. and other little things beside his own Experiences, which I have not yet seen. At length paying his last debt to nature 4 Sept. 1663, being then accounted the Oracle and Idol of the faction, was on the 7 of the same month laid to sleep with his Fathers in a hole made in the Yard joyning to Old Bedlam near Morefields in the Suburbs of London, attended with a strange medley of Fanatics (mostly Anabaptists) that met upon the very point of time, all at the same instant, to do honour to their departed Brother. Some years after came out a short account of his life and death &c. but full of ridiculous and absurd Cantings; to which is annex'd An Elegy on Mr. Will. Bridge. Which Bridge had been sometimes Fellow of Emanuel Coll. in Cambridge, was afterwards a Presbyterian, one of the Ass. of Divines, and the independent Minister of Yarmouth in Norfolk. He died a Nonconformist in 1670. See more of Hen. Jessie in Joh. Caryl, in the other Vol. of this work.

Creations.

May 25. Robert Lord Dormer of Wenge, lately of Exeter Coll. was actually created Mast. of Arts. — He was afterwards the first Earl of Caernarvan of his name, and taking up Arms in defence of his Majesty K. Ch. 1. had the hard fate to be killed near Newbury in Berkshire 20 Sept. 1643. See among the created Doctors of Law in 1642.

William Lewis M. of A. and lately Provost of Oriel Coll. was actually created Doct. of Div. on the same day, by virtue of his Majesties letters dated 9 of the same month, running partly thus — "William Lewis an ancient Master of Arts, who hath spent divers

"years both at home and abroad in the study of Divinity. — We, "out of our experience of his diligence and ability of some affairs "of weight, wherein we have in foreign parts employ'd him, be- "ing to use his person in some further service, wherein we think "him fit to be continued, and grac'd with the degree of Doct. of "Div. &c. we therefore require you to create and admit him "Doctor, &c. This person who was born in Merionethshire, was elected from Hart Hall (of which he was Commoner under the government of Theodore Price his Uncle) into the Society of Oriel Coll. an. 1608, being then Bachelour of Arts. Afterwards proceeding in that faculty, he took holy Orders, and tho a junior Master in his College, yet by a faction, and majority of Wolfs men, got the Provostship of that place in 1617. But being too young for that office, and not able to conceal his amours (which were much aggravated (+) by the Puritans) he abruptly left it and went beyond the Seas in his Majesty's Service. After his return he became Chaplain to the Duke of Buckingham, with whom being to go beyond the Seas for the relief of Roche, was actually created D. of D. as before 'tis told you. After his return from that unhappy Expedition, he drew up from his notes A general relation of a Voyage to Rbe under the command and conduct of the Duke of Buckingham. The beginning of which is, Though the variety of the occurrences of this action might furnish argument enough of a just story, &c. This I have seen in a folio MS. of 18 sheets or more, but whether ever printed, I know not. Afterwards he was made Master of the Hospital of S. Cross, and Prebendary of Winchester; which, with other preferments, losing in the time of the Rebellion, he fled beyond the Seas, and suffer'd much for the royal cause; while, in the mean time, his Sons were gained to the Church of Rome. After his Majesties return an. 1660, he was restored to what he had lost, and dying within the Hospital of S. Cross before mention'd, 7 July 1667, was buried in the Chappel there, under, or near, the high Altar.

Dec. 31. Richard Napier lately Bach. of Arts of Wadham Coll. was created Master of that Faculty in the House of Convocation, by virtue of the Chancellours Letters, which say that he is a kinsman of the Dukes of Richmond, and a person well deserving in all that is necessary in a Gentleman and a Scholar.

I have made mention of him before, and shall again among the created Doctors of Physick, an. 1642.

At length after all parties were satisfied, it was reputed unlawful for the Masters to nominate any to the procuratorial office, but the aforesaid Candidates Williamson and Lloyd. Which being the sentence of the King and Chancellour, that antient custom of choosing Proctors by suffrages in a scrutiny vanished and came to nothing, and another new form of Election was introduced, as I shall the next year shew.

About the same time Layfield became D. of D. but not by admission or creation of this University, and Vicar of Allhallows Barkin near to the Tower of London, where continuing till the grand Rebellion broke out in 1642, was then, for his Loyalty, and for his being favour'd by Dr. Laud, persecuted, imprison'd in Ely house and in the Ships, sequestred, plunder'd, and afterwards forced to fly. When K. Ch. 2. returned to his Dominions, he was restored to his Vicaridge and Archdeaconry, and had other preferments, as I conceive, bestowed on him, of which one was a Prebendship of S. Pauls Cath. Ch. He was buried in the said Church of Allhallows 10 Aug. 1680. Whereupon Mrs Tho. Turner of C. C. Coll. Oxon, one of the Sons of Dr. Th. Turner sometimes Dean of Canterbury, was installed in his Archdeaconry in January following.

As for Rich. Browne who was Fellow of Mert. Coll. he was afterwards a Traveller and Doctor of the Laws, but of what University I cannot yet tell. After his return, he became one of the Gentlemen of the privy Chamber to K. Ch. 1. and Clerk of the Council. In 1640 he was employed by his Majesty to go to Henry Frederick Prince of Aurange or Orange, about the marriage of the Princess Mary to the Prince his Son; as also to the Queen of Bohemia and the Prince Elector, an. 1641, to hinder that Prince his coming over into England at the then juncture of affairs, with promise to take into his consideration the concern of the Palatinate and other matters of state. In the same year the said R. Browne was sent to Paris, where he continued Resident in the Court of France for K. Ch. 1. and Ch. 2. to the French King Lewis the 13, and his Son Lewis 14, till the Restauration of his Majesty an. 1660. In which time, which was 19 years, I find these things following to occur relating to him. (1) That divers important matters of state were transacted by him with those great Ministers Cardinal Richlieu and Mazarine. (2) That many advantages were offer'd him by the Usurpers of England to be false to his Masters, but he resisted them. (3) That he did to his great expence, but more to his everlasting glory, keep up in the large house which he hired at Paris, the publick Service and Liturgy of the Church of England, whither his Maj. Ch. 2. and the then Duke of York did constantly resort. From whence divers Ministers of the Church of England (Exiles for their Loyalty) had many disputes with the R. Catholics and others concerning the visibilty of their Church, which they then kept up, while it was eclipsed in England. (4) That he was employed by his Maj. Ch. 1. to carry the George and Garter to Bernard Duke of Espernon. (5) That he did negotiate about the Queens portion; out of which, he had, I think, 1000 l. which, with 200 l. more, was all he touched in the said 19 years, whilst he spent of his paternal Estate much more than that yearly, during his abode at Paris. (6) That on the first of Sept. 1649 he was created a Baronet (being the first that K. Ch. 2. made) by virtue of a dormant Warrant sent to him by Ch. 1. dated 1 Febr. 1643; and on the 19 of the said Sept. he received the honour of Knighthood at St. Germaines from his said Maj. Ch. 2. he being then also Clerk of the Council to him. In 1660 he returned into England with his Majesty, and did execute the said Office for some time. But years then coming on, he resign'd it, and retired to Charlton in Kent, where he spent the remainder of his time in a pleasant retiredness and studious recess. At length giving way to fate in a good old Age on the 12 of Febr. 1681, was buried according to his desire in the Churchyard at Deptford, close to the Wall of the Church, where is a black Marble ballastred over his body. On the other side of the Wall in the Church lies buried his Father Christop. Browne Esq; who died in March 1645 aged 70 years, and his Grandfather Sir Rich. Browne Knight, a younger Son of an ancient Family at Hitcham in Suffolk, seated afterwards at Horsley in Essex; who being a Student in the Temple, was by Robert Dudley the great Earl of Lexester taken into the service of the Crown; when he went Governour of the United Netherlands, and was afterwards by Qu. Elizab. made Clerk of the Greencloth. In which honorable office he also continued under K. James 1. untill the time of his death; which hapned in May 1604 aged 65 years. The before mentioned Sir Rich. Browne Grandson to this last Sir Richard, left behind him a Daughter named Mary, who being his Heiress, was several years before married to the learned Virtuoso Job. Evelyn of Says-court in the Parish of Deptford Esq; in which house, or at least in that Parish, Sir Richard was born; as also three

Jun. 19. Daniel Gotereus Bach. of Arts of Cambr. --- In his supplicate for Incorporation, he is written Gotzer.

20. Philip Parsons Doct. of Phys. of Padua in Italy. — He was now, or lately Fellow of S. Johns Coll. in Oxon, and afterwards Principal of Hart Hall.

Jul. 10. Edm. Randolphe Doct. of Phys. of Padua. — He was sometimes a Member of University Coll.

11. George Douglas a Scot, M. of A. of Aberdeen.

On the 15 July, being the next day after the Act, were these Cambridge men incorporated.

Will. Spurstow Bach. of Arts (so he is written in the Register) was then incorporated. — This person who was the Son and Heir of Will. Spurstow Citizen and Mercer of London, but originally descended from the Spurstows of Spurstow in Cheshire, was afterwards M. of A. a grand Presbyterian, one of the five Smectymni, (Steph. Marshall, Edm. Calamy, Tho. (5) Practical Treatise of the excellency and right use of the Gospel promises, Lond. 1658. (6) Spiritual Chymist or six Decades of divine meditations. Lond. 1666. 68. oct. &c. In the year 1662 he was ejected from his benefice at Hackney for Nonconformity; where, and in the neighbourhood, he lived (exercising his parts in private among the brethren) till his death, (which was at Hackney as I conceive) in Jan. or Feb. 1665.

Edward Rainbow Bach. of Arts of Magd. Coll. in Cambr. — He was afterwards M. of A. Master of that Coll. 1642, Doct. of Div. four years after, and in 1650 was ejected from his Mastership. Afterwards he enjoyed two livings successively without examination by the Tryers, and in 1660 being restored to his Mastership, was soon after made Dean of Peterborough upon the promotion of Dr. Joh. Cosin to the See of Durham, and in Nov. 1662 Vicechancellor of Cambridge. In 1664, Jul. 10, he was consecrated Bishop of Carlisle in K. Hen. 7. Chap. at Westminster, where sitting about twenty years, gave way to fate in his Palace called Rose Castle near Carlisle, 26 March 1684, aged 76 years or thereabouts. On the first of April following he was inter'd in the Yard belonging to the parochial Church of Dalston, under the Chancel Wall; at which time Mr. Thom. Tully one of his Lordships Chaplains and Chancellor of the Diocese of Carlisle preached his Funeral sermon. This Dr. Rainbow having been originally of C. C. Coll. in this University, I shall in my other Vol. of this Work speak more largely of him.

Thom. Ball M. A. — I take this person to be the same Thomas Ball who was born in Shropshire, first of Queens, under the tuition of Dr. Joh. Preston, and afterwards Fellow of Emanuel, Coll. in Cambr. Minister of the Gospel in Northampton, and a publisher of several books, as (1) The life of Dr. Joh. Preston. (2) Pastorum propugnaculum: or, the pulpits patronage against the force of unordained usurpation and invasion, in four parts. Lond. 1656. qu. &c. He was buried at Northampton 21 June 1659, aged 69 years or thereabouts. At which time his intimate acquaintance Joh. Howes M. of A. (sometimes of Eman. Coll.) Rector of Abbingdon near Northampton preached his Funeral sermon: wherein were several matters delivered in commendation of Mr. Ball.

Rob. Creighton or Chrichton M. of A. of Trin. Coll. — This person who was born in the north parts of Scotland, was educated in Westminster School, and thence elected into the said College 1613, took the degrees in Arts, and became Orator and Greek Professor of Cambridge. In 1632, Dec. 17. he was installed Treasurer of the Cathedral Church at Wells, having been collated thereunto by Geor. Archb. of Canterbury, upon the then vacancy of the See of B. and Wells; in which Vacancy Dr. Rob. Wright, who kept the said Treasurership in commendam with the See of Bristol, was translated to Lichfield, and thereupon forced to give up that Dignity. In 1637 he became Dean of S. Burians in Cornwall, in the place of (*) Rich. Murray a Scot deceased, and about that time Doctor of Divinity, and beneficed in Somersetshire. In the beginning of the Rebellion he suffered then and afterwards very much for the Royal Cause, retired to his Majesty at Oxon, became one of his Chaplains, afterwards an Exile with K. Ch. 2. to whom being Chaplain at the Hague, preached very liberally before him against the Presbyterians, and the Murderers of K. Ch. 1. After his Majesties return he became Dean of Wells, (the grant of which he had before) and being then also Chaplain to the King, he would freely preach before him against the Vices of the times, which was well taken by some, tho' lineared at by others. In 1670, Jun. 19, he was consecrated B. of Bath and Wells at Lambeth in the place of Dr. Will. Piers deceased; at which Ceremony assisted the B. of London in the place of his Grace the Archb. of Canterbury, with the Bishops of Winchester and Ely. This Dr. Creighton was a learned man, as it appears by his translation from Greek into Latin, and illustration with excellent notes, of a book entit. Concilii Florentini exactissima narratio, &c. written by Sylvest. Sgaropulus. Hag. com. 1660, fol. dedicated to K. Ch. 2. which being animadverted upon by Leo Allatius a Jesuit, Creighton came out with an Answer. He hath also one or more Sermons extant, and dying 21 Nov. 1672 aged 79 or thereabouts, was buried in a Chappel joyning to the Cathedral Church of Wells. Over his Grave was soon after erected a fair tomb of Alabaster with his Effigies at length, in his pontificalia, lying thereon, and on the wall over it, is a large Inscription, part of which runs thus; *Robertus Creighton Esc. Natus Dunedale in boreali Scotia, per patrem Thomam ex antiqua Ravennia Toparchia: per matrem Margaretam Stuart Johannis Jacobide filiam, ex illustriss. familia Squartorum comitum Atholia, Johannis secundi Scotia regni a fratre pronepos &c. Frances the Widow of this Dr. R. Creighton, who was Daughter of Will. Waldron Esq; died on the third of the Kal. of Nov. 1683, aged 68, and was buried near to the said tomb: over whose grave was a monument, with a large Inscription thereon, put at the charge of Rob. Creighton her Son, Chauntor and Canon of Wells, Doctor of Divinity, Chaplain in ordinary to his Majesty, and Author of The vanity of the Dissenters plea for their separation from the Church of England. Sermon on 1 Cor. 1. 10. Lond. 1682. qu.*

Robert Sheringham M. of A. of Gonvil and Caius Coll. — This learned Gentleman, who was, if I mistake not, a Cambr. man born, was ejected, or at least left his Fellowship of that House in 1643, and afterwards retiring to London for a time, went thence into Holland; where he taught the Hebrew and Arabick Tongues to young men at Rotterdam, and in other places. After the Kings return in 1660, he was restored to his Fellowship, and lived in a very retired and studious condition, being then esteemed a most excellent Linguist, especially for the Oriental and Gothick Languages, as also admirably well vers'd in the original Antiquities of the English Nation, as it fully appears in his book De Anglorum gentis origine disceptatio, &c. Cantab. 1670, in a large octavo, and in his translation from Hebrew into Latin, with an illustration by Commentaries, of a Talmude book called Joma, wherein are several matters treating of Sacrifices. — Lond. 1648, in qu. He hath also published Two sermons preached at S. Maries Church in Cambridge. Lond. 1647, qu. Also The Kings Supremacy asserted, printed 1660, in qu. and other things. He died of an apoplectical fit, which caused him to fall on the fire in his Chamber in Caius College in the Winter time an. 1677.

Nich. Bernard M. of A. — He was at this time Chaplain to the learned Dr. James Usher Primate of Ireland, from whom he had received his Ordination in S. Peters Church in Drogheda, an. 1626. Afterwards he was made by him Dean of Ardagh (some say of Kilmore) and intrusted in making useful Observations and Collections for him. In the time of the Rebellion in Ireland, he being then Doctor of Divinity, he suffered much, and was often in danger of his life. At length having lost all there, he returned safe into England to attend on his Lord, became Rector of the rich Church of Whitchurch in Shropshire, by the gift of the Earl of Bridgewater, Chaplain to Oliver Lord Protector, one of his Almoners, and Preacher to the Society of Greys Inn. After the Kings Restauration in 1660, being possess'd with just doubts concerning the settlement of Ireland, he refused to return to that Country to take possession of his Deanery, and perhaps of a Bishoprick. Whereupon he continued at Whitchurch before mention'd to his dying day. He hath written (1) The penitent death of a woful sinner: or, the penitent death of John Atherton late Bishop of Waterford in Ireland, who was executed at Dublin 5 Decemb. 1640, with some Annotations on several passages. Lond. 1641, qu. 42, oct. (3) Letter from the siege of Drogheda to a friend in Dublin, 7 Jan. 1641. (4) The whole proceedings of the Siege of Drogheda in Ireland. Lond. 1642. qu. To which is added an Appendix concerning other occurrences fallen out since. He was present all the time during the said siege, and was several times in jeopardy of his life. There was another Farewel sermon preached, but that I have not yet seen. To which are added some enlargements. (8) The judgment of the late Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of Ireland, concerning first the extent of Christs death, secondly of the sabbath, &c. Lond. 1657. Whereupon Dr. Pet. Heylyn came out with an Answer to it called Respondet Petrus. Sanderson, among the Writers in the 2 vol an. 1662. What

(*) To this Rich. Murray was near of kin a certain Gent. of quality named Munge Murray Servant to King Charles 2. in his Exile, who dying at Antwerp in the times of Ufurcation, was buried at midnight in a poor Cloyster there, by Dr. George Morley an Exile for his Loyalty, at which Ceremony the Earl of Dyffart his Kinsman was present.

What other books he hath written or published I know not, nor any thing else of him, only that he died and was buried at Whit-church, in the winter time, an. 1661. leaving behind him a Son named James.

Nathan. Bernard M. of Arts. --- Among my searches I find one Nathaniel Bernard to be Lecturer of St. Sepulchers in London, an. 1629, who for uttering certain words in his prayer before Sermon at Antholines, concerning the Queen, was brought (*) into the High Commission Court: Also for preaching against his Majesties Declaration, at St. Maries Church in Cambridge 6. May 1632, and using certain dangerous expressions therein, was suspended, excommunicated, fined, and committed to the New-prison near to London, where he continued several months, &c. It doth farther appear also that one Nathaniel Bernard was beneficed in Essex, but in the beginning of the grand rebellion in 1642 he was sequestered from his calling and charge there, by several Committees sitting at Westminster, banished from his dwelling and society of his Wife and Children, and they turned out of doors, &c. Whereupon retreating for safety to Oxon, published A looking-glass for rebellion, Sermon preached 16. June 1644. in St. Maries Church in Oxon. before the two Houses of Parliament, on 1. Sam. 15. 23. Oxon. 1644. qu. Whether these two are the same, or whether he that was the Author of the Looking-glass for rebellion, was Author of the Mystery of the incarnation, being a Sermon on John 1. ver. 14. printed 1648. in qu. I know not, or whether the same who was incorporated M. of A. beforementio'd. I find one Dr. Nathaniel Bernard to have died beyond the Seas in 1656, whom I take to be the same with him, who was Author of the Looking-glass, &c.

Richard Culmer M. of A. --- This busie Man I find was born in the Isle of Thanet in Kent, educated in Grammar learning in the City of Canterbury, and in Academical in Magd. Coll. in Cambridge. Afterwards he became Minister of Goodneston in his own Country, was suspended ab officio & beneficio for refusing to read the book of sports on the Lords day. For which usage being much provoked, he became a bitter enemy to Archbishop Laud, to the Cathedral at Canterbury, and to all the prelatical Party in the beginning of the rebellion raised and carried on by the disaffected Party. About that time he became Minister of Harbledowne in Kent, and if I mistake not Vicar of St. Stephens near to Canterbury, in the place of Mr. John Gouge ejected thence for refusing the Covenant. And least he should not be esteemed as zealous a Brother for the cause as any then in being, he published a most vile Pamphlet intit. Cathedral news: or, Dean and Chapter news from Canterbury. London. 1644. qu. In which, heaping up all that he could rake together against the Cathedral of Canterbury, Archbishop, Dean, Canons and other Officers belonging thereunto, had immediately two answers from Oxon. one in a Pamphlet intit. The razing of the record, &c. Oxon. 1644. in two sh. and half in qu. and in another called, Antidotum Culmerianum: or, animadversions upon a late Pamphlet, entit. Cathedral news from Canterbury, &c. Oxon. 1644. qu. in 5 sheets. In which last is set down many actions of Culmers life, his demeanour while he was in the University of Cambridge, and in the Country, his refractoriness; impudence, covetousness, unnaturalness, &c. and what not that the Author thereof, who was a most generous Loyalist and who knew him, could put together to display him to the World. There also goes under the said R. Culmers name The Ministers bue and cry: or, a true discovery of the insufferable injuries, robberies, &c. acted against Ministers, &c. London. 1651. qu. in 3. sh. as also Lawless tythe robbers discovered who make tythe-revenue a Mock-maintenance, &c. London. 1655; besides other things which I have not yet seen. After the Kings restoration, he continued so zealous in his opinion, as to engage (for so it was notoriously suspected) in that hellish plot for which Thomas Venner, Rog. Hodgkin, &c. Anabaptists and Fifthmonarchy-men suffered in Coleman-street in London 9. Jan. 1660. But the spirit of the Man being as well known as his face, he was taken posting up from Canterbury to London, riding upon Chattam hill. Whereupon being committed for a time, he, among several examinations, was asked why he brake down those famous Windows of Christ Church in Canterbury? to which he answer'd he did it by order of Parliament; and being asked why in one window, (which represented the Devil tempting our Saviour) he brake down Christ, and left the Devil standing? he answer'd he had an order to take down Christ, but had no order to take down the Devil. Whereby was understood that those plotting brethren did mean when they intended to set up King Jesus, to pull down Christ. This Richard Culmer who was commonly called in Kent, Blew Dick of Thanet, because he wore blew in opposition to black, which he hated, lived several years after, and dying (but when I know not) was buried in the Parish Church of Monkton in the said Isle of Thanet.

Ralph Brownrig Doct. of Div. --- This learned and most religious Person was born at Ipswich in Suffolke, was bred Scholar and Fellow of Pembroke hall in Cambridge, became afterwards Prebendary of Ely, Master of Catherine hall in the said University and Archdeacon of Cowentry in the room of Dr. Sam. Brook. In 1641 he was made Bishop of Exeter (to the liking of all good Men) upon the translation of Dr. Joseph Hall to Norwich, but the Episcopal function being soon after silenced, he became, (after some years spent in the family of Tho. Rumbold Esq; afterwards a Baronet) Preacher to the Temple in London, where being settled according to his desire with all conveniences, surrendered up his pious Soul to him that gave it, 7. Dec. 1659. Whereupon his body was buried in the Church belonging to the said Temple on the 17. day of the same month, at the charge of the Templers, who also put a very fair monument over his grave. Dr. John Gauden preached then his funeral Sermon, and at the end of it printed a short account of his life; which is mostly remitted (without acknowledgment) into a book intit. Memoires of the lives, &c. published by Dav. Lloyd. This Dr. Brownrig hath two volumes of Sermons extant, whereof the second contains 25, and both 65, Sermons.

All which Cambridge Men, viz. Spurston, Rainbow, Ball, Creyghton, Sheringham, Nic. and Nath. Bernard, Culmer and Dr. Brownrig, were among many others of the University of Cambridge incorporated on the laid 15. of July. Afterwards these following were incorporated this year.

Oct. 27. Maurice Williams Doct. of Phys. of Padua in Italy. --- He was the Son of Lewis Williams of the Diocess of London, was educated in Oriel Coll. of which he became Fellow in 1620. Afterwards resigning it in 1631. settled in London, was Fellow of the Coll. of Physicians, a Knight and eminent for his practice in that faculty. He died in his house within the Parish of St. Anne Blackfriars in London, in the beginning of the year 1658 and was there (I suppose) buried.

Nov. 6. Rob. Hall Bach. of Arts of Cambridge, now of Exeter Coll. --- He was Son of Dr. Joseph Hall Bishop of Exeter, and was admitted M. of A. of this University in Feb. following. See among the created Doctors of Div. an. 1643.

Mar. ... James Primrose M. of A. of the University of Bordeaux and Doct. of Phys. of Montpelier, was incorporated Doctor of Physick. --- This learned Doctor, who was Son of Dr. Gilb. Primrose mention'd before under the year 1624. was born in the City of St. Jean d'Angely in the Province of Xantoigne in France, and afterwards lived and practised his faculty at Hull in Yorkshire; where, and in most parts of that Country, he was esteemed an eminent Physician. He hath written and published several books, the titles of some of which follow (1) Exercitationes & animadversiones in Librum Gulielmi Harvæi de motu cordis & circulatione sanguinis. London. 1630. & Lugd. Bat. 1639. qu. Answered by one Roger Drake Doct. of Phys. of Cambr. Son of Rog. Drake a Cloathworker of Breadstreet in London. (2) Academia Montspeliensis descripta, ejusdem laurus Montspeliaca. Ad Thomam Clavetum apud Oxonienses Regium professorem. Oxon. 1631. qu. (3) De vulgi in medicina erroribus, lib. 4. London. 1638. in tw. &c. Translated into English by Rob. Wittie Doct. of Phys. of Hull. London. 1651. oct. Before which translation are several copies of verses in praise of it made by certain Poets of Hull and in the neighbourhood, among whom Andrew Marvell is one (4) Apborismi necessarii, nec non quaestiones quaedam ad doctrinam medicam acquirendam perutiles, &c. Theses receptissimæ, &c. Lugd. Bat. 1647. qu. Dedicated to Dr. Tho. Clayton. (5) Arts pharmaceuticae de eligendis & componendis medicinis, &c. Amstel. 1651. in tw. (6) Enchiridion medicum practicum de morbis communibus, part. 2. Amstel. 1654. in tw. printed before in oct. in 1650. (7) De mulierum morbis & symptomatibus, lib. 5. Roterd. 1655. qu. (8) De structio fundamentorum Vop. Fortunæ. Plempii. Roterd. 1657. qu. (9) De febribus, lib. 4. Rot. 1658. qu. and hath also written Animadversions on Job. Walew, which I have not yet seen.

It must be now observed that whereas the elections of Proctors had hitherto been made by publick canvassing, it pleased the Kings Majesty to make them private and domestick. And that the said office might be equally distributed through every Coll. according to an Arithmetical proportion, a cycle of 23 years, was by command of the King made. Which, while it revolves, sheweth how each Coll. (from whence the Proctors are yearly to be taken) is to joyn till the year 1720 and after, and how many courses each College hath therein. Which cycle being remitted into the statutes by the Kings authority, and afterwards published in a sheet of Paper, together with such Statutes that belong thereunto, the factious elections by canvassing, or publick solicitations for suffrages (which oftentimes proved pernicious to the University) were now (not too late) expired. The first Proctors of the said cycle, called by some the Caroline Cycle were these.

✶ This year John French M. A. and Fellow of Merton College was elected publick Scribe or Registrary of the University, who being a careless Man (tho a good Scholar) and more fit for another, than that, employment, hath omitted throughout all his time the Incorporations of the Cantabrigians at the conclusion of the Act, having had sometimes 40, at other times 50 and more incorporated at that time, in several degrees and faculties. St. John of Lydiard Tregose in Wilts, I set down here, not that he was a Person afterwards eminent, but only to distinguish him from Oliver St. John, Son of Oliv. St. John of Caishoe in Bedfordshire Esq; (descended from the Family of the Earl of Bullingbrook) educated in Catherine Hall in Cambridge, afterwards in Lincolns Inn, where he was a Counsellor of note, especially after he had shewn his parts in arguing the case of Ship-money in behalf of Job. Hamden Esq; who refused the payment of it, an. 1637. In the year 1640, he was chosen a Burgess for Tormes in Devonshire to serve in the two Parliaments that began that year; wherein shewing his activeness, and readines in speaking against several abuses, he was first made Solicitor, and afterwards Attorney General, purposely to mollifie his humour and to make him have a good opinion of the Kings cause. But all God wot operated little or nothing in him, as having been possess'd to the contrary by O. Cromwell, whose kinswoman Elizabeth (Daughter and Coheir of ... Cromwell of Upwood in Huntingdonshire) he had before taken to his second

So that proceeding very zealously against the Prerogative and all that looked that way, was made Lord Chief Justice of the Common-pleas, was sent Embassador into the Netherlands, an. 1652, he being then commonly called Cromwells Dark-lanthorn, Chancellor of the University of Cambr. &c. and signally antimonarchical till the usurpation of Oliver Cromwell; yet notwithstanding, was one of the Lords of the other house. After his Majesties restoration, (he being excepted to certain forfeitures which the Parliament then declared) he retired to an estate at Long Thorp in Northamptonshire, which he before had purchased, and resided mostly there till the time of his death, which hapned on the last of Dec. 1673, aged 75 years or thereabouts. The first thing that made him known to the World was his Commentary on the Epistle of St. Paul written to Titus. Cambr. 1612. qu. &c. From which time to 1635 were several Sermons, expositions, &c. published under his name, the titles of most of which you may see in the Oxford Catalogue. He was also Author of The use of the Law, which some call The rule of the Law, answered by one Rob. Towne an Antinomian, in his book entit. The assertion of Grace. He died about the beginning of the year 1632, and was buried in the Church of St. Mary Aldermanbury. See more in Will. Jemmas among the writers, in the other Vol.

Ephraim Udall was entred a Student in the publick Library in the beginning of July this year, but how long he continued there, or whether he was originally of this University, I cannot yet tell. This Person who was gathering materials towards the publishing of a book or books, I take to be the same Ephraim Udall who was now, or at least shortly after, Parson of St. Austins in the Old Exchange, near St. Austins Gate in London, a Man of eminent piety, exemplary conversation, profound learning, and indefatigable industry, by preaching a Lecture at his own Parish every Tuesday in the afternoon, and if I am not mistaken, every Sunday before the first Sunday in the month, a preparatory Sermon to the blessed Sacrament of the Lords Supper. Besides all this he was esteemed a Man of an affable, courteous and peaceable conversation among his neighbours. In a word he was a Man of their own vote, viz. of the Puritans or Presbyterians, and was (without profanation be it spoken) a shining and burning light. But when he found himself mistaken in the ends and intentions of the Heads of the rebellion that broke out in 1641. and 42. when he saw that the zeal of some did degenerate into madness and frenzy, and that the endeavours of others (under the pretence of reformation) was to bring in Anarchy and Sacrilege, he published a learned Tract called by a certain (*) Author (notwithstanding P. Heylyn published a book with the same title) A coal from the Altar: And another learned book entit. Noli me tangere. Or a thing to be thought of. printed 1641. qu. Against Anarchy he also declared himself for Episcopacy, and the establish'd Liturgy, and published another book entit. Communion comeliness. Wherein is discovered the conveniency of the Peoples drawing near to the table in the sight thereof, when they receive the Lords Supper; &c. Lond. 1641. qu. In which book, by many impregnable arguments, he proves a high conveniency, if not a necessity, for that most laudable custome of having rails about the Lords Table. So that this Person being discern'd by the faction to be a friend to the Protestant Religion, established in the Church of England, was look'd upon as their enemy, and was by them branded with Popery or as popishly affected. Yet his former reputation in the City bore him up against the obloquy of private discontent for a time. At length when they came openly to defie their Sovereign, (the Lords anointed) it was a fit time to silence and remove Mr. Udall; for neither Dr. Gouge his Church in the Black-friers, or Mr. Jo. Goodwins in Colemanstreet were half so full before the Long Parliament began, as Mr. Udalls had been since. First therefore they plunder his house, take away his Library and Household stuff, then remove him from the execution of his Ministry, and sequester the profits thereof, for a Levite of their own. Afterwards they fought to commit him to Prison, tho aged and very weak and in him in body, and at length carried his aged and decrepid Wife out of her doors by force, and set her in the open street to shift for her self. This most pious and meek Man, who had been favoured in his Ministry by the Vincents of Stoke-Dawbernon in Surrey Barons, hath written other things, among which is, The good of peace; Sermon on Psal. 29. 11. Lond. 1642. qu. He surrendered up his most pious and devout Soul to God, about the latter end of May 1647, at which time he desired that his body might be buried in the Chancel of Allhallows in Honey-lane in Cheapside in Lond. unless the Parishioners of St. Austen, desire to have the disposing of it. In a most unworthy (*) Pamphlet entit. The first century of scandalous, malignant Priests, &c. print. 1643. I find these matters of Ephraim Udall, viz. 'that he hath affirmed that the great reformers of the Church now are Hypocrites; and hath made, framed and published a book, intit. Noli me tangere, without license, charging the Parliament with Sacrilege, in endeavouring to abolish Episcopacy, and to take away the Lands of Deans and Chapters, to amend therewith the maintenance of preaching Ministers; and that thereby they have brought a national sin on the Land, as was formerly done by them in taking away Monasteries, &c. For which, and other passages in the said book, he was thrown out of his rectory by the blessed Parliament, as it was then called.

Incorporations.

Jun. 30. Constantine Jessop Bach. of Arts of Trinity Coll. near Dublin. --- I shall make farther mention of him elsewhere.

July 7. Thom. Clavering M. of A. (but of what University 'tis not set down) was then incorporated in the same degree.

8. Rob. Sparke M. of A. of Aberdene } in Scotland.

Mar. 1. Job Ramsey M. of A. of S. Andrews }

One Dr. Rob. Sparke and Job Ramsey, were afterwards Publishers of several Sermons; but whether the same with the two former, I cannot tell.

This year Thom. Randolphe the most celebrated Poet of Cambr. was incorporated M. of A. but the day or month when, appears not. --- I have made mention of him at large among the Writers, under the year 1590.

Job Pell also a Graduat of the same University, was incorporated, but in what degree, whether in that of Bachelaur, or Master of Arts, it appears not. --- This person, tho I have several times occasionally mention'd in this Work, yet I shall take liberty to be more large upon him now. He was the Son of Job Pell, and he of another John, descended from those of his name in Lincolnshire, where they seem to be of ancient extraction. His first breath was drawn at Southwyke in Suffex, (of which place his Father was Minister) on S. Davids day, an. 1610, and his Grammar learning received in the Free-school (then newly founded) at Stemming a Market Town in the said County. At 13 years of age he was sent to Trin. Coll. in Cambridge, being then as good a Scholar as some Masters of Arts in that University: and tho he understood Lat. Gr. and Hebr. well, yet he never stood at an Election of Scholars and Fellows of that house. He was of a strong and good habit of body, and therefore using Recreations seldom or never, he plied his studies while others play'd. About two years after he had taken the magisterial degree, he married, and understood then, besides the said three Tongues, Arab. Ital. French, Spanish, High and Low Dutch. In Dec. 1643 he took a Journey to Amsterdam, and was there made Professor of the Mathematicks next after Mart. Hortensius, where his learned Colleague Ger. Jo. Vossius, (as he testifies de scientiis Math. c. 10.) heard him with admiration read his publick Lectures upon Diophantus; by whom likewise he is stiled a person of various erudition, and a most acute Mathematician. And in 1646 the Prince of Orange called him to be publick Professor of Philosophy and Mathematicks in the Schola illustis at Breda, founded that year by his Highness. While he continued there, William Lord Breton was sent by his Grandfather George Earl of Norwich to be his Scholar, and became a good proficient, especially in Algebra, to which his Genius most inclin'd him, and carried it on to his dying day; which hapning on the 17 of March 1679 (he being then a chief Member of the Royal Society) was buried in the Church of S. Martin in the Fields within the City of Westminster, leaving then behind him the Character among the Virtuosi of a very good Algebraist, and an excellent Musitian, having compos'd several things of that faculty. In 1652 J. Pell return'd into England, and two years after Oliver Lord Protector sent him Envoy to the Protestant Cantons of Switzerland, where he chiefly resided at Zurich. He was sent with the Title of Ablegatus, but afterwards he had order to continue there under the Title of Resident: and by that Title he was known till his Return into England a little before Oliver's death, an. 1658; at which time it was vulgarly known among the Royalists, that in the said Employment he had acted nothing to the injury of the Church of England. After his Majesties Restauration he took holy Orders from Dr. Sanderfon B. of Lincoln, had procur'd for him by Dr. Sheldon B. of Lond. the Parsonage of Fobbing in Essex an. 1661, and two years after the Parsonage of Laindon with the Chappel of Barteldon annexed, in the same County. After the said Bishop was translated to Canterbury he became one of his Chaplains, being then Doct. of Div. and expected soon after to be made a Dean, but being not a person of activity, as others, who mind not learning, are, could never rise higher than a Rector. The truth is, he was a shifteleis man as to worldly affairs, and his Tenants and Relations dealt so unkindly with him, that they cozen'd him of the profits of his Parsonages, and kept him so indigent, that he wanted necessities, even Paper and Ink, to his dying day. *This learned and curious person hath written (1) Controversia cum Christiano Longemontano de vera circuli mensura. Amst. 1647. qu. (2) An Idea of Mathematicks. Lond. 1651. in tw. written to Sam. Hartlib Esq; and printed at the end of The reformed School written by Jo. Durie. It was before printed in Engl. and Lat. (3) A Table of ten thousand square numbers, namely of all the square numbers between 0. and an hundred millions, and of their sides or roots, which are all the whole numbers between 0 and ten thousand. With an appendix concerning the endings, or last figures of all square numbers. Lond. 1672. fol. &c. He hath also succinctly and clearly demonstrated the second and tenth book of Euclid, which is in MS. in the Libr. of the Lord Breton in Cheshire, as also Archimedes his Ψαμπίης and the greatest part of Diophantus his six books of Arithmetick. Which last is done more and better, than was before done by a certain French man. Both which are in the aforesaid Library. He also published a little Anonymous Exercitation concerning Easter; and at the instance of Sir Charles Scarborough did demonstrate the proportion of the Diameter to the Circumference, and shews the reason why Archimedes did use those two numbers. The introduction to Algebra, written in High Dutch by Rhombius sometimes his Scholar at Zurich, is mostly also his (Dr. Pell's.) His Inauguration Speech at Breda is also extant, and a Letter relating to the said y was printed at Hamburg by Joachim Jungius. He was the first Inventor of that excellent way or method of the marginal working in Algebra, and was a great advancer of some things pertaining thereunto, and the mathematical Faculty. At length after he had spent his last days in great obscurity, and had been once or twice cast into Prison for debt, (with shame be it spoken to the great Virtuosi of this age) died in Dyet Street in the Parish of S. Giles in the fields near London, in the house of one Mr. Cotborne a Reader in the Church there, on Saturday 12 Dec. 1685, and was buried by the charity of Dr. Rich. Busby Schoolmaster of the Coll. School at Westm. and Dr. Job. Sharp Minister of the said Church of S. Giles, in the Vault under part of the said Church, commonly called the Vicars or Rectors Vault. His Books and Papers came after his death into the hands of the said Busby; among which is the last thing that he wrote, The Tables (which are, according to his promise in the last line of his printed Tables of squares) drawn up and finished; and which Sir Cyrill Webster when President of the Royal Society, did license for the Press. There only wants a leaf or two for the explanation of the use of them, which his death hath prevented. See more in Tho. Branker among the Writers in the second Vol. an. 1676.

Charlton* Esq; was born in London, and much about the time that he took the degree of B. of A. was entred a Student of Lincolns Inn, of which he became a Barrister and a Counsellor of some note. After the Restauration of K. Ch. 2. an. 1660, he was created Sergeant at Law; and in the year following being elected a Burgess for Ludlow in Shropshire to serve in that Parliament that began at Westminster 8 of May, was made Deputy for Sir Geffry Palmer Chief Justice of Chester, by the name of Job Charlton of Ludford in Herefordshire Esq; and in Octob. the same year (1661) was made the first Judge of the Council of Wales and Marches of the same. In 1662, he being then a Knight, was made Chief Justice of Chester, and on the 5 February 1672 he was elected Speaker of the House of Commons in the place of Sir Edw. Turner Knight. At which time he spake two Speeches to his Majesty and Parliament upon his admission to that Office, which were soon after printed in folio papers. On the 15 of the said month, he gave up the said honorable office, under pretence of indisposition of body: yet a certain (*) Writer tells us, that he (whom he calls a dull Welsh Judge) had 500 l. per an. for giving it up; at which time succeeded Edw. Seymour Esq. In the latter end of April 1680, he was constituted one of the Justices of the Common Pleas: whereupon his Chief Justiceship of Chester was confer'd upon Sir George Jeffries, Recorder of London. Afterwards he was made Chief Justice of Chester again, and was living in 1688, and perhaps may be still, being a great friend to the Ch. of England.

Mason, whom I shall anon mention in the Incorporations. He died in a good old age at Salisbury, (after he had suffer'd much for his loyalty to K. Ch. 1.) on the 27. of July 1667, and was buried at the upper end of St. Johns Coll. Chap. on the right side of the grave of Dr. Will. Juxon sometimes Archb. of Cam. In the year 1682, he built a little Chappel at his own charge (and not at that of St. Job. Coll. as, by a mistake, is elsewhere (*) told you) situate and being on the North side of the said Chappel of St. Johns, with a vault underneath. In which Chappel, was, soon after his death, a stately Monument erected, with the Effigies of him the said Dr. Baylie lying thereon, curiously engraven in alabaster from head to foot, and much resembling him in his last days. One Riebard Baylie sometimes Minister of Crawley in Suffex, wrote The Shepheards Star, or Ministers guide. Corne. ad Cler. in Apoc. 1. 16. Lond. 1640. qu. At which time, the Author, as it seems, was dead. But where he was educated, being quite different from the former, I know not.

The first of these two, was afterwards Master of Balliol College, and Margaret Professor of this University. The other who was an Esquires Son of Northamptonshire and Fellow of the said College of Balliol, was afterwards made Dean of Armagh by Tho. Earl of Strafford Lord Deputy of Ireland. But when the rebellion broke out in that Kingdom, he lost all, and fled into England; where living obscurely till the restoration of K. Ch. 2. refused to return to his Deanery, or be made a Bishop there, and accepted only of the rectory of Haseley in Oxfordshire. He died in the City of Bath 22. July 1661. aged 60 years, and was buried in the Church of S. Pet. and S. Paul there, on the north side of the stately tomb of Dr. James Mountague sometimes Bishop of the said City. In his Epitaph engraven on a brass plate, fastned to a plain white stone laying over his grave, he is thus characterized. Patriciorum proles, doctus maritus. — Summus Hyberniae Decanus, Angliae Praeconum Primas, &c. One Peter Wentworth who was Rector of Much Bromley in Essex and Chaplain to Thomas Lord Darcie, hath published A Sermon on Psal. 2. 10. 11. Lond. 1587. in oct. and is the same, if I mistake not, who wrote An exhortation to Qu. Elizabeth, and discourse of the true and lawful successor. printed in 1598. oct. But whether he was of this University, I cannot yet find, or whether he took any Degree, or was incorporated.

Feb. 6. David Cunningham M. of A. of the Univ. of Glasgow in Scotland. — He had lately received holy orders from James Spotswood Bishop of Clogher, in the Church of Clogher in Ireland.

This year was a supplicate made for one Edmund Mason D. of D. to be incorporated, but whether he was really so, it appears not. All that I can say of him is, that he was Tutor to Prince Charles, that he became Dean of Salisbury 20. March 1629, on the promotion of Dr. John Bowle or Bowles to the See of Rochester, and dying in his house in Petty-France in the City of Westminster, on the 24. of March 1634 was buried in the North cross part of the Abbey Church of St. Peter, near to the Convocation House.

Apr. 1. Thomas Turner Bachelor of Divinity lately Fellow of St. Johns Coll. and now one of his Majesties Chaplains, was actually created Doct. of Divinity, being by his Majesties command to go with him in the next month into Scotland. — This worthy Doctor, who was Son of Thomas Turner of Heckfield in Hampshire, Alderman and Mayor of Reading in Berkshire, was born in the Parish of St. Giles within the said borough, and admitted Scholar of St. Johns Coll. in 1610, being then put under the tuition of Mr. Will. Juxon, who was afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. After he had entred into holy orders, he became a practical useful Preacher, which he kept up to the very last, and was much resorted to by those, whose principles were orthodox. Afterwards he was made domestick Chaplain to Bishop Laud, Chaplain in ordinary to King Char. 1. Canon residentiary of St. Paul, and Dean of Rochester, in the place of Dr. Hen. King promoted to the See of Chichester; in which Dignity he was installed 26. Feb. 1641. Soon after he was sequestred from his Church of St. Olave in South-mark, plundered, carried thence Prisoner by a Party of Horse, and at length forced to fly to save his life. In 1643 he had the Deanery of Canterbury bestowed on him by his Majesty, on the death of Dr. George Eglington; so that he constantly adhering to the cause of his Master in the worst of his calamities, particularly at Hampton-court, and afterwards in the Isle of Wight, suffered afterwards great misery himself during the times of Usurpation, which he bore with a good courage, being then, as always before, esteemed a great exemplar of humility, most Christian simplicity, and of most fervent zeal to the Church. After the restoration of King Charles 2. he contented himself only with those spiritualities which he before had lost for his loyalty, and dying on the eighth day of Octob. 1672 aged 81 or thereabouts, was buried on the 17 of the same month within the Cathedral Church of Canterbury. At which time Dr. Peter du Moulin preaching a funeral Sermon, did speak honorably of the Person that then laid dead before him; to which Sermon, being extant, I refer the reader. 30. Job. Munlossius M. of A. of Bordeaux in France.

This year was incorporated Master of Arts John Milton, not that it appears so in the Register, for the reason I have told you in the Incorporations 1629, but from his own mouth to my friend, who was well acquainted with, and had from him, and from his Relations after his death, most of this account of his life and writings following. (1) That he was born in Breadstreet within the City of London, between 6 and 7 a clock in the morning of the ninth of Decemb. an. 1608. (2) That his Father Job. Milton who was a Scrivener living at the Spread Eagle (*) in the said street, was a Native of Halton in Oxfordshire, and his Mother named Sarah was of the antient Family of the Bradshaws. (3) That his Grandfather Milton whose Christian name was John, as he thinks, was an Under-Ranger or Keeper of the Forest of Shotover near to the said Town of Halton, but descended from those of his name who have lived beyond all record at Milton near Halton and Thame in Oxfordshire. Which Grandfather being a zealous Papist, did put away, or, as some say, disinherit, his Son, because he was a Protestant, which made him retire to London, to seek, in a manner, his fortune. (4) That he the said John Milton the Author was educated mostly in Pauls School under Alex. Gill senior, and thence at 15 years of age was sent to Christs Coll. in Cambridge, where he was put under the tuition of Will. Chappell, afterwards Bishop of Ross in Ireland, and there, as at School for 3 years before, 'twas usual with him to sit up till midnight at his book, which was the first thing that brought his eyes into the danger of blindness. By this his indefatigable study he profited exceedingly, wrot then several Poems, paraphras'd some of David's Psalms, performed the collegiate and academical exercise to the admiration of all, and was esteemed to be a virtuous and sober person, yet not to be ignorant of his own parts. (5) That after he had taken the degrees in Arts, he left the University of his own accord, and was not expelled for misdemeanours, as his Adversaries have said. Whereupon retiring to his Fathers house in the Country, he spent some time in turning over Latin and Greek Authors, and now and then made (†) excursions into the great City to buy books, to the end that he might be instructed in Mathematicks and Musick, in which last he became excellent, and by the help of his Mathematicks could compose a Song or Lesson. (6) That after five years being thus spent, and his Mother (who was very charitable to the poor) dead, he did design to travel, so that obtaining the rudiments of the Ital. Tongue, and Instructions how to demean himself from Sir Hen. Wotton who delighted in his company, and gave him Letters of commendation to certain persons living at Venice, he travelled into Italy, an. 1638. (7) That in his way thither, he touched at Paris, where Job. Scudamoure Vicount Slego, Embassador from K. Ch. 1. to the French King, received him kindly, and by his means became known to Hugo Grotius, then and there Embassador from the Qu. of Sweden; but the manners and genius of that place being not agreeable to his mind, he soon left it. (8) That thence by Geneva and other places of note, he went into Italy, and thro Legorne, Pisa, &c. he went to Florence, where continuing two months, he became acquainted with several learned men, and familiar with the choicest Wits of that great City, who introduced and admitted him into their private Academies, whereby he saw and learn'd their fashions of literature. (9) That from thence he went to Sena and Rome, in both which places he spent his time among the most learned there, Lucas Holsteinius being one; and from thence he journeyed to Naples, where he was introduced into the Acquaintance of Job. Bapt. Mansus an Italian Marquess (to whom Torquatus Tassus an Italian Poet wrot his book De amicitia) who shewed great civilities to him, accompanied him to see the rarities of that place, visited him at his Lodgings, and sent to, the testimony of his great esteem for him, in this Distich,

Ut mens, forma, decor, facies, mos, si pietas sis,
Non Anglus, verum hercule Angelus ipse fores.

(*) The Arms that Job. Milton did use and seal his Letters with, were Argent a spread Eagle with two heads gules, legs'd and beak'd sable. (†) See in Jo. Milton's book intit. Disquisitio secundae Edit. Hag. Com. 1654. p. 61. &c.

And excus'd himself at parting for not having been able to do him more honour, by reason of his resolute owning his (Protestant) Religion: which resoluteness he using at Rome, many there were that dared not to express their civilities towards him, which otherwise they would have done: And I have heard it confidently related, that for his said Resolutions, which out of policy, and for his own safety, might have been then spared, the English Priests at Rome were highly disgusted, and it was question'd, whether the Jesuits his Countrymen there, did not design to do him mischief. Before he left Naples he return'd the Marquis an acknowledgment of his great favours in an elegant copy of Verses entit. Mansus, which is among the Latin Poems. (10) That from thence (Naples) he thought to have gone into Sicily and Greece, but upon second thoughts he continued in Italy, and went to Luca, Bononia, Ferrara, and at length to Venice; where continuing a month, he went and visited Verona and Millan. (11) That after he had ship'd the books and other goods which he had bought in his travels, he returned thro Lombardy, and over the Alpes to Geneva, where spending some time, he became familiar with the famous Job. Deodate D.D. Thence, going thro France, he returned home, well fraught with Knowledge and Manners, after he had been absent one year and three months. (12) That soon after he settled in an house in S. Brides Churchyard near Fleetstreet in London, where he instructed in the Lat. Tongue two Youths named John and Edw. Philips, the Sons of his Sister Anne by her Husband Edward Philips: both which were afterwards Writers, and the eldest princip'd as his Uncle. But the times soon after changing, and the Rebellion thereupon breaking forth, Milton sided with the Faction, and being a man of parts, was therefore more capable than another of doing mischief, especially by his pen, as by those books which I shall anon mention, will appear. (13) That at first we find him a Presbyterian and a most sharp and violent opposer of Prelacy, the established ecclesiastical Discipline and the orthodox Clergy. (14) That shortly after he did set on foot and maintained very odd and novel Positions concerning Divorce, and then taking part with the Independents, he became a great Antimonarchist, a bitter Enemy to K. Ch. 1. and at length arrived to that monstrous and unparallel'd height of profligate impudence, as in print to justify the most execrable Murder of him the best of Kings, as I shall anon tell you. Afterwards being made Latin Secretary to the Parliament, we find him a Commonwealths man, a hater of all things that looked towards a single person, a great reproacher of the Universities, scholastical degrees, decency and uniformity in the Church. (15) That when Oliver ascended the Throne, he became the Latin Secretary, and proved to him very serviceable when employed in business of weight and moment, and did great matters to obtain a name and wealth. To conclude, he was a person of wonderful parts, of a very sharp, biting and satirical wit. He was a good Philosopher and Historian, an excellent Poet, Latinist, Grecian and Hebrician, a good Mathematician and Musician, and so rarely endowed by nature, that had he been but honestly principled, he might have been highly useful to that party, against which he all along appeared with much malice and bitterness. As for the things which he hath published, are these, (1) Of Reformation, touching Church Discipline in England, and the causes that hitherto have hindered it, &c. Lond. 1641. qu. At which time, as before, the Nation was much divided upon the Controversies about Church Government between the prelatical party, and Puritans, and therefore Milton did with great boldness and zeal offer his judgment as to those matters in his said book of Reformation. (2) Animadversions upon the Remonstrants defence against Smectymnus. Lond. 1641. qu. Which Rem. defence was written (as 'tis said) by Dr. Jos. Hall Bishop of Exeter. (3) Apolo- gyy against the humble Remonstrant. This was written in vindication of his Animadversions. (4) Against prelatical Episcopacy. This I have not yet seen. (5) The reason of Church Government; nor this. (6) The doctrine and discipline of divorce, &c. in two books. Lond. 1644-45. qu. To which is added in some Copies a translation of The judgment of Mart. Bucer concerning divorce, &c. It must be now known, that after his settlement, upon his return from his Travels, he in a months time courted, married, and brought home to his house in London, a Wife from Forthill lying between Halton and Oxford, named Mary the Daughter of Mr. — Powell of that place Gent. But she, who was very young, and had been bred in a family of plenty and freedom, being not well pleas'd with her Husbands retired manner of life, did shortly after leave him and went back in the Country with her Mother. Whereupon, tho he sent divers pressing invitations, yet he could not prevail with her to come back, till about 4 years after when the Garrison of Oxon was surrendred (the nighness of her Fathers house to which having for the most part of the mean time hindered any communication between them) she of her own accord returned and submitted to him, pleading that her Mother had been the chief promoter of her frowardness. But he being not able to bear this abuse, did therefore upon consideration, after he had consulted many eminent Authors, write the said book of Divorce, with intentions to be separated from her, but by the compromising of her Relations the matter did not take effect: so that the continuing with him ever after till her death, he had several Children by her, of whom Deborah was the third Daughter, trained up by the Father in Lat. and Greek, and made by him his Amanuensis. (7) Tetrachordon: Expositions upon the four chief places in Scripture, which treat on marriage, on Gen. 1. 27, 28. &c. Lond. 1646. qu. (8) Colasterion: A reply to a nameless answer against the doctrine and discipline of divorce, &c. printed 1645. qu.

Upon his publication of the said three books of Marriage and Divorce, the Assembly of Divines then sitting at Westminster took special notice of them, and thereupon, tho the Author had obliged them by his pen in his defence of Smectymnus and other their Controversies had with the Bishops, they impatient of having the Clergies jurisdiction (as they reckon'd it) invaded, did, instead of answering, or disproving what those books had asserted, cause him to be summoned before the House of Lords: but that House, whether approving the Doctrine, or not favouring his Accusers, did soon dismiss him. To these things I must add, that after his Majesties Restauration, when the subject of Divorce was under consideration with the Lords upon the account of John Lord Ros or Roos his separation from his Wife Anne Pierpons eldest Daughter to Henry Marquis of Dorchester, he was consulted by an eminent Member of that House, as he was about that time by a chief Officer of State, as being the prime person that was knowing in that affair. (9) Of Education, written or addressed to Mr. Sam. Hartlib. In this Treatise he prescrib'd an easie and delightful method for the training up of Gentry to all sorts of Literature, that they might at the same time by like degrees advance in virtue and abilities to serve their Country, subjoyning directions for their obtaining other necessary or ornamental Accomplishments. And to this end that he might put it in practice, he took a larger house, where the Earl of Barrore sent by his Aunt the Lady Ranelagh, Sir Thomas Gardiner of Essex, to be there with others (besides his two Nephews) under his Tuition. But whether it were that the tempers of our Gentry would not bear the strictness of his discipline, or for what other reasons I cannot tell, he continued that course but a while. (10) Areopagitica: A speech for the liberty of unlicensed printing, to the Parliament of England. Lond. 1644. qu. written to vindicate the freedom of the Press from the Tyranny of Licensers, who for several Reasons deprive the publick of the benefit of many useful Authors. (11) Poemata: quorum pleraque intra annum aetatis vigesimum conscripsit auctor, &c. Lond. 1645. oct. (12) A mask. — printed 1645. oct. (13) Poems, &c. — printed the same year. Hitherto we find him only to have published political things, but when he saw, upon the coming of K. Charles 1. to his Tryal, the Presbyterian Ministers clamorously to assert in their Sermons and Writings the privileges of Kings from all accountableness, or (to speak in the language of that time) Non-resistance and Passive Obedience to be the Doctrine of all the reformed Churches (which he took to be only their malignity against the Independents who had supplanted them more than for any principles of Loyalty) he therefore to oppose that Thesis (which as he conceiv'd did encourage all manner of Tyranny) did write and publish from divers Arguments and Authorities. (13) The tenure of Kings and Magistrates: proving that it is lawful, &c. to call to account a Tyrant or King, and after due conviction to depose and put him to death, &c. Lond. 1649-50. qu. Soon after the King being beheaded to the great astonishment of all the World, and the Government thereupon changed, he was, without any seeking of his, by the endeavours of a private acquaintance, who was a member of the new Council of State, chosen Latin Secretary, as I have before told you. In this publick station his abilities and acuteness of parts, which had been in a manner kept private, were soon taken notice of, and he was pitch'd upon to elude the artifice (so it was then by the Faction called) of Eikon Basilica. Whereupon he soon after published (14) Iconoclastes in answer to a book entit. Eikon Basilica, the portrature of his sacred Majesty in his solitudes and sufferings. Lond. 1649-50. qu. ib. 1690. oct. which being published to the horror of all sober men, nay even to the Presbyterians themselves, yet by the then dominant party it was esteemed an excellent piece, and perform'd answerably to the expectation of his Wit and Pen. After the Return of King Charles 2. this book was called in by Proclamation, dated 13 Aug. 1660, at which time the Author (who a little before had left his house in Petty France which had a door going into S. James's Park) absconded, for fear of being brought to a legal Tryal, and so consequently of receiving condign Punishment. At the same time also, was called in a book of John Goodwin then lately a Minister in Colemanstreet in Lond. entit. The Obstructors of Justice: written in defence of the Sentence against his Majesty Charles 1. At which time also the said Goodwin absconded to prevent Justice. Soon after the publication of Iconoclastes, Salmasius a Professor in Holland, who had in a large Treatise not long before, maintained, as 'tis said, the parity of Church Governors against Episcopacy, did publish Defensio regia, pro Carolo 1. Rege Anglia, wherein he justified several matters, as Milton conceived, to the contradiction of his former book. Whereupon he wrot and published (15) Pro populo Anglicano defensio contra Claudii Anonymi alias Salmasii defensionem regiam. Lond. 1651. fol. said to be written in more correct Latin than that of Salmasius. While Milton was writing the said book, his sight began to fail him, and before it was fully compleated, one of his eyes did absolutely perish. In the month of June the same year (1651) the said book was burnt at Tholouse by an arrest from the Parliament, under the Government of the Duke of Orleans: And in Sept. following it was the usual practice of Marchm. Nedham a great crony of Milton, to abuse Salmasius in his publick Mercury called Politicus, (as Milton had done before in his Defensio) by saying among other things that Christina Qu. of Sweden had cashiered him her favour, by understanding that he was a pernicious parasite, and a promoter of Tyranny. After his Majesties Restauration, this book also was called in by the same Proclamation before mention'd. But so it was, that in 1652, a certain book entit. Regis sanguinis clamor, &c. being being published, Salmasius was highly extol'd in it, and Milton had his just Character given therein. The nameless Author of which being for a considerable time sought out, but in vain, by Milton, he at length learn'd by certain Ministers of State sent to the Republick of England, (who would sometimes visit him as a learned man) that it was written by one Alex. More formerly a Professor and Minister at Geneva, then living in Holland. Whereupon he published (16) Pro populo Anglicano defensio secunda, contra infamem libellum Anonymum, cui titulus, Regii sanguinis clamor ad cœlum adversus patricidas Anglicanos. Lond. 1654, and at Hag. Com. the same year, in oct. Upon the writing of this book, the Author Milton lost the other eye; and tho to his charge he used many means, yet he could never recover either of his eyes. This book entit. Reg. sang. clam. &c. tho written by Dr. Peter du Moulin Prebendary of Canterbury, as it afterwards well appeared, yet Milton upon the reports before mention'd, could not be convinced to the contrary, but that it was written by the said More, and therefore not only abused him in his Answers, but by his friend Nedham in his Politician, whereby the reputation of that learned person was severely rouch'd. (17) Pro se defensio contra Alex. Mornum Ecclesiastice, libelli famosi, cui tit. Regii sanguinis clamor, &c. Lond. 1655, oct. In this book he is exceeding bitter against Morus, and pretends to give a true history of his notorious Impurities both at Geneva and Leyden, and an account of his own particular life to vindicate himself from what, as he thought, was scurrilously said of him by Morus. At the end of the said book, the Author Milton added Ad Alex. Mori supplementum responsio. About the time that he had finished these things, he had more leisure, and time at command, and being dispenced with by having a substitute allowed him, and sometimes Instructions sent home to him from attending his office of Secretary, he began that laborious work of amassing out of all the classick Authors both in prose and verse a Latin Theſaurus, to the emendation of that done by Stephanus; also the composing of Paradise lost, and of the framing a Body of Divinity out of the Bible. All which, notwithstanding the several troubles that befall him in his fortunes, he finished after his Majesty's Restauration. But to go on with the Cat. of his Books according to time, take these as they follow, (18) Treatise of civil power in ecclesiastical causes, &c. Lond. 1659. in tw. (19) Considerations touching the likeliest means to remove Hirelings out of the Church. Lond. 1659. in tw. (20) Ready and easie way to establish a free Commonwealth, and the excellencies thereof compared with, &c. Lond. 1659, in two sheets and an half in qu. This being published in Feb. the same year, was answer'd by G. S. in his Dignity of Kingship. Lond. 1670. qu.* This History when it first came abroad, had only the reputation of the putting of our old Authors neatly together in a connex'd story, not abtaining from some lashes at the ignorance, or I know not what, of those times. (26) Artis logicæ plenior institutio ad Petri Rami methodum concinnata. Lond. 1672 in tw. (27) Of true Religion, Heresie, Schism, Toleration, and what best means may be used against the growth and increase of Popery. Lond. 1673-4. oct. Among these are mixed some of his Poems before mention'd, made in his youthful years. (29) Epistolarum familiarium lib. 1. Lond. 1674. oct. (30) Prolusiones quadam Oratorie in Coll. Christi habitæ. printed with the familiar Epistles. (31) Literæ Pseudo-senatus Anglicani, Cromwellii, re ignorum perduellum nomine ac jussu conscriptæ. printed in 1676, in tw. (32) *Character of the Long Parliament and of the Assembly of Divines. (33) Brief History of Muscovia and of other less known Countries, lying eastward of Russia as far as Cathay, &c. Lond. 1682. oct. (34) The right of the People over Tyrants. printed lately in qu. These, I think, are all the things that he hath yet extant: those that are not, are The body of Divinity, which my friend calls Idea Theologia, now, or at least lately, in the hands of the Authors Acquaintance called Cyr. Skinner, living in Mark lane London, and the Latin Theſaurus in those of Edw. Philipps his Nephew. At length this great Scholar and frequent Writer dying in his house at Bunhill near London in a fit of the Gout, but with so little pain, that the time of his expiring was not perceived by those in the room, on the ninth or tenth day of Novemb. 1674, was buried in the grave of his Father (who died very aged about 1647) in the Chancel of the Church of S. Giles near Cripplegate, London. See more of him in Sir Walter Raleigh among the Writers numb. 458. He was of a moderate Stature, and well proportion'd, of a ruddy Complexion, light brown hair, and had handsome features, yet his eyes were none of the quickest. When he was a Student in Cambridge he was so fair and clear, that many called him the Lady of Christs Coll. His deportment was affable, and his gate erect and manly, bespeaking courage and undauntedness. On which account he wore a sword while he had his sight, and was skill'd in using it. He had a delicate tuneable voice, an excellent ear, could play on the Organ, and bear a part in vocal and instrumental Musick. The Estate which his Father left him was but indifferent, yet by his frugality he made it serve him and his. Out of his Secretaries Salary he saved 2000 l. which being lodg'd in the Excise, and that bank failing upon his Majesties Restauration, he utterly lost that sum. By the great Fire which hapned in London in the beginning of Sept. 1666, he had a house in Breadstreet burnt, which was all the real Estate that he had then left. To conclude, he was more admired abroad, and by Foreigners, than at home; and was much visited by them when he liv'd in Petty France, some of whom have out of pure devotion gone to Breadstreet to see the House and Chamber where he was born, &c.

Nov. 14. Edmund Ludlow of Trin. Coll. — This person who was born at Mayden Bradley in Wils. did upon the breaking out of the Rebellion side with the Presbyterians, became a Colonel, Governour of Wardour Castle in his own Country, one of the prime Officers in the Parliament Army, and at length late, as one of the Judges when K. Ch. 1. was condemn'd to dye. Afterwards he went into Ireland; where he was Lieutenant General of the Army appointed by the Parliament, and Lord Deputy for a time upon the death of Ireton. In the time of Oliver he was a Major General, a grand fanatick, and a zealous favourer of all such who were anti-monarchical; but upon a foresight of the Kings Restauration he fled into a strange land to avoid the halter, was at Loſanne with Goff, Wbaley, Fare, when Lisle was kill'd there in Aug. 1664, and soon after, as 'twas then said, he, with his Wife, retired to Zurich. He was the Son of Sir Hen. Ludlow of Mayden Bradley before mentioned Knight, elected a Knight for his County to serve in that Parliament which began at Westminster 3 Nov. 1640, where he shewed himself an enemy to the King and his party, and dying at Mayden Bradley 1660 or thereabouts, was there buried. By Letters dated at London 19 of Sept. 1689, I was informed that the said Edm. Ludlow, who had lived several years in Switzerland, was daily expected at Westminster, with four Deputies from the Cantons, to make an Offer to his Majesty K. Will. 3. to raise men in that Country for his service. How true this is I know not; yet sure I am, that the said Ludlow was then in London, and that his being there being notoriously known, an Address was presented to his Majesty from the House of Commons on the 7 of Nov. following or thereabouts, by the hands of Sir Edward Seymour a Member of Parliament, that he would be pleased to put out a Proclamation for the apprehending of Col. Ludlow attainted for the Murder of K. Ch. 1. &c. Whereupon Ludlow hastning away (as soon as he heard of the motion of an Address) to the sea side, lay almost a Fortnight before he could be accommodated with a good Wind, and then returned to Switzerland in the year of his age 74 at least. In the beginning of March 1690, was published a pernicious Pamphlet entit. A Letter from Major Gen. Ludlow to Sir E. S. (Seymour) comparing the Tyranny of the first four years of K. Charles the Martyr with the Tyranny of the four years reign of the late abdicated King James 2. occasion'd by reading Dr Pelings leud Harangues upon the 30 of January, being the Anniversary or Lond. 1650. oct. and hath written, as I have been informed by one or more Doctors of his Faculty, Principia medicinae. He lived and practised in Limestreet in London during the Reign of Oliver. One of both his names lived at Northcreeke in Norfolk, and died in 1671, who perhaps was Son of the said Dr. Regimorter. Qu.

CREATIONS.

Aug. 13. Robert Skinner Bishop elect of Brislow, lately Fellow of Trin. Coll. and Chaplain in ord. to his Majesty Ch. 1. was diplomated, or actually created D. of D. by a Diploma then dated under the Seal of the University.

The King, Queen, and their respective Courts having been entertained this year by the University on the 29 and 30 of August, it was his Majesties pleasure upon his leaving the University, which was the 31 of the same month, that there should be a Creation in several faculties. Whereupon the names of those that made sure to be actually created, being given into the hands of the Chancellour by one of the Secretaries of State, was a Convocation celebrated on the same day in the Afternoon, wherein were actually created two Bachelours of Arts, two Bach. of Law, five and forty Masters of Arts, ten Bachelours of Divinity, three Doctors of the Civ. Law, three Doctors of Physick, and one and twenty Doctors of Divinity. The names of some who were so created are these,

Bach. of Arts.

Frederick Sagittarie a German of Queens Coll. Son of Fred. Sag. of Hereford in the Palatinat. --- He was afterwards a created Doct. of Physf. of this University, and practised his faculty in Dorsetshire.

John Kingsmyll of Trin. Coll. Son of Sir Hen. Kingsmyll of Sidmanton in Hampshire Knight.

Mast. of Arts.

Prince Rupert Count Palatine of the Rhine and Duke of Bavaria, second Son of Frederick Prince Elector of the Empire and King of Bohemia, by Princess Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of James 1. King of England, was the first person that was actually created Master of Arts. --- He was afterwards an heroic General under his Uncle K. Ch. 1. when the Civil Wars began in England, an. 1642, a Knight of the Garter, Earl of Holderness, and Duke of Cumberland. He gave way to fate (after he had performed great Exploits at Sea against the Dutch) 29 Nov. 1682, aged 63 or thereabouts, and was buried in a Vault on the south side of the Chappel of K. Hen. 7. at Westminster, leaving then behind him a natural Son usually called Dudley Rupert, begotten on the body of one of the Daughters of Hen. Bard Vicount Bellomont: which Dudley, styled in Prince Ruperts last Will and Test. Dudley Bard, was educated in Grammar learning in Eaton School, being then a modest and meek-temper'd Youth, as was by all there observed. But he being not much made for Learning, he was bred to Arms, (I think under Sir Jonas Moor) at the Tower, and after the Prince's death, went into the Palatinat to look after a Legacy and a great House left him there, and in Germany, and was, as 'tis said, kindly received by the Prince Palatine. Soon after going to the Siege of Buda, he was kill'd in a desperate Attempt made by some English Gentlemen there, upon a breach made in the Walls or Fortifications of that City, in July or Aug. 1686. At which time his signal Valour being expressed, tho scarce twenty years of age, his loss was much lamented. Pr. Rupert had also a natural Daughter commonly called The Lady Ruperta, begotten, as I have been informed at the Office of Arms, on the body of one Mrs. Margaret Hewes.

James Steuart Duke of Lenox in Scotland, afterwards of Richmond in England, sometimes a Student in Trin Coll. in Cambridge. --- He was slain in the Battel at Kinton commonly called Edghill fight 23 Oct. 1642, and was buried at the upper end of Ch. Ch. Chaire in Oxon.

Will. Seymour Earl of Hertford. --- He was afterwards Duke of Somerset. See more among the Bachelours of Arts, under the year 1607.

Rob. D'evreux Earl of Essex, who in the year 1605 had been created M. of A. was now actually created again. --- He was afterwards made Lieutenant General of his Majesties Army when he went his Expedition against the Scots, an. 1639, Lord Chamberlain of his Household, and soon after (such was the mutability of the man) Captain General of the Army raised by the Parliament against the King. He hath several letters extant written to the Speaker and Parliament during the time that he bore that Office. He died 14 Sept. 1646, and was buried in S. Pauls Chappel (northward of the Capella Regum) in the Abbey Church of S. Peter in Westminster.

Thomas Howard Earl of Berks. --- He afterwards suffer'd much for the Cause of K. Ch. 1. and dying 16 July 1669, was buried in the Abbey Ch. at Westminster.

Thom. Bruce Earl of Elgin in Scotland. --- He was afterwards made a Baron of England by the Title of Lord Bruce of Whorlton in Yorkshire, and departed this life 21 Dec. 1663, leaving then behind him a Son named Robert, created Earl of Aylesbury in Bucks. by K. Ch. 2. who dying on the 19 of Octob. or thereabouts, an. 1685, (he being then Lord Chamberlain to the household of K. Jam. 2.) was buried at Ampthill in Bedfordshire, where.

if I mistake not, the body of his Father had been interr'd. He was a learned Person, and otherwise well-qualified, was well vers'd in English History and Antiquities, a lover of all such that were Professors of those studies, and a curious collector of MSS, especially of those which related to England and English antiquities. Besides also he was a lover of the regular Clergy, as those of Bedfordsh. and Bucks. know well enough.

Henry Spencer of Magd. Coll. eldest Son of William Lord Spencer Baron of Wormleighton. --- This Henry was afterwards Earl of Sunderland, and taking part with K. Ch. 1. when he was opposed by his rebellious Subjects, was slain in the Battel at Newbury in Berks 20. Sept. 1643. whereupon his body was carried to Braynton commonly call'd Brinton in Northamptonshire and there buried.

George Lord Digby of Magd. Coll. the eldest Son of John Earl of Bristol.

William Lord Craven of Trin. Coll. --- He was afterwards Earl of Craven, and is now (1690) living.

Will. Herbert of Exet. Coll. a younger Son of Philip Earl of Pembroke.

Henry Coventrie Bach. of Arts and Fellow of Allf. Coll. Son of Thom. Lord Coventrie Keeper of the great Seal. --- See among the Bachelours of Law, an. 1638.

Rich. Lovelace a Gentleman Commoner of Gloc. Hall. --- Afterwards eminent for his valour and poetry, as I shall tell you either in the next Vol. or elsewhere.

Hen. Jacob the curious critick of Merton Coll.

Ralph Brideoake of New Coll. sometimes a Student in that of Brasn. --- He was afterwards Bishop of Chichester.

Frederick Schiede of the Palat. in Germ.

Nich. Oudart Esq. --- This Person who was born at Mechlin in Brabant, and brought from beyond the Seas by Sir Henry Wotton (who afterwards trusted him with his domestick Affairs) studied Physick, of which faculty he was Bachelaur, as I shall tell you among the Creations under the year 1642. About which time he became Secretary to Sir Edw. Nicholas one of the Secretaries of State at Oxon, and afterwards attending King Charles 1. in the Treaty in the Isle of Wight, an. 1648. lived for some time obscurely. At length he became Secretary to the Princes of Orange, then Latin Secretary to William Prince of Orange, and of his Council; in which capacity I find him in 1669. and afterwards Latin Secretary to King Charles 2. He paid his last debt to nature in, or near to, Whitehall about the day of the nativity of our Saviour, an. 1681. One Nich. Oudart of Bruxells who was official of Mechlin, died 1608, whom I take to be Father or Uncle to the former.

Paul Becker of the Palatinate.

George Kendall of New Inn.

Job. Suarofius, &c.

Bach. of Div.

Sam. Keme or Kem of Magd. Hall. sometimes of Magd. Coll.

Mark Zeiglier of Exeter Coll. who entitles himself Archipalatinus. --- He was a learned Man, and whethers he hath published any thing I cannot justly tell. He became a Sojourner in the University 1623.

Doct. of Law.

Sir Dudley Carleton of Holcombe in Oxfordshire Knight. --- He was soon after made one of the Clerks of the Council, and whether Secretary of State, as an Author (*) of no good credit tells us, I cannot tell. See more of him in Sir Dudley Carleton among the Writers, under the year 1631. num. 519.

Sam. Henton or Hinton. --- He died at Lichfield in 1668.

Will. Turner of Wadham Coll. --- He was now, or soon after a Civilian of Doctors Commons, and in the time of the rebellion he sided with those that were uppermost. In the middle of Jan. 1659 he was appointed by the Rump Parliament then newly restored by General Geor. Monk, one of the Judges of the Court of Admiralty and of the Court for Probats of Wills, Dr. Walt. Walker and Mr. W. Camley being the other two. And after his Majesties restauration he became Chancellor of Winchester, a Knight, and Advocate to the Duke of York; He died at Richmond in Surrey, as I conceive, an. 1670.

At the same time that these were created Doctors of the Civil Law, was a proposal made in the Convocation that Sir John Finet Knight, Master of the Ceremonies, should be also created, or at least diplomated Doctor of the said faculty, but whether he was really so, it appears not in the publick register. However what I have to say of him, shall be briefly this, viz. (1) That he was the Son of Rob. Finet of Souton near Dover in Kent, Son and Heir of Thomas, Son and Heir of John Finet of Siena in Italy, (where his name is antient, who came into England in the quality of a Servant to Cardinal Laur. Campegius Legat a latere from the Pope) by his Wife, the Daughter of one Mantell, sometimes a Maid of honor to Qu. Catherine the Royal Consort of K. Hen. 8. (2) That the said John Finet was always bred in the Court, where by his wit, innocent mirth, and great skill in composing songs, he pleased K. Jam. 1. very much. (3) That he was sent into France an. 1614. about matters of publick concern, and in the year after he received the honour of Knighthood at Whitehall; about which time he was made Assistant to the Master of the Ceremonies, with reversion of that place. (4) That upon the death of Sir Lewn Lewknore Master of the Ceremonies, he had that office confer'd upon him 12. March 1626, being then in good esteem with his Majesty King Charles 1. (5) That he wrote Fineti Philoxeni: Some choice observations touching the reception and precedence, the treatment and audience, the punctilio's and contests of foreign Ambassadors in England. Lond. 1656. oct. Published by James Howell and by him dedicated to Philip Lord Lisle. (6) That he translated from French into English, The beginning, continuance and decay of Estates, &c. Lond. 1606. qu. Written originally by R. de Lusing. And lastly that dying 12. July 1641 aged 70 years, was buried in the North side of the Church of St. Martin in the Fields, within the City of Westminster, by the body of Jane his sometimes Wife, daughter of Henry Lord Wentworth of Netstead in Suffolk, Sister to the Earl of Cleveland.

John Carter of Magd. Hall. --- He was afterwards a practitioner of his faculty, near to Chancery-lane in Lond.

Doct. of Div.

George Warburton of Brasn. Coll. was the first and senior Theologist that was actually created Doct. of Div. --- He was a Cheshire man born of an antient Family, had been Chaplain in Ord. to K. Jam. 1. and afterwards to K. Ch. 1. was installed Dean of Gloucester (after Dr. Tho. Winniff's removal to the Deanery of St. Pauls) on the eleventh of June 1631, and on the 15. of Aug. (or thereabouts) following, became Dean of Wells, on the death of Ralph Barlow. He hath published King Melchizedek, Sermon at Court at East-hamstead 2. Sept. 1623. Lond. 1623. qu. and whether any thing else, I cannot yet tell. In 1640 he went to London to attend the Convocation of the Clergy that began with the Long Parliament, and dying in Drury-lane in the month of Dec. or thereabouts, an. 1641, was succeeded in his Deanery by Dr. Walt. Rawleigh.

James Hena or Hamay a Scot.

Walt. Raleigh of Magd. Coll. --- He was admitted to the Deanery of Wells 13. January 1641.

Edw. Burby of Linc. Coll. --- He was now Prebendary and Archdeacon of Winchester; which Dignity was before enjoyed by Ranulph Barlow D. D. of Cambridge.

George Gillingham of Pemb. Coll. --- He was at this time one of his Majesties Chaplains, and on the 2. Nov. 1639 was installed Canon of Windfore in the place of Dr. Joh. Elly deceased. He had other preferments, and died 16. Dec. 1668. being then Rector of Chalton in Hampshire.

Daniel Escott Warden of Wadham Coll.

The first of these three was afterwards Bishop of Lincoln, and the last, Bishop of Landaff.

Samuel Marsh of Trin. Coll. sometimes one of the Proctors of the University, and at this time Preb. of Roscombe in the Church of Sarum.

Steph. Goffe or Gough of St. Albans Hall, lately of Mert. Coll. --- This Person who was Son of Steph. Goffe the puritanical Minister of Stanmer in Sussex, travelled into the Low-countries after he had taken his Masters Degree, and became Chaplain to the Regiment of Col. H. Vere, whereby he gained good acquaintance and experience, which wound him at his return so much into the favour of Hen. Fermyn (afterwards Earl of St. Alban) that he was made one of the Kings Chaplains, by which title he was created Doctor of Divinity, and afterwards employed in the quality of a minor Agent and Envoy into France, then into Flanders, Holland and other Countries, &c. In the time of the rebellion he also acted much for his Master in several Countries beyond the Seas, and did him great Service, but when he saw the English Church ruin'd and Monarchy declining, he changed his Religion for that of Rome, and was thereupon taken into the society of the Oratorians at Paris, an order very famous there, tho but little known among us. The brethren whereof having liberty to improve their particular estates (for things are not common among them, as with other orders) he grew rich upon the stock which he had formerly gathered together by his endeavours, whereby he was in capacity sometimes to do courtesies for his exil'd Countrymen. Abrah. Comley the Prince of Poets, was, while at Paris, preferr'd and plac'd by him (tho the story is perverted) in the Family of the said noble Henry, then Lord Fermyn: Through whose heroical bounty he was afterwards design'd to the Mastership of the Savoy, but by certain enemies to the Muses, was depriv'd of it. Afterwards Henrietta Maria the Queen Mother to whom Goffe was Chaplain, committed to the said Goffs care the tuition of the natural Son of K. Ch. 2. known then by the name of James Crofts, afterwards Duke of Monmouth; with whom continuing till he was about nine years of age, was taken from him and committed to the

This Doctor Goffe who was esteemed by some a learned Man and well read in the Fathers, and therefore respected by Gerard Jo. Vossius, and his Negotiations taken by the Rebels at the battel at Sherburne in Yorkshire (which, with George Lord Digby's Cabinet and other things, were published at Lond. in qu. 1646.) I know not. He had a younger Brother named John Goffe who was a true Son of the Church of England, as I shall tell you among the Writers under the year 1661. and another called William, originally a Salter (or a Hatter as some say) in London, who cloving with the Presbyterians in the time of the Rebellion, became a Colonel, great with *Oliv. In Nov. 1644 he had the Deanery of York conferr'd upon him, on the death of Dr. Job. Scot, who died in the Kings bench Prison in Southwark. At which time his Majesty being at Oxon, Dr. Pet. Heylyn endeavoured by his friends to obtain that Dignity, but was put aside. After his Majesties restauration, he was elected 17. of Aug. and installed 20. of the same month, an. 1660. and dying 13. Oct. 1663. aged 78, was buried near to the grave of Matthew Hutton sometimes Archbishop of York, in the South Isle joyning to the Cath. Church there. In his Deanery succeeded Will. Hitch of the same University succeeded in Dec. 1664. Dr. Marsh hath one or more Sermons extant.

Afterwards he receded to Oxon. and shew'd himself a great Royalist, but when he saw that the Kings cause declined, he came in to Rainborough a Colonel on the Parliament side, in Apr. 1646, and afterwards retiring to London, struck in with the Usurpers, and was by Oliver made Serjeant at Law in Nov. 1656. In Jan. 1659 he, with Sir Tho. Widdrington and Serj. Tyrrell, were made Commissioners of the great Seal, and after his Majesties restauration, he was made Serjeant at Law again 1660. Januar. 26. Martin Westcomb Bach. of Arts of the University of Toulouse in France.

Two Bachelours of Arts of Qu. Coll. in Cambridge named Nich. Frost and Tho. Lee were incorporated this year, which is all I know of them, only that the first proceeded M. of A. in the year following, as a member of Ball. Coll.

This year among several Cambridge Men that were incorporated Masters of Arts, must not be forgotten John Cleaveland the Poet, not that it appears so in the publick register, but from the relation of a certain Person who was then a Master of this University. --- This Mr. Cleaveland, who was the Vicars Son of a Market-town called Hinkley in Leicestershire, was born there, and in the same town received his Grammatical education under one Mr. Rich. Vines a zealous Puritan; where obtaining a perfection in Lat. and Greek learning was sent to Christs Coll. in Cambridge; and in short time proving an exquisite Orator and pure Latinist, was prefer'd to a Fellowship of St. Johns Coll. in the said University; and as the delight and ornament of that house he continued there, about nine years, and from his Oratory became an eminent Poet. At length upon the eruption of the Civil War, he was the first Champion that appear'd in verse for the Kings cause against the Presbyterians; for which, and his signal Loyalty, he was ejected thence. Whereupon retiring to Oxon the Kings head quarter, lived there for a time, and was much venerated and respected not only by the great Men of the Court, but by the then Wits remaining among the affrighted and distressed muses, for his high Panegyrics and smart Satyrs. From Oxon he went to Newark upon Trent, where he was so highly valued by all, especially by the then most loyal and generous Sir Rich. Willis Baronet the Governour of that Garison for his Majesty, that he was made Judge Advocate and continued there till the surrender thereof for the use of the Parliament, shewing himself a prudent Judge for the King and a faithful Advocate for the Country. Afterwards being imprison'd at Yarmouth, where he continued in a lingering condition, and with little hopes of relief, drew up an Address to Oliver Cromwell written in such towering language and so much gallant reason, that upon his perusal of, he was so much melted down with it, that he forthwith ordered his release. Afterwards he retired to London, where finding a generous Mæcenæ settled in Greys Inn in Holbourne and became much admired, if not adored, by all generous loyalists and ingenious Men. He hath written (1) Poems. Lond. in oct. there again with additions 1651. oct. and several times after. (2) Characters. (3) Orations. (4) Epistles, &c. Several times also printed. At length an intermitting fever seizing him, brought him to his grave in the Church of St. Michael Royal, commonly called College-hill Church within the City of London, on the first day of May 1658. Soon after were published several Elegies on him, particularly that entit. Upon the most ingenious and incomparable Musophilist of his time Mr. John Cleaveland. A living memorial of his most devotional Brother and cordial mourner. Printed at London on the broad side of a sheet of paper, an. 1658. 'Twas written by his Brother Phil. Cleaveland, who tells us there that the said John Cleaveland died 28. April 1658. I have another Elegy lying by me entit. An Elegy upon the death of the most excellent Poet Mr. John Cleaveland. Printed also on one side of a sheet of paper, in May 1658. It was written by Francis Vaux a Servitour of Queens Coll. in Oxon, of about 3 years standing, the same who printed A Poem in praise of Typography; which is all I know of him, as having taken no Degree in this University.

Bach. of Law.

June 26. Hen. Coventry of Allf. Coll. --- This honorable Person who was the only Bach. of Law that was admitted this year, was a younger Son of Thomas Lord Coventry Lord Keeper of the great Seal of England, and was, as it seems, before the grand rebellion broke out Chancellour of Landaff. Afterwards suffering much for his Majesties Cause, was after the restauration of K. Ch. 2. made one of the Grooms of his Bedchamber, in Decemb. 1661. and in May 1667, he, with Denzell Lord Holler, went Embassadors extraordinary from his Majesty of Great Brittain to Breda to consummate a certain Treaty there. In Sept. 1671, he went Embassador to Sweden (having been an Envoy extraordinary there, in 1664) at which time he gave his helping hand to the breaking of the Triple-league, and on the 3. July 1672. he was sworn Principal Secretary of State, in the room of Sir Job. Trevor deceased. Which honorable office he keeping till his body was much broken with businels, to the beginning of the year 1680, resign'd it with his Majesties leave, and retired for health sake to Enfield for a time. Whereupon the place of Secretary was bestowed on Sir Liolin Jenkins Knight. At length Mr. Coventry giving way to fate in his house situated in the Hy-market near to Charing-croft in Westminster, 5. Dec. 1686, aged 68 years

11. Anthony Hodges of New

The last of these two, who was Chaplain of that College, became a florid Preacher in Oxon, during the time that the King and Parliament were there, and in June 1646, a little before the garrison of that place was surrendered to the Parliament, the Degree of Bach. of Div. was given to him by the venerable Convocation, in consideration of several noted Sermons that he had preached before the Royal Court. But so it was that he never took that Degree, or had any thing confer'd upon him, as others had, only the Vicaridge first of Commore, (which he soon after left) and afterwards the rectory of Wytham near Abendon in Berkshire. He hath translated from Greek into English The Loves of Clitophon and Leucippe, a most elegant History written in Greek by Achilles Tatius. Oxon. 1638. oct. in 7. books. There were two impressions of this translation made in that year, and in one of them are commendatory copies of verses made by several Poets of the University, namely among the rest, by Richard Lovelace of Gloc. Hall, Franc. James M. A. of New College, John Merford B. A. of St. Edm. Hall. &c. Mr. Hodges hath published nothing else, tho very able he was in many respects to do it. For those that were his acquaintance, knew him to be a most admirable Philologist, a Man of a great memory, and well vers'd in several sorts of learning; but being delighted to please himself in a juvenile and bantering way among junior Masters, could never be courted to set pen to paper for that purpose. He died in his lodging without the Turl-gate of Oxon, 13. Jan. 1685. aged 72 years or thereabouts; and was buried in the remotest part of the yard, joyning on the north side, to the Church at Wytham beforemention'd, and not near his sometimes Wife in the Church, because she had been dishonest to him.

The first of these last three, was now Rector of Penshurst in Kent, the second, Vicar of Croyden in Surrey, and afterwards the Author of A Funeral Sermon, on Ezek. 24. 16. London. 1652. qu. who dying in 1657 was buried in the Chancel of the Church of Farlegh in Surrey, of which place he had for some time been Rector, which is all I know of him only that he was a Berkshire Man born, and had in his younger days been accounted a good Greek and Lat. Poet. The last (Buckner) was about this time Prebendary of Winchester and dying in 1644, was, I presume, according to his desire buried at the foot of his Uncle Mr. Adam Buckner in the Chancel of the Church at Merstham (in Surrey.)

Incorporations.

May 30. Nathaniel Wright sometimes M. of A. of Cambridge, afterwards Doct. of Physf. of Bourges in France, was incorporated Doct. of Physf. --- What he hath extant besides his Theses de pluritudine vera, printed 1635 in qu. I know not. He was afterwards one of the Coll of Physicians, and Physician to Oliver Cromwell when he was sick in Scotland, an. 1650. 51.

June 30. John Donne sometimes of Ch. Ch. afterwards Doctor of the Laws of the University of Padua in Italy, was then incorporated in the same Degree. --- He was the Son of Dr. John Donne sometimes Dean of St. Pauls Cathedral, by his Wife Anne Daughter of Sir George More of Loseley in Surrey, was elected a Student of Ch. Ch. from Westminster School an. 1622. and had all the advantages imaginable tendred to him to tread in the steps of his vertuous Father; but his nature being vile, he proved no better all his life time than an Atheistical Buffoon, a Banterer, and a Person of over free thoughts; yet valued by K. Ch. 2. He hath published certain matters written by his Father, and several frivolous trifles under his own name; among which is The humble petition of Covent-garden against Dr. John Baber a Physician, an. 1661. He died in the Winter-time an. 1662. and was buried under, or near, the standing dial situat and being in the yard, at the West end of St. Pauls Church in Covent-garden. On Feb. 23. an. 1662 was published or printed his fantastical and conceited will, on a broad side of a sheet of paper, wherein the humour of the Person may be discovered. There is no doubt, but that he was a Man of sense, and parts; which, had they been applyed to a good use, he might have proved beneficial in his generation.

July 5. John Nicholas Vaughan a Cambræ-Britaine, sometimes of Jesuf Coll. in this University, afterwards Doctor of the Laws of Padua, was also then incorporated, having spent 10 years in the study of that faculty. He was the Son of John Nich. Vaughan Esq.

10. John Brownlowe sometimes of Braſnſe Coll. afterwards of St. Maries Hall, and at length (in 1631) Doctor of Physick of Leyden, was then taken into the bolome of this University.

Oct. 12. Daniel Brevint of the Isle of Jersey, Master of Arts of the Univ. of Saumur in France.

16. Antonius Aubertus Master of Arts of the University or Academy of Deinſe. [Deia Augusta Vocuntiorum] The said Degree was confer'd upon him there on the Ides of Septemb. 1619.

Nov. 7. George Ent Doctor of Physick of Padua. --- This learned Person who was the Son of Josias Ent, was born at Sandwich in Kent, 6. Nov. 1604, educated in Sydney Coll. in Cambridge, was, after he had been doctorated, Fellow of the Coll. of Physicians at London, eminent for his practice during the times of Usurpation, afterwards President of the said College and at length had the Degree of Knighthood confer'd upon him by King Charles 2. He hath written (1) Apologia pro circulatione sanguinis contra Emiliū Parisanum. London. 1641. oct. Wherein he hath learnedly defended Dr. William Harvey against the said Parisanus, and rendred a very rational account concerning the operation of purging Medicines, &c. (2) Animadversiones in Malacchia Thruston M. D. diatribam de respirationis usu primario. London. 1679. oct. before which is his picture in a long periwig. What other things he hath published, I cannot tell, nor any thing else of him, at present, only that he dying 13. October 1689, was buried in a Vault under part of the Church of St. Laurence in the Jewry, within the City of London.

Dec. 6.

Dec. 6. Charles Vane Malt. of Arts of Saumaure. — He was a Cadet of the knightly Family of the Vanes of Fairelane in Kent; and being nearly related to Sir Hen. Vane, closed with the Faction, and in 1650 was sent Agent into Portugal by the Parliament of England.

Jan. 19. Thom. Temple Bach. of Div. of Linc. Coll. sometimes M. of A. and Fellow of Trin. Coll. near to Dublin, was then incorporated Bach. of Div. — The said degree he took there 18. June 1630, and in the beginning of March following he was licensed to proceed in this University, as 'tis before told you. This person, who was Brother to Sir Job. Temple Knight, Master of the Rolls, and one of his Majesties Privy Council in Ireland, continued not long in Linc. Coll. for upon the turn of the times in 1641, I find him in London to be a forward Preacher, and about that time Minister of Battersea in Surrey, afterwards a frequent Preacher before the Members of the Long Parliament, and one of the Assembly of Divines; which is all I know of him, only he hath certain Sermons in print which he preached before the said Members; one of which is entit. Christ's government in and over his people, before the H. of Com. at their Fall 26 Oct. 1642, on Plal. 2. 6. Lond. 1642. qu.

Creations.

Apr. 11. John Fuxon an Officer belonging to the Lord Treasurer (qui ad cubitum summi totius Angliæ Thesaurarii à computis est, as the Register hath it) was declared Bach. of the Civil Law by a Diploma then read and sealed. — He was nearly related to Dr. Fuxon Bishop of London and Lord Treasurer of England.

Philip Warwick Secretary to the Lord Treasurer (qui ad cubitum &c. ab epistolis est, as in the said Reg.) was also diplomated Bach. of the Civ. Law the same day. — This noted person who was Son of Thom. Warwick Organist of the Abbey Church of S. Peter in Westminster, and he the Son of Thom. Warwick of Hereford, descended from the Warwicks or Wartbwykes of Warwick in Cumberland, was born in the said City of Westminster, educated in Eaton Coll. School near Windfore, and was for a time Chorister at Westminster. Afterwards he travelled into France, and was much at Geneva under the instruction and good counsel of Deodatus the famous Divine. Thence returning into his native Country, with many accomplishments, became Secretary to the Lord Treasurer before mention'd, one of the Clerks of the Signet, and in 1640 was elected a Burgess for the Town of Radnor in Wales, to sit in that Parliament which began at Westminster 3 Nov. the same year. But perceiving soon after, what desperate courses the Members thereof took, he retired to his Majesty, was with him at Oxon, and sat in the Parliament there, an. 1643, at which time and after, he had his Lodging in University Coll. and his Counsel much relied upon by his Majesty. Afterwards he was one of the Commissioners to treat with those appointed by Parliament, for the surrender of the Garrison of Oxon an. 1646, and in 1648 he did attend his Majesty in his disconsolate condition in the Isle of Wight. In the times of Usurpation, he was involved in the same troubles, as all Loyalists were; but after his Majesties Restauration, being then fix'd in the Clerkship of the Signet, he became Secretary to Thomas Earl of Southampton Lord Treasurer of England, in which place he acted so much, and so dexterously, that he, being then a Knight, was usually called Sir Philip the Treasurer. This person tho he hath published nothing, yet he hath left behind him several things fit for the Press, among which are (1) Memoirs or reflections upon the Reign of K. Ch. 1. in fol. (2) Of Government as examined by Scripture, Reason, and the Law of the Land: or, true weights and measures between Sovereignty and Liberty. fol. &c. He was esteemed by those that knew him to be a person of a publick spirit, above the riches and preferments of the World, and to be just in all his Actions, and needed not therefore that Character which a certain nameless Author (*) gives of him thus, that he never lies more than when he professes to speak the sincerity of his heart. He died on the 17 of the Cal. of Feb. 1682, aged 74 years, and was buried in the Church at Chislehurst in Kent, where he had an Estate. I have seen an Epitaph made on him by Dr. Tho. Pierce, Dean of Salisbury, the first part of which runs thus, Cavebis tibi viator, ne legens, lugeas: nam cuius fidem veritatis Carolus primus celebravit, (Carolusque secundus expertus est.) Nec majora quidem nec plura de se dici voluit. Vir celo natus, bonorum in terra desiderium, optimus veritatis estimator, aequi benique tenacissimus Philippus Warwick, &c. His Son and Heir was Philip Warwick Esquire, sometimes Envoy extraordinary from his Majesty to the King of Sweden, who returning post thence, to the Court at Newmarket, in order partly to take the last breath of his Father, died suddenly of an Apoplexy there in his bed, on Monday the 12 of March 1682.

The before mention'd Tho. Warwick, Father to Sir Philip, was also one of the Organists of the Royal Chappel belonging to K. Ch. 1. and was so admirably well skil'd in the theory part of musick, that he composed a Song of forty parts, for forty several persons, each of them to have his part entire from the other. This Song was performed before his Majesty about the year 1635, by forty Musicians, mostly belonging to his Majesty, and by some, to certain Churches, among whom Ben. Rogers of Windfore was one.

Apr. 17. Job. Maplet of Ch. Ch. was then actually created Master of Arts, being about to take a journey to his Uncle in Holland. — He is hereafter to be remembred as a Writer.

July 4. Hen. Killigrew of Ch. Ch. was actually created Master of Arts. — He is to be numbred hereafter among the Writers of this University.

Apr. 29. John Oliver of Magd. Coll. — This person who was a Kentish man born, and originally of Mert. Coll. was afterwards successively Demy and Fellow of that of Magd. where his eminence in Learning and orthodox Principles in Religion being conspicuous, he was taken into the Service of Dr. Laud Archb. of Cant. and by him made his domestick Chaplain, and promoted in the Church; but losing all in the time of the Rebellion, he was elected President of his Coll. in Apr. 1644, upon the advancement of Dr. Frewen to the See of Lichfield. In the latter end of 1647 he was turn'd out of his Presidentship, by the Committee of Lords and Commons for the reformation of the University of Oxon. and in the beginning of the next year, by the Visitors themselves in their own proper persons. So that afterwards living obscurely and in great hardship, wanted the charities which he before bestowed on the poor and the publick, being in a manner the object of charity himself. On the 18 of May 1660, which was about a fortnight before his Majesty's Return, he was by the Authority of Parl. restored to his Presidentship, and on the 22 of the said month he took possession thereof, being the first of all Loyal Heads that was restored to what they had lost in this University. Soon after he was by his Majesty's favour nominated Dean of Worcester, in the place of Dr. Rich. Holdsworth, who died 1649; in which Dignity being installed 12 Sept. 1660, kept it to the time of his death; which hapning 27 Oct. 1661, was buried in Magd. Coll. Chapel. This most learned, meek, and pious person, was strangely desirous to leave this World, tho' few alive had then such temptations to stay in it. That little which he had got since his Majesty's return, he gave to pious uses, either to the poor, or reparation of Churches, viz. S. Pauls, Winchester (of which he was Prebendary) Worcester, and to his Coll. To which last his two immediate Predecessors Wilkinson and Goodwin, who were thrust in by the Parliament and Oliver for their Saintship and zeal to the blessed Cause, gave not a farthing, but rak'd and scrap'd up all that they could get thence, as the rest of the Saints then did in the University. Dr. Oliver left also a Legacy seal'd up in a paper to Sir Edw. Hyde then Earl of Clarendon and Lord Chanc. of England, sometimes his Pupil while he was in the University, for upon his motion it was that he was made Dean of Worcester, and Legacies to his Nephews, Niece (who had been kind to him in his wants) and Servants. There was some affinity between him and Tho. Oliver an eminent Physitian and Mathematician, (educated, as I conceive, in Cambridge) a practitioner of his Faculty at S. Edmunds Bury, where he died and was buried in 1624. The Titles of his Works you may see in the Oxford Catalogue.

Lesley a noble young man of great hopes, Son of Henry Bishop of Downe and Connor, and M. of A. of Aberdene in Scotland, was incorporated the same day. — The degree of Bach. of Arts was confer'd upon him in the University of Dublin 23 March 1636, and that of Master at Aberdene 16 July 1638.

Jul. 2. Rob. Price Doct. of the Laws of Dublin. — He was afterwards Bishop of Ferns and Leighlin in Ireland.

9. Edward Lane M. of A. of Cambridg. e. — This person, who was educated in Pauls School, and afterwards in S. Johns Coll. in the said University, became Vicar of Northstrobury in Essex by the favour of the Lord Keeper Coventry 1630, and was thence removed by the same hand to the Vicaridge of Spe-sholt near to Rumsey in Hampshire. He hath written Look unto Jesus: or, an ascent to the holy mount, to see Jesus Christ in his glory, &c. Lond. 1663. qu. and Mercy triumphant: the Kingdom of Christ enlarged beyond the narrow bounds which have been put to it by Dr. Lewin du Moulin, in his most antichristian book called Moral reflections on the number of the elect, &c. Lond. 1680. qu. In which year the Author Ed. Lane was living at Spe-sholt. The said Book was reprinted in the year following, with this title, Du Moulin's reflections reverberated, being a full answer to a pamphlet, entit. Moral Reflections on the number of the elect, together with several arguments about Transubstantiation, not in any Author yet. To which is added, An answer to Mr. Edm. Hickeringil's scurrilous piece, stiled, The second part of naked truth.

Will. Gorton Bach. of Div. of the University of S. Andrew in Scotland, was incorporated the same day. — He was now Vicar of Lower Gitting in Gloucestershire.

Jul. . . . Thom. Mocket Malt. of Arts of Cambridge. — He was educated in Queens Coll. in that University, was about this time Minister of Holt in Denbighshire, and afterwards of Gildeston or Gildesten in Herefordshire. He hath published certain Sermons, and Christmas, the Christians grand feast: its original, growth, and observation: Also of Easter, Whitsontide, &c. Lond. 1651. qu. besides other things.

Jul. . . . Edm. Calamy Bach. of Div. of Cambridge — After he had left that University he became a Preacher in S. Edmundsbury in Suffolk, where, as a certain (†) Anonymous observes, he complied with Bishop Wren the Diocefan, preach'd frequently in his surplice and hood, read prayers at the rails, bowed at the name of Jesus, and undertook to satisfy and reduce such as scrupled at those ceremonies. Thus the said nameless Author; yet Calamy himself faith (*) that while he continued there, he never bowed to, or towards, the Altar, never read the book of sports, never read prayers at the high Altar, and that he preached against Innovations, &c. But so it was, let he himself say what he will, that after he had continued 10 years at that place, and had complied, as is before mention'd, Robert the puritanical Earl of Warwick usually said He would be lost if he were not taken off. and so removed him to Rochford in Essex: where continuing till the Long Parliament began in Nov. 1640, removed thence to London, and became Minister of S. Mary Aldermanbury. About which time the Presbyterian growing dominant, he became a great Evangelist of the new way, encouraged the people to Rebellion, was one of those that joyned in making Smectymnus, which was the first deadly blow in England given to Episcopacy (as divers thought) that had hapned for many years before. His house also in that Parish, was a receptacle then for all Presbyterian Ministers, and there was the Remonstrance framed against the Prelates, and all or most things hatched to carry on the blessed and beloved Cause. At that time he was a frequent Preacher before the Members of the Long Parliament, and he was the first that did openly defend before a Committee of Parliament, that our Bishops were not only not an order distinct from Presbyters, but that in Scripture a Bishop and a Presbyter were all one. Afterwards he was made one of the Assembly of Divines, took the Covenant, to which he closely stuck ever after; and was not wanting on all occasions to carry on the Cause, whereby he gained to himself not only a name and repute among the Brethren, but also wealth, which was the chief thing he looked after. After his Majesty's Return in 1660, there were ome offers in private made to him of a Bishoprick, conditionally that he would conform, but made delays, thinking to enjoy that honorable Function as to be alter'd by the Kings Declaration about ecclesiastical affairs, and to be used according to that Declaration, and not according to the antient Laws and Customs of the Land and Church. Wherefore he being uncertain whether the Kings Declaration would stand, or pass into a Law, he delayed to see the certainty; and when he saw that the Declaration was dead, and Prelacy was as 'twas before, he utterly refused it. So that continuing in the said Cure of S. Mary Aldermanbury till S. Bartholomew's day in 1662, he was then ejected for Nonconformity. Notwithstanding which, he preached soon after in the said Church on a Sunday, and on the 28 of Dec. following, when then, among other dangerous passages, he said the Ark of God was lost, and the glory was departed from Israel. For which his contempt to the then late Act of Parliament for Uniformity, he was by virtue of the L. Mayor's Mittimus committed Prisoner to Newgate on the 6 Jan. 1662, where continuing for some time, Dr. Rob. Wild the Presbyterian Poet made and published a Poem on his Imprisonment, as did the Author called Hudibras. Most of the things that he hath written and published are Sermons: seven of which at least, were preached before the Long Parliament, as (1) Englands looking glass, before the House of Commons at their solemn Fast 22 Dec. 1641, on Jer. 18. 7, 8, 9, 10. Lond. 1642. qu. (2) Gods free mercy to England, before the House of Commons at their solemn Fast 23 Feb. 1641, on Ezek. 36. 32. Lond. 1642. qu. (3) The Noblemans pattern of true and real thankfulness, at a solemn Thanksgiving 15 Jun. 1643, on Josh. 24. 15. Lond. 1643. qu. (4) Englands antidote against the plague of Civ. War, before the House of Commons at their Fast, on Acts 17. latter part of the 13 verse. Lond. 1645. qu. (5) An indictment against England because of her self-murdering divisions, before the House of Lords at their Fast 25 Dec. (Christmas day) 1644, on Math. 12. 25. latter part. Lond. 1645. qu. &c. Afterwards he published The great danger of Covenant refusing and Covenant breaking, &c. preached before the L. Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, Ministers, &c. of London, on 2 Tim. 3. 3. Lond. 1646. qu. Sermon at the funeral of Sam. Bolton; another before the L. Mayor, called The monster of self-seeking anatomized; five Sermons entit. The godly mans ark; or a city of refuge in the day of his distress, printed several times in tw. The eighth Edition of which was printed at Lond. 1683. The first Sermon was preached at the Funeral of Mrs. Elizab. Moore, to which are added her Evidences for Heaven; and the other four were preached on several occasions. Another Sermon to the native Citizens of London called The City remembrancer, in oct. Sermon at the funeral of Rob. Earl of Warwick, an. 1658. Sermon at the funeral of Simeon Ash an. 1662, and about the same time A farewell Sermon when he was to leave S. Mary Aldermanbury, &c. He hath also written A just and necessary Apology against an unjust invective, published by Mr. Hen. Burton in a late book of his entit. Truth still Truth, though shut out of doors, &c. Lond. 1646. qu. Also The art of divine Meditation, in oct. and A leading case, &c. At length having lived to a fair age, gave way to fate in Octob. 1666, being soon after the grand Conflagration of the City of London, which hastned his end, but where buried, unless within the precincts of the Church of S. Mary Aldermanbury, which a little before was consumed by the said Fire, I cannot yet tell. He left behind him a son named Benjamin, afterwards D. of D. a loyal person, excellent preacher, and a zealous man for the Church of England. Of Edm. Calamy see more in *Jos. Jul. 14. Thom. Stanley M. of A. of Cambridge. --- This Gentleman who was the only Son of Sir Tho. Stanley Knight, was born at Cumberlow in Hertfordshire, educated in Grammatical learning in his Fathers House under one Mr. Will. Fairfax, in Academical in Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, in the quality of a Gentleman Commoner; where he became a very early proficient in several sorts of polite learning. In the times of Usurpation he lived in the Middle Temple, where he advanced his knowledge much by the Communication of his Kinman Edw. Sherburne Esq; then lately returned from his Travels, became much deserving of the Commonwealth of Learning in general, and particularly honour'd for his smooth air and gentle spirit in Poetry, which appears not only in his own genuine Poems, but also from those things which he hath translated out of the ancient Greek, and modern, Italian, Spanish, and French, Poets. His writings are (1) The History of Philosophy, containing those on whom the Attribute of Wise was conferred. Lond. 1655. fol. in three parts, with Stanley's Picture before them. The second Vol. was printed in 1656. fol. containing five parts, making in all eight parts: And at the end of the said second Vol. is The doctrine of the Stoicks, in two parts. The third Vol. of the said Hist. of Philosophy was published in 1660. fol. contained also in several parts. All which parts, illustrated with Cuts, were reprinted 1687. fol. (2) History of Chaldaick Philosophy, &c. Lond. 1662. (3) Poems. Lond. 1651. oct. dedicated to Love; some of which, (and not others in his Translations) had, if I am not mistaken, musical Compositions set to them by John Gamble in his book entit. Ayres and Dialogues, to be sung to the Theorbo-Lute or Bass Viol. Lond. 1651. fol. Which J. Gamble, by the way I must let the Reader know, was bred up in the condition of an Apprentice under a noted Master of Musick called Ambrose Beyland, was afterwards a Musitian belonging to a Playhouse, one of the Cornets in the Kings Chappel, one of the Violins to K. Ch. 2. and a Composer of Lessons for the Kings Playhouse. (4) Translation of, with Annotations on, Europa, (in the Idyll of Theocritus) Cupid crucified, Venus Vigils. Lond. 1649. oct. To the second Edition of which, he added the Translation of, and Notes on, Anacreon, Bion, Kisses by Secundus. printed 1651. oct. (5) Version of, and Commentary on Aeschyls tragædia septem cum scolis Græcis omnibus, deperditorum Drammatum fragmentis. Lond. 1664. fol. Jul. 15. Will. Blake Doct. of the Civ. Law of Padua. --- This Will. Blake who was now, or lately, Fellow of Wadham Coll. as also Brother to Rob. Blake General at Sea in the Reign of Oliver, died at Bridgewater in Somersetshire 1667.

Nov. Isaac Basire D. of D. of Cambridge. --- This learned Doctor who had that degree confer'd on him there, in July this year, and is filed in the publick Register of this time Vir doctissimus --- ingenii & doctrine ornamentis præditus, was born in the Isle of Jersey, and was about this time one of his Majesties Chaplains in Ordinary, and soon after Archdeacon of Northumberland in the place of Ever Gower Bach. of Div. who had that dignity confer'd on him about 1640 by the ceasing of Will. Flatbers Bach. of Div. collated thereunto 24 Nov. 1636. In the time of the Rebellion Dr. Basire fled to Oxon, adhered to his Majesties cause, preached frequently before him and the Parliament there, and was an equal sharer in afflictions with other Loyalists. About the year 1646 he left the Nation and travelled into remote Countries, purposely to propagate the Doctrine established in the British Church, among the Greeks, Arabians, &c. as to the Island of Zante near Peloponesus, thence to Morea, where the Metropolitan of Achaia prevailed with him to preach twice in Greek, at a meeting of some of the Bishops and Clergy. From thence, after he had travelled thorow Apulia, Naples and Sicily, (in which last place he had been once before) he embarked for Syria, where, at Aleppo he continued some months, and had frequent Conversation with the Patriarch of Antioch. From Aleppo he went to Jerusalem, and so travell'd all over Palestine. At Jerusalem he received much honor, both from the Greeks and Latins: from the last he procured an entrance into the Temple of the Sepulcher, at the rate of a Priest. Afterwards returning to Aleppo, he passed over Euphrates, and went to Mesopotamia. Thence to Aleppo again, and at length to Constantinople in 1653; in which year he designed to pass into Egypt, to survey the Churches of the Copties there, and to confer with the Patriarch of Alexandria, as he had done with three Patriarchs besides, partly to acquire the knowledge of those Churches, and partly to publish ours, quantum fert status. Afterwards he went into Transylvania, and was entertained by Prince George Rogozzi (or Rogorzi) the second, Prince of that Country, by whom he was entrusted with the Chair in the Divinity School. After the Return of King Charles 2. to his Dominions, he took his leave of that Country, then in broils, returned into England, took possession of his Archdeaconry, and was made Prebendary of Durham: which Dignities he kept to his dying day. He hath written (1) Deo & ecclesie sacrum. Sacrisledge arraigned and condemned by St. Paul, Romans 2. 22. Oxon. 1646. qu. Lond. 1668. oct. (2) Diatriba de antiqua ecclesie Britannicæ libertate. Brugis 1656. oct. The MS. of which being found in the Cabinet of John Lord Hopton after his decease, by Rich. Watson an exil'd Theologist for his loyalty, was by him published at Bruges. Afterwards the said Watson translated it into English, and put it out under this title The ancient liberty of the Britannick Church, and the legitimate exemption thereof from the Roman Patriarchate, discoursed in four positions. Lond. 1661. oct. Dedicated by the said Watson by his Epistle dated from Caen in Normandy 12. Aug. 1660. to Sir Rich. Browne Clerk of

of the Privy Council to his Majesty of Great Britaine, he supposing then that Basire the Author had been dead in Transylvania. Three chapters or positions of which, were selected from a Latin MS. written by F. John Barnes of the order of St. Benedict, as I have elsewhere told you. (3) Letter to Sir Rich. Browne Resident at Paris for his Majesty of Great Britaine relating his travels and endeavours to propagate the knowledge of the doctrine and discipline, established in the Britannick Church among the Greeks, Arabians. &c. dated from Pera near to Constantinople 20. July 1653, and printed at the end of The ancient Liberty of the Britannick Church, &c. (4) History of the English and Scotch Presbytery, &c. printed 1659. 60. oct. (5) Oratio privata, boni Theologi (speciatim concionatoris practici) partes precipuas complectens. Lond. 1670. in half a sh. in oct. (6) The dead mans real speech; Sermon on Heb. 11. 4. at the funeral of Dr. John Cosin late Bishop of Durham, 29. Apr. 1672. Lond. 1673. oct. (7) A brief of the life and dig- nities, of the benefactions and principal actions, &c. of Dr. John Cosin late Bishop of Durham. Printed with the former, together with An appendix of his profession and practice, and of his last will concerning religion. This Dr. Basire, who, without doubt, hath published other things, paid his last debt to nature in a good old age, on the twelfth day of Octob. 1676, and was buried in the Cemetery belonging to the Cathedral of Durham, near to the body of an antient servant that had lived many years with him, and not by that of his Wife in the Cathedral. In his Archdeaconry succeeded Will. Turner Rector of Stanhope in the County Palat. of Durham, M. of A. (afterwards D. D.) and sometimes Fellow of Trin. Coll. in Oxon, a younger Son of Dr. Tho. Turner, sometimes Dean of Canterbury.

Jan. 14. Joh. Regius (King) Londino-Anglus, Doctor of Phys. of the University of Leyden in Holland, was then incorporated. Which Degree was conferr'd upon him in the said Univ. 1638.
